"Another never to be forgotten Christmas I spent in Havana, when at the height of a performance before a large audience the best lion tamer that ever I knew furnished a dinner to a cage of fierce Numidian beasts. When the lions were finally beaten back from their prey with red-hot irons there was just enough left of Florinelli to hold a funeral service over. That was all. Well, such is circus life," exclaimed the old clown, mournfully.

"The happiest Christmas of my life was spent at New Orleans. At that time I had a company of 100 of the sweetest-voiced children that ever sang, and with them I was giving a series of spectacular musical productions at various cities in the South, traveling on my own steamboat. The tour had been unusually profitable, and so I announced that at the close of the last performance, on Christmas, Dan Rice's original Santa Claus would appear in his sleigh, with many unique effects, and present to each dear little member of his company a token of the season.

"I and my agents spared no efforts in perfecting the necessary plans, and at the close of the last performance on Christmas the lights were lowered and a winter's night scene presented, with full moon shining upon snow-covered housetops and plains, over which soon came Santa Claus, dashing along in a frost-glittering sleigh, drawn by reindeers, the jingling of whose bells could be plainly heard. Upon a housetop the sleigh halted, and Santa Claus disappeared down a chimney.

"Then the scene changed, the lights were turned out, and the hundred silvery voices of the company united in singing 'The Star of Bethlehem.' Then, still singing, the pretty little ones, all beautifully costumed, marched across the stage, each bearing in his or her arms the dainty presents from Dan Rice's Santa Claus. O, that was a great night in New Orleans, and my Santa Claus saw that no hungry one in the whole city went supperless to bed."

"And what became of those dear little boys and girls of my company? Well, some are dead, and some are married, while I am still Dan Rice. I want to see twenty-six more years in order to ascertain the ultimate level of the 'new woman.'"

The Wrong Girl.

There's naught can add more to your woe
Than when you've made a sortie,
And caught her 'neath the mistletoe,
To find she's nearly forty.

Boys Can Have Everything.

In the line of toys that lord of creation, the boy, can have anything his heart desires, providing only that Santa Claus is good to him. Certainly the range is wide enough. Does he want a railway? Years ago he would have to content himself with one that would go only when he pulled it along the floor. Now, however, he can have it propelled on a real track laid on real ties. He can choose whether the motive power shall be steam or electricity, or clockwork. He can have the track equipped with real switches, which can be thrown so he can cause his own collisions.

Or would he like a stationary engine? Here, too, he can have the choice of a steam engine or an electric motor. The steam engine is elaborately got up, and is perfectly safe if the safety valve is kept on.

Perhaps he would like to have a ship. But he will not be old fogy enough to expect a sailing ship. Just as the clipper has disappeared from the deep, so has the vessel or sail vanished from toydom. He can get all kinds of wooden ships that move around on wheels, some painted to represent our newest naval vessels, and others like the finest of the merchant marine. Or, if he must have the real article, he can have a metal craft, propelled by real steam in the nearest bit of real water that is handy.

Hanging the Greens.

The greens are hung over chandeliers, mantels and picture frames. Long branches of holly are tied to the railings of the stairways, and a nice little holly tree, full of berries, with a big decorative ribbon bow in front, is placed on top of the newel post. A special ribbon, called "berry ribbon," of a red which matches that of the holly berry, is used for tying Christmas decorations.

In addition to the greens there is one flower which is identified with Christmas. This is the so-called Mexican Christmas flower, or poinsettia. It is a small red flower, with long, highly decorative red leaves, which blooms in Mexico about this time of the year and is grown here in greenhouses especially for use at Christmas time.

To Much Like Work.

Ragged Reube—Here's a chicken coop. Let's swipe a chicken fer our Chris'mus dinner.

Weary Willie—Swipe a live chicken? Nit! Wait till we strike a butcher shop.

Ragged Reube—Why?

Weary Willie—I'm not goin' ter spend Chris'mus pullin' out feathers.

Well Answered.

Uncle Mose—I prayed dat de Lawd would sen' me a Christmas turkey.

Deacon Jones—Wuz yo' prayah answahed?

Uncle Mose—Well, it wuz mos' sutnly a 'markable thing dat Squiah Brown's henhouse doah wan't locked las' night.

Burgling Bill—Lay down now, little chillern, an' go ter sleep. I'm Sandy Claus.

Child Harold—But Thanty Clawth hath whiskerth!

Burgling Bill—Oh, dat wuz afore de Populists begun to wear 'em.

King Lear—How sharper than a serpent's tooth it is to have a thankless child! Here I gave that girl my diamond frame, and now she won't even lend me a clean shirt!

Chinese Noah's Ark.

The Chinese Noah's ark usually contains a unicorn, a dragon, a hippogrif, a griffin and a number of curious mythological creatures.

THE HOLLY SONG.

Blow, blow, thou winter wind,
Thou art not so unkind
As man's ingratitude;
Thy tooth is not so keen,
Because thou art not seen,
Although thy breath be rude.
Heigh-ho! sing heigh-ho! unto the green holly:
Most friendships is feigning, most loving mere folly:
Then heigh-ho! the holly!
This life is most jolly.

Freeze, freeze, thou bitter sky.
Thou dost not bite so nigh
As benefits forgot;
Though thou the waters warp,
Thy sting is not so sharp
As friend remember'd not.
Heigh-ho! sing heigh-ho! unto the green holly:
Most friendships is feigning, most loving mere folly;
Then heigh-ho! the holly!
This life is most jolly.

In Washington's Time.

George Washington ate his first Presidential Christmas dinner in the house which stood at Pearl and Cherry streets, Franklin square, in New York city, and there were present, besides the President, Mrs. Washington, his grandchildren and a few invited guests. Six years before this time he had laid down his office as Commander-in-Chief of the Army. How little he expected the honors that were in store for him is evidenced by a letter which he wrote to Baron Steuben, on December 23, 1783. "This is the last letter I shall write," he says, "in the service of my country. The hour of my resignation is fixed at 12 to-day, after which I shall become a private citizen on the banks of the Potomac."

It is interesting to recall the fact that he reached Mount Vernon, after having resigned, on Christmas Eve, and was there snow-and-ice bound by weather so severe that he was unable to visit even his aged mother, who lived in Fredericksburg. The scene of his resignation in the Christmas season is worth recalling.

Gen. Washington appeared in the hall of Congress clad in a dark brown cloth suit, which is distinctly said to have been of American manufacture. His sword was steel hilted, his stockings were of white silk, and a plain pair of silver buckles adorned his shoes. His hair was, of course, powdered and in bag and solitaire." The members of Congress sat with their hats on, as they still do in Paliament. Gen. Washington, conducted by the secretary of Congress, formally made his resignation to the President, concluding:

"I consider it an indispensable duty to close this last solemn act of my official life by commending the interest of our dearest country to the protection of Almighty God; and those who have superintendence of them to His holy keeping." Scarcely less graceful was the reply of the President, whose prophetic words were: "You return from the theatre of action with the blessings of your fellow-citizens, but the glory of your virtues will not terminate with your military commands, but it will continue to animate remotest ages."

What Caused His Joy.

Hennypeck—Last Christmas was the happiest day of my life.

Askins—How was that?

Hennypeck—A burglar broke into the house on the previous night and stole the handsomely lithographed box of Royal Cabbaga Leafa cigars that my wife had bought for a present for me.

Christmas in Porto Rico.

The Day Before Christmas.

There silence in the house to-day,
The children do not want to play;
They hang around, their movements slow,
Their voices are subdued and low;
Each face shows earnest thought, because
To-night's the night for Santa Claus.
Anticipation running high,
They waited as the days dragged by,
And almost hourly on parade
The largest stockings they've surveyed
From early morning light, because
To-night's the night for Santa Claus.
Papa down at the office sits
And all day long his eyebrow knits;
He's almost tired enough to drop;
But on he toils; he cannot stop;
He's had no time to loaf, because
To-night's the night for Santa Claus.

He is Right Up to Date.

"Up to date?" said Santa Claus. "Well rather!"

He rang up his polar stables.

"Hello, hello!" he shouted. "Run out that new reindeerless motor sleigh, Olaf; the children are waiting. Up to date? Just watch me while I mote!"

An Unpleasant Gift.

Askins—I presume you were not especially delighted with Professor Pokesmith's peculiar Christmas present of a snake preserved in alcohol?

Lushington—No, I did not appreciate either the gift or the spirit in which it was tendered.

THEIR MAIL COMES TOO OFTEN.

Country Folks Who Object to Modern Mail Improvements.

"The new revision of the star routes is doing a great deal of good in the South," remarked Chief Clerk Day, of the railway mail service, "and enabling lots of country folks to get their letters and papers daily where they formerly received them only once or twice a week. Strange to say, however, the change is not always hailed with joy.

"Over in Gilmer County, Georgia, a star route agent juggled things around so as to get a six-day mail into a weekly town, and was chuckling over the idea that he had been a benefactor to the whole district when the postmaster hunted him up with a face as long as a backwoods sermon. 'I wish you would fix it to change that thar mail back agin like it was,' said the old fellow, earnestly. 'What!' exclaimed the agent, in amazement. 'Why, what on earth is the matter?' 'Well, it's like this,' said the postmaster. 'Our folks has been used to comin' fer their letters every Saturday an' was well suited. Now this here new scheme has been started, and it breaks 'em all up. They feel kinder uneasy like onless they come in every day, and they just can't do no work. The crops is gettin' plumb neglected. We all want you to switch her back agin as quick as you kin.'

"The agent went away deeply disgusted, and sent in a special report in which he intimated that an annual mail would about meet the needs of the county. At last reports, though, it was standing at the six-day schedule."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

The promise of a metropolitan attraction presented with the same details as prevails in New York when such there filled Music Hall Saturday with the most fashionable and cultured audience of the present season to witness James K. Hackett in "Rupurt of Hentzau." The dramatization of Anthony Hope's famous novel, a sequel to "The Prisoner of Zenda," with the clever and polished young Mr. Hackett portraying the dual roles of "King Rudolph" and "Rudolph Rassendyll," afforded the audience a wealth of fine acting and excellent stage managing from beginning to end. The star gave a portrayal of two distinctly different characters that displayed his versatile talents to splendid advantage. In the character of "Queen Flavia," whose cup of sorrow was constantly at the top notch of fullness, Miss Katherine Grey gave a sympathic impersonation that set her down as fit stage companion for the star, and fully capable of the dramatic demands of the drama. The support throughout was excellent, the work of Mr. Pope as "Colonel Sapt, the constable of the guards of Zenda," being especially commendable.

George H Broadhurst's farce, "What Happened to Jones," to be presented at Music Hall Wednesday night, is described as a "hilarious sufficiency." If there is such a thing known to anatomists as muscles of risibility what happens to the audiences when they see Jones is certainly a strain upon them. This great success, and the best evidence that "Jones" is a success, is the fact that big crowds go to see it in every town it is played, is simply a spirited, brightly-written, well constructed bit of nonsense presented by a capable company of players. All that happens to Jones is due to the desire of the police to lay hands upon an offender in the incidents of a lively evening. Pretty girls, credulous mothers and maiden aunts are mixed up in a ceaseless string of entanglements through which the shameless Jones lies cheerfully and with total disregards for the comfort of the sufferers. And at last all ends with the proper explanations and metings.

A big revival of the favorite farce comedy, "Muldoon's Picnic," is promised for Friday night next at Music Hall. Con. T. Murphy, the noted author, has re-written the play and made it an up-to-date version of what has always been known as the funniest of the plays of its class. A great deal of new and gingery Irish humor has been added to the text and some very funny situations have been evolved to aid in the action. The company engaged is a good one, and will do justice to the farce, while half the score of "specialty people" will lend their talents to the general action, with the production of the newest things in the vaudeville line of songs and dances.

The favorite actress, Minnie Lester, supported by a strong dramatic company, will be the attraction at Music Hall next week. In addition several well-known specialty artists will introduce their different sketches each night during the week. The illustrated songs, the war pictures, her own superb orchestra and a new play every night go to make up a week of genuine enjoyment to the theatre-goers.

Good Address to Men.

Dr. Tomlinson's address last night at the men's meeting in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, was a plain and forcible setting forth of the cruse of physical and moral degeneracy, from the point of view of one who is both a physician of culture and experience, and a true man with strong human and Christian sympathies. The paper was followed with most earnest words by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis and Superintendent H. M. Maxson. We wish hundreds of youths and men could have heard the things said.

WISHED THEM BON VOYAGE.

Mr. and Mrs. Binning's Friends Give Them a Great Sendoff.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Binning, formerly of this city, but late of New York, sailed Saturday on the steamship Campania, of the Cunard Line, for England, where they will remain for an indefinite time. Mr. Binning was formerly the efficient engineer for the Plainfield Electric Light Company, but later worked for the Union Electric Street Railway Company, of New York. Mrs. Binning (nee Miss Emma Martin) will be remembered as one of the first operators at the local office of the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company.

Previous to their departure they were given a royal sendoff on the steamer by about fifty of their friends in New York, among whom were the officials and fellow-employes of the Union Electric Street Railway Company, and their wives Miss Josie W. Martin, of Chatham street, a sister of Mrs. Binning, was also present

A MOCK TRIAL.

J. P. D. Kirch will act as judge and preside.

The young men are going to undertake a difficult case, one of contributory negligence, but they are holding these mock trials to accustom themselves to practical work in the courts, and expect to derive great help from them.

Runaway Horse Delivered Meat.

A horse and wagon owned by David Smalley, the North avenue butcher, took part in an exciting runaway this forenoon. The rig was in charge of H. W. Leek, one of Mr. Smalley's butchers. He was delivering meat in the vicinity of Franklin place. In attempting to get in the wagon his feet slipped and he fell against the horse. This frightened the animal and he ran away. Most of the meat in the wagon was strewn along the roadway between Franklin place and New and Seventh streets, where the horse was stopped. The wagon was considerably damaged, but the horse escaped injury, and so did Mr. Leek.

Severe Bicycle Accident.

The breaking of the head to his bicycle has laid up James Taylor, of West Seventh street, for a few days, and will compel him to carry his left arm in a sling for several weeks to come. Taylor was riding his wheel down East Front street Saturday afternoon bound for Hyde's mill-pond to skate. He was riding at a fast clip when the head to his bicycle broke without warning and he was thrown heavily to the ground. His left elbow was dislocated by the blow and he was badly bruised by his contact with the frozen ground. He was carried home and is now there waiting for his injury to recover.

Trolley Power House.

It is said that the Plainfield Street Railway Company will probably erect a power house on the lot at the corner of Front and Richmond streets, which they purchased some time ago in the effort to get a majority of the street frontage on that thoroughfare in order to get the right of way for a line to Scotch Plains.

A Consecration Service.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church will hold a consecration service next Friday evening at the church. The meeting will be conducted from memory, and the members are expected to respond in the same manner. No Bibles or hymn books will be used.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Hawaii paid her obligation to Japan, and retired with balanced accounts. The life of the island republic was not very long, but it was distinctly business-like and honorable.

An emigrant from the blue grass region to the Klondike gold fields has written home that a man can live better and save money by working for $1 a day in old Kentucky than he can by digging for the precious metall in Alaska.

Shafter is another of the exceptions to the rule that fat men are inert and slothful. Shafter's case is such a startling exception that it would seem to be enough to upset the rule. By the way, are fat men really slothful? What is your experience?

Medical treatment by music is the system adopted by a woman practitioner in New York. She claims that the remedial influences of music are important and that the nervous organization can be stimulated or soothed, and permanently braced up, by the proper selection of compositions and instruments. That the nerves can be irritated by music at unseemly hours is a fact legally established. The other theory ought to have a chance.

After all, the best "school for the soldier" is in the field when strenuous fighting is on. Gen. Miles, the head of the army, was a clerk in Boston when he began his military career. Gen. Shafter was a farmer when he went into the army during the civil war. The best place to learn how to fight appears to be not in a military school, though that has its advantages, but on the lines where real fighting is in progress.

A novel sensation to be soon experienced will be that of buying coffee grown on American soil. No doubt some differences of flavor will be found in the product of Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines. There are over 200 coffee plantations in Hawaii. In 1896 Porto Rico exported over 58,000,000 pounds of coffee, valued at $13,378,000. The most of the Porto Rican crop has hitherto been consumed in Spain and Cuba.

Secretary of the Navy Long announces that in awarding the contracts for the three new battle-ships, preference will be given to bids offering to guarantee the greatest speed and coal endurance, and each vessel must be able to steam 5,432 knots at a moderate pace. That would carry a ship to Europe and back again, or from Honolulu to the coast of China. Events of the war with Spain have induced all navy departments to provide a higher speed for battle-ships about to be constructed. The new battle-ship Missouri will be at least two knots faster than any vessel of her class in commission in our navy.

Moncure D. Conway, who has long made a special study of Washington's life, says there is no truth whatever in the tradition that Frederick the Great transmitted a sword to Washington with the message: "From the oldest General in the world to the greatest." Carlyle told Mr. Conway that there is not the slightest foundation for the story, though it had found its way into several histories. Nor was Frederick the first sovereign to recognize the independence of the United States. In fact, he never recognized it, but allowed the Hessians to be sent to America in the service of King George.

Pancake Sociable.

The Sunday-school of Trinity Reformed church will give a novel sociable Thursday evening. No admission will be charged, but a silver offering will be appreciated. Besides a musical programme, pancakes and delicious coffee will be served to all who have the price, 15 cents. The amount realized will go toward paying for the balance due on the matting covering the floor of the Sunday-school room. Cakes and coffee will be served from 6 o'clock on into the evening, and an enjoyable time is promised to all who attend. An expert from Hecker's establishment will be present and bake the pancakes.

Fine Concert Tonight.

Tonight at the First Baptist church the beautiful sacred cantata of "Athalie" and other selections will be presented by the church choir of forty voices, assisted by Howard Case, organist, and Miss Jessie Utter, pianist. E. J. Fitzhugh, who has trained the choir, will have charge of the concert and this assures a rare treat to all. The concert is for the benefit of the Sunday school and large patronage should be accorded by Plainfield's music-loving people.

To Stop Work for the Winter.

The Plainfield Electric Light Company has decided not to continue the work for the present of laying conduits under ground. The early continued cold weather has been the means of changing the original plans. Yesterday Wm. Hand was given orders to collect all piping placed along the streets and put them away for the winter.

Trolley Franchise Comes Up.

The City Council will meet this evening and conclude its work on the extension of the trolley. The ordinance granting the franchise will probably be granted, but an opportunity will be given any one so desiring a chance to say something for or against the adoption of the same.

A Joint Gift.

In the obituary of the lates James McGee, published in The Daily Press, it was stated that he purchased the lot on which the Monroe Avenue M. E. church was built and gave it to the church. The lot was purchased by Mr. McGee and J. W. Jackson jointly and given by them to the church.

The water tank of the Jersey Central railroad overflowed this morning, and the water ran down the roadway to Park avenue and froze there making the walking rather dangerous.

"ATHALIE" RENDERED IN EXCELLENT MANNER.

A Large and Musical Audience Heard the Choral.

SEVERAE FINE SOLOS GIVEN.

THE SINGING UNDER THE DIRECTION OF CONDUCTOR FITZHUGH.

Part First Consisted of a Rendition of Classical Numbers by the Soloists, Ending With "Star-Spangled Banner" by Choir and Audience—The Work of the Chorus was Strong in the Cantata.

The large audience that assembled in the First Baptist church last evening was in every way an appreciative one, as well as a musical one. It was the first private concert given by the choir of the church and in every particular it was a success. The voices were well selected and under the direction of Edward J. Fitzhugh, conductor, the best results were obtained throughout.

Part first of the programme was devoted to a rendition of varied classical selections, in which Howard Case, organist, gave "Minuet Syphonique," by Salome; George H. Smith, tenor, the sanctus from "Messe Solenelle," by Gounod; Mrs. F. M. Ward, contralto, "The Three Singers," by Tours; William Holmes, baritone, selection from "Elijah," by Mendelssohn; Miss Juella C. Harris, "Hear Ye, Israel," Mendelssohn. The last number was the "Star-Spangled Banner" by the choir and audience.

A decided feature of the work was the reading by Mrs. Frank J. Smith. Her efforts were superb, giving the lines with much feeling and strength. The work of the accompanists was perfect, and much preferable to an orchestra. Those who had charge of the arrangement of the concert and those who took part have reason to feel proud of the production.

The choir was composed of the following: Sopranos—Miss Harris, Mrs. Asa Collier, Mrs. Samuel Case, Mrs. H. E. Rider, Mrs. Harold Serrell, Mrs. Frank Hubbard, Mrs. D. E. Titsworth, Miss Etta Raybert, Miss Alma Runyon, Miss Clara Woodward, Miss Mabelle Smith, Miss Swain; contraltos—Mrs. Ward, Mrs. L. H. Biglow, Jr., Mrs. J. H. Case, Mrs. William C. Hubbard, Miss Charlotte Messersmith, Miss Bertha Needham, Miss Adelaide Runyon, Miss Nancy Randolph, Miss Mary Collier; tenors—C. W. McCutchen, George H. Smith, L. H. Biglow, Jr., Bradley Hall, Clifford Braider, Mr. Maxwell, J. E. Douglass; bassos—William Holmes, Geo. Taylor, Harry Drake, W. Beekman, B. T. Barnes, D. E. Titsworth, Wyatt Barnes and Messrs. Kirkpatrick.

The concert was given for the benefit of the Sunday-school of the church and a gratifying sum will be realized therefrom. To C. W. McCutchen much praise is due for his untiring efforts in giving the concert.

It is thought that the concert will net about $125 for the Sunday-school.

MADE COMFORT BAGS.

Good Cheer to be Sent to Soldier Boys by Congregationalists.

A pleasant and profitable time was passed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Winckler on Park place, last evening, when a large number of Christian Endeavorers of the Congregational church assembled under the direction of the missionary committee of the society and made comfort bags for the sailors of the U. S. Navy. The affair was arranged by the missionary committee of which Miss Mary Prescott Chase is the chairman, and the male members of the society took a hand at sewing as well as the ladies. In all thirty-one comfort bags were made and they were filled with all sorts of useful articles. There was also placed in each bag a testament and a personal letter, all of which, undoubtedly, will be greatly appreciated by the recipients.

OLD CLUB; NEW NAME.

LOCAL BANJO CLUB NOW CALLED THE METRONOME CLUB.

Will Begin an Active Season Thursday With Concert In Prominent New York Church—The Members and Officers.

Plainfield's only banjo club, which had such a successful season last year, has reorganized this fall under the name of the Metronome Banjo and Mandolin Club, of Plainfield, and will enter upon an active season Thursday with a concert in a prominent New York church.

Last year the club was known as the Plainfield Banjo, Mandolin and Guitar Club. It gave several concerts in this city and elsewhere, meeting with a favorable reception wherever it appeared. This year the number of players has been slightly reduced, but the excellence of the rendition of the selections will be improved. The members have been practicing hard and are now prepared to hold their own with any similar organization of the kind.

Rev. W. C. O'Donnell is president of the club and J. C. Kirkner secretary. Fred G. Smith is again the business manager and Fred F. Van-Eps the musical director. The club is composed of the following, all Plainfielders: Banjos, Fred F. Van-Eps and Fred G. Smith; mandolins, Rev. Wm. C. O'Donnell, Raymond B. Carroll, Albert I. Littell and J. C. Kirkner; guitar, D. Webster Littell, Jr.; piano, Herbert J. Harold.

Thursday evening the club will take the principal part in a concert at the Madison avenue Presbyterian church, New York. Other engagements will follow. Later in the season a concert will be given at the Monroe Avenue M. E. church.

ROYAL ARCANUM ELECT.

PLAINFIELD COUNCIL CHOOSE OFFICERS FOR THE YEAR.

Albert I. Littell Honored With the Office of Regent—Visit of Grand Lodge Officials—Speeches and Music at Close.

One of the best meetings ever held by Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, took place last evening, at which time officers for the ensuing year were elected and there was a visitation from Grand Lodge officers. The attendance of members was very large and there was a lively contest for honors. The following named persons were selected to guide the affairs of the council for the coming year: Regent, Albert I. Littell; vice-regent, Herbert C. Buxson; orator, Dr. Kempton Browning; past regent, L. B. Bromfield; secretary, F. J. Pope; treasurer, D. W. Littell; collector, Eliot Burr; chaplain, Edward Love; guide, W. B. Remsen; warden, A. W. Winckler; sentry, W. S. Lowry; representative to Grand Council, L. B. Bromfield; alternate, Rowland C. Treadwell; trustee, (three years,) A. W. Rand.

After the transaction of the regular order of business the balance of the evening was devoted to sociability and a pleasing programme of music and speech. Joseph Sattels' orchestra was present and discoursed music. There were also vocal selections by Frank Cokefair and F. J. Pope. Speeches were made by Grand Secretary Alberts, of Hoboken, Grand Medical Examiner Applegate, of New Brunswick, and many of the local members. Nearly all of the officers elect had something to say of a pleasant nature.

Following the above programme a repast was served by Stephenson, the caterer, during which everyone had a jolly good time.

—Charlotte de Russe, fresh every hour, at Stephenson's, 146 North avenue.

—Tomorrow evening Iona Council, Degree of Pocohontas, will give a dance and entertainment in their hall on West Front street.

—There will be a fine Christmas entertainment at the Borough Public School just before the school closes for the holiday season.

UNITARIAN WOMEN MEET

FIRST MEETING OF BRANCH ALLIANCE FOR THE WINTER.

Mrs. S. R. Krom Resigns as a Member of the Executive Board—Mrs Hall Reads a Paper on Life of Starr King.

The first winter meeting of the Branch Alliance of Unitarian and Other Liberal Christian Women was held in All Souls' church yesterday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The president, Mrs. David P. Hall, was in the chair. After the transaction of a small amount of routine business, the resignation of Mrs. S. R. Krom as a member of the executive board was received with much reluctance. The members tried their best to prevail upon Mrs. Krom to remain in office, and the matter was settled for the time being by placing the resignation on the table for future action.

The feature of the afternoon was the reading of a paper by Mrs Hall on the life of Thomas Starr King, for many years a leading light in the Unitarian church. The article was prepared from sermons preached by Dr. Bellows and E. P. Whipple, and gave a highly interestinting sketch of Mr. King. He was portrayed as a man of rare intelligence and grand thoughts, and one who belonged to the Church Universal. He had deep religious feeling and suffered great hardship and poverty for the cause he espoused. He was bright, vivacious, and at the age of fourteen years he was at the head of a family, his father having died at that time leaving him the oldest of the children. In early life he held many responsible positions and when eighteen years of age he began to prepare for the ministry. When a young man he preached with great fervor and intelligence in a number of prominent churches in large cities, and for eleven years preached in Boston. His sermons were along the line of unity of spiritual life. He possessed a very sensitive nature, but he had his happy moods as well as sad ones. It was said of him that he saved California to the Union in 1861, and at a great cost to his life. He was a hard worker and died Friday, March 4, 1864. Following the reading of the paper an informal discussion took place, and many present related incidents in connection with the life of Mr. King.

CONFISCATED THE COW.

RATHER RADICAL REMEDY TO PREVENT TRESPASSING OF BOSSY.

The Animal is Owned by James McCarthy, But Edward Coughlan Has Got Possession and Won't Give Her Up.

The plaintiff in the case in tort of James McCarthy against Edward Coughlan unexpectedly discontinued the action in Justice Mosher's court yesterday, which has put aside the proceedings for awhile, although it is likely that another suit will be started, this time in a higher court.

This is the famous heifer case that has been postponed and adjourned in this court for the past month. McCarthy and Coughlan are neighbors and live on Webster place. McCarthy has a cow, or had one, but now the animal is in the possession of Coughlan.

While McCarthy owned the cow he used to pasture her along the sidewalk and in his back yard. Often the animal would slip its tether and escape into Coughlan's yard, where she would raise mischief with his vegetables. He stood this for some time, but finally he and McCarthy had trouble over the matter which led to a quarrel, in which Coughlan claims McCarthy struck him.

Coughlan had the other arrested on a charge of assault and battery. Before the day for trial McCarthy had Coughlan arrested on a charge of retaining possession of the cow which, it seems, Coughlan has done, for when the cow next strayed in the yard Coughlan tied her up in his barn and there she is yet.

It was this case, in tort, that was to have been tried this morning, but when the plaintiff and his lawyer, Councilman Hetfield, appeared in court they moved to discontinue the proceedings. They will now replevin the cow, through the sheriff, a much longer and more expensive proceeding, but the only one by which the true owner of the cow can gain possession of her once more. W. S. Angleman represents Coughlan.

Camera Club Elect.

At the meeting of the Camera Club held last night the following officers were elected for the coming year: President, Walter H. Freeman; vice-president, J. R. H. Hall; secretary, J. Hervey Doane; treasurer, H. H. Coward. Asa Randolph, C. T. Coons and Mrs. A. W. Rand, together with the above named officers, constitute the board of directors. The members are looking forward to a good year.

TROLLEY WILL GO TO SCOTCH PLAINS.

City Fathers Pass Franchise on First and Second Readings.

A REVISED ORDINANCE.

STREET RAILWAY COMPANY GRANTED MANY CONCESSIONS AT LAST.

Councilman Barrows Explained the "Star Chamber" Proceedings—Few Objectors Present—The Proposed Ordinance Fairly Swamped Them by Its Magnitude—Another Public Hearing December 29th.

After months of trial and tribulation, the Plainfield street railway is in a fair way to secure what it wants, a franchise for the Scotch Plains extension of its lines. Last night the Common Council held an adjourned meeting and continued the hearing of the trolley ordinance. The draft of the proposed ordinance was sprung and those of the objectors who did appear were fairly overcome by the magnitude of the draft and the multiplicity of its provisions. The addition of a number of important concessions by the Street Railway Company, over the original draft, made it apparent that the city had gained much through the efforts of the so called "objectors." All the Councilmen were present except Mr. Andrews, who is ill.

In the absence of City Clerk MacMurray with illness, Mr. Wean, his assistant was made clerk pro tem.

After a successful motion to dispense with regular order of business, Mr. Barrows defended his recent actions in the Council. The so-called "star chamber" proceedings, he said, were simply meetings between the street committee and the representatives of the Street Railway Company in efforts to arrange a suitable franchise satisfactory to both parties. He denied the charge made by the Daily Press that his actions had been in variance to his remarks that he was anxious to have the people fully acquainted with all the details of affairs in the Council.

He then called up the proposed ordinance to its first reading for information.

The draft of the ordinance was a lengthy one and took over half an hour to read. Its provisions were so multitudious that no one could reach a full understanding of it without a study of it. Portions of the ordinance conformed with those of the original trolley ordinance.

The full text of the ordinance will be found in another column.

Before the hearers had fairly recovered breath from the mass of facts hurled at their heads, Mr. Barrows gave the clerk the articles of agreement between the city and the Street Railway Company and explained that they were more stringent even than the ordinance and were equally as binding.

In the articles of agreement the Plainfield Street Railway Company agreed to protect the city in event of any law suit which might in any way be the result of the granting of the franchise or the laying of the tracks and the running of the cars. The company, in another provision, agreed to defend the city in any suit that the County Board of Freeholders might bring as a result of any trouble regarding the use of Richmond street by the trolley. It was agreed that the company should macadamize Richmond street from Putnam avenue to East Second street, and East Second street from Richmond street to the end of that thoroughfare. The macadamizing is to be from curb to curb, 6 inches deep in the middle and 3 inches deep at the curb. All snow thrown by the plow to the side of the street is to be removed within twelve hours after the storm. All cross walks covered by the snow from the plows are to be cleaned by the company's employes. Regarding repairs or new paving done to any streets in the city where the lines of the company run, the company agrees to pay one-third the cost where there is a single track and one-half the cost where there are double tracks or turnouts.

Mr. Barrows had more ready. Next was a communication from the Plainfield Street Railway regarding the Arlington avenue extension, which, he declared, was equally binding with the agreement. It stated that the Company would build a single track extension from West Fourth street, through Arlington avenue, to Randolph road, to the bicycle track, to the Hillside cemetery and the golf links when the necessary consents were secured, the Company agreeing to do its best in securing them. The service will not be required to be over 30 minutes headway until each car pays $15 per day when the service on that extension will be the same as that on the rest of the lines. In case the Council decides to widen Arlington avenue between Fourth and Fifth streets, the Company agrees to give $900. The Company stated its willingness to place the Arlington avenue extension in operation within twelve months after the franchise was granted.

An addenda to the communication was read in which the Company stated that under the same terms it would run an extension through any of the streets of the city if the consents were obtained and $15 a day per car could be reasonaly guaranteed, provided the new extension was three blocks from any other branch and was 1 3-4 miles long, or forfeit $10,000.

The reading of the ordinance and the communications lasted 45 minutes.

Then the public hearing was opened. F. E. Kinsman was the first to speak. He said that he was much pleased with some of the features and wished to congratulate the street committee on securing them. He remarked that the ordinance was a little too much for him that night.

President Baker observed that he didn't see that they could help him any. Mr. Kinsman said that he had thought he understood the trolley ordinances, but after listening to that one he didn't know.

Here Mr. VanHerwerden came forward with the announcement that Mr. Riker, of the Street Railway Company, had agreed to pay for one-half the street improvements on Putnam avenue and West Fourth street, instead of one third, as previously announced.

Assemblyman Roger F. Murray had a few observations. He, too, remarked on the immensity of the ordinance and the impossibility to digest it all at one reading. He thought that the ordinance should be so read that any changes made to the city line would give the new sections the same privileges now granted to the city. He criticised the provision that allowed a change of power to be made by resolution instead of ordinance, and thought that the powers of the commissioners to arrange the terms should not be limited. He also announced his belief that a 25-year limit should have been put in it. He smiled at the very complicated method to ascertain exactly what the city gets every year, and said that it would take a mighty good accountant to discover it. It was his opinion that with such a rush of new concessions the city might have had even more by holding on for a while. He concluded by expressing his belief in railway extensions, but thought the city ought to get all it can.

There were other remarks for both sides that didnt bear directly on the question, only Mr. Kinsman remarked that he wanted to register his objection to the 99 and 50 year features.

The ordinance was next called up to its second reading and the first section was read. Then Mr. Hetfield told how he had carefully refrained from saying anything either way, but had thought very deeply. He now approved of it. He removed the opposition in a few words, telling that he had failed to find any except from the newspapers, which he confidently believed did not express the feeling of the people. He threw out hints of the armies of First ward citizens that had hurried to him to beg that the ordinance might go through at once.

He scorned the Press' comparison with the Chicago Alderman, and told his collegues, for the others had almost all gone home, how much better a franchise it was for Plainfield than those that any of the neighboring cities and towns had awarded.

Mr. VanHerwerden told how he had been criticized for obstructing the trolley. He had stood out, he said, against the granting of a franchise in perpetuity for the Arlington avenue extension. Both points had been gained by the city. Other Councilmen had a little to say. The reading of the ordinance was then finished, adopted on second reading and ordered engrossed and advertised. Further public hearing will be continued on the evening of Thursday, December 28th. A special meeting will be held the night after when the franchise will be finally adopted without doubt.

After the return to the regular order of business, there was a petition received for a new fire alarm box at the corner of Johnston avenue and George street and the fourth payment to Wyman & Haberle for the new engine house ordered paid.

—Satisfactory progress is being made on the new borough public school, but it will be well along in next year before it can be occupied.

—There will be an entertainment, supper and dance Wednesday evening under the auspices of Iona Council, Degree of Pocohontas, in Red Men's Hall.

TO TRY TO SELL STOCK.

SILK MILL PROPOSITION REGARDED WITH GOOD DEAL OF FAVOR.

Special Committee of Board of Trade Make a Favorable Report—Plainfielders Must Subscribe $25,000 Worth of Stock.

A special meeting of the Board of Management of the Board of Trade was held last night to hear the report of the committee appointed to visit Paterson and investigate the claims made by the gentlemen who desire to establish a silk mill in this city.

The report was a very favorable one. The committee found the statements made by the promoters to be truthful, and the actual condition of affairs to be better than they said they were. It was the impression of the committee that the establishment of the silk mill would be a splendid thing for the business interests of the city. The matter was discussed with great interest by the board of management, and it was decided to call a special meeting of all the members of the Board for Thursday evening of this week to consider the propositions.

In the meantime Secretary Runyon was authorized to go among the business men and see how much stock would be subscribed for at $25 per share. It will be necessary to raise $25,000 to bring the mill here. Over half that sum is said to be in prospect now.

It is said that one man stands ready to take half the stock, but it is the purpose to make the enterprise a popular one and divide the stock among the people as much as possible.

MADE LOVE TO STATUE.

PATROLMAN TOTTEN FOUND HIM EMBRACING INDIAN MAID.

Too Liberal Potations Made George Leland See Strange Sights on West Second Street—Fined $3 This Morning.

George Leland came reeling down West Second street last evening with his brain bewildered by too liberal potations of "Jersey Lightning." As he passed Nate Guttman's store his wandering glance rested on the form of the wooden Indian that stands in front of the establishment. Suddenly George halted and a queer sensation passed along his spinal column. The face, usually so stolid and expressionless, was smiling at him and then the hand of the Indian maid beckoned to him to draw near. George obeyed the summons.

When Patrolman Totten came along half an hour later he found that the acquaintance had progressed with considerable rapidity. There was Leland, wildly embracing the Indian, and whispering words of love, sadly muddled, however, into the wooden ear of the aboriginee. But the smile was gone and all the officer saw was the dull, expressionless face.

When Totten disentangled Leland's arm, the latter immediately collapsed and the officer had to secure help to carry the helpless man along the slippery sidewalks to the lockup.

This morning Leland was arraigned before City Judge Stillman on the charge of being drunk. He pleaded guilty. Three dollars or five days remarked the Judge, and they bore him back to his cell to dream once more of the smiles of the Indian maid.

CELEBRATED HER RETURN.

The After Effect Made Her Nervous and so the Judge Let Her Off.

Bridget Coleman has just returned after a sixty-day sojourn in Elizabeth. It isn't necessary to say that the sojourn was rather compulsary. Yesterday afternoon, when she returned, she immediately celebrated the event with a visit to the flowing bowl. Patrolman Watson found her on West Third street sadly the worse for the hilarity. He locked her up.

This morning, she was arraigned before City Judge Stillman. She explained to the Judge that she was feeling nervous. He deemed the punishment sufficient and suspended sentence.

Visits His Sister Before Going to Cuba.

Miss Brown, a teacher in the Irving school, who resides at 515 Park avenue, is enjoying a visit from her brother, Captain John Brown, of Nebraska. Captain Brown raised the Third Infantry Volunteers of Nebraska and Saturday next the company starts for Cuba. This company was organized by Mr. Brown in his own city. He is a very interesting conversationalist and those who have met him and have enjoyed the pleasure exceedingly. He has another sister residing in Newark and she will come to Plainfield today to spend a short time with her brother.

—The advisibility of having Dr. J. H. Tomlinson's lecture on "Physical Degeneracy" repeated at the men's meetings in the Y. M. C. A. is being discussed.

CHRISTMAS ARRAY IN THE LOCAL STORES.

A Press Reporter Tells of a Visit to Various Shops

FINE GIFTS FOR EVERYBODY

NO NEED FOR PLAINFIELDERS TO GO TO NEW YORK.

People Are Said to be Spending Their Money Freely This Year Because No Great Charity Affair Has Diverted It—Woodhull & Martin's, Boehm's and Powelson & Jones' are Very Attractive.

Christmas time is here again, and for the past week or more the merchants have been noticing the great increase in business. Plainfield merchants, without exception, admit that the indications for a real old-fashioned Christmas are good. That is, people seems to have money to spend just as they used to have and are spending it, and spending it at home. One reason advanced for the increased business this year is that there has been no great charity entertainment this year like the Kermess or the Spielcartenfest as there was last year. These affairs took the people's money without benefiting the merchants.

A Press reporter visited several of the leading merchants in town yesterday for the purpose of seeing for himself just what an assortment they had, and to try by describing them to keep the people from going to New York to buy Christmas presents.

He first visited the palatial department store of Woodhull & Martin. Anyone who enters any of the stores at any season of the year are struck at once by the amount of stock on hand and wonder where they will be able to dispose of it, but a look inside today will surprise them more than ever. Their stock is replete with everything a person needs, except in a few lines which the firm does not handle, and they are marked down to prices as low as they are in New York. Among the departments might be mentioned the gents' furnishing department, which is on the left of the store as you enter. Here neckties, scarfs, shirts, suspenders, gloves, etc., are to be had at all prices, low and high. The stock is all up-to-date and is sold by hustling young clerks who know their business.

Down stairs the crockery, furniture and carpet departments are located. Here everything in the line of crockery and glass ware can be found, in all shades, thickness and values. The furniture is marked down to low figures, and finds ready purchasers. Upstairs, on the first floor, is the book department where there is the finest display of books ever seen in this city. Single books, books in volumns, sets and boxes of books are displayed at prices that knock the starch right out of books that sold, a couple of years ago, for double the prices now asked for them.

There is no department of this great store that is better stocked for the holiday trade than another. Goods are piled in every conceiveable place, and as one article runs out more of the same is put in its place so that no one is ever disappointed.

The oldest furniture firm in the city is Powlison & Jones, of East Front street. They moved into their new store three years ago, and it didn't take the people long to discover where this popular firm had moved to. They are now on their twelfth year in business here. There store is filled with furniture of all kinds for the Christmas season. Indeed, they have been complimented more than once by people who have been in the habit of going to New York after their goods, on the high quality, assortment and low prices of their stock this year.

Another dry goods house whose proprietor has made big preparations for Christmas is Boehm's. They have increased their force of help to sixty-two hands, and have work to keep them all busy. Their store is decked out in holiday array, and a look over the stock shows one what a large number of things can be bought there for a little money.

Their gents' furnishing department is supplied with everything in that line, and in their crockery department are to be found all sorts and kinds of glass ware and crockery, lamps, vases, domestic and imported, bisque ornaments, wine, tea and dinner sets.

Down in the basement is where the children like to go. There Santa Claus is always at work, day and night, replenishing the stock of toys as fast as they are sold from a wonderful storehouse up somewhere in the chimney.

—Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will meet this evening and elect officers.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.
Cure all kidney ills.
Hundreds of Citizens testify to this.
Here is a case in point:

Mrs R. Wortman, living with her daughter, Mrs. S. E Cook of 204 Somerset street, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results for severe pain across my back and hips, which no doubt was caused by the kidneys being out of order. It was painful for me to stoop or bend forward and I could not sit 10 minutes in one position, but had to be constantly changing about. It was the same way at night time. I used many different kinds of medicine recommended for kidney troubles, but I could not see that any of them benefitted me. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured for me at L. W. Randolph's drug store, and it is the only remedy that I ever used that gave me any relief. I always keep a supply of them on hand and would not think of being without them. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and advise all who suffer with a lame back to give them a fair trial."

WILL RETURN TO SPAIN.

Gen. Woodford to Resume His Post at Madrid.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—The president is prepared to resume diplomatic relations with Spain the moment the Madrid government accredits a representative to this country.

General Stewart L. Woodford will resume his post as the American minister, in accordance with an intimation already delicately conveyed through members of the Spanish peace commission to the American commissioners, that the general would be notably persona grata to the queen as well as to the people—perhaps more so than any other American. In fact the assurances are unmistakable that the minister would receive an ovation in Madrid.

General Woodford has arranged his personal affairs so as to be at the president's disposal, without delay, when his return to Europe is required. The officials of the state department have no idea when the formal suggestion will come from Spain, although, in view of the pressing matters which had to be omitted from the peace treaty, such as revival of former commercial and extradition conventions, it is thought Spain will act as early as she can with dignity, as the loss is wholly hers in the present unsettled state.

It is the prevailing opinion that Sagasta will not wait until the peace treaty is formally ratified by the Senate and the Cortes, but will act promptly as soon as it becomes evident that his ministry will not be overturned. This can be learned in the course of another week.

It will be rather difficult for the Spaniards to select a minister acceptable to the United States, unless one of the peace commissioners is designated.

The administration hopes that, in view of the great importance of the coming negotiations, a prominent man may come, and that Spain will rank him as an ambassador.

OUR TROOPS IN HAVANA.

March of the Two Hundred and Second New York Through the Streets.

Havana, Dec. 13.—The Two Hundred and Second New York regiment began to land at six o'clock yesterday morning and at ten o'clock a column of 1,000 strong started to march from the San Jose wharf to the Christina railroad station.

The troops were led by Colonel Seyburn and Major Abbet, the regimental band playing simple, marching airs. The color sergeants bore the stars and stripes and the blue and gold banner of the state of New York.

The route, which was a mile and a half long, was the most direct course from the landing place to the railroad station, and did not pass through the principal streets. There were only the ordinary numbers of people in the streets, and it was only occasionally that cries of "Vive Espana!" "Vive Americanos!" or "Vive Cuba Libre!" were heard. The onlookers were mostly silent, and were merely curious to see the American soldiers.

The regiment arrived at the railroad station at 10.30 a. m., and after some delay two trains loaded with troops pulled out. Some of the troops belonging to this detachment are bound for the city of Pinar del Rio, about 118 miles from here. The others will be stationed at Guanajay and Mariel, not far from here, in the province of Pinar del Rio.

More Money for Ordnance.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—Increased estimates for deficiencies under the ordnance department, aggregating one million dollars, have been submitted to Congress.

The exchange of the arms of all, or nearly all, of the volunteer troops to the 30 calibre magazine rifle involved the necessity for a much larger supply of ammunition of that size says the chief of ordnance, together with provisions for more extensive depots in Cuba.

Secretary Alger also submitted an estimate of three million dollars for contingencies in the war department.

Magowan Did Not Appear.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 13.—Frank Magowan and his wife did not appear in the criminal court yesterday when their case was called upon the charge of child stealing.

W. P. Hackney, representing the Magowans, read a telegram from Mrs. Magowan's physician in Toronto, saying she was too ill to travel and that Magowan was unable to come owing to his wife's illness.

The hearing was then proceeded with, the plea of abatement being argued at length.

Capt. Purdy Found Guilty.

London, Dec. 13.—Captain Purdy, who was arrested a month ago charged with criminally libelling the owners of the recently wrecked steamship Mohegan, in having written a letter to the survivors of that vessel asserting that the Mohegan had been "put away" in accordance with the orders of the owners, was found guilty in the criminal court, Old Bailey, yesterday. He was bound over in one hundred pounds bail to appear for sentence when summoned.

Counterfeit Silver Dollars.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 13.—Counterfeiters are at work in the Mississippi valley on standard silver dollars of the date of 1890. It is believed that about two hundred thousand of them have gained circulation.

They have the same ring, apparently the same weight and the same external marks as the genuine.

Rebellious Students Won.

Buffalo, Dec. 13.—The students of the senior dental class of the University of Buffalo who rebelled a few days ago against a decision of the faculty not to give notice of the mid-session examinations, returned yesterday morning, the faculty having agreed to give at least 24 hours' notice.

ANTI-PICQUART MOBS

Parade Paris Streets and Denounce Court of Cassation.

ROW IN FRENCH CHAMBER

Wild but Apparently Harmless Speeches Addressed to the Crowd by Two Members of the Chamber of Deputies.

Paris, Dec. 13.—Several thousand extra police and Republican Guards have been distributed about this city to cope with the anti-Picquart demonstrations which are expected in view of the reports that the colonel is to be provisionally released.

The prefect of Algiers has suspended the mayor of Algiers for a month, on account of a speech, attacking the governor general. The minister of the interior has increased the suspension to three months.

This is intended as a warning to the Algerian anti-Semites whose recent violence and threats have been causing a panic among the Jews in Algeria and disturbing business.

M. Millevoye and the Comte de Ramel, members of the Chamber of Deputies, headed an anti-Dreyfus demonstration yesterday afternoon. They marched to the Cherche Midi prison, where Colonel Picquart is confined, but were stopped by a cordon of police and begged to retire.

M. Millevoye made a speech saying that they did not desire a conflict with "these brave fellows," pointing to the policemen, adding that they had achieved their object, of being able to shout "Spit upon Picquart!" who could hear them from the windows of his prison.

The crowd next marched to the Hotel des Invalides, the official residence of General Zurlinden, military governor of Paris, cheering for the army and chanting monotonously "Spit upon Picquart!"

Meeting a lieutenant of cuirassiers on their way, they gave him an enthusiastic ovation, and the lieutenant replied theatrically:

"I thank you in the name of the army!"

This brought forth renewed cheers from the demonstrators.

The door of General Zurlinden's residence were closed but the crowd gathered outside, cheering for the army, and M. Millevoye harranged his followers, denouncing the "infamous monsters of the court of cassation," ending with calling for cheers for the "valiant General Zurlinden, who commands the army," and for "the tricolor flying over the Invalides."

The Comte de Ramel made a similar speech, concluding with saying: "The court of cassation is perverting justice, but we will not tolerate it. We are the majority. We are the power, and we, patriots, will rise against it!"

At this the crowd cheered frantically and marched to the Chamber of Deputies, where MM. Millevoye and Ramel announced that they were going to apprise the Chamber of "their indignant protests." The crowd then dispersed.

Thanks for Miss Gould.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—There has been much discussion in the papers as to whether Congress ever gave a vote of thanks to a woman brought about by General Wheeler's resolution to give thanks to Miss Helen Gould for her patriotism and generosity in the war.

A vote of thanks has been given to several women by Congress, but they never have abused the privilege.

Such a vote was tendered to Dolly Madison, and in 1878 Congress accepted from Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson, the artist, a picture of Abraham Lincoln and his war cabinet. The picture was hung at the head of the east stairway on the House side of the Capitol, and Congress gave Mrs. Thompson a vote of thanks.

History does not record that this lady or Dolly Madison embarrassed the members of Congress by abusing this privilege, and it is doubtful whether Mrs. Thompson availed herself of it.

Gen. Garcia's Funeral.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—The funeral of General Garcia, the Cuban commander, was held at ten o'clock this morning at St. Patrick's church in this city. The body was placed in a metallic casket and deposited in a vault at Arlington pending its removal to Cuba. The date of removal has not been fixed, but the government will place a warship at the disposition of the Cubans for this purpose.

This arrangement is said to be in accordance with the wishes of General Garcia's family and his comrades in arms.

The Dolphin will be designated by the navy as the vessel to carry the remains of the dead general to Cuba. She is at the Washington navy yard in command of Captain Lyon.

The military arrangements are in the care of the war department. All the honors of war will be paid to the body of the distinguished Cuban patriot and soldier.

REGULARS FOR MANILA

Six Regiments to Go to the Philippines to Relieve Volunteers.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—An order will be issued by the war department to-day directing the movement of six regiments of regular infantry to Manila for service in the Philippines.

These troops will relieve an equal number of volunteer regiments now on duty at Manila.

A draft of the order for the movement was completed by the adjutant general yesterday and it will be submitted to the president for approval by Secretary Alger before they leave Washington for Atlanta to-day.

The order in its present state provides that the regiments to compose the expedition shall be the Third, now at Fort Snelling, Minn.; Fourth, at Fort Sheridan, Ill.; Sixth, at Fort Sam Houston, Texas; Twelfth, at Jefferson Barracks, Missouri; Seventeenth, at Columbus Barracks, and Twentieth, at Fort Leavenworth.

There will probably be no change in the assignment, although another regiment may be substituted for the Sixth.

The Twenty-fourth infantry, one of the four negro regiments of the regular service, will, according to present indications, take the place of the Sixth if the change is decided on. The companies of the Twenty-fourth are distributed between Fort Douglas, Utah, Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming, and Camp Pilot Butte, Wyoming. The movement from the United States will begin as soon as transports can be secured.

The department will send two of the regiments by the Mediterranean Suez route if the model transport Mobile, now at Savannah, proves a satisfactory ship on her trip to Havana.

The Mobile and another steamship similarly converted will be used in that event. Other regiments will be ordered to hold themselves in readiness for service in the Philippines, but the war department has little hope of securing transportation for them until late in the spring.

The first contingent will hardly get away from this country before some time in January, and the volunteers to be relieved by them will probably not start for home until March.

SENATE PROCEEDINGS.

Resolution to Provide for the City of Washington Centennial.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—In the Senate yesterday Mr. Hoar and Mr. Hale presented resolutions of citizens of their states remonstrating against the extension of American sovereignty over the Philippine islands and against the acquisition of the people of such territory.

The resolutions were referred to the committee on foreign relations.

Mr. Hoar introduced a resolution directing the president of the Senate and the Speaker of the House to appoint a committee of five members of the Senate and House of Representatives to prepare and carry out plans for the preparation of the celebration of the centennial of the city of Washington as capital of the United States.

Mr. Hoar also introduced the following resolution:

"That the committee on military be instructed to inquire and report as soon as may be possible whether some policy may not be established by law by which soldiers in the regular army who have families or whose education or opportunities for business will be seriously interfered with by longer continuance in the military service, and who enlisted for the war, or under assurances that they would be held only while the war lasted, may be promptly discharged and their places, so far as necessary, be filled by new recruits."

Fatal Church Quarrel.

Hazleton, Ind., Dec. 13.—Robert Moore, a farmer, living five miles east of this place, shot and mortally wounded Charles and Paris Becker, brothers, at the village church door Sunday night.

The trouble arose over the question of fencing the church property. Moore has not been captured.

GEN. RIVERA ARRIVES

The Famous Cuban Leader Out of a Spanish Prison.

WAS SENTENCED FOR LIFE

He Was Much Grieved to Learn of the Death of Garcia, Who Promoted Him for Bravery. Set Free from a Spanish Prison on Demand of This Country.

New York, Dec. 13.—General Juan Rius Rivera, the famous Cuban leader, was a passenger on the French line steamer La Champagne, which arrived yesterday.

He has just been released from the Spanish dungeons at Ceuta, through the intervention of the American peace commissioners.

In March, 1897, Rivera was ambushed in Cuba, captured by the Spaniards, sentenced to be shot, and afterwards had his sentence commuted to life imprisonment in Ceuta. His wife lives at Cherry Valley, N. Y.

General Rivera is an intrepid officer, and was a terror to the Spaniards. It was of him that General Martinez Campos said:

"He always wins, no matter what the odds against him."

He was born in Mayaguez, Porto Rico, in 1850. He was a law student at the University of Madrid when the Cuban revolution broke out in 1868. He left and joined the insurgents. His daring soon brought him honors and he became a lieutenant colonel in 1872.

In July, 1875, though badly wounded he continued to lead his men and routed the Spaniards at Los Azules. In 1877, with three hundred men, he attacked a supply train convoyed by two thousand Spaniards. His right hand was shattered by a bullet, but with a machete in his left he led his men and captured the train.

He took the field in the late revolution and fought valiantly until, betrayed by spies, he and his chief of staff and fifty men were ambushed by two thousand Spaniards and General Rivera was wounded and captured by them.

General Rivera heard of the loss of General Garcia at Quarantine and was deeply grieved to learn of the death of the Cuban hero. Rivera had a strong regard for General Garcia, but they had not met for the last eighteen years.

Among the other passengers by the La Champagne were John Preston Beecher, Jose Fernandez Castro, Comtesse Spottiswood Mackinn and Monsignor Tikhon.

Three New Naval Vessels.

Manila, Dec. 13.—The former Spanish cruiser Isla de Cuba, which was sunk by Admiral Dewey and recently raised, started for Hong Kong yesterday morning to be fitted out, proceeding under her own name.

She passed Admiral Dewey's flagship which was anchored off Cavite, going at the rate of twelve knots.

The Isla de Luzon made a trial trip across the bay in the afternoon which was very satisfactory. She will be ready to go to Hong Kong on Saturday.

The third of the recovered Spanish vessels, the Don Juan de Austria, will soon follow the others to Hong Kong.

Steele Found Guilty.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 13.—William Steele, who was cashier of the collapsed Chestnut Street National Bank, was found guilty yesterday by a jury in the United States district court. The jury was out half an hour.

Steele was charged with aiding and abetting the late William M. Singerly, president of the bank, in misapplying the funds of the institution, making false entries in the books of the bank, and false reports to the comptroller of the currency.

Many Callers at the White House.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—There was a rush of official visitors to the White House yesterday in anticipation of the president's absence from Washington.

Bishop Hurst of the Methodist Episcopal church, accompanied by a delegation of clergymen visiting Washington, was received by the president.

Other visitors were Senators Lodge, Burrows, Proctor, McBride and Simon.

Norway's Break with Sweden.

Stockholm, Dec. 13.—The Dagens Nyheter says that at a meeting of the Norwegian cabinet it was resolved to ask the king to sign a decree legalising the decision of the Storthing establishing a separate Norwegian flag.

It was also resolved that the foreign office inform the consuls abroad of the operation of the law. The paper adds that if the king does not accede to this request the ministers will resign.

Hobson Escaped.

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 13.—A report has reached here that the Southern railway train between Akron and Greensboro, Alabama, was wrecked, and that a number of the passengers were hurt.

Among the passengers was Naval Constructor Hobson. The report says that Hobson escaped injury.

BASE BALL MAGNATES.

They Will Hold Their Annual Meeting in New York.

New ork, Dec. 3.—The National League of Baseball Clubs will begin its annual session to-day and some important matters will come up for discussion.

B. F. Muckenfuss has been deposed from the presidency of the St. Louis Club and Chris Von der Ahe says that as vice president he will be recognized as the representative of the club at the meeting.

Muckenfuss is receiver of the club, having been appointed last summer by Judge Wood of the circuit court. He will also attend the meeting and demand recognition as the club's representative.

The owners of the various clubs are sure to indulge in a heated discussion of the merits of the anti-obscenity rule that was in force during last season, and no one can predict what the result will be.

B. S. MUCKENFUSS.

Messrs. Krauthoff, Kramer and Stearns, disinterested persons outside of the league, who compose the board, have prepared an ultimatum to be presented to the League in which they insist that their jurisdiction be extended to relieve them of posing merely as figureheads before the public, and that if such action be not taken then they will at once resign. When the board was appointed last spring it was thought that it would have its hands full in hearing cases reported under the resolution enacted to rid the game of all profane, indecent and vulgar language, but during the entire season not a case was submitted.

In the opinion of Mr. Kramer, who was president of the old American Association at one time and is now secretary of the board of discipline, that board should have the power now vested in the board of directors of the League in the matter of punishing the players for any offences.

ANDREW FREEDMAN.

The failure to look into many cases of misconduct on the field, such as assaults on umpires and fights between players, could be done away with, in Mr. Kramer's opinion, if the board of discipline, a disinterested body, were allowed to take such cases in hand, investigating them and fixing the punishment, sparing none yet giving all a fair trial.

"In order to remedy many of the existing evils of the game," says Mr. Kramer, "I would suggest that six men be engaged, one of whom should attend every game. The duty of these men should be to report to the president of the league any failure on the part of the umpire to enforce the rules or the players to obey."

New Cardinals.

Rome, Dec. 13.—A consistory will be held by the pope early in February for the creation of new cardinals. At that date nearly two years will have passed since Leo XIII has added any new members to the Sacred College.

There are thirteen vacancies, five of which will be filled from the Vatican itself. One or two others will be created, but only half the vacancies are to be filled this year. The other six or seven will be reserved for November, 1899, when the college will be brought up to its complement of seventy cardinals.

Canadian Turkeys for London.

Montreal, Dec. 13.—Sixty-five car loads of turkeys have been received in this city by one firm during the last few days. They are all destined for the British market, and already half of them have been shipped, the balance to follow in a few days.

These turkeys have not been consigned to dealers on the other side, but have been purchased outright by one London firm. The total number is over 80,000.

A Row in Havana.

Havana Dec. 13.—Three Cubans were killed and one Spanish officer and two Cubans were wounded Sunday night in an affray between Spanish officers off duty and a number of citizens and a party of Cubans, who wished to close the Tacon theatre on account of the death of General Calixto Garcia, at Washington.

The Spanish troops on duty intervened and restored order.

To Raise the Maine.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—Senator Pettigrew has introduced a bill authorizing A. A. Bartlett to raise the battleship Maine and transport it to the United States.

ARMY REORGANIZATION

General Miles Before the House Committee.

MANILA AND BUNKER HILL

The Need of a Larger Military Establishment Set Forth. A Fixed Standard of One Soldier to Every 1,000 of Population at Home Advocated.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—Major General Miles appeared yesterday before the House committee on military affairs for a hearing relative to the proposed reorganization and increase of the army. Two bills for this purpose are pending one drawn by General Miles and introduced in the Senate as the Hawley bill, and another introduced in the House by Chairman Hull of the military committee.

At the outset General Miles addressed himself to the general need of increasing the army without reference to either bill. He said he had always favored the establishment of a fixed standard for the army. The experience of the last year, he said, had demonstrated that our present military estimate was inadequate to maintain our position as a first class power.

It was necessary to consider both our military requirements at home, those in our new colonial dependencies abroad, and also the rapidly increasing demands made by our sea coast fortifications. The last, as far as completed, required some 185 batteries of artillery, and when the entire increase in coast defences was completed 365 batteries would be required.

The war with Spain had shown pretty clearly how many men would be required, General Miles said. The war had required 52,0000 men for actual field service at various points. Of these 22,000 men went to Manila, 20,000 to Cuba and 10,000 to Porto Rico.

These were men actually in the presence of the hostile enemy. Since then there had been reinforcements for garrison and other purposes.

At the same time, the general pointed out the necessities at home must not be overlooked; the entire frontier had been stripped of troops during the late war, and complaints were coming in that the lives, families and property of those along the frontier were jeopardized by this condition. In particular there were fears of an outbreak in the Sioux country, because of the absence of troops. It was not desirable, therefore, to withdraw our forces from the frontier to such an extent as to leave them defenceless, or to invite disorder.

These considerations, said General Miles, had led him to recommend a standard of one soldier for every one thousand population at home, with native troops on a basis of two native soldiers for every one thousand population.

"If we are to be a first class power in the world," proceeded General Miles, "we must have a military system adequate to meet our responsibilities the world over. I believe in making that system so small that it will not be a menace to the American people and at the same time large enough to make it adequate for any emergency."

The science of war had undergone a complete change since the days of our forefathers General Miles said, and now smokeless powder, long range rifles, and machine guns were the decisive elements. With this changed condition he believed one soldier to one thousand of population would give an army entirely adequate for every need.

It would give an army of 62,000 according to the last census, and about 75,000 on the estimated population of to-day.

In addition to this force the use of native troops would make an effective body in the several colonies.

General Miles said we now have a greater number of our men abroad than any other country, except, perhaps, Great Britain, the British force in Egypt being hardly more than 3,500 men.

On the basis of two native soldiers for every one thousand population, the native troops in Porto Rico would be recruited up to about two thousand, and in Cuba up to about three thousand.

"And if we are to keep the Philippines, and I have no more idea that we will give up Manila than that we will give up Bunker Hill or any other place immortalized in our history, then this native force will largely augment our own troops there. I understand the natives are ready to enter upon this service."

General Miles then turned his attention to the bill drawn by him. He had prepared this, he said, simply in order to express his views in definite form. He explained in detail the provisions as to cavalry, artillery, infantry and staff. As to the cavalry organization, he said the tendency was to reduce the number of men in a regiment, as experience has shown that one thousand men were about as many men as a colonel could manoeuvre with effect. As to artillery, he urged that the four-gun formation was more desirable than the six-gun in giving the enemy the first effective blows, which were the decisive ones.

The Joint High Commission.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 13.—The joint high commission, which is considering a settlement of the questions in dispute between the United States and Canada, held a meeting yesterday and adjourned until to-day.

The American members and British members each held separate sessions before the joint session. The questions considered, it was stated, were those which have been before the commission during the last few days.

It is understood that the published forecast of an adjournment about December 20 till next March, is well based. While no official motion of this sort has been made in conference, the matter has been discussed, and such a proposition is likely to come from the Canadian side at almost any meeting.

Publishing the Laws.

Several years of experience in attempting to properly disseminate the laws enacted by the State Legislature through pamphlets has proven a failure. Possessed of an economical spasm that vented itself in putting the ban on the publication of the laws in the only proper channels—the newspapers of the State—the reform Legislature that enacted the law worked with ill regard for the information and the protection of the people for whom it legislated. Successive sessions of the Legislature have failed to change the worthless substitute, which the reformers instituted, in fear that the slight increase in State expenses that a proper law would incur might prove a bugbear to the cheese-paring element of the dear public. But this plan for getting the laws before the people, which it signally fails to accomplish, is likely to be adandoned by a new law which the next session of the Legislature will be asked to pass.

Senator Cross, of Union county, will probably father the measure. The plan will be considerably changed from the old one, and will be more discriminating and careful in operating, so that the money that will be expended under it will be appropriated with more regard for the good it will do in reaching the greatest number of people rather than the political subsidy it will afford party organs. The amount it will require to get the new laws each year before the people will be considerably less, it is said, than under the law that was repealed. However, the result will be in better acquainting the people with those laws and formally relieving the State of the responsibility of not letting the people to know that which their servants have enacted for their benefit and control.

So far as the present system is concerned, it is an utter waste of money for it to be continued.

A Farce Hearing.

As we anticipated, the trolley ordinance was presented and adopted on first and second readings last night. Leaving out entirely the question of whether or not the terms are fair and proper for the city, we cannot but help think that that such action was precipitate under the circumstances. The only question at issue in the agitation concerning the extension of the trolley is one of what the terms are to be. It is an admitted fact that everyone is anxious to see the trolley cars running in every direction.

Yet the public was invited to appear at the Common Council chamber last night to be heard for or against the proposed terms when these stipulations were unknown till the ordinance was read at a rapid rate by the acting clerk. Presumably the Council concluded that Plainfielders were possessed of memories forty miles or more in length and were veritable phonographic machines that were capable of jotting down correctly the multitude of details as they were presented hastily. In order to appear at the hearing in an intelligent manner such a capacity would have been necessary for anyone who cared to discuss with any degree of earnestness the terms therein proposed.

It took the clerk of the Council forty-five minutes to read the papers in connection with the introduction of the ordinance, and yet the honored councilman believed that they were acting in the spirit of a fair hearing to assume that any man could talk intelligently on the exact terms under those circumstances!

A Healthy Affect.

When we consider what the terms of the previous proposed trolley ordinance were in the light of what constitutes the stipulations of the one introduced into the Common Council last night we feel after all that even if the present one is not ideal it certainly is a vast improvement over the other. And it is particularly gratifying to know that had it not been for the agitation of the subject, and the ripened opinion that was developed by it, in which The Daily Press led, Plainfield would not be in prospect of getting such terms as are now proposed. The stipulations of this new ordinance emphasizes the soundness of the advice of The Daily Press for the city to have a little patience and wait.

We all remember with what dramatic fervor Mr. Riker made his memorable reference to a limited franchise as not worthy of being touched "with a ten thousand foot pole." Well, the street railway's idea of a pole has dwindled to a pretty small twig this time. Time has evidently accomplished a considerable change of mind with the trolley promoters in their view of what they can afford to accept from the city in consideration of the privilege of the using its streets for corporate purposes.

What a little more time would accomplish is mere conjecture, but comparing the attitude of the trolley promoters a year ago and today, we imagine that in about another year the city could get whatever the most radical of us would demand.

This trolley agitation is not without its instruction to the public, and will doubtless have a healthy affect upon the consideration of future public franchises.

A strike of the telegraphers of the country is threatened. Howard Gould, who is a telegrapher, will probably not go out, however. Mr. Gould is very busily engaged now in trying to eke out an existence on the $5,000,000 he fell heir to when he reached his twenty-first birthday a few days ago, and he can't afford the risk of losing his job.

Hope on, ye fair girls of New Jersey. Things are coming your way. That staid old Dutch Reformed institution, Rutgers college, is seriously thinking of opening its doors to the fair sex. The general sentiment of those in charge is to allow women to share the advantages of a part of the educational course with the young men, who hold complete sway there now.

With such attractions as Manager Edwards is now presenting for the amusement of Plainfielders Music Hall patrons are certainly in luck. Plainfield appreciates good things in a dramatic way, and Manager Edwards is doing his best to offer them.

The determination of Judge O'Brien not to resign his seat on the bench in New York tears down a house of hopes in the G. O. P.

The Christmas edition of The Daily Press will be a thing of beauty and joy forever, as the sentimentalists say.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Senator Reed's friends say he is going to be the president of the Senate and base the claim on a poll of the fourteen Republican Senators. They give this as the result of the poll: Reed—Francis, Hand, Miller, Evans, Stanger, H. W. Johnson, Hutchinson, Smith, Pitney and Reed—10. Johnson—Stokes, Cross and W. M. Johnson—3. Ketcham's vote is in doubt. It is believed that Senator W. M. Johnson may capture four votes now credited to Senator Reed.—New York Press.

Senator Cross, of Union, is said to have prepared a bill providing for the publication of the laws in the newspapers, which he will introduce at the approaching session. It will be a modification of the old plan, and will not cost anywhere near so much, but yet will give the people clearer and better knowledge of the laws enacted. The present system of printing the laws in pamphlet form for public distribution is a complete failure. It does not serve the object in view, of enlightening the people of upon the work of the Legislative session, at all.—New Brunswick Fredonian.

That old proposition to consolidate the city of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield has been revived, and is to be agitated in the Legislature. There is much to be said in favor of consolidation, while the arguments against it are, with one exception, of trifling importance. This exception is, however, an exceedingly difficult one to get over, because it consists in the fact that, while the city and the borough are cheek by jowl, they are in different counties, the city in Union and the borough in Somerset. Clearly it would never do to have a consolidated city with part of it in one county and part in another. This is where the puzzle begins. Shall North Plainfield be annexed to Union county? The remainder of Somerset says "No," because Somerset is small enough already, and can't afford to lose any of its taxable property. Annex Plainfield to Somerset? The mere suggestion stirs up progressive citizens of Plainfield to a white heat. They say that Union's energy in road-building and in other directions just suits them. And Republicans in other sections of the county don't want to lose Plainfield's big Republican vote. So there you are.—New York Tribune.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, December 13th—Sometime early Sunday morning burglars got into R. J. Swackhamer's house, and after ransacking the entire lower floor, left, taking a pair of cuff buttons and some other little trinkets. They got through a kitchen window, and after opening the door so as to give them a chance to get out if they were discovered, they set to work to overhaul the house. Mr. Swackhamer had to go to High Bridge Sunday morning on an early train, and one of the trainmen came over to the house to awaken him, and it is thought that this man's visit scared the burglars away before they got to work on the second floor. While they were there the burglars made an early breakfast of smoked beef and whatever they could find in the larder. About a year ago burglars entered this same house and got away with a little money and some provisions. It is thought that they belong in the town.

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. A trial size will be mailed for 10 cents, large for 50 cents. All druggist keep it. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THE WOMANS WORLD

To Clean Black Silk.

When a thrifty Frenchwoman wishes to clean black silk, she brushes it thoroughly and wipes it with a cloth. Then, after it is free from dust, she lays it flat on a board and sponges it with hot coffee which has been strained through muslin and freed from sediment. The silk is sponged on the right side, allowed to become half dry and then ironed on the wrong side.

The coffee removes every particle of grease and restores the brilliancy of the silk without giving it the shiny appearance or the crinkly and papery stiffness which results from beer, or indeed from any other liquid except ammonia and water, which last does not freshen the color and gloss of the silk as coffee does. The silk is much improved by the process, and the good effect is permanent.

Silk should never be ironed with a hot iron put directly on the silk. Always lay thin wrapping paper, such as is used by our best dry goods stores over it, and iron through the paper.

When stitching thin silk, or, indeed any goods flimsy enough to draw in the machine, lay paper over it also and stitch through. The paper will tear away easily along the line of perforations made by the needle.

Present Day Lack of Gallantry.

During the past few years life in the great centres of population has witnessed a falling off of many of the little gallantries of men to women. The entrance of the gentler sex into the labor market as a competitor of man has tended to blunt the chivalric feeling so characteristic of our fathers. Says the Chaperone Magazine: "Little attentions mean much to a woman, and they have lacked the small courtesies of life due to themselves from the opposite sex so much and for so long that they are trying to make themselves believe that they can do without them, act as if they did not expect them, but they do. They are longing for the days of their grandfathers, and the men who lived in those times. The old saying that everything will come back in seven years has failed miserably in this case, and it is a serious matter. We have wondered what would become of our women! But what has become of our chivalrous, courteous men?"

One Way to Cook a Chicken.

An excellent way to cook and serve a chicken is thus: After cutting the chicken open down the back pound the breast bones with a wooden mallet to flatten them a little. Lay the bird in a shallow baking tin with some slices of salt pork, and place the pan in a hot oven. Pour a little salted water into the pan and frequently baste the chicken with it while it is in the oven. Let it remain until about half cooked. Then take it from the pan and place it upon a broiler over a clear fire. Broil the under side of the chicken, and then turn it and cook the skin side to a delicate brown. When cooked place it upon a heated platter, sprinkle it with salt and pepper and pour some melted butter over it. Scatter chopped parsley over the whole. A chicken cooked in this manner has all the delicate flavor of broiling and will be more thoroughly and evenly cooked.

To Renovate Velvet.

A simple method of cleaning velvet, velveteen and plush is as follows: With the assistance of a stiff whisk broom, a pan of boiling water and an obliging friend, who will brush up the nap as you hold the goods taut over the steam, the wrong side to the water, these materials will look like new. This process removes wrinkles, brightens the color and makes the crushed nap stay up when brushed against the grain, and will answer for black or colored-pile fabrics. If the velvet has a grease spot on it remove it with French chalk before the steaming process.

Children's Poor Teeth.

A recent article in The American Kitchen Magazine gives as the opinion of a dentist that the poor teeth of children is often due to lack of exercise. Much of the modern food given to children is in the form of soups, purees and mush made from cereals, and not enough work is given to the teeth in mastication to draw the blood in large quantities to them. It does not, therefore, give up its strengthening qualities in sufficient quantity to make strong teeth. The dentist recommended that things hard to chew be given to the children.

Remedy for Slipping Rugs.

House-proud women who rejoice in smooth, hard floors often find the slipping of rugs stretched upon them a serious annoyance, if not a positive danger, as falls may easily ensue from it. A rug salesman contributed the other day this suggestion as a remedy:

"Wet the rugs thoroughly," he said, "and turn them right side downward until dry. It will not hurt them and will relieve this tendency to slip.

The explanation is that the wetting dissolves some slightly gummy substance used in their treatment.

"What makes you so utterly discouraged just after Mr. Chilbone's unqualified praise of your picture?" inquired the artist's friend.

"It's a sure sign he doesn't want to buy it."—Washington Star.

OUR YOUTHS' COLUMN.

LITTLE PRINCE TATTERS.

Little Prince Tatters has lost his cap!
Over the hedge he threw it;
Into the river it fell "kerslap!"
Stupid old thing to do it!
Now mother may sigh and nurse may fume
For the gay little cap with its eagle plume.
One cannot be thinking all day of such matters!
Trifles are trifles!" says little Prince Tatters.

Little Prince Tatters has lost his coat—
Playing, he did not need it!
Left it right there by the nanny goat,
"And nobody never seed it!"
Now mother and nurse may search till night
For the little new coat with its buttons bright;
But—"Coat sleeves or shirt sleeves, how little it matters!
Trifles are trifles!" says little Prince Tatters.

Little Prince Tatters has lost his ball!
Rolled away down the street!
Somebody'll have to find it, that's all,
Before he can sleep or eat.
Now raise the neighborhood quickly, do!
And send for the crier and constable, too!
"Trifles are trifles; but serious matters.
They must be seen to," says little Prince Tatters.

Fishes Need Slippery Coats.

The slippery coat of slime found on all fishes is essential to their existence. It is secreted usually in a continuous series of ducts with numerous openings, which in some cases are plainly visible, and in others imperceptible. There are also pores for the secretion of the mucus in the fish's head. The slime exudes through the divisions between the scales to the outer part of the body, over which it spreads, forming a sort of outer skin or covering, transparent, elastic and tenacious, and often having considerable body. Fishes vary greatly in the amount of slime which they secrete. The eel has a very liberal share, and an ordinary fish of two pounds weight will usually have a coating of slime a thirty-second of an inch in thickness.

One of the important functions of the fish's slimy coating is to protect it from the attacks of fungus, a form of plant life found in all waters, salt and fresh, foul and pure. If the fish is so injured that some spot becomes uncovered by the slime a barely visible fungus will be likely to lodge there, and when it is once lodged the process of its reproduction is very rapid. It soon extends over the gills and kills the fish. The primary purpose of the slime of the fish is to reduce its friction when in motion and increase its speed. It also serves as a cushion to the scales, which it thus protects from many injuries. The slimy covering makes the fish hard to hold, and so enables it the more readily to escape from its enemies. In some cases the slime has a very rank smell, and this serves as a means of defense against other fish.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Singing the Pain Away.

An eight-year-old child with a cut in her hand was brought to a physician. It was necessary for the best results to take a few stitches with a surgeon's needle. While the physician was making preparations, the little girl swung her foot nervously against the chair, and was gently admonished by her mother who stood near to assist.

"That will do no harm," said the doctor, kindly, "as long as you hold your hand still," adding, with a glance at the strained, anxious face of the child, "You may cry as much as you like."

"I would rather sing," replied the girl, with a smile.

"All right, that would be better. What can you sing?"

"I can sing 'Give, give, said the little stream.' Do you know that?"

"I am not sure," responded the doctor. "How does it begin?"

The little patient proceeded to illustrate.

"That's beautiful," said the doctor. "I want to hear the whole of it."

All the while the skilled fingers were sewing up the wound, the sweet, childish voice sounded bravely through the room, and the only tears shed on the occasion came from the eyes of the mother.

It is, I believe, a physiological fact that some expression of one's feelings tends to lessen pain.—Congregationalist.

Wasps Make Paper.

Wasps were the first and original paper makers, and as geometricians and architects vie with their relatives the bees. One has only to study the stories in that gray apartment house called a wasps' nest, to wonder at and admire the skill of the builders. The wasps build their nests of a material made by gathering bits of weather-worn wood and chewing them up, making a true paper pulp. These builders are equal to emergencies. A wasps' nest was once involuntarily unroofed that was under a board. Several days later it was discovered that the nest was well roofed by neat paper shingles. Never before, probably, had these wasps or their ancestors been called upon to roof a domicile, but these did this original work with much show of the knowledge of the principles of roof construction.—Chautauquan.

WAS IT DOROTHY?

"Now, Uncle Buttonball, I think you are foolishly prejudiced about it."

Benedict Buttonball, commonly called "Uncle Bill," shook his head at Frank Worrall's levity.

"Maybe I am," said he, "but we're not to blame for our convictions. I can't help mine, anyhow. And I couldn't any more marry in the face of my promise to Hephsibah than I could—join the Mormons!"

"Pauline Pepper is a pretty girl," said Frank, "and a good girl, too, although not young."

"If she was she wouldn't be suitable to me!" said Mr. Buttonball. "I don't deny that it's all true enough what you say. But, you perceive, I'm the victim of circumstances."

"Circumstances be hanged!" ejaculated Frank Worrall, losing his temper at last and banging the door behind him as he hurried out of the room.

"Isn't he a fool!" said Dorothy Martin. "And is he really so superstitious about breaking the promise that that unreasonable virago of a wife exacted from him?"

"Unquestionably he is," said Frank Worrall.

"How?" queried Dorothy.

"Oh, he sees winding sheets in the candle, believes there will be a death in the family if a dog chances to howl under the window, and would sooner cut off his right hand than begin haying or go on a journey of a Friday."

"Frank!" hesitatingly began Dorothy.

"Well?"

"What sort of a woman was your Aunt Hephsibah? You know I never saw her. She died before I came to Hopton to live."

"A little, fat woman, with spectacles and a brown foretop, who always wore brown gingham and talked through her nose. I forgot, though—she had a monstrosity of a cap with a frill two inches wide all around it and a colossal bow of snuff colored ribbon perched on the very top—a guy of a cap, only fit for a scarecrow."

* * * * * * * *

"Past 11 o'clock," said Uncle Buttonball, looking up at the clock over the rims of his silver spectacles. "Well, I hadn't any idea it was so late. And snowing and blowing like all possessed and the wind blowing down the chimney fit to set a man's teeth on edge. Just such a night as poor Hephsibah died four years ago."

And then Mr. Buttonball fell into a doze or a reverie—he never could be quite certain which—from which he was aroused by the old kitchen clock striking 12, and as he rose with a sore or rheumatic stiffness from his chair the door leading from the buttery creaked slightly, a slow, heavy footstep sounded on the floor and looking around with startled and dilated eyes Mr. Buttonball beheld—the departed Hephsibah.

"Benedict!" spoke out the quavering and nasal voice. "Benedict! Benedict!"

"W—w—well, my dear," stuttered Mr. Buttonball, holding tightly to the arms of his chair lest his teeth should clatter him off from it.

"I have brought a message from the other world, Benedict," solemnly uttered The Presence. "You want to marry again!"

"N—not if you object to it, my dear," faltered the shaking widower. "I—I—that is—"

"Peace! Disturb not the voices of a higher sphere."

"No, my dear, I won't," said the submissive husband.

"Peace, I say, and listen; you are absolved from your promise to contract no second marriage. You are a free agent. My eyes are opened now to many things, among them the folly of my earthly jealousies. Go, marry whom you will, and my blessing rest upon your bride. The word is spoken, the oracle is closed."

Slowly the brown gingham ed form retreated backward with gleaming spectacles and uplifted finger through the buttery door into the black kitchen, while Uncle Buttonball sat staring and transfixed with an agony of superstitious terror.

* * * * * * * *

"He has really asked you to marry him, Paulina?"

"Yes, really," said Paulina Pepper, her blooming face all smiles and dimples. "And I'm so glad! Because—there can't be any harm in owning it now, Dorothy, dear—I did like him ever so much!"

"He's a very nice old man—I mean middle aged gentleman," said Dorothy Martin, demurely. "But I thought he had determined never to marry again."

"Oh, that's all settled," cried Paulina, looking complacently down at the red shine of her garnet engagement ring. "He thinks he has had a vision—that his departed wife appeared to him and released him from his vows."

"Dear me!" said Dorothy. "How very strange!"

"Of course the dear fellow must have been asleep and dreaming, though—don't you think so?"

"Undoubtedly," said Dorothy.

"For—what are you laughing at, dear?" Paulina Pepper broke off to say.

"Nothing, nothing; only it seems so ridiculous that in this age of the world people can believe in ghosts!" cried Dorothy, giving way to a hearty peal of laughter, as she caught up her embroidery and hurried out of the room. Frank Worrall followed her.

"Dorothy," said he; "it was you!"

"What do you mean?"

"The ghost."

"Prove it if you can!" cried Dorothy, saucily. And that was all she would ever admit.—New York News.

Aus der Rheinpfalz.

Speyer. Gleich den Städten Worms, Mainz und Germersheim beschloß auch der hiesige Stadtrath, gegen die Absicht der Stadt Karlsruhe, die Schwemmkanalisation einzuführen, um auf diese Weise ihre Fäkalien in den Rhein zu leiten, Einspruch zu erheben.

Neustadt. Vor Kurzem verlor hier ein junger Angestellter der Firma Eckel in Heidesheim den Betrag von 16,000 Mark in Wechseln und 2200 Mark in Papiergeld. Nunmehr wurde die Finderin dieses Geldes in der Person der Frau Höhn ermittelt und mit ihrem Manne, der Maurer ist, verhaftet. Ein kleiner Junge hatte seiner Zeit die Frau beobachtet, wie sie das Geldtäschchen aufhob, und hat in der Hoffnung auf die ausgesetzten 100 Mark Finderlohn bei der Polizei Anzeige gemacht. Bei der Haussuchung wurden noch 1735 Mark gefunden.

Pirmasens. Bei einem Brande, der in der Schuhfabrik von J. Hahn ausbrach, sind in Folge Einsturzes einer Giebelwand sieben Feuerwehrleute verletzt worden.

Hall. Laupheim. Die Bauern klagen über eine ganz gewaltige Mäuseplage in diesem Jahre. Die „ältesten Leute" wissen sich an eine solche Menge dieser schädlichen Thiere, wie sie heuer ihr Unwesen treiben, nicht zu erinnern.

Spiegelberg. Auf der Strecke zwischen Wilsbach und hier ist aus einem Postwagen ein Postbeutel mit 1200 Mark Inhalt entwendet worden. Der Beutel wurde bald darauf mit etlichen eröffneten Briefen, aber ohne Geld, aufgefunden.

Karlsruhe. Die bei dem Ministerium des Innern eingegangenen Berichte der Bezirksärzte zeigen, daß sich Behrings Heilserum neuerdings außerordentlich bewährt hat und während des letzten Vierteljahres in 26 Amtsbezirken in Folge der Serumbehandlung kein Diphtherie-Todesfall vorgekommen ist.—Im Thierschutzverein wurde kürzlich die Frage der schmerzlosen Tödtung von herrenlosen und kranken Hunden und Katzen durch Kohlensäure eingehend besprochen. Ein entsprechender Apparat soll demnächst im Schlachthaus aufgestellt werden.

Baden-Baden. Rentner Ernst Grosholz hat sich in seiner Wohnung erschossen. Grosholz war Apotheker und zuletzt in Straßburg, von wo er sich hierher zur Ruhe zurückzog. Nervenüberreizung soll den noch rüstigen und allseits geachteten Mann in den Tod getrieben haben.

Heidelberg. Von hier nach dem industriereichen Städtchen Wiesloch soll eine elektrische Straßenbahn gebaut werden. Der hiesige Stadtrath hat die Ablassung der Kraft aus dem zu errichtenden Elektrizitätswerk der Baugesellschaft zugesagt.

Mannheim. Neulich Nachts wurde der verheirathete Formstecher Friedrich Binder von hier, der auf der Ringstraße zwischen einigen Burschen, die in Streit gerathen waren, Ruhe stiften wollte, erstochen. Drei Burschen gelangten zur Haft.

Elsaß-Lothringen.

Straßburg. Hier räumt die Statthalterschaft unentwegt mit allen mißliebigen Elementen auf. So hat sie jetzt den französischen Professor an der Sorbonne in Paris, Carl Belain, den Baseler Theehändler Emil Gutknecht und fünf Franzosen und Italiener des Landes verwiesen, weil sie sich in Wort und Schrift gegen Deutschland ausgesprochen haben sollen.

GHOST SENSATIONS.

A PHYSICIAN WHO DIED AND THEN CAME TO LIFE AGAIN.

Features of the Spook State as He Described His Experiences—The Old Body Seen From the Viewpoint of the New.

"Speaking of strange experiences," said the professor as the party sat chatting over their after dinner cigars, "if you care to hear it, I will tell you how it seems to die. My uncle, Dr. J. S. Long, one of the prominent physicians of St. Louis, told me years ago. This incident happened to one Dr. Warren, a physician of Columbus, O., about twenty years ago. I will give you the facts as they were related to me by one of the members of the Society for Psychical Research. Dr. Warren, when in full possession of his faculties, appeared to come to the moment of death in the last stage of typhus fever. Before the final lapse into unconsciousness he discussed with his friends the question of immortality. His voice failed and his strength weakened, and, as a last effort, he stiffened his legs. He lay for hours as dead, the church bells being rung for his death. A needle was thrust into various parts of his body from the feet to the hips without having any effect. He was pulseless for a long time and for nearly half an hour he appeared absolutely dead. While his body was lying in this deathlike trance his soul was disengaging itself from its earthly tabernacle. This is the account he gave of his sensations:

"'I woke up out of unconsciousness into a state of conscious existence and discovered that the soul was in the body, but not of it. With all the interest of a physician I beheld the wonders of my bodily anatomy, intimately interwoven with which, even tissue for tissue, was I, the living soul of that dead body. I learned that the epidermis was the outside boundary of the ultimate tissues, so to speak, of the soul. I realized my condition, and reasoned calmly thus; I have died, as men term death, and yet I am as much a man as ever. I am about to get out of the body. I watched the interesting process of the separation of soul and body.

"'By some power, apparently not my own, the ego was rocked to and fro latterly, as a cradle is rocked, by which process its connection with the tissues of the body was broken up. After a little time the latteral motion ceased, and along the soles of the feet, beginning at the toes, passing rapidly to the heels, I felt and heard as it seemed, the snapping of innumerable small cords. When this was accomplished, I began slowly to retreat from the feet toward the head, as a rubber cord shortens. I remember reaching the hips and saying to myself, "Now there is no life below the hips." I can recall no memory of passing through the abdomen or chest, but recollect distinctly when my whole self was collected in the head, when I reflected thus: I am all in the head now, and I shall soon be free. I passed around the brain as if I were hollow, compressing it and its membranes slightly on all sides toward the centre, and peeped out between the sutures of the skull, emerging like the flattened edges of a bag of membranes. I recollect distinctly how I appeared to myself something like a jellyfish as regards color and form. As I emerged from the head I floated up and down, and laterly like a soap bubble attached to the bowl of a pipe, until I at last broke loose from the body and fell lightly to the floor, where I slowly rose and expanded into the full stature of a man. I seemed to be translucent, of a bluish cast.

"'I fled toward the partially opened door, but upon reaching the door I turned and faced the company. As I did so my left elbow came in contact with the arm of one of two gentlemen standing in the door. To my surprise, his arm passed through mine without apparent resistance, the severed parts closing again without pain, as air reunites. I looked quickly up at his face to see if he had noticed the contact, but he gave me no sign—only stood and gazed toward the couch I had just left. I directed my gaze in the direction of his, and saw my own dead body.

"'I saw a number of persons sitting and standing about the body, and particularly noticed two women, apparently kneeling by my left side, and I knew they were weeping. I have since learned that they were my wife and sister, but I had no conception of individuality. Wife, sister and friend were all as one to me. I did not remember any conditions of relationship; at least, I did not think of any. I could distinguish sex but nothing more. Not one lifted her eyes from my body.

"'I turned and passed out at the open door, inclining my head and watching where I set my feet as I stepped onto the porch. I crossed the porch, descended the steps, walked down the path and into the street. There I stopped and looked about me. I never saw that street more distinctly than I saw it then. I took note of the redness of the soil, and the washes the rain had made. I took a rather pathetic look about me, like one who is about to leave his home for a long time. Then I discovered that I had become larger than I was in earth life, and congratulated myself thereupon. I was somewhat smaller in the body than I just liked to be, but in the next life, I thought, I am to be as I desired. My clothes, I noticed, had accommodated themselves to my increased stature, and I fell to wondering where they came from and how they got onto me so quickly and without my knowledge. I examined the fabric, and judged it to be some kind of Scotch material—a good suit, I thought, but not handsome; still, neat and good enough. The coat fits loosely, too, and that is well for summer. 'How well I feel,' I thought. 'Only a few minutes ago I was horribly sick and distressed. Then came that change called death, which I have so much dreaded. It is past now, and here am I, still a man, alive and thinking—yes, thinking as clearly as ever, and how well I feel.'

"'In the exuberance of my joy at the thought that I would never be sick again, I danced in high glee. I then noticed that I could see the back of my coat with the eyes of my old body, while my spiritual eyes were looking forward. I discovered that a small cord, like the thread of a spider's web ran from my shoulders back to my body and was attached to it at the base of the neck in front. Then I passed through the air upheld by a pair of hands which I could feel pressing lightly on my sides. I travelled at a swift but pleasant rate of speed until I arrived on a narrow but well-built roadway inclined upward at an angle of 25 degrees. It was about as far above the treetops as it was above the clouds. The roadway seemed to have no support, but was built of milky quartz and white sand. Feeling very lonely I looked for a companion, and as a man dies every twenty seconds I thought I ought not to have long to wait before some one would travel my way. But I could see no one. At last, when I was beginning to feel miserable, a face full of ineffable love and tenderness appeared to me. Right in front of me I saw three prodigious rocks blocking the road. A voice spoke to me from a thunder cloud, saying: "This is the road to the eternal world; once you pass them you can no more return to the body." There were four entrances, one very dark; the other three led into a cool, quiet and beautiful country. I desired to go in, but when I reached the exact centre of the rock I was suddenly stopped. I became unconscious again and when I awoke I was lying in my bed. I awoke to consciousness and soon recovered.'

"This narrative was written out by the doctor eight weeks after the thing occurred, but he told the story to those at the bedside as soon as he revived. The doctor who attended him said that the breath was entirely extinct as far as could be observed and every symptom marking the patient as dead was present."—New York Sun.

A BLOW AT WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE.

An Editor's Opinion of It's Defeat in the State of Washington.

An editorial in the Portland Oregonian has this to say in relation to the defeat of the equal suffrage amendment in the state of Washington:

The woman suffrage amendment was buried in the same grave with the single-tax proposition by the voters of Washington. Political suffrage for woman is a slowly dying cause, and it is dying because it is without excuse for further existence. The real wrongs of women which existed when Lucy Stone began her agitation in 1847 have mostly been redressed by legislation. To-day every political principle advocated at the outset is enjoyed by women, save full suffrage, and every legal right sought by Lucy Stone has been granted to women. They are even treated with partiality by the laws, compared with men. Their individuality is not lost in marriage, as it was when Mrs. Stanton, who is now over 80, was a young girl. Every avenue of activity is open to them; they are as free as men to earn their living in any way they please. The conjugal, parental and property rights of women have been recognized and established by the political action of men without the aid of woman suffrage, simply because the vast mass of influential women and public opinion thought that the best way. The present situation is totally different from that of forty years ago, when "woman's rights" was a genuine cause, because there were genuine woman's wrongs to be righted and legal disabilities to be removed. The agitation and organized effort began more than fifty years ago had much to do with the recognition and redress of these wrongs, legal disabilities and inequalities; but with the accomplishment of these reforms the cause of woman suffrage has made no real progress. Its modern revival in Kansas, Colorado and Idaho, was but the outgrowth of the temporary socialistic spirit that prevails in those states.

The lack of the ballot surely robs a woman of no rights of life, liberty or property. The reason why woman suffrage is not favored by the mass of women or the mass of men is because it is a barren ideality. It rights no wrongs, it corrects no disability. Women to-day have without the ballot all the civil and social rights exercised by men. As a natural right suffrage belongs to neither man nor woman, for the ballot is only the child of an artificial social order to be granted or withheld as a matter of social and political expediency. The mere wish of a few women to vote is of no more consequence to the state than the mere wish of a few women to enlist in the regular army. That Moll Pitcher served her wounded husband's gun at Monmouth is not an argument for the expediency of enlisting women as artillerymen.

Alarming.

Doctor—Your wife, sir, is suffering from general functional derangement.

Mr. Parvenu—I knew it. Maybe she'll give me credit with knowing a few things after a while. I told her to quit gadding around to all these swell functions, or she'd be sick. Now she's deranged. Is she liable to be violent, doc?—Detroit Free Press.

LITTLE BIRDS AND BIG ONES.

Their Supposed Method of Crossing From One Country to Another.

How ever the little birds contrive to get across such vast expanses of the sea in their annual migrations is a puzzle, says the Pittsburg Despatch.

That they do it is unquestionable; it is admitted by the most competent observers that they sometimes get over stretches of billowy brine that for a thousand miles afford no perch for their weary little claws to clutch on. That such an extended flight is too much for them is not only evident in itself, but is proved by the fact that these too venturesome songsters sometimes alight on the rigging of ships in such a state of exhaustion that, when disturbed, they are unable to fly the length of the vessel and occasionally even fall helpless upon the deck.

An English traveller who was considerably interested in the birds happened to be passing the autumn in the island of Crete, in the Mediterranean and he often noticed a sound like the twitter of small birds when the sand-cranes were passing overhead on their way southward. As the only fowl in sight were the cranes, this aroused his curiosity, and he mentioned the matter to a friend, who was a native of the island, suggesting that possibly the noise was caused by the whirling of the feathers of these great birds. His friend, however, said no; the noise, he declared, was made by some birds that were riding on the backs of the cranes, and he further asserted that the saucy little fellows came all the way from the coast of Europe with their good-natured companions, who lent, if not a helping hand, a helping back, which was much more serviceable, as often needed.

ALFRED NOBLE AND DYNAMITE.

The Inventor of the Powerful Destructive Agent.

This great inventor, the son of a Swedish inventor, was a man of daring and extreme sensitiveness, due, it is believed, to physical ill-health. While his dynamite was distrusted he did the most reckless things with it, digging a quantity of the dangerous substance, for instance, out of a cask with a knife; yet "he was particularly susceptible to headaches caused by bringing nitroglycerine into contact with the skin; they affected him so violently that he was often obliged to lie down on the ground in the mine or quarry in which he was experimenting." He was a man of vast reading and much poetic feeling, being, moreover, so fastidious that he never could find a wife whom he thought up to his intellectual level.

He was deeply disappointed by not being made a Fellow of the Royal Society, and had, evidently, in his nature an element of whimsicality which his great wealth, not all made from dynamite, for he was at Baku a great petroleum dealer, enabled him to gratify. "Being very nervous, and tiring of the pictures around him, he had made an arrangement with one of the largest picture dealers in Paris by which he could select any pictures he liked and have them hung on his walls. As soon as he was tired of one set he sent them back to the dealer and selected others in their stead." He was the inventor of cordite, and died in 1896 at the age of 63, leaving his large fortune for the diffusion of scientific instruction.—London Spectator.

At the Public Expense.

It is stated that one morning recently a young fellow who had just secured a clerkship in a Government office was considerably startled by a little scene which he witnessed. An elderly man, one of the senior clerks in a room, suddenly rose from his desk, dragged the comfortable chair on which he had been sitting into the middle of the room, seized a poker, and, attacking the chair with great vigor, succeeding in breaking one of its legs. When it was done the official gave a sigh of relief, and flung the chair into a corner of the room. The budding junior's first thought was that his senior had suddenly taken leave of his senses, and he almost expected that his colleagues would henceforth put him under restraint. But, to his astonishment, the other clerks hardly raised their eyes while the work of destruction was in progress. Before the office work was over the new-comer sought information from one of his fellow-clerks. "Can you tell me," said he, "why Mr. Dash carried on in that extraordinary fashion? I mean, of course, when he broke a perfectly sound leg off the chair in which he had been sitting." "Oh, that was all right!" replied the other, with a meaning laugh. "A caster had come off one of the legs of the chair, and, you know, 'my lords' will not provide us with new casters; they will attend to nothing less than a broken leg. So Dash had to break one of the legs in order to get his chair put right at the public expense."

Seven Good Reasons.

During a temperance campaign a lawyer was discussing with no little show of learning the causes of the proposed temperance law. An old farmer who had been listening attentively shut his knife with a snap and said:

"I don't know nothin' about the law, but I've got seven good reasons for votin' for it."

"What are they?" asked the lawyer.

And the grim old farmer responded:

"Four sons and three daughters"—Presbyterian Review.

A NEIGHBORLY CALL.

"Dill," said Aunt Maria, the day after Dill began her visit, "I want you to do an errand for me."

"All right, Auntie," said Dill, jumping up and seizing her hat. She wasn't the girl to refuse to do anything helpful.

"Our seamstress," said her aunt, "is very poor, and has to support her lame mother and her own little girl. She cannot get much work, and is worried all the time. Her birthday and her mother's and the little girl's birthday all come on the same day, and it is this very day. I am going to give her my geranium, which isn't much. But Mrs. Grace has white chrysanthemums and she will give me some, I know, if you will go after them."

"I'll go," said Dill. "Where does she live?"

"Well," said her aunt, "as you go, turn first to the left, walk two blocks—no, three blocks—then turn to the right, and the third house you will see chrysanthemums in the yard. That is the place. Tell Mrs. Grace about the birthdays and ask for some flowers."

Dill started out, well pleased with her errand. She liked to be trusted and have responsibility. It was a clear, sunny day, and the unfamiliar town looked very pleasant. She turned to the left, walked two blocks, and then turned to the right, but there was no flowers in the third yard. It was the fourth that glowed with chrysanthemums, red, white and yellow.

"Whose garden is this?" asked Dill of a passerby, so as to be sure.

"Mrs. Gray's," said he.

So Dill stepped in and seeing a lady and a little boy on the piazza, she went to them and said, in her bright little confident way:

"My Aunt 'Ria says, will you please give her some chrysanthemums for the seamstress, because she is poor and her mother is lame, and her girl little, and it is the birthday of all three of them to-day. Aunt 'Ria hasn't anything but geraniums, but she will give them, and she said you would give some flowers, she knew."

"Who is your aunt?" asked the lady, smiling.

"Mrs. Maria Avery, around two corners from here. You don't know me, because I only came yesterday. I'm Dill Avery."

"Let's give her some flowers, mamma," said the little boy.

"She says the seamstress gets worried, and don't have work enough, and the flowers may brighten her birthday," continued Dill.

"Now, Rupert," said his mother, "let me get my gloves and scissors, and we will go among the flowers."

So out they all went together among the chrysanthemums, which were certainly wonders; some tiny as buttons, some just a sweet, natural size, and some as big as oranges or even as big as cocoanuts, Dill thought to herself.

"I never saw such a handsome garden," said Dill. "In Melford, where I live, the flowers are all killed with the frost."

"Frost can't hurt ours," said Rupert. "See, we pull the awning down over them every night. Here's our pansy bed. Mamma, I want to send pansies to the poor lame woman."

"Very well," said his mamma, "bring a basket, and you may fill it and carry it for Dill."

There were chrysanthemums, carnations, sweet peas, pansies and even some late roses heaped up in that basket before the gathering was done, beside all that Dill had in her hand.

"There, that will be a pretty good birthday," said Rupert, exultantly.

"It will be a beautiful birthday," said Dill, "and we will tell her the flowers came from your garden, Mrs. Grace."

"Never mind that," said the lady, lightly. "Now, Rupert, help Dill carry them home."

Aunt Maria had gone to the door the third time to look for Dill, when she saw her turning the corner, with a little boy in a velvet suit at her side, hardly to be seen for the quantity of flowers he carried.

"Have you been to paradise, Dill?" was all she could think of to say.

"No," said Dill, merrily. "It was just Mrs. Grace's garden and there are thousands more flowers left."

"Which way did you go?" asked Aunt Maria.

"Oh, just as you said. To the left, then two blocks, and then to the right. But it was the fourth house, not the third; and auntie, they have awnings to cover the flowers nights."

"Child" said her aunt, "you have been to the Mayor's house, Mayor Gray's, and I never spoke to her in my life, nor she to me!"

"I don't care," said Dill, stoutly, though the color flew into her cheeks. "I don't care, it will make a beautiful birthday!"

So it did, indeed, and that was not the end of it. Steady work and good prices followed after, and no seamstress could carry a heavy heart who had Mrs. Avery and the Mayor's wife both for customers.—Youth's Companion.

Pat's Objection to Machinery.

Pat—Well, Dinnis, I see they ain't goin' to vote be meshaynery here, afther all.

Dennis—Faith and I'm glad o' that. They're maykin' horseshoes be meshaynery, they're bakin' bread by meshaynery, and they're doin' nearly everything be meshaynery, but still, Pat, we ain't got to think who we're goin' to vote fer be meshanery, so let's have somethin' on it.—Cleveland Leader.

BILL'S IN TROUBLE.

I've got a letter, parson, from my son away out West,
An' my ol' heart is heavy as an anvil in my breast,
To think the boy whose future I had once so proudly planned
Should wander from the path of right an' come to sich an end!
I told him when he left us, not three short years ago,
He'd find himself a-plowin' in a mighty crooked row—
He'd miss his father's counsel, an' his mother's prayers, too;
But he said the farm was hateful, an he guessed he'd have to go.
I know thar's big temptation for a youngster in the West,
But I believed our Billy had the courage to resist,
An' when he left I warned him o' the ever waitin' snares
That lie like hidden sarpints in life's pathway everywhere.
But Bill he promised faithful to be keerful, and he allowed
He'd build a reputation that'd make us mighty proud;
But it seems as how my counsel so t' o' faded from his mind,
An' now the boy's in trouble of the very wustest kind.
His letters came so seldom that I somehow sort o' knowed
That Billy was a-tramping on a mighty rocky road.
But never once imagined he would bow my head in shame,
An' in the dust'd waller his ol' daddy's honored name.
He writes from out in Denver, an' the story's mighty short;
I just can't tell his mother, it'll crush her poor ol' heart.
An' so I reckoned, parson, you might break the news to her—
Bill's in the Legislature, but he doesn't say what fur!

THE WEDDING CAKE.

"But what shall I do with it?" he asked helplessly.

She looked up at him and laughed as he stood dangling a square white box by its satin ribbon.

"There's a certain insanity in treasuring another fellow's wedding cake. Won't you take it—as a gift?"

"Thank's, no," she answered. "I have a sufficiency; besides, the charm is broken if you give it away."

"Charm?" he echoed. "What charm has an infinitesimal piece of cake that would not stay the appetite of a mosquito? Silly custom this, anyhow, of—"

"Do you mean to say," she interrupted solemnly, "that you have attained unto years of discretion, and have never tried the charm that lies in a bit of bride's cake?"

"Never!" he averred.

She looked so bewitching in her bridesmaid array that he would have sworn to any fact or falacy whatsoever, could Le thereby prolong the tete-a-tete. In seeking a spot where perchance that ubiquitous best man might be eluded, he had found this curtained corner of the porch.

"Then you must try it before you are a night older," she said, with a pretty air of authority. "Cut a card into seven slips and give me a pencil, and I'll do the rest."

He obeyed with unwonted docility.

"This is merely a short and sure way to find out whom you are to marry," she resumed.

"I know whom I want to marry. I don't need a piece of cake and seven slips of paper to tell me that."

"Whom one wants to marry and whom one marries are not always the same individual!" she replied sententiously.

"Oh!" was his only audible remark.

"Now," she went on, "I shall write a name on each of these six pieces and leave one a blank—for bachelorhood, you know."

"Um!" he assented.

"Then you will place them under your pillow, with the wedding cake, and draw one out each morning; the last one—" with a pause of emphasis.

"I understand," he broke in. "The last shall be first. But I can't think of six names; one is so indelibly written on my heart that—"

"Oh, I can arrange that!" she interrupted blithely. "You know they must be written by some one else, anyway—some disinterested person."

"Oh!"—very humbly.

But as he watched her brows wrinkle in perplexity, he concluded that it was not such a bad thing after all, this idea of tying up wedding cake in boxes, and he became convinced that weddings, on the whole, were not such a bore when he saw the ubiquitous best man peer into the half light of the veranda and retire precipitately.

"There's one thing I forgot," she was saying, "each slip must be destroyed as it is drawn out, and only the last one read."

"Humph! Strict requirements, these! It would give a fellow some satisfaction perhaps to know whom he had escaped."

"Oh, but the charm won't work unless you do! Promise now"—imperatively.

And he promised. Then—

"Oh, I say," he cried, interrupting her writing again: "You'll put your own name down, won't you?"

"Shall I?" she queried, doubtfully.

"Well, rather." And though the light was dim she saw something in his eyes that made her add hastily:

"Oh, very well, since it is by request."

* * * * * * *

On the eighth day thereafter she received the following telegram:

"Your name seventh. Has charm worked?"

And it was not till their honeymoon was at its zenith that she told him confidentially—that each bit of cardboard had borne the same name, and there had been no blank.—From the Montreal Herald.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

There is no name upon which more indignity has been heaped, nor any name that has been responsible for more that is bright, clever and startling, than the dulcet name of Jones. It is doubtful, too, if there is any one edifice large enough to hold all the Joneses there are in this place; in which case Music Hall tomorrow night would be taxed to its utmost with those who will want to learn "What Happened to Jones." Mr. Broadhurst has constructed a farce which has run for four months in New York; and is the one American farce to score a success in London when it is running at the Strand Theatre, and any play that can do this, has more than commonplace merit to it. Farces such as "What Happened to Jones" rely largely upon the people there are in them. They must not only be good players, they must be farce players. A farce actor or actress is a distinct type of player, gifted with the indescribable element of merriment, which proves infectious, veriable, contagious and untiring. This farce has players who fulfill these requirements admirably.

"Laughter is a man's telephone to the angels" is a true saying and central office will be open and the line ready for business at Music Hall Friday night, when "Muldoon's Picnic" will be given. No other show on the road contains as much laughter as does this one, and it is caused in a thoroughly legitimate and perfectly pure manner. No vulgar speech or action is allowed, and the company is made up of legitimate actors and actresses who would not stoop to low methods to gain applause from an audience. Among the players is Barney Ferguson, the best Irish comedian of the day, whose humor is of the infectious order, and who will be pleasantly remembered for the many times he has caused us to laugh in his own plays. In "Muldoon's Picnic" he will be seen in his original character of Mulcahy, as played by him over 2,000 times.

George Thatcher's Fashionable Vaudevilles, to be seen at Music Hall as the holiday attraction Monday, Dec. 26th, can be truly called a Keith's entertainment, as all the artists who comprise the organization have made distinctive successes at the Keith theatres. Keith prices will prevail. Pure humor and a special care as to the perfect propriety of everything said and done, not to offend the most fastidious ears, will mark an era in refined vaudeville in Plainfield that will amuse, instruct, and be worthy the liberal patronage that will undoubtedly be given to the entertainment.

A QUEER DECISION.

Borough Recorder Rules in a Way That Does Not Seem Regular.

George Benson, of the borough, was arraigned yesterday afternoon before Recorder Long on a charge preferred by Frank Hull, his brother-in-law, who complained that Benson had ill-treated his wife last Thursday evening. Lawyer Frank Blatz appeared in behalf of Benson, and both the complainant and the defendant's wife were present to substantiate the charge. After hearing the evidence the Recorder decided that Benson should be find $10, and then subsequently decided that he would suspend sentence. The Recorder warned Benson that if he ever appeared before him again as an offender he would extract the $10 imposed as a fine. Many are wondering how the Recorder can so dispose of the case.

Benson told the court that after last Thursday evening he and his wife lived like two angels. He said that he came in on the evening in question and asked his wife for ten cents. She replied by saying that she did not have it. Benson thought this a queer state of affairs, inasmuch as he had given his wife all his money. One word brought on another and thus the quarrel was started.

Entertained at Euchre.

The Monday Evening Euchre Club was delightfully entertained last evening by former Mayor and Mrs. Alex. Gilbert at their home on Eighth street. There were nine tables, and in addition to the regular members there were a few invited guests. The first second and third prizes for the women were presented to Mrs. J. Parker Mason, Mrs. J. K. Myers and Mrs. Samuel Kimball, while Edwin Conklin, Samuel Huntington and Howard Fleming won the prizes for the men. After play refreshments were served by the host and hostess and the rest of the evening was passed in sociability.

Scotch Plains Man Dead.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, December 13—Samuel M. Ball, an old and respected resident of this place, died at his home this morning at 10 o'clock. Mr. Ball had been a sufferer from heart trouble for years. About two weeks ago dropsy developed, but his condition was not considered dangerous until a week ago, when he began to sink and the end came this morning. He was a carpenter. He was also a member of Jerusalem Lodge, F. and A. M.

Entertained Ministers.

The members of the Plainfield Ministers' Association were entertained yesterday afternoon by Rev. Dr. Schenck at his home in West End Park, and Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, prepared and read a paper of great interest to all. An informal discussion of the subject followed which brought out the many fine points in the paper.

How to Quiet Babies.

This problem has been a long standing menace to the peace of home, but its solution has at last been reached: throw aside your soothing-syrups and other temporary sedatives, and buy one of the filled gold or silver bracelets on sale at Collier's: no well organized infant will fret as long as it has one of these in sight.

The next lecture will be given in two weeks by former Mayor Place, who will talk on the subject, "Noted Men Whom I Have Met." The other speakers secured include Rev. Dr. W. C. Brake Valve Wouldn't Release.

The steam valve which operates the brakes on the 8:29 Philadelphia train got caught this morning and refused to release the brakes when the train was about to pull out, and the engine and tender were enveloped in steam until the valve could be closed. Driver Wenzell, of the United States Express Company, who was on the station platform, saw what was the matter, and jumping on the tender, got the valve closed.

GEO. B. WEAN,
City Clerk, pro tem.
Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 12th, 1898.

AN ORDINANCE

locating the tracks of the extension of the Plainfield Street Railway Company in Richmond street and East Second street and over a private right of way to the line of the City of Plainfield in Terrill road, and authorizing and empowering the construction and operation and maintenance of the same and granting permission for said company to use electricity as the propelling power of its cars and prescribing the terms and conditions upon which the said location of the tracks and permission are granted.

Whereas, The Plainfield Street Railway Company, a street railway corporation organized under the provisions of the laws of the state of New Jersey and operating a street railway in the city of Plainfield, did present their petition or application to the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, praying the said Mayor and Common Council of the City of Plainfield for their consent to the construction, operation and maintenance of an extension of its street railway in the city of Plainfield, from a point in its present line of tracks in East Fifth street opposite to Richmond street, thence westerly through Richmond street to East Second street; thence northerly through East Second street to the present terminus of East Second street between Netherwood avenue and Leland avenue and over a private right of way through private property to the line of the City of Plainfield in Terrill road, and,

Whereas, Public notice has been duly given of such application and of the intention of the Council of the City of Plainfield to consider the same by publication and also by posting a copy of the said notice in five or more of the most public places in the said city of Plainfield, at least fourteen days prior to the date fixed for the meeting of the said Council of the City of Plainfield to consider said application, and

Whereas, Upon the day fixed by said notice for said hearing and upon the days to which the said hearing was regularly adjourned, public hearing was given to all persons desiring to be heard, in favor of or opposed to or in anywise interested in the said application for the location of the said tracks of the said street railway company and the said Council having been duly considered by the Council of the City of Plainfield, and the said Council having determined to grant permission for the construction, maintenance and operation of such street railway upon the streets, highways or public places designated in such petition, and the said company having filed with the clerk of the city of Plainfield, the consent in writing of the owners, or their duly authorized legal representatives, of at least one-half in amount of the lineal feet of property on said Richmond street from East Fifth street to East Second street and on East Second street, from Richmond street to the present terminus of East Second street between Netherwood avenue and Leland avenue and thence along a right of way through private property to the line of the City of Plainfield in Terrill road.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the tracks of the extension of the Plainfield Street Railway Company's railway be and are hereby located in the following streets, roads and alleys of the city of Plainfield: from a point in the present line of tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway Company in East Fifth street, opposite to Richmond street; thence westerly through Richmond street to East Second street; thence northerly through East Second street to the present terminus of East Second street, between Netherwood avenue and Leland avenue; thence along a right of way through private property northeasterly on a curve having a radius of four hundred and seventy-one feet and eight-tenths of a foot, two hundred and one feet and seventy-four hundredths of a foot; thence north twenty-one degrees and five minutes east two hundred and eighty-three feet and twenty-three hundredths of a foot; thence easterly on a curve with a radius of one thousand and eleven feet and five-tenths of a foot, four hundred and fifteen hundredths of a foot; thence north forty-four degrees two minutes east, two thousand three hundred and four feet and twenty hundredths of a foot to the line of the city of Plainfield in Terrill road, and in those portions of said streets, roads and alleys marked out and shown on map filed in the office of the city clerk of said city, entitled "Map showing location of tracks, turnouts and poles for proposed extension of Plainfield Street Railway, No. 3," and signed by Thomas A. Nevins, dated August 8, 1898, to which reference is made and the same hereby made a part of this ordinance, and the said company is hereby given the right to construct, maintain and operate its extension to its street railway in said portions of said streets, roads and alleys, under and subject to certain restrictions and regulations hereinafter specified or referred to, the same being such restrictions and regulations as the Common Council hereby deem requisite for the public interests as well as subject to such further reasonable regulations as may be hereafter enacted by said Council. All rights and privileges under this ordinance conferred upon said Company shall cease and expire on the first day of January, A. D., 1998, and thereupon on demand, said A. D., 1998, and thereupon on demand, said company will forthwith remove all of its said tracks from the streets, lanes and alleys of said city. A detailed plan of construction shall be filed with the city clerk by said company and be approved by said Common Council before any work is done on the permission herein granted.

This ordinance is furthermore passed upon the express condition that if at any time hereafter the said city or its Common Council shall locate the tracks of any other street railway company or grant consent to the location of the tracks of any other street railway company over that portion of Richmond street lying between the southerly line of North avenue and the northerly line of East Third street, such other street railway company shall have the right to use the tracks and poles of said Plainfield Street Railway Company that may be laid or erected on said portion of Richmond street in common with said Plainfield Street Railway Company upon terms to be agreed upon between such other company and said Plainfield Street Railway Company, or in case said two companies shall fail for the space of thirty days next after demand made upon them by such other company to agree upon the terms, then upon terms to be established and determined by the Common Council of said city of Plainfield.

Section 2. That said company shall construct, maintain and operate a single track railway for said extension, to be laid upon the middle line of Richmond street and East Second street to the present terminus of East Second street; thence along a right of way, through private property, to the line of the city of Plainfield in Terrill road, it shall construct, operate and maintain a double track street railway and shall construct the tracks, switches, turnouts and poles in the manner and at the point and places indicated for the same on said map; the poles shall be constructed and set and the wires strung thereon in the same manner as the poles are constructed and set in the ground and wires strung on poles on the line of street railway now operated in the city of Plainfield by the said Plainfield Street Railway Company.

Section 3. That said company shall keep in repair to the satisfaction of the committee on streets the paving or other surface material of the portion of streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks and in addition shall also keep in repair eighteen inches on each side of the portion of said streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks. In case of double track or switches or turnouts, the expression "occupied by its tracks," shall be construed to mean all space in the street between the outermost rails. In case the city shall at any time determine to pave or repave any street or section of street the said company shall forthwith repave any portion of said street or section of street which may be occupied by the company's track and for eighteen inches beyond, with same material and in same manner, and shall do so at the company's expense under the supervision of the street commissioner. If said company shall at any time fail to comply with any of the requirements of this section, the work or repairs hereinabove specified may be done or made by or under the direction of the said committee on streets, and to their satisfaction, and the expense thereof shall on demand be paid by said company to said city; provided that the said committee on streets or a majority of them shall give at least ten days notice in writing of the intention to do such work or make such repairs, said notice to be served upon any officer or employe of said company who may be found at their office or depot.

Section 4. The said company and its officers, servants, agents or employes shall not, nor shall any or either of them be allowed to shovel, throw or place any snow, ice or slush along the side of said track or tracks in any street or street's in such manner as to obstruct other public travel therein; but, when moving said snow, ice or slush from said track or tracks the said company or its officers, servants, agents or employes shall cause the same to be immediately leveled between the said track or tracks and the gutter line on each side thereof unless the fall of snow shall have been too heavy to make it practical to level the same as aforesaid; in which latter case the said company shall promptly remove all such excess of snow. Upon violation of any of the provisions of this section, there shall be incurred a penalty of Ten Dollars for every city block in which any such violation shall take place, but said penalty shall not aggregate more than One Hundred Dollars in any one day or on any one conviction; said penalty to be paid to the city by the said company or by any of its said officers, agents or employes so offending for each and every offence.

Section 5. That the rights and privileges intended to be given by this ordinance to said company are subject to all limitations, provisions, terms and conditions set forth and contained in sections 3, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 13, 14, 16, 17 and 18 of the ordinance of the city entitled "An ordinance locating the tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway Company and regulating the construction and operation of the same and granting permission to said company to use electric motors as the propelling power of its cars" approved April twenty-seventh, 1891, to the same extent and with the same effect as if said sections were re-enacted in full as part of this ordinance.

Section 6. That the gauge of the tracks to be laid hereunder shall be four feet eight and one-half inches. That all the cars of the said company shall be similar to those now in use by it or such as shall be approved by the Common Council of said city. They shall be lighted by electricity and properly heated in winter. Said company shall use upon its cars the Climax or other noiseless gearing and equip said cars with proper bells or gongs and said cars shall be run at a speed of not more than ten miles an hour. No salt shall be used by said company on any part of its tracks. For violation of any of the conditions of this section there shall be incurred a penalty of ten dollars for each offence and ten dollars additional for every day that such violation shall continue, not exceeding one hundred dollars on any one conviction.

Section 7. The cars to be operated or run upon the extension of the railway of the Plainfield Street Railway Company hereby authorized to be constructed shall be equipped with fenders of the pattern approved by the mayor of the city, and so attached to the cars as best to protect persons and vehicles using the streets and persons riding on the cars from injury.

Section 8. The said company shall build or construct the extension hereby authorized with turnouts and switches in the manner aforesaid and put the same into complete operation for the transportation of passengers on or before July 1st, A.D. 1899, and upon failure so to do or upon failure or neglect to operate the same as aforesaid all the rights, powers and privileges and every one of them the said company, their successors and assigns, under and by virtue of this supplemental ordinance shall thereupon cease and determine and this ordinance shall be null and void so far as the grant of any such rights, power and privileges to said company is concerned and in either of such cases the Common Council expressly reserve the right to cause the said railroad or any part or parts thereof, so constructed, to be removed from said street or streets or any of them and to sell and dispose of the material thereof by public auction, and, after paying all the expenses of such removal and sale and of repairing the said street or streets and restoring the same, as nearly as possible to its or their original condition, to pay the balance of the proceeds of such sale to the said company or its successors or assigns, provided, that no notice of such sale shall be required to be given, other than an advertisement signed by the city clerk, and published in any one or more newspapers printed and published in said city.

The time during which the said company shall be delayed in the prosecution of its work or in the operation of its road or in any section thereof by injunction or other legal proceedings in the courts of New Jersey, or the Federal Courts shall not be included within the period within which the said extension is to be constructed and put into complete operation.

Section 9. All tracks of the Street Railway Company now laid or hereafter to be laid, are to be copiously watered throughout their entire length and for the space of two feet on each side thereof, twice in each day, from the 15th day of May to the 1st day of October in each year; once before 11 A. M., and once after 2 P. M., and in case of the failure of the Street Railway Company so to do, to the satisfaction of the Street Commissioner or the Common Council, said Company shall pay to the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield the sum of $20.00 per day for each and every day such failure shall continue or exist; such payment to be considered as liquidated damages for such default.

Section 10. The said Company shall for fifty years beginning January first, 1899, as compensation for the rights granted under this ordinance, pay the Collector of other receiving officer of the City of Plainfield, for the use of the said City, a sum equal to five per cent of the gross earnings of the Company on the tracks hereby authorized to be laid, and for the succeeding twenty-five years shall pay to the Collector or other receiving officer of said City, for the use of said City, a sum not to exceed seven and one-half per cent. and not less than five per cent. of the gross earnings of the Company upon the tracks; and during the next twenty-fours years a sum not greater than ten or less than five per cent. of the gross earnings upon said tracks.

The percentages to be paid as aforesaid for either or both of said last periods of twenty-five and twenty-four years respectively, if not mutually agreed upon between the said City and the said Company within sixty days respectively after the beginning of said respective periods shall be fixed within the limits of the percentages as above specified by three arbitrators, one to be appointed by the City, one by the said Company and the third by the Circuit Court of the County of Union on five days notice, and if for either or both of said periods last referred to said Company shall fail to agree with the City upon the percentage or percentages, and also fail to appoint its arbitrator, and notify the City in writing of said appointment within five days after notice to appoint such arbitrator, then the percentage or percentages to be paid by said Company annually for such period or periods respectively, shall be the maximum percentage for such period or periods above specified.

The gross earnings shall be construed to be all the earnings of the Company upon said tracks hereby authorized to be laid, including the full proportion of the earnings on traffic within the City of Plainfield and other traffic to be computed according to the proportion between the length of the journey and the number of miles traveled upon the tracks hereby authorized to be laid, provided that the annual gross earnings of the said company upon said tracks hereby authorized to be laid, shall, for the purpose of entitling the city to said percentage, and fixing the minimum sum on which said percentage shall be paid, be deemed and taken to be not less than such sums as would be produced by adding to all fares of five cents each or less than five cents each, paid during the year upon said portion of said tracks, two and one-half cents each for all other passengers carried upon said tracks or any portion thereof, above the age of ten years, and one and one-half cents each for all other passengers between the age of four and ten years carried over any portion of the tracks hereby authorized to be laid during the year. And to enable such calculation to be readily made the said company, its successors or assigns, will at all times cause separate returns to be made and properly tabulated in its books showing the number of passengers carried and the fares paid upon the line of tracks hereby authorized to be laid or any portion thereof, and the number of passenger carried on any part of said tracks who paid more than five cent fares per passenger, or who paid fares beyond the line of tracks hereby authorized, and also showing the number of passengers carried upon any portion of any of the tracks of said company located within the territory of the city of Plainfield or the Borough of North Plainfield, and the fares paid by them, whether such fares were paid within or without such territory, and a further table showing the proportion of earnings referred to in the first part of this paragraph; and annually between the first day of January and the fifteenth day of January in each year the said Company, its successors and assigns, will file with the City Clerk of said City a complete and detailed statement, signed by its President or Vice-President and its Treasurer, showing in fact what were the gross earnings for the year ending the first day of said month upon said tracks, and a table similarly signed showing in detail the total minimum account of gross earnings as they would be calculated according to the terms of this section, and similar statement showing gross earnings upon all the tracks of said Company within the City of Plainfield or the Borough of North Plainfield, either and both.

That to enable the City to ascertain from time to time the amount of gross earnings of such Company, or to ascertain any facts required to be entered as aforesaid, the books of the Company shall from time to time when required, be opened in Plainfield to inspection by the Finance Committee of the Common Council or such other person or persons as the Common Council for that purpose shall designate.

The payment provided for in this section shall, as to the line of tracks hereby authorized, be in lieu of all license fees for cars, whether provided for in prior ordinances or not, but the moneys to be paid by said Company to the City, as to all tracks heretofore authorized, shall be determined according to prior ordinances, except that in determining the amounts payable to the City under such prior ordinances, there shall be added to gross receipts on the other tracks the gross receipts on the line of tracks hereby authorized, and when the total in any one year shall equal or exceed Eighty Thousand Dollars for the entire system within the City of Plainfield and the Borough of North Plainfield, including gross earnings on tracks hereby authorized, then for that year and annually thereafter, there shall be paid as aforesaid to the Collector of said City, for the use of said City, five per cent of the gross earnings on tracks heretofore authorized, and on gross earnings on tracks hereby authorized, the percentage hereinabove specified for the same—the intent hereof being that as to the tracks authorized by this ordinance, compensation on the percentage basis above particularly set forth shall be chargeable from the beginning; and as to the tracks authorized by prior ordinances, compensation to the City shall be paid as at present until the total gross receipts of said Company on all its tracks within the territory of said City and Borough, including tracks authorized by this ordinance, shall equal or exceed Eighty Thousand Dollars, and after that, percentage shall be chargeable on all gross receipts as hereinabove particularly specified.

Section 11. That the tracks and cars of said company shall be used for the carrying of passengers only; that no freight shall be carried by said company or over its tracks and that no luggage other than hand luggage actually carried by passengers shall be carried or allowed upon the cars of said company, or any other cars passing over said tracks. Nothing herein contained, however, shall prevent the company from carrying the U. S. Mail. That cars shall not be run in trains of more than two cars over any of the tracks of said company and that all cars shall stop upon being signalled by any foot passenger at any street corner past which said tracks are or shall be laid and passengers shall be freely allowed to board said cars or alight therefrom at any street corner, and said company shall cause the cars to come to a full stop and sound the gong or bell immediately before turning any curve or crossing such street or streets as may be designated by the Common Council on road now constructed or to be constructed. Any violation of any of the provisions of this section by said company or any of its employes shall be subject to a penalty of Twenty dollars fine for each and every offence.

Section 12. That all the duties or obligations imposed upon said Plainfield Street Railway Company by this ordinance or the contract hereinafter referred to shall be binding and obligatory upon said Company, its successors and assigns, and in case the said company shall lease its tracks or any section of the same, or sell, or assign its franchises, or attempt so to do, said company shall cause to be inserted in any such lease, deed, bill of sale, assignment or other transfer a stipulation and agreement and condition that the same is made subject to the provisions of this ordinance, and the contract herein referred to, and that the lessee, vendee, assignee or other person to whom such loss, conveyance, assignment or transfer may be made or attempted to be made in accepting the same agrees to be bound thereby and to conform thereto, and will in turn insert a clause similar to that required by this section in case of any lease, conveyance, assignment or transfer thereof to be made, so that no persons, or corporations, shall acquire any rights in the promises except subject to the same terms and conditions herein and in said contract provided.

Sec. 13. That the said Company upon the final adoption of this ordinance and before exercising any of the rights or privileges granted hereby shall as a condition precedent execute on its part (after properly filling blanks for dates) and file with the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield a contract between said Company and Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, in the words and figures contained in the draft of said contract filed with the City Clerk December 12, 1898, and endorsed 'Contract between Plainfield Street Railway Company and Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, referred to in Street Railway ordinance introduced December 12, 1898," and said contract shall thereupon be duly executed on behalf of the City by the Mayor and City Clerk and impressed with the corporate seal of said City.

Sec. 14. That said company shall also at the same time hereinabove specified for filing said contract file a bond to the city in the sum of twenty thousand dollars to be approved as to form by the Common Council and Corporation Counsel of said city, conditioned for the full and faithful keeping, observance and performance of the terms and conditions of this ordinance contained and also the terms and conditions contained in the contract referred to in the last preceding section on the part of this company to be kept, observed and performed. And in case the condition of terms upon which said company is granted permission to locate its tracks and maintain and operate its road or any of the terms or conditions of the said contract are violated, the city reserves the right to revoke the permission herein granted, to remove the tracks of the said company and all the constructions made in the streets of the city by said company, its successors or assigns.

Section 15. The said Company shall within thirty days after the passage of this ordinance, file with the City Clerk its acceptance of said ordinance and of the contract herein before referred to, including all the agreements, terms, provisions, restrictions and regulations, and every one thereof in said ordinance or contract contained, which said acceptance shall be under the corporate seal of said Company and shall be signed by the President of said Company; and in default of the filing of such acceptance within the time limited aforesaid, it shall be understood and held that said Company declines to accept the same, and thereupon all rights, powers, and privileges to them granted thereby shall forever cease and be at an end in the same manner and with the same effect as if this ordinance had never been passed.

OLD NEGRO WANTED A NIGHT'S LODGING.

Took Possession of Chas. Johnson's Kitchen.

COULDN'T PUT HIM OUT.

HE FIRST VISITED WILL DEMLER'S STORE AT WASHINGTONVILLE.

The Old Maker of Baskets Had Partaken Too Freely—Wanted a Warm Place to Sleep—Gained Access to Johnson's Kitchen—Thrown Out by the Neighbors in the Morning.

When the youth of Washingtonville venture out at night now they go armed. It is all the result of a visitation by an old colored man last Thursday evening. He thought he owned the village for the evening. The result is that every suspicious looking bush is carefully scanned and dark places on the roads are frequented as seldom as possible.

For several months there has been an old negro of middle age who has visited Washingtonville at times trying to sell wicker baskets that he made himself. He met with fair success and seemed quite inoffensive.

Last Thursday evening the old negro partook too freely of the far famed "Jersey" lightning. He wandered into Demler's store and was put out by the proprietor. Then he went around to the back door of Mr. Demler's house and had lain down before the fire when he was discovered and forcibly ejected.

Armed with a lighted lantern and one heavy fur glove, that came from nobody knows where, the aged colored wanderer took the road to Martinsville, stopping at every farm house to demand shelter for the night. He caused a fright in several households but was turned away.

At the home of Charles Johnson only Mrs. Johnson and her young son were at home. They were sitting in the front room. The negro found the back door unlocked, walked in and made himself at home before the kitchen stove. There Mrs. Johnson found him later snoring soundly. All the efforts of her and her son to arouse him were unavailing and they were compelled to leave the negro there for the night. They took his lantern and glove and threw them outdoors. Then they awaited his awakening with fear and trembling.

In the morning the colored wanderer awoke and demanded his lantern and glove. At length he grew abusive and Mrs. Johnson summoned the neighbors. The old man was unceremoniously turned out and disappeared down the road. No signs have been seen of him about Washingtonville, although everybody was on the lookout.

ALERTS TO DISBAND.

Their Famous Silver Carriage to go to the Exempts.

It is the intention of the members of Alert Hose Company to disband at an early date and turn their silver hose carriage over to the Exempt Firemen's Association. They will probably sell their horses and the carriage to the city. This association of firemen has been one of the most aggressive in the history of Plainfield, and their work has been of the faithful and hard kind. For sometime past the company has been talking of disbanding, and it is believed that such action will be taken at no far distant day.

Leak in Sewer Pipes Repaired.

Street Commissioner Gavett's men have ceased digging up the sewer trenches on Richmond street, during the cold snap, looking for leaks in the sewer pipes, but will resume the work as soon as a warm spell comes. So far the men have found no cracks in the pipes but a few little openings in the mortar have allowed a little of the sewerage to escape. The leaks have been repaired as soon as they were discovered.

WOULD IMPRISON WIFE.

AT TWENTY-FOUR SHE IS A CONFIRMED DRUNKARD.

Husband Wanted Her Committed to Jail—Judge Stillman Advised She Be Taking to Some Private Institution.

There was no City Court this morning. That was owing to the fact that City Judge Stillman is a humane as well as a just judge. A man appeared before the Judge this morning and wished to make some arrangement whereby his wife might be committed to the county jail.

This man is a skilled machinist living in the western part of the city. He draws large wages and has a comfortable little home. His wife, who is twenty-four years of age, and three small children compose his family. The reason for his apparent inhuman wish to send his wife to jail is a sorrowful one. The woman, though bright and pretty, is a confirmed victim of intemperance. Despite the husband's best efforts, the wife still remains a habitual drunkard.

Wishing to place her beyond the reach of drink and remove such an awful example from the sight of his young children, the husband thought of the county jail as the only remedy.

Judge Stillman refused to entertain any complaint in the case. Instead he advised the husband to place his wife in some proper institution of which there are many in the country. To send her to jail, he said, would ruin her morally. The man finally decided to take the Judge's advice.

AN ENJOYABLE EVENING.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. VanDyke Entertain Their Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. VanDyke, of East Front street, provided a pleasant time for a number of their friends at their home last evening. The occasion was partly in honor of the celebration of Mr. VanDyke's birthday, which occurred Saturday last, and partly from a desire to entertain a few of their friends in an informal manner. The home was beautified through an arrangement of evergreen and choice flowers, while a pleasing effect was obtained in the use of banquet lamps that were placed in the parlor, reception and dining rooms. The prevailing color was green.

The host and hostess received their guests in a hospitable manner. The absence of formality was a feature. During the evening the guests were entertained with vocal and instrumental music. A piano duet by Miss Mary VanEps and Lawyer Robert M. Clark was a feature of the evening. The performers were showered with congratulations and were compelled to respond to the hearty encore received.

Other pleasing features were the vocal solos by Miss Etta Krymer and Robert M. Clark, and the piano solos by Arthur Titsworth, all of which received cordial applause.

After the rendition of the informal programme, the guests were served with refreshments by the host and hostess. It was late when the guests departed, but they all expressed their kind wishes to Mr. and Mrs. VanDyke for the enjoyable evening given them.

Intoxicated Woman.

Yesterday afternoon a well dressed woman, who name cannot be learned, was found on East Front street in an intoxicated condition. It was at first thought that she had slipped on the ice and thus caused her fall, but after she was assisted into a nearby house and examined, it was learned that she had been drinking. The people in whose house she was taken did all they could to make the woman appear respectable, and they then started her on her journey. She soon disappeared from sight. No one seemed to know the woman was.

IN WHICH COUNTY WAS DROBNEY KILLED?

Judge Collins Charged Middlesex Grand Jury in Case.

BOTH COUNTIES TO INDICT.

THE CRIME WAS COMMITTED CLOSE TO THE COUNTY LINE.

All Now Hinges on the True Boundary Line—Stream Changed Its Course—Does Line Change With It?—Trial Will Probably Take Place in Middlesex—Streeter and Spencer Accused.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, December 14—The principal feature of importance in the opening of the Middlesex county court here yesterday was the charging of the Grand Jury in the Drobney murder case. Warren Streeter and Joseph Spencer, of Somerville, stand accused of the capital crime. The fact that nobody is exactly sure as to the county in which the crime was committed, makes the case one of unusual interest.

Judge Collins presided at court and one of his important duties was to charge the Grand Jury in the case. There were other cases of less importance.

The murdered man was stabbed in the neck in a quarrel that was the culmination of a row in a saloon on the outskirts of Bound Brook, but in Middlesex county, near the county line. The fatal quarrel was at the end of a bridge spanning a brook that is accepted as the county line dividing Middlesex and Somerset. The trail of blood showed that the stab had been given in Middlesex county, but that Drobeny had staggered across the bridge and several hundred feet further on, in Somerset county, before he fell. His body was found there the next day.

About 10 years after the passage of the act fixing the boundary line at the brook a railroad was built, the brook changed its course to the present one and the question was presented whether the old or the new course should be the real boundary. The question gave existence to a strip lying between the old and new courses of the brook. It was within this strip that the wound was inflicted and the man died.

As a solution of the problems the authorities of the two counties have decided to indict the men in both counties. Upon the indictments thus found the accused men will be tried, the place of trial being selected by the Circuit Judges of the counties, Justice Magie, of Somerset, and Justice Collins, of Middlesex. It is probable that the trial will take place in Middlesex.

DR. CARROLL IN GOOD COMPANY.

Will Sail to Porto Rico With Six Girls Filled With Love.

Dr. Carroll, of the borough, commissioner to Porto Rico, will sail for the latter place December 21st on the steamer Obdam. On the same steamer there will be a party of six young women from the south who, under the care of a chaperone, will go to Porto Rico to see their sweethearts, whom they have not seen since the war began. The chaperone, a wealthy woman, pays all expense of the trip, and the understanding is that not one of the young women are to get married while away. They propose to eat their Christmas dinner in company with their intended husbands.

Attractions at Church Bazaar.

Among the attractions at the bazaar to be held at Grace M. E. church tomorrow and Friday evenings will be Mrs. George Saums, violin solos; John H. Carney, in original German dialect; Edson C. Martin, tenor solos; City Judge Wm. N. Runyon, in comic vocal selections, and Miss Elizabeth May Loveland, of Elizabeth, a talented and charming elocutionist, will entertain with a number of selections.

More Dangerous Than Football.

Raymond A. McGee, of Orchard avenue, Washington Park, met with a peculiar accident several days ago. He is now a student at Yale University. He was standing on a mantelpiece in his room at college hanging a flag when the mantel suddenly gave way. He cut a deep gash in his nose and another in his forehead, which necessitated several stitches being taken in the wounds.

THE SHOPPERS' DELIGHT.

WHAT CAN BE SEEN IN A TOUR THROUGH LOCAL STORES.

A Wealth of Everything That Will Make Suitable Christmas Gifts—Goods Shown at White's, VanEmburgh's and Lederer's.

As the holiday season draws near the stores grow livelier, and just now there is a what and a where on every tongue. It is "what shall I buy," and "where shall I get it?"

A quick solution of the problem is to be found at the store of Edward White. Every department, floor and counter seems to try to outdo the other, and the display is worthy of hours of special study. The stock shows a year's work of search, care and hard thought to get together such a collection of toys, fancy novelties in sterling, hand-painted goods, pictures, bric-a-brac, leather goods, perfumery, and a thousand and one other items that can't be mentioned.

The toy department is worthy of special mention as the entire line has been imported directly from the manufacturers, and this accounts for the low prices for which they are selling. The collection of bric-a-brac is very fine. Then there are pictures, photograph albums, handerchiefs, men's furnishings, with its assortment of mufflers, ties, hosiery, gloves, shirts and bath robes.

On the second floor is an assortment of furs, jackets, capes and dressing sacques, all of which make useful presents. On the third floor are the rugs, lace curtains and carpets. On the second floor you will find the reception room and reading room, with a woman in attendance to look after the children while you are busy with your shopping. In all it is as complete as a store can be, and with the seventy-five clerks and saleswomen in attendance you are sure of quick and polite service.

VanEmburg & Son claim to carry a different stock of goods from any other similiar merchant in the city. Their goods are all new and are not only as neat as can be got, but the prices are lower than the lowest. This firm lay particular stress on the quality of their goods, giving as much as consistent for the money.

A look at their show window induces one to step inside, and to look around at the display. On the first floor the line of fancy goods, gentlemen's furnishings, dress goods, are all here. Some of their fancy goods are worthy of mention. There are collar and cuff boxes, kodac picture frames, pretty celluloid boxes and cases, toilet sets, dressing cases, and in fact everything to please shoppers. Down stairs the toy department is complete, and is in charge of competent clerks. No one can mistake the place, for the American flag waves over the store.

Lederer's store is compact as possible. The moment one enters he is struck with the holiday appearance on all sides. Heavy arches of evergreen are suspended from wall to wall, and Japanese lanterns, covering the electric lights, make a soft light when they are lighted.

Lederer's specialty is fancy goods of all descriptions, and he has a fine stock on hand. Hand painted goods predominate, and these are in glass ware, on celluloid and on wood. Another special line is their handkerchiefs, both ladies' and gentlemen's Everything is up to date in style, and the prices are right. Another line of goods that attracts considerable attention is the sterling siver novelties, a great many of which are being used this year for Christmas gifts, and which may be seen here in endless array.

Downstairs are the toys. A great stock of wagons and sleds has been laid in, and these are selling fast. All the merchants have laid in a complete stock of holiday goods this year in anticipation of a large trade, and they are realizing their expectations. Every day brings an increase in business, and next week, the busy week, promises to be the busiest time among the storekeepers that has come in several years.

Dr. Gunsaulus' Lecture.

One of the leaders on the lecture platform of the country, Dr. Gunsaulus, of Chicago, will deliver a lecture in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue church tomorrow evening. His subject will be "Savonarola." Dr. Gunsaulus has been frequently mentioned as a fit successor to Henry Ward Beecher and Dr. Lyman Abbott at the Plymouth church, Brooklyn.

Mr. Brown's Flattering Offer.

Charles B. Brown, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A. of Jersey City, who was in Plainfield yesterday, stated that he had received a very flattering call to the Y. M. C. A. work at St. Louis. He has this week to make up his mind in the matter. The officers of the Jersey City Association are very anxious to have Mr. Brown remain with them.

JOHN KEAN AIMS TO PREVENT SURPRISES.

Republican Assemblymen Will Caucus Tomorow.

MAY VOTE ON SENATORSHIP.

IN DOING THIS OPPOSITION TO KEAN WOULD BE STIFLED.

Disquieting Rumors Have Been Floating Around to the Effect That Influential Men Might Try to Euchre the Union County Man Out of the Senatorial Prize—Watkins for Speaker.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Dec. 14.—In view of the fact that the Republican members of the Assembly will hold a caucus tomorrow, few politicians were at the State House yesterday. Those who were on hand discussed the project of the early caucus with a great deal of interest, because it has been the custom of legislative majorities to defer their caucuses until the evening before the organization. The reason given for the earlier gathering is that it will prevent much of the confusion and annoyance of that famous "night before."

It is claimed that the members are for weeks harassed by the seekers for the offices within the gift of the lawmakers, and that these places might just as well be agreed upon at an early conference as to wait until the night before organization. It is also claimed that the early caucus will settle the speakership, so that officer may have his committees all arranged on the first day of the session, and this will expedite business.

No shadow of a doubt is expressed as to the re-election of Acting Governor Watkins to the speakership for another term, and it is probable that he will have arranged his committees in time to proceed with business immediately after the organization of the Assembly.

These are some of the reasons given out for the unusual gathering of Assemblymen. On the quiet, however, it is whispered that a test vote will be taken on the United States Senatorship because of a fear in some quarters that delays are dangerous to the interests of John Kean, the heir-apparent to the Senatorship. Recently there have been disquieting rumors afloat to the effect that influential men were opposed to the election of Mr. Kean. These rumors could be traced to the authority of no State leader and Mr. Kean's lieutenants say there is nothing in them, because his will be the only Republican name before the party caucus, and he will be the party's unanimous choice. Still, there would seem to be some more powerful reason than the mere placing of the office-seekers and the arrangement of committees for the early caucus.

PLEASANTLY SURPRISED.

Miss Schierenbeck's Friends Came in Unexpected to Her.

Miss Evelyn Schierenbeck, of Terrill road, was tendered a pleasant surprise party at her home last evening. The affair was arranged by Miss Annie Manning and George Terry, of Fanwood. At an early hour the guests assembled at the home of Mrs. Ritchie, and, accompanied by her, they proceeded to the home of Miss Schierenbeck. The young woman was not expecting company, when about thirty-five of her friends walked into her home. Everyone joined heartily in the celebration and an evening of dancing and games were enjoyed, and at midnight refreshments were served. It was early this morning when the guests departed, but they promised to call again.

Musically Entertained.

Fred and Stewart Pope, of West Fifth street, entertained a few friends in a musical way at their home last evening. The singing of Frank Cokefair and the banjo selections of Fletcher Hallock were particularly pleasing. The others present were Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Doane, Miss Edith Randolph, Joseph Sattells, Martin Korff, Thad. Doane, Jr., Hervey Doane, Dyckman Wickler and Mr. Hyman.

To Talk of Silk Mill.

There will be a special meeting of the Board of Trade tomorrow evening when a report will be made concerning the trip of a committee to Paterson to investigate into the advisability of organizing a silk mill company in this city. A full attendance of every member is desired.

—The anniversary of Monroe Avenue church will be celebrated January first.

—The hot coffee served at Armstrong's soda fountain, made fresh while you wait, is a delicious drink.

A DANGEROUS RUNAWAY

HAND'S EXPRESS TEAM RAN IN A WILD MANNER.

Were Standing in Front of the North Avenue Station When They Started—A Wonder That Someone Wasn't Hurt.

Persons who happened to be in the business centre of the city at about noon today witnessed a decidedly exciting runaway of the heavy draught horses used on one of Hand & Son's carting trucks. The team was standing in front of the North Avenue station while the truck was being loaded with trunks belonging to the "What Happened to Jones" Company.

In some way the team became frightened and started down the avenue toward Park avenue. By the time the latter thoroughfare was reached the horses were traveling at a high rate of speed. The swing around the corner made people standing near hold their breath. At the corner a trunk went off, and on Park avenue, between Second and Front streets, several other trunks left the flying procession.

At the corner of Front street and Park avenue, the team made such a wide turn that it could not escape a collision with the trolley pole in front of Shaw's drug store. The force of the collision snapped the pole at the base, but fortunately the horses were not injured. One of the team lost nearly all of his harness, but aside from the fact that the horses were well-winded they escaped injury. The heavy truck stood the racket well and was none the worse for the run.

When the team collided with the pole they were taken in charge and held until the owner arrived. The possibility of the team colliding with a trolley car brought feelings of horror to people in the vicinity of the accident, for such an accident would have resulted most disastrously.

PRINCETON CLUB TO DINE.

Annual Affair to be Held at Elizabeth This Year.

The annual dinner of the Princeton Club of Union county will be given at the Elizabeth Town and Country Club tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock. Chief Justice Wm. J. Magie, president of the club, will preside and act as toastmaster. Among the speakers who have promised to be present are: Rev. Francis L. Patton, president of Princeton University; Rev. Wilton Merle Smith, D. D., representing the Princeton Club of New York; S. St. John McCutchen, of Plainfield, Yale; Benjamin H. Campbell, Columbia; Robert S. Green, the Elizabeth alumni, and Edward J. Patterson, the Plainfield alumni.

This will be the first dinner of the club attended by Dr. Patton, the president of the university, and an unusually large gathering of the Princeton men of the county is expected to give him welcome. Last year the dinner was held at the Casino, this city.

DR. BONDY AGAIN ARRESTED.

This Time Accused of Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Bayonne, Dec. 14—Dr. Sigmund E. Bondy, the Bayonne physician who was recently accussed by Jersey City, Bayonne and Plainfield tradesmen with having victimized them with alleged forged checks, and who is under indictment by the Hudson County Grand Jury, is again under arrest.

The new complainant against Dr. Bondy is George Cadmus, of Bayonne, who charges Bondy with having obtained money from him under false pretenses. He asserts that several months ago he loaned the physician $450, taking as security a chattel mortgage on the property in the physician's residence and office. He avers that he found subsequently that a mortgage existed.

Bondy was arraigned yesterday in the police court before Acting Recorder Lazarus. He waived examination and was held in $500 bail.

FAST IN THE GRASP OF THE COLD WAVE.

Mercury Falls to Lowest Point Yet Recorded This Year.

7 DEGRESS ABOVE ZERO.

SKATING IS NOW FINE ON ALL THE NEIGNBORING PONDS.

Cold Wave Came After Monday Night's Snow Storm—Thermometer Was 17 Degrees Yesterday Morning—Last Night Was Clear and Still—Mercury Fell to 12 Degrees at 10 o'Clock.

As the substantial Plainfielder sat in his cosy breakfast room this morning, his smoking coffee before him and the morning newspaper in his hand, he didn't realize that it was the coldest morning of the season. The little boy, who brought the morning paper, realized the fact, however. It was cold, bitterly cold, when he bid a sorrowful adieu to the warmth of his couch and ventured townward after his papers. A faint glow in the east told that the sun was gradually approaching the horizon.

The thermometer smiled a chilly smile at the lad and softly murmured, "Seven degrees above zero." The lad shivered as he heard it and then brightened up at the thought of the skating.

It was the coldest morning of the season as far as the mercury was concerned but the clear still air made it far easier to endure than the biting north wind of the recent blizzard.

Yesterday held the record for low temperature until today's mark was recorded. The weather observers told of a cold wave that was to follow the snow and, sure enough, it came. It was 17 degrees above zero yesterday morning with a slight wind that made it seem more penetrating. Last night the wind died out, and there was a chill in the air that presaged a still lower fall of temperature.

At 10 o'clock last evening, the thermometer had fallen to 12 degrees above zero. There was not a cloud to be seen and the stars shone with unusual brilliancy. Those who ventured out without protection for their ears found those useful organs numb and red. It was the kind of cold that freezes without warning.

This morning, at 6 o'clock, the thermometer registered 7 degrees above zero, and it may have fallen even below that in the hours just preceding daylight when the cold is always most intense.

The small boy is rejoicing over the real cold weather, for the skating today is excellent. The slight snowfall of Monday night has affected it but little. The snow was so light that it was easy to sweep off and, even where that was not done, the skating was interfered with but little by the snow.

A CHINESE WEDDING.

Novel Feature to be Seen at a Church Bazaar Tonight.

A bazaar and fair opened in the Fillmore Baptist church on Sycamore street last night and will be continued all the rest of the week except Saturday night. The bazaar is held in the main room, which is fitted out in fancy style with booths of every description.

A programme of recitations and music is presented each night, and tonight there will be a Chinese wedding, at which Miss Etta Morris will represent the bride and Howard Lowry the groom. The couple will be dressed in Chinese costume.

Those who are at the different tables are Mrs. Elliot Randolph and Mrs. Clara White at the candy table; Mrs. Wyckoff and Mrs. J. W. Bushrod, cake table; Mrs. Ella Johnson and Misses Ida Bond and Julia Howard, mystery table; Miss Mary Swan, Miss Alice Huffler and Miss Mary Fluney, fruit; Mrs. Lawrence and Miss Jennie DeVar, fishing pond; postoffice, Miss Ella Randolph and Miss Ella Vail; Rebecca at the well, Miss Ella Wood and Miss Etta Webster.

False Alarm of Fire.

A few scattering blows on the fire gong this morning about 11:50 o'clock made everyone think for a moment that there was a fire. It proved to be nothing but a break, caused by some of the Telephone Company's men working among the wires on Liberty street.

Suing an Executor.

Justice Mosher has issued summons in the contract case of Beekman against Frederick Yates, executors of the last will and testament of James H. Kenyon, deceased. The summons is returnable December 19th.

Michael Powers, of South avenue, is detained at home by illness.

Miss Anna Flaag, of Hasbrouch Heights, is visiting friends in Plainfield.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

A POPULAR MISTAKE

Regarding Remedies for Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

The National disease of Americans is indigestion or in its chronic form, dyspepsia, and for the very reason that it is so common many people neglect taking proper treatment for what they consider trifling stomach trouble, when as a matter of fact, indigestion lays the foundation for many incurable diseases. No person with a vigorous, healthy stomach will fall a victim to consumption. Many kidney diseases and heart troubles date their beginning from poor digestion; thin, nervous people are really so because their stomachs are out of gear; weary, languid faded out women owe their condition to imperfect digestion.

When nearly every person you meet is afflicted with weak digestion it is not surprising that nearly every secret patent medicine on the market claims to be a cure for dyspepsia, as well as a score of other troubles, when in fact, as Dr. Worthier says, there is but one genuine dyspepsia cure which is perfectly safe and reliable, and moreover, this remedy is not a patent medicine, but is a scientific combination of pure pepsin (free from animal matter,) vegetable essences, fruit salts and bismuth. It is sold by druggists under name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. No extravagant claims are made for them, but for indigestion or any stomach trouble Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are far ahead of any remedy yet discovered. They act on the food eaten, no dieting is necessary, simply eat all the wholesome food you want and these tablets will digest it. A cure results, because all the stomach needs is a rest, which Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give by doing the work of digestion.

Druggists sell these tablets at 50c per package. Circulars and testimonials sent free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. 12 12 14-16

BLISS HAS RESIGNED

Secretary of the Interior Handed in His Resignation Last Week.

NOT OFFICIALLY GIVEN OUT

The Reasons for His Retirement Not Yet Made Public—It Will Have No Bearing Upon the Appointment of Mr. Choate—Mr. Bliss, Who Is Ill at His Home in New York, Will Make No Statement.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Secretary of the Interior Cornelius N. Bliss resigned his portfolio last week before he left Washington for New York. It is not clear whether the resignation has been accepted by the President or whether action is suspended pending the President's return from his Southern trip, when he will be able to choose a successor to Mr. Bliss.

Secretary Bliss was appointed by President McKinley, and has been a member of the Cabinet since McKinley's inauguration on March 4, 1897.

No one attributes Secretary Bliss's retirement from the Cabinet to any differences with the President or the other Cabinet officers, and it is believed to be due merely to personal reasons. No announcement of the resignation has yet been made officially.

Senator Thomas C. Platt, when informed that Secretary Bliss had decided to resign, said that it was all news to him and that he had no idea of the cause or who his successor would be.

The Senator added, in reply to a question, that, so far as he knew, Mr. Bliss' retirement would have no bearing upon the question of Mr. Choate's appointment as Ambassador to England.

Senator Platt said he knew of no possible reason why Secretary Bliss should resign except possibly on the plea of ill health.

At the Interior Department it was stated yesterday that nothing whatever was known of the matter there.

There is the highest authority for the statement, however, that the Secretary has already handed in his resignation.

Secretary Bliss often stated in the early days of the Administration, when reports were published of his intention to resign, that he would serve out his term, that he found the work of his bureau not nearly so hard as it had been reported, and, that having thoroughly systematized it he found his duties quite congenial.

The news of his resignation, therefore, comes as a great surprise to Washington.

New York, Dec. 14.—Mr. Bliss was ill at his home in this city yesterday. In response to a message asking about his reported resignation, he sent this reply:

"I have nothing to say. I have not been in Washington for several days, and cannot be responsible for any news that comes from there."

BEER TAX TO STAND.

No Possibility for a Repeal of the One Dollar Clause.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Members of Congress and officials declare that no matter how the revenue tax act may be amended, there is no possibility of a repeal of the clause which levies an increased tax of $1 per barrel on beer. The recent meeting in New York of representatives of the brewery industry, to induce Congress to repeal the section, will have little or no effect. For years the framers of revenue legislation have been anxious to increase the tax on beer, but both parties were frank to confess their fear of the political enmity of brewers and the voters which saloons control. The war, however, made it necessary to increase the revenue, and the desired opportunity to add to the tax on beer was presented and embraced by Congress.

The report of Secretary Gage made it plain that the beer tax would not be repealed. There will be a deficit of $112,000,000 at the end of the fiscal year, and Mr. Gage, while admitting that the present law includes some vexatious taxes, gives absolutely no hope that any source of revenue at present can be abandoned.

Meat for Cubans.

Chicago, Dec. 14.—Chicago packers will spend a large amount of money erecting immense cold storage plants in Santiago, Havana and Porto Rico for the reception and storage of fresh meat. Within a fortnight cold storage experts will be sent to West Indian cities to look over the ground, prepare plans and specifications for the erection of the proposed plants.

Those interested in the matter are P. D. Armour, G. F. Swift, Nelson Morris and Thomas J. Lipton. Mr. Swift already has a small cold storage plant at Santiago, which he built during the war and which was constructed from material sent from Chicago. A modern structure, which will accommodate 200 refrigerator cars of meat, will be built at Havana. This will be Mr. Swift's general supply house.

Battleship is Badly Injured.

New York, Dec. 14.—Constructor Bowles said last night that the keel of the Massachusetts had been found damaged in seventeen places between frames 16 and 78.

This means that the bottom of the battleship scraped the ledge for more than 200 feet, or about two-thirds its entire length. The divers, after making a careful examination, had made this report to the construction department.

The extent of the injury could not be learned, but it probably is sprung plates.

The Investigating Committee appointed by Admiral Bunce has the report of the divers, but none of the members will talk. The board is not taking any testimony, but will merely submit a preliminary report on the result of the examination of the ship's bottom. On this report will depend the appointment of a Board of Inquiry by Secretary Long.

Suicide in Brooklyn.

Brooklyn, Dec. 14.—Henry Walke, a well known business man of Norfolk, Va., was found dead in an areaway of the Adelphi Academy, at Lafayette avenue and St. James place, at about 8 o'clock yesterday morning. There were two bullet wounds in his temple, and a .38 calibre revolver, with two cartridges exploded, was clutched firmly in his right hand.

THE PRESIDENCY OF YALE.

Dr. Dwight's Refusal to Withdraw His Resignation—A $10,000 Gift.

New Haven, Dec. 14.—A special meeting of the Yale Corporation was held yesterday to act on President Dwight's resignation. At the end of the meeting a member of the corporation said that the president would not withdraw his resignation, and would retire at the end of the present college year. Complimentary resolutions were passed.

There is no candidate who can be singled out as a sure successor to President Dwight. Prof. George Trumbull Ladd, head of the Department of Philosophy, has been mentioned. Prof Ladd came to Yale fifteen years ago from a pulpit in Minneapolis. There is a Yale tradition that only a Congregational clergyman can be elected Yale's president. In this respect Prof. Ladd would make a typical head for the university. He is a deep theological student, but it is certain that the business men who are members of the Yale Corporation would prefer a younger man of the business type. Prof. George Burton Adams, of the History Department; Prof. Henry W. Farnham, of the Department of Sociology, and Prof. Edward S. Dana, of the Department of Natural Science are the leading candidates in the eyes of the younger alumni. Of these Prof. Dana has the advantage in his ancestry. He is the son of the late venerable James D. Dana.

PRESIDENT T. DWIGHT.

Another candidate who has been singled out by a great many of the alumni is Judge W. H. Taft, who is now Judge of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati.

JUDGE TAFT.

President Dwight, in speaking of his resignation, says: "I have no particular plans for the immediate future. Of course, I shall serve out the year, but beyond that I do not know what I shall do except to take a rest. Yes, I shall remain here in New Haven to make my home here as a quiet citizen, and I hope to die here." When asked if he would give any thought to reconsidering his resignation, as the corporation has requested, he replied: "I shall certainly give the kind request the consideration that courtesy and gratefulness dictates, but I think that I must abide by the expression I made in my letter."

John W. Hendrie, of South Beach, Conn., has made an additional gift of $10,000 to the new Yale Law School building fund.

Our Rule in Porto Rico.

San Juan de Porto Rico, Dec. 14.—The Insular Cabinet has decided to secure an efficient American superintendent for the Porto Rican schools. Gen. John Eaton, a well-known educator and formerly United States Commissioner of Education, has been selected and sent for.

Lieut. Davidson has been appointed Chief of the San Juan police and Superintendent of Street Cleaning.

Gen. Guy V. Henry, in command of the Department of Porto Rico, has instructed the post commanders to prevent the landing of the French cable on Porto Rico soil.

Owing to the complaints on the subject of the poor inland mail service, Inspector Robinson will take steps to reorganize it.

U. S. Grant for Senator.

Washington, Dec. 14.—The complications in the California Senatorial contest lead Californians in Washington to believe that there is a possibility of the Legislature electing Ulysses S. Grant, better known as "Buck" Grant, to the Senate, to succeed Senator White. Young Grant, as every one knows, is a son of the ex-President, and has been prominent in the Republican party in California for two years. He openly began his contest for Senator in 1896, during the Presidential campaign.

Snow Shovelers Killed.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 14.—Nine men were killed and three injured at Winspeare Bridge, near Corfu, on the New York Central Railroad, yesterday. They were all Poles, with the exception of John Warner, their foreman, who is among the killed.

The men were engaged in shovelling snow. They stepped from one track to avoid an approaching train right in front of a fast express train running in the same direction, and were literally ground to pieces.

New Supreme Court Building.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Senator Morrill addressed the Senate yesterday on his bill authorizing the purchase of a site east of the Capitol grounds for a building for the United States Supreme Court. At the conclusion of the speech the Senate passed the bill.

THE INQUIRY CONTINUES

Commissary-General Eagan Gives Testimony.

HIS DEPARTMENT CROWDED

Little Change in the Present Army Ration Needed—The Trouble Over Fresh Meat in Porto Rico—Brought Back to New York and Thrown Away.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Commissary-Gen. Eagan of the War Department continued his testimony before the War Inquiry Commission yesterday. He urged that the Subsistence Department should control the transportation of all its own supplies and furnishing of means for cooking and eating. He said that the Secretary of War approved a bill authorizing the Subsistence Department to build and furnish bake-ovens, mess equipment, etc., which were much needed. He thought the Quartermaster General's Department was overburdened with duties innumerable. He pointed out that the British army was not as well fed by any means as our own, and that rations already provided the United States soldiers were satisfactory, with the possible addition of dried fruits.

He spoke of the constant and urgent importunities, which he said sometimes amounted to persecution, that various articles of food be added to the regular rations. These importunities were backed by strong support and heavy capital. One well known Senator, whose name he withheld, he said had proposed and insisted on one article being added, which he claimed would cost only about one cent a ration. While this might be so, for the whole army its cost would mount to an amazing figure.

He said he believed that beer should be furnished the men in such quantities as the commanding officers might decide to be best, and in the interests of the men he would be willing to incur the hostility of the blue ribbon societies.

Referring to a complaint of the beef given in Porto Rico at the outset of that campaign, Gen. Eagan said that the responsibility rested on other shoulders than his own; that he had purchased the best of beef, but after the contract was entered into and the beef aboard and sent from Newport News, Gen. Miles had telegraphed him that he could get the beef on the island. Consequently the beef he shipped remained on the ships, except for a small amount, and was brought back to New York and thrown overboard. The beef, of fine quality, was there, he said, and should have been taken.

"No one," he said, "with any sense could hesitate to favor refrigerated beef as against native beef." He said he had now sent a refrigerator plant to San Juan. Referring to the ignorance in the volunteer army as to rations, Gen. Eagan said that there should be one commissary sergeant with each regiment to instruct the others as to the use and extent of rations.

ATLANTA'S PEACE JUBILEE.

The Crowning Feature of the Country's Celebration Opens To-day.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 14.—The President and party arrived here at 9 o'clock this morning. It comprised the following persons:

The President, Mrs. McKinley, Secretary Gage and Mrs. Gage, Secretary and Mrs. Alger, Secretary Long and Miss Long, Postmaster Smith and Mrs. Smith, Secretary Wilson and Miss Wilson, Secretary Porter and Mrs. Porter, Assistant Secretary Cortelyou, Gen. Joseph Wheeler, Miss Wheeler, Gen. Henry W. Lawton and Mrs. Lawton, Capt. L. C. Scheerer, Adelbert S. Hay, B. F. Barnes and a number of newspaper correspondents.

The Peace Jubilee which opens today and continues through Thursday, promises to equal the affairs given in Chicago, Omaha and Philadelphia and will be marked by the first visit of a Republican President to the South since the war.

The business portion of the city is handsomely decorated, the prevailing sentiment amid the masses of bunting everywhere being "One Country, One Flag."

MRS. J. W. KISER.

The programme of social events in charge of the women will be a brilliant one.

Wednesday will include the breakfast to Mrs. McKinley and the ladies of the Cabinet—and an elegant affair it will be—at 12.30 o'clock; then the floral parade in the afternoon, a beautiful pageant, and finally the grand reception at the Capital City Club in the evening.

For Thursday each lady of the social committee will take under her hospitable care two ladies of the Cabinet. In the afternoon the civic and military parade will be the event. From 5 to 7 will come the informal reception to the distinguished Washington ladies; and in the evening the elegant theatre party and subsequent supper at the Capital City Club.

One of the pleasantest social events of the jubilee will be the theatre party, to be given individually by the Committee on Social Events in honor of the ladies of the Cabinet. One of the most interesting events of the jubilee will be the floral parade, of which Mrs. William H. Kiser, who has always been remarkably popular, has secured the hearty co-operation of numbers of friends, both ladies and gentlemen. The enterprise of which she is a leader will be a charming success if the weather will but behave itself on Dec. 14. And it surely will, for it cannot be always at its worst. Mrs. A. B. Steele is general chairman of the Committee of Arrangements.

MRS. A. B. STEELE.

The arch erected for the occasion is a beautiful one, and makes an excellent commemoration of the occasion. It represents a Spanish fortress, and is ninety feet wide. The bases are sixteen feet square, and are finished off with turrets 12x6 feet, with the Stars and Stripes floating from the top. The arch is formed of Spanish moss with the seals of Georgia and Atlanta draped in United States flags in the centre. On either side of the arch is a bust of President McKinley and Admiral Schley.

Urging Choate's Appointment.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—Among the early callers at the White House yesterday was Senator Thomas C. Platt and William Barnes, Jr., of Albany. They had a talk with the President in regard to New York appointments, referring particularly to the vacant English ambassadorship.

It is understood that Senator Platt again informed the President that the selection of Joseph H. Choate would be satisfactory to the Republican organization of New York, but that Whitelaw Reid was not wanted by New York Republicans. Mr. Barnes indorsed Senator Platt's views.

A few moments after Senator Platt and Mr. Barnes had left the White House Seth Low, the president of Columbia College of New York, and Congressman Low called. Seth Low spoke warmly in behalf of his friend, Joseph Choate, and it is said urged the President to send the eminent New York lawyer to the Court of St. James.

Sixty-ninth Men in a Fight.

Chattanooga, Dec. 14.—A fight occurred at Huntsville Camp Monday night among the members of the Sixty-ninth Regiment of New York. A report received here says that three members of the Sixty-ninth were killed and that an officer was badly hurt by being hit on the head with a bayonet.

Cannibalism in Africa.

Antwerp, Dec. 14.—The steamer Leopoldville, which has just arrived here from Africa, with Congo advices, reports that four Belgian traders have been killed and eaten by the natives of Upper Ubanghi. A punitive force has been despatched to that district.

Extreme Cold in Wisconsin.

West Superior, Wis., Dec. 14.—Last night was the coldest of the Winter, 23 degrees below being registered for the night, and at 8.30 this morning it was 13 below. The weather is clear and there is no wind.

FOR A TRIPLE ALLIANCE

Joint Action With Great Britain and Japan Considered.

TREATY IS NOT ESSENTIAL

A Demand Likely to Be Made, However, for Equal Privileges with France, Germany and Russia in China—To Be Backed by Force.

Washington, Dec. 14.—The interview with Senator Davis, published in London, in which the Senator is quoted as strongly favoring an alliance between the United States, Great Britain and Japan, to protect their common interests in the Orient, has excited considerable interest here. In a general way it is known to represent Senator Davis' views. The subject of an alliance with Great Britain and Japan has for some time been receiving serious thought, not only among Senators, but in the State Department.

The suggested alliance does not necessarily include a treaty between those countries, but simply joint action for a common object.

There is a fixed determination that the privileges granted other powers—Germany, Russia and France, jointly or separately—shall be accorded the United States, and to insure this it is recognized co-operation with Great Britain and Japan will be necessary. This co-operation is expected to take the form of joint or simultaneous demand from the three governments for equal privileges in China with all other nations, the demand to be enforced, if necessary.

The President is not ready to go into this question now, but it has been discussed sufficiently to indicate his general views, and the reference to our interests in China in his message is regarded as significant. Secretary Hay is represented as being in favor of such an alliance.

The acquisition of the Philippines is expected to result in a broader trade interest for this country in the Orient. Senators say that this will not necessarily depend upon the retention of the entire Philippine group by this country. The ratification of the peace treaty, it is held, will establish the influence of the United States in that quarter of the globe, and there will be no serious opposition on the part of so-called expansionists to any disposition of the islands which will insure the liberty of the people and a good government. A canvass of the Senate indicates that the treaty will surely be ratified.

Getting Ready for Census.

Washington, Dec. 14.—The House Census Committee at its meeting yesterday decided to create a separate bureau for the purpose of taking the census, and directed Chairman Hopkins to draw a substitute for the Senate bill. The Senate bill provides that the Census Office shall be included in the Department of the Interior.

Some data also will be collected by the committee regarding several provisions of the bill. Some of the points on which inquiry will be made relate to the number of persons to be employed and their salaries, the work of expert statisticians, and how the census can best be taken, whether by counties, townships or Congress districts, or whether this shall be left to the Superintendents of Census. Nothing was said as to whether the bureau should be placed under the civil service.

Cuban Tariff Schedule Ready.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Major-Gen. Brooke, the future Military Governor of Cuba, and Robert P. Porter, the President's Special Commissioner to the Island, had a long conference with the President yesterday.

They discussed the details of Mr. Porter's observations in Cuba in connection with his investigation of the customs situation in the island.

The tariff schedule, as prepared by Mr. Porter and forwarded some time ago to the Treasury Department, subject to amendment, was examined thoroughly at the conference, and Gen. Brooke made himself thoroughly familiar with the regulations which are to be carried out at the several ports. It is expected that the Cuban tariff will be published by the Treasury Department to-day.

Gas Tank Explodes.

New York, Dec. 14.—With a crash that could be heard for more than a mile the largest gas tank in the world collapsed from the tremendous hydraulic pressure yesterday at 5.45 p. m. Two persons were killed, one is missing and about twenty-one wounded. That portion of Manhattan Island south of Grand street was in partial darkness and six city blocks were flooded, the water in some places being waist deep.

The tank belonged to the Consolidated Gas Company, and was situated between Twentieth and Twenty-first streets, Avenue A and First avenue. It had been finished about ten days and collapsed while being tested to see if it was perfect.

Firebugs Cremated.

San Francisco, Dec. 14.—There is much disquietude among the inhabitants of Hankow since the recent fire, in which three thousand people lost their lives. Several smaller fires have occurred since, all believed to be the work of incendiaries.

The Shanghai Daily Press says five Chinese were caught in the act of igniting as many dwellings. They were thrown into the flames and burned alive.

A Railroad Concession.

Mexico City, Dec. 14.—A concession for an important railway in the State of Vera Cruz, to be called "Ferro Carril Vera Cruzano," has passed into the hands of Philadelphia capitalists.

The road will open up one of the richest sections in the whole Republic. The country traversed is filled with fine timber, cabinet woods, and the road will pass through coal, oil and asphalt beds.

Ordered to Havana.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 14.—Orders have been issued for the armored cruiser Brooklyn, the battleship Texas, the gunboat Castine and the auxiliary cruiser Resolute to proceed at once to Havana.

The orders caused great surprise in navy circles.

THE NICARAGUA CANAL BILL.

Direct Appropriation to Be Proposed in the Senate.

Washington, Dec. 14.—In the Senate yesterday Mr. Berry (Dem., Ark.) gave notice of an amendment which he will offer to the Nicaragua Canal bill, providing for the direct appropriation of money for the construction of the canal and limiting the cost to $115,000,000. The amendment provides for the construction of the canal by the Maritime Canal Company, and gives the Government a lien upon the property, to be foreclosed under circumstances fully enumerated.

Mr. Berry said that the object of the amendment was to eliminate the bond feature of the bill. Another was to deprive the Maritime Canal Company of any shares of the stock, as in the present bill, leaving the United States, Nicaragua and Costa Rica the only stockholders. He said he understood Mr. Morgan to be willing to have the bill amended so as to abolish the bond provision of the bill.

Mr. Rawlins (Dem., Utah) also gave notice of an amendment to the Nicaragua bill, providing that the act should not go into effect until the United States should secure by treaty the right to fortify and garrison the canal, to send armed vessels and munitions of war through it in time of war and to close it against any other nation with whom the United States might be at war.

GIDEON W. MARSH SENTENCED.

To Serve Twelve Years and Three Months in Prison.

Philadelphia, Dec. 14.—Gideon W. Marsh, ex-President of the wrecked Keystone National Bank, was yesterday sentenced by Judge Butler in the United States District Court to imprisonment for twelve years and three months and to pay a fine of $500. The Keystone Bank failed in March, 1891, and President Marsh and Cashier Lawrence were placed under arrest charged with conspiracy in making false entries in the books and issuing false reports to the Comptroller of the Currency. The cashier stood trial and was convicted and imprisoned, but Marsh disappeared and his bail of $20,000 was forfeited. Recently he returned voluntarily and surrendered himself.

It was thought that Marsh might, when brought up for sentence, make a statement implicating others in the wrecking, but he merely informed the court that his predecessor in the presidency of the bank had left a defalcation of more than a million dollars, and that he (Marsh) had never profited a dollar through the bank's losses.

He broke down in making this statement, and was unable to proceed further. He trembled perceptibly when sentence was pronounced, and the expression on his face told that he had expected much lighter punishment.

FOR GOVERNOR OF CUBA.

President Designates Gen. Brooke To Have Supreme Authority.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Major Gen. Brooke arrived from Fortress Monroe yesterday and was closeted for more than an hour with Secretary Alger. Later he went to the White House with Gen. Corbin, and when he returned to the War Department it was formally announced that the President had designated him Military Governor of the Island of Cuba, a post which carries with it the control exercised by the Captain General under the Spanish regime.

Each of the six provinces of Cuba will have its own Military Governor, just as Gen. Wood is now Military Governor of the Province of Santiago, but all of these will receive their instructions directly from Major Gen. Brooke, who will have supreme authority.

In Havana Gen. Ludlow will be Governor of the city, but answerable to Gen. Lee, the Governor of the province, who, in turn, will be answerable to Major Gen. Brooke, the Governor of the island.

Asks Captain's Resignation.

Little Falls, N. Y., Dec. 14.—At today's session of the Herkimer County Board of Supervisors resolutions were adopted commending the privates of the Thirty-first Separate Company of Mohawk and censuring Capt. Witherstine for seeking, as is alleged, to have certain members who are ringleaders in an effort to depose the captain, dishonorably discharged.

Resolutions also were adopted requesting the captain's resignation. The resolutions were introduced by Democratic members of the board, and are significant because of Capt. Witherstine's prominence in the Democratic party.

U. S. Soldiers Cheered.

Pinar del Rio, Cuba, Dec. 14.—Gen. Davis, accompanied by his staff, a signal company and a battalion of 400 men from the 202d New York Regiment, has arrived here by special train from Havana. The American troops were greeted at the railroad station by almost the entire population of the city.

The headquarters of Gen. Davis is at the Globe Hotel. The ceremony of formally raising the Stars and Stripes over the City Hall here took place at noon yesterday.

Powder Works Blown Up.

Scranton, Dec. 14.—The works of the Moosic Powder Company at Moosic were torn to pieces at 1 o'clock Tuesday afternoon by a series of explosions, the first of which was in the corning mill. It is reported that several workmen were killed and injured. Great damage was done all in the village, windows being torn out of houses, chimneys hurled down and other injury inflicted to property near the works.

Bryan Out of the Army.

Savannah, Dec. 14.—Col. W. J. Bryan, upon leaving his command yesterday, the Third Nebraska Regiment, gave the following interview:

"My reason for leaving the army was set forth in my letter to the Adjutant General tendering my resignation. Now that the treaty of peace has been concluded I believe that I can be more useful to my country as a civilian than a soldier."

Death Sentence Commuted.

Washington, Dec. 14.—The President has accepted the recommendation of Gen. Wheeler and commuted to imprisonment for life the sentence of death imposed by court martial upon Private Lindsay, of the Tenth Cavalry, at Huntsville, Ala.

Better School Advantages.

When Mr. Griggs, then Governor of New Jersey, selected Charles J Baxter, of Plainfield, as the head of State school affairs, he picked a man who is constantly demonstrating his particular fitness for the position. Superintendent Baxter is not only administrative in his duties, but as well creative for the benefit of educational realms. During his service as State School Superintendent he has brought about several innovations in connection with public schools, but his latest proposition, made in his annual report to the State Board of Education, is perhaps the one that is most important and shows in a thorough manner his studious and perceptive mind in relation to the institutions of which he is the official head in the State.

In this report Superintendent Baxter makes a strong plea for equal educational facilities for puplic schools throughout the State. It is a recognized fact that only those whose fate of residence brings them into well-populated communities are posessed of the high and graded grammar schools advantages. The district school still prevails in rural communities and while in many ways they afford excellent advantages for instructions to the youth of their particular sections they do not gratify ambitious pupils with the curriculum of studies that they yearn for. Under the present condition of affairs young people aspiring to equip themselves for higher instruction are compelled to go to a place where such advantages do exist. That, of course, entails extra cost for tuition and for expenses of transporation to and fro, as well as the cost of living while away from home if the distance of their chosen school is such as to prevent them going back and forth each day. This state of affairs naturally bars many by force of financial circumstances from securing the education that they are desirous of.

The discerning mind has suggested to Mr. Baxter the need of a better system of instruction in the rural communities, and he recommends such legislation as will permit the establishment of township, union or county secondary schools, the instruction of which shall be free to all pupils qualified for admission and residing within an area for which such schools have been established. In this way the field of High School education will be widened, and to a large extent the problem of providing equal schooling for the urban and the rural communities will have been solved.

At the next session of the Legislature Superintendent Baxter will ask for the appropriation of funds necessary to carry out his plans.

A Dubious View.

The project of consolidating Plainfield and North Plainfield into one municipality is attracting considerable interest throughout the State, as it is realized that in such a consummation another city of considerable population and influence would result. The Newark News, which is one of the most observing of New Jersey papers, devoted considerable space to the subject yesterday. After presenting in substance Senator Reed's report on the possibility of effecting the consolidation without changing the county lines, The News says:

While Senator Reed's presentation of the reasons why consolidation without change of county lines is impracticable convinced the joint committee, that body decided not to give up the agitation, but to continue upon the plan of including both municipalities in either Union or Somerset counties. Right here is the rock upon which the movement is likely to be wrecked. Plainfield having the advantage in population, will no doubt insist that the borough shall forsake Somerset and come to it, while whatever may be the sentiment in North Plainfield itself, Somerset county will not voluntarily relinquish such a large slice of its wealth and population. In many ways consolidation would be of material benefit to both municipalities were it not for the divided county jurisdiction, but this artificial barrier is a difficult one to remove, and in all probability will suffice to separate Plainfield and North Plainfield for several years to come.

With Allan McDermott in the Senate and young Leon Abbett in the Senate the Democrats will not be barren of capable leaders. If the young Mr. Abbett exhibits any of the aggressiveness that his father made a display of when in power he will doubtless worry the Republicans somewhat. Republicans say that the legislative session will be almost entirely devoted to the consideration of subjects of a non-partisan character. With the present laws on the statute books concerning the distribution of the public patronage they say they are well pleased, and they consider it wise to leave well enough alone. The people have indorsed their policy and they have no desire to meddle with buzz-saws.

The Newark News editorial writers have been attracted to the utterances of Senator Reed in reference to the outcome of the election in Somerset county, and after reviewing the situation in a half column editorial The News says:

This is Senator Reeds's last year in the Senate, and, although it has been said that he would not seek re-election, it has been generally supposed that he would again be the Republican candidate. If he had such ambition, Senator's Reed s audacity in throwing down the gauntlet to the present leadership bespeaks him a bold fighter who disdains to meet his foe otherwise than face to face. It is scarcely probable that the published correspondence will tend to promote harmony among Somerset Republibans. What effect it may have on Senator Reed's aspirations toward the presidency of the Senate is another question.

Chandler Biker stated before an Assembly committee last winter that twenty-five years was long enough to grant a franchise to a street railway company. Why don't the Common Council give Mr. Biker a dose of his own medicine that he prescribed as proper for traction companies?—Plainfield Press.

Maybe Mr. Biker was talking then about a franchise that he expected somebody else to get. Nevertheless, he wasn't far out of the way.—New York Tribune.

When a conservative paper like The Tribune voices such a sentiment as is conveyed in the last sentence of its comment it is evidence that the talk against a ninety-nine year franchise is not all "wild rantings."

John Naegle is one of the best justices of the peace Plainfield has ever enjoyed. Incidentally it might be said that Mr. Naegle has never officiated in any sort of case that his official power gives him the right to. More of his kind would be better for New Jersey.

Admiral Dewey is said to be anxious to come home from Manila. He deserves almost anything that he asks for.

The holiday rush is now on.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

It will probably be information to many to known that under a recent decision of the Federal courts that those who ship goods by the express companies are compelled to furnish the penny stamp used on the receipt for the consignment. Therefore, if you have occasion to use the United States Express Company's service don't complain if Manager Mills compels you to pay the penny needed for the revenue stamp.

While J. V. N. Christopher, of Asbury Park, was enjoying his fall vacation at the home of his father, in East Millstone, Somerset county, he became the possessor of an old and curious-looking piece of Continental currency which he prizes highly as a souvenir of the early days of our Government. The half-dollar, for such it is, is about two and one-half by three inches in size, and looks as though it was an old piece of wrapping paper. Age has caused it to turn color. On the face, surrounded by a heavy border, are the words, "Half-dollar, according to a resolution of Congress passed at Philadelphia, February 17, 1776." The series is "B" and the number is "90,500." The signature looks like "S. O. Morris." It is in red ink but the two first initials are faded. On the reverse side is a chain, each link representing one of the thirteen original States, viz, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Georgia, North and South Carolina. In the centre of the chain is another circle. On this the words, "American Congress, we are one," appears. At the bottom it says the half-dollar was "printed by Hall & Sellers in Philadelphia, 1776."

Miss Jennie McCready, of Raritan, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Henry Johns, of Division street.

The marriage of Miss May Lunger, of the borough, to Charles Creveling, will take place Wednesday, December 21st.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, December 14—The jury which was empaneled to inquire into the death of John Keenan, who died last week in the town rooms, met in the sewer office yesterday afternoon. Coroner MacConnell, who is conducting the inquest, said that the medical examination was not as yet complete, so the inquest was adjourned until Tuesday, Dec. 27th. This will give Prof. H. A. Baldwin, of Newark, who is making an analysis of the dead man's stomach, a chance to finish his work before the jury meets again.

A. A. Gaddis, who has been in Westfield for the past two years looking after the interest of the Westfield and Elizabeth Street Railroad Company, has removed to Roselle and will be found at home at the VanCourt Inn.

THE COURTS.

JUSTICE MOFFETT.

Adjourned—Case of Rogers against Galbraith, for one week. Judgment rendered—In the case of Hand against Schorb judgment has been rendered for the full amount claimed.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

MARK HANNA'S COURTSHIP.

He Loved His Love With Young Love's Devotion and Youth's Determination.

Mrs. Mark Hanna has a love story, though it happened many years ago, before her hair was silvered and before the senator tipped the scales at quite his present figure, "though he was always a sturdy chap," Mrs Hanna will tell you.

This is the tale, as it is told by a Cleveland woman:

"Mrs. Hanna, then the young and lovely heiress, Miss Rhoades, was destined to marry a man of wealth, possibly a title, for nothing was too good for her.

"Her brother, the historian, had his place in the field of letters, and the family boasted no less than five celebrities in the world of art, literature and science, not to mention social prestige.

"A course in a New York finishing school was decided upon for her; and upon her return she was to be launched into society to enjoy its brilliancy for several seasons, heart whole and free to taste the cup of belledom to its sweetest drop.

"But parents propose—and Mr. Hanna disposed. The senator, whose early struggles and history are now well known, fell in love with the young girl in her first season, when the touch of the finishing school was fresh upon her and undimmed by the world. He vowed he would wed no other.

"In vain the parents pleaded. They had other missions for their daughter and one of these was a year of social life abroad.

"'Suppose you take her to Paris now,' suggested her father, 'and put her through a month of London society afterward, until she forgets.'

"The mother consented, and I believe the tickets were all but bought. But day and night the girl wept and pleaded—just to be allowed to remain at home. And the mother relented.

"Finally the hearts of both parents were touched, and the father, too, consented. And then came the marriage, when the young business man, Mr. Hanna, with nothing but love and ambition, got he girl of his choice.

"That was a long time ago, and in sickness and sorrow, and in the whirl of political life, many changes have come. Success has touched the career of the man, and the wife has had a chance to go into society, greater than would have been her privilege had she married what was said to be her mother's ambition—a title!"—Philadelphia Press.

THE CAREFUL SERVANT.

General Wheeler Was Like All Other Men to Him.

One of the Michigan officers who was at the front during the brief war had with him a colored attendant who was as proud of his place as though he were commander-in-chief, and whose ideas of military discipline were as rigid as those of the veriest martinet. Owing especially to the thieving proclivities of some of the Cuban hangers-on, he was under strict command not to let anything go from the officer's tent without a personal order from him.

One evening as the officer and General Wheeler met some distance from the camp, the general said, with a smack of his lipe, "I hear, sir, that you received some very fine brandied peaches from home."

"Yes, general, they're prime, and I'm going to send you some. Mean time you had better stop at my tent on the way in and have my man give you a can."

When the officer reached his quarters he was approached by his attendant, with an elaborate salute, and "Did you tell dat Gen'l Wheeler, sah dat he could call heah, sah, and procu' a can ob dem brandied peaches sah?"

"Yes. Of course you gave them to him?"

"No, sah," with another athletic salute; "no, sah. I knows my duties sah. I done tole Gen'l Wheelah dat all men lok alike to me, sah, an' if he didn' hab no ohdah he couldn' hab no peaches, sah, 'less he obacome me by powah of supeiah numbers, sah."

"Why, you black rascal; what did he say?"

"He jes' grin and bo' it, sah."—Detroit Free Press.

Surgery Performed on Snakes.

Snakes in captivity, it seems, sometimes find difficulty in getting rid of the skin which is shed every year and an Australian diamond snake in the Bombay museum seemed likely to succumb. It was quite blind and refused all food.

A European sympathizer, therefore, pressed the native snakekeeper into service to hold the snake, and himself with a pair of sharp pointed scissors performed the delicate and risky operation of clipping away the membrane which adhered to the eyes.

J. M. Phipson, editor of the Journal of the Bombay Natural History Society, performed a far more dangerous operation a couple of years ago. His patient was a large hamadryad or king cobra, the most vicious and poisonous of all Indian snakes, and the most powerful creature to boot. Mr. Phipson gripped the king cobra round the neck, and a native literally held on for his life further down, and when the reptile's struggles were over a third man, armed with a surgeon's scalpel, removed eight layers of membrane from each eye.—Sketch.

Teacher—"Bobby, if your mother gave your sister six apples to divide equally with you, how many would you get?"

Bobby—"None."

Teacher—"Why, Bobby, you'd get three apples."

Bobby—"You don't know my sister."—Chicago Record.

BOYS' HEADS, NORTH AND SOUTH.

Washington, New York and Chicago Boys Have the Largest.

"I don't know whether it is complimentary or otherwise, but I do know that it is a fact that the head of the average Washington boy is larger than that of the average boy of many other cities," remarked a traveling salesman for a large hat and cap manufacturing firm to a Star reporter. "All men engaged in the hat and cap trade know it, and have learned it by their business experience. The heads of the boys in Baltimore average three or four sizes smaller than those of Washington, and it is known to the cap trade that they can always get rid of any extra large sizes of boys' caps by sending them to Washington. I have had a recent experience in selling a boy's cap. In Baltimore the sizes desired by the dealers ran all the way from 6 to 6⅝, leaving me with a large lot of the larger sizes to dispose of. I found no difficulty in doing so, for no dealer here wanted anything smaller than 6⅝, and wanted them all the way up to 7 and 7⅛. The heads of the boys in Richmond are about the same as regards size as those in Baltimore, and they compare with the heads of the boys in Atlanta, Charleston, Savannah, and New Orleans. In none of these cities could the larger sizes ordered in this city be sold, except in small quantities. The Chicago boy has a head as large as the Washington boy, and so does the New York boy, but the Boston or Philadelphia boy has not. The Washington boy has the largest head in any South or Southwestern city, and is only equaled in New York and Chicago. It is for others to say what all this means. I can only state the fact that is developed in the hat and cap trade.—Washington Star.

Congressman Shattuc's Mistake.

"Madam, may I kiss these beautiful children?" inquired Gen. W. B. Shattuc, as he leaned over a front gate.

"Certainly, sir; there is no possible objection."

"They are lovely darlings," said the General, after he had finished the eleventh. "I have seldom seen more beautiful babies. Are they yours, madam?"

The lady blushed deeply.

"Of course they are, the sweet little treasures! From whom else, ma'am, could they have inherited those limpid eyes, those rosy cheeks, those profuse curls, those comely figures, and those musical voices?"

The lady continued blushing.

"By the way, ma'am," said he, "may I bother you to tell your estimable husband that William B. Shattuc, candidate for the district, called upon him this evening?"

"Excuse me, sir," said the lady. "I have no husband!"

"But these children, madam—you surely are not a widow?"

"I feared you were mistaken, sir, when you first came up. These are not my children. This is the fresh air fund vacation cottage."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

His Wife Appreciated.

An honest exchange of compliments is always an agreeable thing. A New England minister, recently married, had desired one of his neighbors to secure a horse to be driven in the new phaeton which the clergyman had bought with a view to his bride's pleasure.

The minister's wife made her first appearance in church on the Sunday after the wedding, and was approved by the entire congregation for her sweet face and simple manner.

The next afternoon the minister took his bride to drive, and passing his neighbor on the road, he stopped to say, pleasantly:

"You bought us a very good horse, and we have to thank you for that, Mr. Wilson."

"You're welcome," said the parishioner, with gravity; "and you've chosen an excellent minister's wife, sir, which is about as difficult. The whole parish thanks ye for that."—Youth's Companion.

A Story of Queen Wilhelmina.

The National Magazine tells this story of Queen Wilhelmina: "Two of the court children were missing one day, and grave fears were entertained as to the probability of their having been kidnapped. A prolonged and careful search resulted in finding no traces of them, and two attendants were arrested as suspicious characters. On further inquiry it was learned that these two children were last seen playing with the little Queen the previous day. On questioning her as to their whereabouts she said they were locked up in an old cellar that could be reached from the courtyard. It seemed they refused to do her bidding, and so, exercising her prerogative as chief executive of the kingdom, she had imprisoned them for rebellion."

A Doubtful Compliment.

Once, when Madame Nordica was singing at a concert in Texas, she forgot her warm overshoes. A cowboy, whom she had utterly fascinated, offered to bring them to her, and did so, but he brought only one at a time.

When Madame Nordica thanked him, and in her gracious way regretted to have given him so much trouble, he said to her, "Don't name it, ma'am. I wish you were a centipede."

On board ship a wife was trying to comfort her seasick husband and change the current of his thoughts. "Darling, has the moon come up yet?" she asked. "It has, if I swallowed it," was the weak-voiced reply.—Western Medical Review.

SAVED BY A KICK.

An Old Soldier Tells How He Escaped a Charge of Cowardice.

"But for a good swift kick given me just at the right time, I would probably be branded as a coward, and a soldier had better be dead than live under such a stigma."

The speaker was one of the veterans of the civil war, with as good an army record as any of the brave sons who went from Detroit to serve in that terrible conflict.

"You know," he continued in a philosophical strain, "that some horses and some hunting dogs are gun shy and that no amount of discipline can overcome this weakness. I had the same failing. At home I was rather conspicuous for physical bravery and a disposition to take my own part. I never turned my back on an enemy till it came to our first battle in the war. I kept in line and felt no special fear while we were advancing, but when the guns began to roar and the bullets to spit I stampeded and struck out for the rear with all the blind, unreasoning impulse of a runaway horse. Suddenly I was confronted by a young lieutenant, who profanely told me what kind of a coward I was, whirled me about and gave me a kick that lifted me in the air and then dashed for the front. That was entirely different and aroused my schoolboy courage. I took after that lieutenant, determined to thrash him or get well whipped in the attempt. While I was making record time and gradually closing up the gap, a minie zipped by my head and took the lobe off my ear along with it. Like a flash the burning sensation diverted the current of my wrath, and I was blood crazy as I rushed into the thickest of the fight, shouting, jabbering and roaring defiance. The boys will tell you that I was there at the finish, and I wasn't ever gun shy afterward."—Detroit Free Press.

Sauce for Goose and Gander.

A physician and his friend were standing on the street corner of a Virginia town where they were spending a few days. Their attention was amusingly arrested by the sight of an old darkey belaboring the flanks of a mule in a vain persuasion to make him move on. At last the doctor was appealed to.

"Say, boss, I'll give you five dollahs ef you'll make dis hyer mule go."

With a sly wink the physician opened his case and took out his hypodermic syringe, filled the needle with an acid and sent it into the hind quarters of the mule. The effect was magical. With a wild plunge the mule went tearing down the street, with the darkey after him, the bystanders roaring with laughter. A short time afterward the darkey, dust covered, and panting, approached again.

"Say, boss—how much—was de wuff—of dat stuff—yo' done squht—in dat mule?"

"Oh," said the doctor, "about ten cents."

Down went the darkey's hands in his jeans pockets. He fished out two dimes.

"Hyah, boss—am 20 cents. I wish yo' would squht—twice as much of dat stuff into me—'case I'se bound—to catch dat mule."—Short Stories.

A Buzzsaw of Diamonds.

The most wonderful of buzzsaws has just been devised by M. Felix Fromholt, an engineer of Paris, for use in preparing the stone foundations for the exhibition buildings.

It is more than seven feet in diameter and is operated by a ten-horse power engine. The lower edge is nearly four feet above the ground. The block of stone which is to be sawed is placed on a truck and run under the saw, which splits it at the rate of ten inches per minute.

And no wonder! It is literally a diamond-toothed saw, the largest in existence. It cuts its way through the hardest stone by the aid of two hundred small diamonds fastened to its circumference. These are the so-called crystalized diamonds, worth about $2 or $3 a carat.

Of course the principle of the cutting-diamond is old. M. Fromholt claims credit only for his ingenious method of fastening the diamonds to the steel and for experimenting with them at high temperatures.—New York World.

Prayer of a Homely Man.

A resident of Chicago, who is one of the ugliest as well as one of the best known citizens of this metropolis, met a man the other day who was as homely as himself. They exchanged condolences.

"I never but once saw a man who looked worse than I do," said the Chicago man. "I was hunting in northern Michigan when I ran against a fellow whose face would frighten an army.

"Just to get acquainted I put up my gun and took aim at him.

"'What are you trying to do there?' he yelled at me.

"'I made a resolution long ago,' I told him, 'that if I ever found an uglier man than I am, I would shoot him.

"He stood there under the trees for a minute, looking me all over.

"'Well,' he said finally, with a sarcastic drawl, 'if I look any uglier than you do, for goodness sake, shoot!'"—Chicago Journal.

She was a smart and pretty girl. She wrote the advertisements for a large milliner in town. Her mind used to run so much upon her business that one day when she wrote to her lover to meet her that night at home she unconsciously added as a postscript, "Come early to avoid the rush!"

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Oesterreich.

Wien. In letzter Zeit wurde aus dem hohen Norden Rennthierfleisch auf den Wiener Markt gebracht. Da es nur schwer von ausgehacktem Hirschfleisch zu unterscheiden ist, wurde ein Gutachten der Handelskammer dahin abgegeben, daß das Rennthierfleisch eine etwas dunklere Färbung besitzt. Das Rennthierfleisch steht im Preise gleich wie das Hirschfleisch.—Herr Ernst Mauthner, Obmann der Baumwoll- und Leinenindustrie-Gesellschaften für die Ausrüstung des Heeres, hat 8000 Kronen als Jubiläumsstiftung für bedürftige Töchter verstorbener Militär-Intendanteursbeamten und der verstorbene Rechnungsoffizial Joseph Klarner 12,000 Kronen für verwundete, erwerbsunfähig gewordene Soldaten gewidmet.

Bozen. Das hiesige Kreisgericht verurtheilte den Sozialisten Scatarini wegen Gutheißens der Ermordung der Kaiserin Elisabeth zu 15 Monaten und die desselben Vergehens angeklagte Marie Recla zu 6 Monaten schweren Kerkers.

Innsbruck. Neulich Morgens blieb mitten im Arlbergtunnel ein Personenzug stecken, da die Lokomotive plötzlich den Dienst versagte. Glücklicher Weise war eine Hilfslokomotive gerade in Bangen, der Station am westlichen Ausgange des Tunnels, und so wurde nach einer zweistündigen Verspätung der Personenzug, ohne einen weiteren Unfall erlitten zu haben, wieder flott.

Lemberg. Zwischen dem Professorenkollegium der hiesigen Polytechnik und den Hörern kam es zu einem Konflikt, weil der Senat der Technik dem Studentenverein „Brüderliche Hilfe" einen Hörsaal, welchen derselbe seit 20 Jahren als Vereinslokal unentgeltlich inne hatte, entzog. Da alle Vorstellungen fruchtlos blieben, beschloß nunmehr eine Versammlung der Hörer, bis auf Weiteres den Besuch der Vorträge einzustellen.

Prag. Der 25jährige Zeitungsausträger Schestak und der 18jährige Schlossergehilfe Kuttelwascher, Beide Mitglieder des Vereins „Aurora," welche in ihrem Vereinslokale das Bild Lucchenis angebracht hatten, wurden zu je sechs Monaten Kerkers verurtheilt.

Witkowitz. Die Witkowitzer Bergbau- und Eisenwerksgesellschaft spendete, aus Anlaß des Regierungsjubiläums des Kaisers 100,000 Gulden für die Waisen von Arbeitern; desgleichen spendeten die Freiherren v. Rothschild 100,000 Gulden für die Erhaltung derselben.

Schweiz.

Bern. In den ersten neun Monaten des laufenden Jahres haben—es ist das mit Rücksicht auf die durchzuführende Verstaatlichung von Interesse—die fünf Hauptbahnen der Schweiz eine Betriebseinnahme von zusammen 83,142,318 Francs zu verzeichnen gegen 80,479,483 Francs in der gleichen Zeit des Vorjahres.—Der „Spiezerhof" in Spiez ist mit sämmtlichen Dependenzen an die Gebrüder John, langjährige Angestellte im „Schweizerhof" in Luzern, um den Preis von 375,000 Francs verkauft worden. — Im Justusthal hat ein Wildhüter einen über fünf Kilo schweren Steinadler erlegt, der eine Flügelspannweite von 2.12 Meter hatte.

Zürich. Dieser Tage hatte das Züricher Volk über eine Gesetzvorlage abzustimmen, wonach mit Neujahr allen privaten Versicherungsgesellschaften der Abschluß von Feuerversicherungsverträgen verboten und das ganze Mobiliarversicherungswesen einer staatlichen, zu gründenden Anstalt mit Versicherungszwang aller Bürger überwiesen werden sollte. Mit 39,000 Nein gegen 26,000 Ja wurde diese sozialistische Vorlage verworfen.

Graubünden. Das neue Schatzalp-Hotel in Davos, ein umfangreiches, 120 Zimmer enthaltendes Etablissement, kommt auf einen sonnigen Hang, 1660 Meter über Meer, zu stehen. Vollständig reine Luft und ganz ruhige Lage zeichnen den gewählten Platz besonders aus. Große Säle, reichliche Wandelgänge und Liegehallen sollen den Kurgästen den Aufenthalt angenehm machen. Das Sanatorium wird neben hohem Komfort sehr fachgemäße Einrichtungen aufweisen. Die gleichzeitig zu erbauende Drahtseilbahn verbindet das Etablissement mit dem Kurhaus Davos. Die Arbeiten am Schatzalp-Hotel haben bereits begonnen.

Waadt. Eine sonderbare Naturerscheinung beobachtete man unlängst Abends in Payerne; die Freiburger Berge erschienen plötzlich in doppelter Höhe, die Berra, die man sonst in der Stadt nicht sieht, stieg hoch empor. Die Erscheinung dauerte nur kurze Zeit.

GEO. B. WEAN,
City Clerk, pro tem.

Plainfield, N. J., Dec. 12th, 1898.

AN ORDINANCE

locating the tracks of the extension of the Plainfield Street Railway Company in Richmond street and East Second street and over a private right of way to the line of the City of Plainfield in Terrill road, and authorizing and empowering the construction and operation and maintenance of the same and granting permission for said company to use electricity as the propeling power of its cars and prescribing the terms and conditions upon which the said location of the tracks and permission are granted.

Whereas, The Plainfield Street Railway Company, a street railway corporation organized under the provisions of the laws of the State of New Jersey and operating a street railway in the city of Plainfield, did present their petition or application to the Mayor and Common Council of the City of Plainfield, New Jersey, praying the said Mayor and Common Council of the City of Plainfield for their consent to the construction, operation and maintenance of an extension of its street railway in the city of Plainfield, from a point in its present line of tracks in East Fifth street opposite to Richmond street, thence westerly through Richmond street to East Second street; thence northerly through East Second street to the present terminus of East second street between Netherwood avenue and Leland avenue, thence along a right of way through private property to the line of the City of Plainfield in Terrill road, and,

Whereas, Public notice has been duly given of such application and of the intention of the Council of the City of Plainfield to consider the same by publication and also by posting a copy of the said notice in five or more of the most public places in the said city of Plainfield, at least fourteen days prior to the date fixed for the meeting of the said Council of the City of Plainfield to consider said application, and

Whereas, Upon the day fixed by said notice for said hearing and upon the days to which the said hearing was regularly adjourned, public hearing was given to all persons desiring to be heard, in favor of or opposed to or in anywise interested in the said application for the location of the said tracks of the said street railway company and the said matter having been duly considered by the Council of the City of Plainfield, and the said Council having determined to grant permission for the construction, maintenance and operation of such street railway upon the streets, highways or public places designated in such petition, and the said company having filed with the clerk of the city of Plainfield, the consent in writing of the owners, or their duly authorized legal representatives, of at least one-half in amount of the lineal feet of property on said Richmond street from East Fifth street to East Second street and on East Second street, from Richmond street to the present terminus of East Second street between Netherwood avenue and Leland avenue and thence along a right of way through private property to the line of the City of Plainfield in Terrill road.

The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the tracks of the extension of the Plainfield street Railway Company's railway be and are hereby located in the following streets, roads and alleys of the city of Plainfield: from a point in the present line of tracks of the Plainfield street Railway Company in East Fifth street, opposite to Richmond street; thence westerly through Richmond street to East Second street; thence northerly through East Second street to the present terminus of East second street, between Netherwood avenue and Leland avenue; thence along a right of way through private property northeasterly on a curve having a radius of four hundred and seventy-one feet and eight-tenths of a foot, two hundred and one feet and seventy-four hundredths of a foot; thence north twenty-one degrees and five minutes east two hundred and eighty-three feet and twenty-three hundredths of a foot; thence easterly on a curve with a radius of one thousand and eleven feet and five-tenths of a foot, four hundred and five feet and fifteen hundredths of a foot; thence north forty-four degrees two minutes east, two thousand three hundred and four feet and seventy hundredths of a foot to the line of the city of Plainfield in Terrill road, and in those portions of said streets, roads and alleys marked out and shown on map filed in the office of the city clerk of said city, entitled "Map showing location of tracks, turnouts and poles for proposed extension of Plainfield Street Railway, No. 2" and signed by Thomas A. Merina, President, dated August 1898, to which reference is made and the same hereby made a part of this ordinance, and the said company is hereby given the right to construct, maintain and operate its extension to its street railway in said portions of said streets, roads and alleys, under and subject to certain restrictions and regulations hereinafter specified or referred to, the same being such restrictions and regulations as the Common Council hereby deem requisite for the public interests as well as subject to such further reasonable regulations as may be hereinafter enacted by said Council. All rights and privileges under this ordinance conferred upon said Company shall cease and expire on the first day of January, A. D., 1998, and thereupon, on demand, said Company will forthwith remove all of its said tracks from the streets, lanes and alleys of said city. A detailed plan of construction shall be filed with the city clerk by said company and be approved by said Common Council before any work is done under the permission herein granted.

This ordinance is furthermore passed upon the express condition that if at any time hereafter the said city or its Common Council shall locate the tracks of any other street railway company or grant consent to the location of the tracks of any other street railway company over that portion of Richmond street lying between the southerly line of North avenue and the northerly line of East Third street such other street railway company shall have the right to use the tracks and poles of said Plainfield Street Railway Company that may be laid or erected on said portion of Richmond street in common with said Plainfield Street Railway Company upon terms to be agreed upon between such other company and said Plainfield Street Railway Company, or in case said two companies shall fail for the space of thirty days next after demand made upon them by such other company to agree upon the terms, then upon terms to be established and determined by the Common Council of said city of Plainfield.

Section 2. That said company shall construct, maintain and operate a single track railway for said extension, to be laid upon the middle line of Richmond street and East Second street to the present terminus of East Second street; thence along a right of way through private property, to the line of the city of Plainfield in Terrill road; it shall construct, operate and maintain a double track street railway and shall construct the tracks, switches, turnouts and poles in the manner and at the point and places indicated for the same on said map; the poles shall be constructed and set and the wires strung thereon in the same manner as the poles are constructed and set in the ground and wires strung on poles on like street railways now operated in the city of Plainfield by the said Plainfield Street Railway Company.

Section 3. That said company shall keep in repair to the satisfaction of the committee on streets the paving or other surface material of the portion of streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks and in addition shall so keep in repair eighteen inches on each side of the portion of said streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks. In case of double track or switches or turnouts, the expression "occupied by its tracks," shall be construed to mean all space in the street between the outermost rails. In case the city shall at any time determine to pave or repave any street or section of street the said company shall forthwith repave any portion of said street or section of street which may be occupied by the company's track and for eighteen inches beyond, with same material and in same manner, and shall do so at the company's expense under the supervision of the street commissioner. If said company shall at any time fail to comply with any of the requirements of this section, the work or repairs hereinabove specified may be done or made by or under the direction of the said committee on streets, and to their satisfaction, and the expense thereof shall on demand be paid by said company to said city; provided that the said committee on streets or a majority of them shall give at least ten days notice in writing of the intention to do such work or make such repairs, said notice to be served upon any officer or employee of said company who may be found at their office or depot.

Section 4. The said company and its officers, servants, agents or employes shall not nor shall any or either of them be allowed to shovel, throw or place any snow, ice or slush along the side of said track or tracks in any street or street s in such manner as to obstruct other public travel therein; but, when moving said snow, ice or slush from said track or tracks the said company or its officers, servants, agents or employes shall cause the same to be immediately leveled between the said track or tracks and the gutter line on each side thereof unless the fall of snow shall have been too heavy to make it practicable to level the same aforesaid; in which latter case the said company shall promptly remove all such excess of snow. Upon violation of any of the provisions of this section, there shall be incurred a penalty of Ten Dollars for every city block in which any such violation shall take place, but said penalty shall not aggregate more than One Hundred Dollars in any one day or on any one conviction; said penalty to be paid to the city by the said company or by any of its said officers, agents or employes so offending for each and every offence.

Section 5. That the rights and privileges intended to be given by this ordinance to said company are subject to all limitations, provisions, terms and conditions set forth and contained in sections 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 13, 14, 16, 17 and 18 of the ordinance of the city entitled "An ordinance locating the tracks of the Plainfield street Railway Company and regulating the construction and operation of the same and granting permission to said company to use electric motors as the propelling power of its cars" approved April twenty-seventh, 1891, to the same extent and with the same effect as if said sections were re-enacted in full as part of this ordinance.

Section 6. That the gauge of the tracks to be laid hereunder shall be four feet eight and one-half inches. That all the cars of the said company shall be similar to those now in use by it or such as shall be approved by the Common Council of said city. They shall be lighted by electricity and properly heated in winter. Said company shall use upon its cars the Climax or other noiseless gearing and equip said cars with proper bells or gongs and said cars shall be run at a speed of not more than ten miles an hour. No salt shall be used by said company on any part of its tracks. For violation of any of the conditions of this section there shall be incurred a penalty of ten dollars for each offence and ten dollars additional for every day that such violation shall continue, not exceeding one hundred dollars on any one conviction.

Section 7. The cars to be operated or run upon the extension of the railway of the Plainfield Street Railway Company hereby authorized to be constructed shall be equipped with fenders of the pattern approved by the mayor of the city, and so attached to the cars as best to protect persons and vehicles using the streets and persons riding on the cars from injury.

Section 8. The said company shall build or construct the extension hereby authorized with turnouts and switches in the manner aforesaid and put the same into complete operation for the transportation of passengers on or before July 1st, A. D. 1899, and upon failure so to do or upon failure or neglect to operate the same as aforesaid all the rights, powers and privileges and every one of them of the said company, their successors and assigns, under and by virtue of this supplemental ordinance shall thereupon cease and determine and this ordinance shall be null and void so far as the grant of any such rights, power and privileges to said company is concerned and in either of such cases the Common Council expressly reserve the right to cause the said railroad or any part or parts thereof, so constructed, to be removed from said street or streets or any of them and to sell and dispose of the material thereof by public auction, and, after paying all the expenses of such removal and sale and of repairing the said street or streets and restoring the same, as nearly as possible to its or their original condition, to pay the balance of the proceeds of such sale to the said company or its successors or assigns, provided, that no notice of such sale shall be required to be given, other than an advertisement signed by the city clerk, and published in any one or more newspapers printed and published in said city.

The time during which the said company shall be delayed in the prosecution of its work or in the operation of its road or in any section thereof by injunction or other legal proceedings in the courts of New Jersey, or the Federal Courts shall not be included within the period within which the said extension is to be constructed and put into complete operation.

Section 9. All tracks of the Street Railway Company now laid or hereafter to be laid, are to be copiously watered throughout their entire length and for the space of two feet on each side thereof, twice in each day, from the 15th day of May to the 1st day of October in each year; once before 11 A. M., and once after 2 P. M., and in case of the failure of the Street Railway Company so to do, to the satisfaction of the Street Commissioner or the Common Council, said Company shall pay to the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield the sum of $20.00 per day for each and every day such failure shall continue or exist; such payment to be considered as liquidated damages for such default.

Section 10. That the said Company shall for the fifty years beginning January first, 1899, as compensation for the rights granted under this ordinance, pay the Collector or other receiving officer of the City of Plainfield, for the use of the said City, a sum equal to five per cent of the gross earnings of the Company on the tracks hereby authorized to be laid and for the succeeding twenty-five years shall pay to the Collector or other receiving officer of said City, for the use of said City, a sum not to exceed seven and one-half per cent. and not less than five per cent. of the gross earnings of the Company upon the tracks; and during the next twenty-fours years a sum not greater than ten or less than five per cent. of the gross earnings upon said tracks.

The percentages to be paid as aforesaid for either or both of said last periods of twenty-five and twenty-four years respectively, if not mutually agreed upon between the said City and the said Company within sixty days respectively after the beginning of said respective periods shall be fixed within the limits of the percentages as above specified by three arbitrators, one to be appointed by the City, one by the said company and the third by the Circuit Court of the County of Union on five days notice, and if for either or both of said periods last referred to said Company shall fail to agree with the City upon the percentage or percentages, and also fail to appoint its arbitrator, and notify the City in writing of said appointment within five days after notice to appoint such arbitrator, then the percentage or percentages to be paid by said Company annually for such period or periods respectively, shall be the maximum percentage for such period or periods above specified.

The gross earnings shall be construed to be all the earnings of the Company upon said tracks hereby authorized to be laid, including the full proportion of the earnings on traffic within the City of Plainfield and other traffic to be computed according to the proportion between the length of the journey and the number of miles traveled upon the tracks hereby authorized to be laid, provided that the annual gross earnings of the said company upon said tracks hereby authorized to be laid, shall, for the purpose of entitling the city to said percentage, and fixing the minimum sum on which said percentage shall be paid, be deemed and taken to be not less than such sum as would be produced by adding to all fares of five cents each or less than five cents each, paid during the year upon said portion of said tracks, two and one-half cents each for all other passengers carried upon said tracks or any portion thereof, above the age of ten years, and one and one-half cents each for all other passengers between the age of four and ten years carried over any portion of the tracks hereby authorized to be laid during the year. And to enable such calculation to be readily made the said company, its successors or assigns, will at all times cause separate returns to be made and properly tabulated in its books showing the number of passengers carried and the fares paid upon the line of tracks hereby authorized to be laid or any portion thereof, and the number of passengers carried on any part of said tracks who paid more than five cent fares per passenger, or who paid fares beyond the line of tracks hereby authorized, and also showing the number of passengers carried upon any portion of any of the tracks of said company located within the territory of the city of Plainfield or the Borough of North Plainfield, and the fares paid by them, whether such fares were paid within or without such territory, and a further table showing the proportion of earnings referred to in the first part of this paragraph; and annually between the first day of January and the fifteenth day of January in each year the said Company, its successors and assigns, will file with the City Clerk of said City a complete and detailed statement, signed by its President or Vice-President and its Treasurer, showing in fact what were the gross earnings for the year ending the first day of said month upon said tracks, and a table similarly signed showing in detail the total minimum account of gross earnings as they would be calculated according to the terms of this section, and similar statement showing gross earnings on all the tracks of said Company within the City of Plainfield or the Borough of North Plainfield, either and both.

That to enable the City to ascertain from time to time the amount of gross earnings of such Company, or to ascertain any facts required to be entered as aforesaid, the books of the Company shall from time to time when required, be opened in Plainfield to inspection by the Finance Committee of the Common Council or such other person or persons as the Common Council for that purpose shall designate.

The payment provided for in this section shall, as to the line of tracks hereby authorized, be in lieu of all license fees for cars whether provided for in prior ordinances or not, but the moneys to be paid by said Company to the City, as to all tracks heretofore authorized, shall be determined according to prior ordinances, except that in determining the amounts payable to the City under such prior ordinances, there shall be added to gross receipts on the other tracks the gross receipts on the line of tracks hereby authorized, and when the total in any one year shall equal or exceed Eighty Thousand Dollars for the entire system within the City of Plainfield and the Borough of North Plainfield, including gross earnings on tracks hereby authorized, then for that year and annually thereafter, there shall be paid as aforesaid to the Collector of said City, for the use of the City, five per cent of the gross earnings on tracks heretofore authorized, and on gross earnings on tracks hereby authorized, the percentages hereinabove specified for the same—the intent hereof being that as to the tracks authorized by this ordinance, compensation on the percentage basis above particularly set forth shall be chargeable from the beginning; and as to the tracks authorized by prior ordinances, compensation to the City shall be paid as at present until the total gross receipts of said Company on all its tracks within the territory of said City and Borough, including tracks authorized by this ordinance, shall equal or exceed Eighty Thousand Dollars, and after that, percentages shall be chargeable on all gross receipts as hereinabove particularly specified.

Section 11. That the tracks and cars of said company shall be used for the carrying of passengers only; that no freight car or cars shall be run over any of its tracks, that no freight shall be carried by said company or over its tracks and that no luggage other than hand luggage actually carried by passengers shall be carried or allowed upon the cars of said company, or any other cars passing over said tracks. Nothing herein contained, however, shall prevent the company from carrying the U. S. Mail. That cars shall not be run in trains of more than two cars over any of the tracks of said company and that all cars shall stop upon being signalled by any foot passenger at any street corner past which said tracks are or shall be laid and passengers shall be freely allowed to board said cars or alight therefrom at any street corner and said company shall cause the cars to come to a full stop and sound the gong or bell immediately before turning any curve or crossing such street or streets as may be designated by the Common Council on road now constructed or to be constructed. Any violation of any of the provisions of this section by said company or any of its employes shall be subject to a penalty of Twenty dollars fine for each and every offence.

Section 12. That all the duties or obligations imposed upon said Plainfield Street Railway Company by this ordinance or the contract hereinafter referred to shall be binding and obligatory upon said Company, its successors and assigns, and in case the said company shall lease its tracks or any section of the same, or sell, or assign its franchises, or attempt so to do, said company shall cause to be inserted in any such lease, deed, bill of sale, assignment or other transfer a stipulation and agreement and condition that the same is made subject to the provisions of this ordinance, and the contract herein referred to, and that the lessee, vendee, assignee or other person to whom such lease, conveyance, assignment or transfer may be made or attempted to be made in accepting the same agrees to be bound thereby and to conform thereto and will in turn insert a clause similar to that required by this section in case of any lease, conveyance, assignment or transfer thereof to be made, so that no persons or corporations shall acquire any rights in the premises except subject to the same terms and conditions herein and in said contract provided.

Sec. 13. That the said Company upon the final adoption of this ordinance and before exercising any of the rights and privileges granted hereby shall as a condition precedent execute on its part (after properly filling blanks for dates) and file with the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield a contract between said Company and Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, in the words and figures contained in the draft of said contract filed with the City Clerk December 12, 1898, and endorsed "Contract between Plainfield Street Railway Company and Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, referred to in Street Railway ordinance introduced December 12, 1898," and said contract shall thereupon duly executed on behalf of the City by the Mayor and City Clerk and impressed with the corporate seal of said City.

Sec. 14. That said company shall also at the same time hereinabove specified for filing said contract file a bond to the city in the sum of twenty thousand dollars to be approved as to form by the Common Council and Corporation Counsel of said city, conditioned for the full and faithful keeping, observance and performance of the terms and conditions in this ordinance contained and also the terms and conditions contained in the contract referred to in the last preceding section on the part of this company to be kept, observed and performed. And in case the condition or terms upon which said company is granted permission to locate its tracks and maintain and operate its road or any of the terms or conditions of the said contract are violated, the city reserves to the Collector or other receiving officer of said City, for the use of said City, a sum not to exceed seven and one-half per cent. and not less than five per cent. of the gross earnings of the Company upon the tracks; and during the next twenty-fours years a sum not greater than ten or less than five per cent. of the gross earnings upon said tracks.

The percentages to be paid as aforesaid for either or both of said last periods of twenty-five and twenty-four years respectively, if not mutually agreed upon between the said City and the said Company within sixty days respectively after the beginning of said respective periods shall be fixed within the limits of the percentages as above specified by three arbitrators, one to be appointed by the City, one by the said company and the third by the Circuit Court of the County of Union on five days notice, and if for either or both of said periods last referred to said Company shall fail to agree with the City upon the percentage or percentages, and also fail to appoint its arbitrator, and notify the City in writing of said appointment within five days after notice to appoint such arbitrator, then the percentage or percentages to be paid by said Company annually for such period or periods respectively, shall be the maximum percentage for such period or periods above specified.

The gross earnings shall be construed to be all the earnings of the Company upon said tracks hereby authorized to be laid, including the full proportion of the earnings on traffic within the City of Plainfield and other traffic to be computed according to the proportion between the length of the journey and the number of miles traveled upon the tracks hereby authorized to be laid, provided that the annual gross earnings of the said company upon said tracks hereby authorized to be laid, shall, for the purpose of entitling the city to said percentage, and fixing the minimum sum on which said percentage shall be paid, be deemed and taken to be not less than such sum as would be produced by adding to all fares of five cents each or less than five cents each, paid during the year upon said portion of said tracks, two and one-half cents each for all other passengers carried upon said tracks or any portion thereof, above the age of ten years, and one and one-half cents each for all other passengers between the age of four and ten years carried over any portion of the tracks hereby authorized to be laid during the year. And to enable such calculation to be readily made the said company, its successors or assigns, will at all times cause separate returns to be made and properly tabulated in its books showing the number of passengers carried and the fares paid upon the line of tracks hereby authorized to be laid or any portion thereof, and the number of passengers carried on any part of said tracks who paid more than five cent fares per passenger, or who paid fares beyond the line of tracks hereby authorized, and also showing the number of passengers carried upon any portion of any of the tracks of said company located within the territory of the city of Plainfield or the Borough of North Plainfield, and the fares paid by them, whether such fares were paid within or without such territory, and a further table showing the proportion of earnings referred to in the first part of this paragraph; and annually between the first day of January and the fifteenth day of January in each year the said Company, its successors and assigns, will file with the City Clerk of said City a complete and detailed statement, signed by its President or Vice-President and its Treasurer, showing in fact what were the gross earnings for the year ending the first day of said month upon said tracks, and a table similarly signed showing in detail the total minimum account of gross earnings as they would be calculated according to the terms of this section, and similar statement showing gross earnings on all the tracks of said Company within the City of Plainfield or the Borough of North Plainfield, either and both.

That to enable the City to ascertain from time to time the amount of gross earnings of such Company, or to ascertain any facts required to be entered as aforesaid, the books of the Company shall from time to time when required, be opened in Plainfield to inspection by the Finance Committee of the Common Council or such other person or persons as the Common Council for that purpose shall designate.

The payment provided for in this section shall, as to the line of tracks hereby authorized, be in lieu of all license fees for cars whether provided for in prior ordinances or not, but the moneys to be paid by said Company to the City, as to all tracks heretofore authorized, shall be determined according to prior ordinances, except that in determining the amounts payable to the City under such prior ordinances, there shall be added to gross receipts on the other tracks the gross receipts on the line of tracks hereby authorized, and when the total in any one year shall equal or exceed Eighty Thousand Dollars for the entire system within the City of Plainfield and the Borough of North Plainfield, including gross earnings on tracks hereby authorized, then for that year and annually thereafter, there shall be paid as aforesaid to the Collector of said City, for the use of the City, five per cent of the gross earnings on tracks heretofore authorized, and on gross earnings on tracks hereby authorized, the percentages hereinabove specified for the same—the intent hereof being that as to the tracks authorized by this ordinance, compensation on the percentage basis above particularly set forth shall be chargeable from the beginning; and as to the tracks authorized by prior ordinances, compensation to the City shall be paid as at present until the total gross receipts of said Company on all its tracks within the territory of said City and Borough, including tracks authorized by this ordinance, shall equal or exceed Eighty Thousand Dollars, and after that, percentages shall be chargeable on all gross receipts as hereinabove particularly specified.

Section 11. That the tracks and cars of said company shall be used for the carrying of passengers only; that no freight car or cars shall be run over any of its tracks, that no freight shall be carried by said company or over its tracks and that no luggage other than hand luggage actually carried by passengers shall be carried or allowed upon the cars of said company, or any other cars passing over said tracks. Nothing herein contained, however, shall prevent the company from carrying the U. S. Mail. That cars shall not be run in trains of more than two cars over any of the tracks of said company and that all cars shall stop upon being signalled by any foot passenger at any street corner past which said tracks are or shall be laid and passengers shall be freely allowed to board said cars or alight therefrom at any street corner and said company shall cause the cars to come to a full stop and sound the gong or bell immediately before turning any curve or crossing such street or streets as may be designated by the Common Council on road now constructed or to be constructed. Any violation of any of the provisions of this section by said company or any of its employes shall be subject to a penalty of Twenty dollars fine for each and every offence.

Section 12. That all the duties or obligations imposed upon said Plainfield Street Railway Company by this ordinance or the contract hereinafter referred to shall be binding and obligatory upon said Company, its successors and assigns, and in case the said company shall lease its tracks or any section of the same, or sell, or assign its franchises, or attempt so to do, said company shall cause to be inserted in any such lease, deed, bill of sale, assignment or other transfer a stipulation and agreement and condition that the same is made subject to the provisions of this ordinance, and the contract herein referred to, and that the lessee, vendee, assignee or other person to whom such lease, conveyance, assignment or transfer may be made or attempted to be made in accepting the same agrees to be bound thereby and to conform thereto and will in turn insert a clause similar to that required by this section in case of any lease, conveyance, assignment or transfer thereof to be made, so that no persons or corporations shall acquire any rights in the premises except subject to the same terms and conditions herein and in said contract provided.

Sec. 13. That the said Company upon the final adoption of this ordinance and before exercising any of the rights and privileges granted hereby shall as a condition precedent execute on its part (after properly filling blanks for dates) and file with the City Clerk of the City of Plainfield a contract between said Company and Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, in the words and figures contained in the draft of said contract filed with the City Clerk December 12, 1898, and endorsed "Contract between Plainfield Street Railway Company and Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, referred to in Street Railway ordinance introduced December 12, 1898," and said contract shall thereupon duly executed on behalf of the City by the Mayor and City Clerk and impressed with the corporate seal of said City.

Sec. 14. That said company shall also at the same time hereinabove specified for filing said contract file a bond to the city in the sum of twenty thousand dollars to be approved as to form by the Common Council and Corporation Counsel of said city, conditioned for the full and faithful keeping, observance and performance of the terms and conditions in this ordinance contained and also the terms and conditions contained in the contract referred to in the last preceding section on the part of this company to be kept, observed and performed. And in case the condition or terms upon which said company is granted permission to locate its tracks and maintain and operate its road or any of the terms or conditions of the said contract are violated, the city reserves to the Collector or other receiving officer of said City, for the use of said City, the right to remove the tracks of the said company and all the constructions made in the streets of the city by said company, its successors or assigns.

Section 15. The said Company shall within thirty days next after the passage of this ordinance, file with the City Clerk its acceptance of said ordinance and of the contract hereinbefore referred to, including all the agreements, terms, provisions, restrictions and regulations, and every one thereof in said ordinance or contract contained, which said acceptance shall be under the corporate seal of said Company and shall be signed by the President of said Company; and in default of the filing of such acceptance within the time limited aforesaid, it shall be understood and held that said Company declines to accept the same, and thereupon all rights, powers and privileges to them granted thereby shall forever cease and be at an end in the same manner and with the same effect as if this ordinance had never been passed.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

"What Happened to Jones," George H. Broadhurst's successful farce, comes to Music Hall tonight. In the company will be found Bert C. Thayer, E. Soldene Powell, Berry McDonough, Frank Hope, Philip Calvert, Chas. Greene, Cora Williams, Blanche Johnson, Eleanor Broadhay, Helen Harcourt, Kate Weston and Frances Lois Clarke. The story of the comedy is said to be simple, but to provide good ground work for the complications. Professor Goodly expects a visit to his New York home from his brother, Rev. Anthony Goodly, bishop of Ballarat. In anticipation of this event the most elaborate preparations are made by the wife and daughter of the professor, and his sister-in-law. The professor, in the interest of science and unknown to his family, is induced to attend a prize fight. The place is raided, the house surrounded, and to avoid exposure to himself, the professor palms off Jones as the bishop, and the ensuing complications are both interesting and hilarious. In the end Jones "wins out" and everything ends satisfactorily.

* * * * *

It has withstood the crucial test of time, can be truthfully said of "Muldoon's Picnic," which will be presented at Music Hall next Friday for the first time in this city in some years. It was always the funniest of all Irish comedies, and it has been recently rewritten and brought strictly up to-date. The company presenting it this season is the best ever seen in the play. Among the members is Barney Furguson, whom everyone knows as the best and funniest of all stage Irishmen, and his specialties are marked by an originality and finish that only the true artist can give them. He will be ably assisted in the fun-making by such excellent and well-known comedians as Charles Gorman, Seth Crane, Frank Wallace, Sig Hart, Dick Ferguson, Wm. Bryant, George Henry, Grace Plaisted, Vera Wilson, Lizzie Graham, Bonnie Butler, Little Velma and others of the company. Many new bright and original musical and dancing specialties will be introduced through the play, and an evening of unalloyed fun is sure to be had by all who are at the opera house.

* * * * *

Minnie Lester's Company, which appears at Music Hall next week, in addition to her suberb orchestra, will introduce six new bright sparkling comedies intermingling with the performance each night. Several specialties will be introduced by George Scott, Joseph DeKolfe, Henry Linten, Albert Hart, Joe Frank and George Richardson. Miss Lester, in addition to the above, carries the latest wargraph machine which will introduce between the acts a series of startling and instructive pictures referring to the sinking of the Maine, the battle of Santiago and Dewey's victory at Manila. The machine also carries a duplex attachment which serves to illustrate the songs which the singer introduces each evening.

Money Came Too Late.

The case of Rev. Joseph B. Jennings, formerly pastor of Grace church, Westfield, was recalled Saturday by the inquiry of a Baltimore firm concerning his whereabouts. According to the provisions of a will of a college friend, made many years ago, when Mr. Jennings first entered the ministry, he was left a small legacy. Jennings died some time ago in a New York hospital in extreme poverty.

THE TRAITS OF LOWELL.

THE FAMOUS AUTHOR DISCUSSED BY PROFESSOR SMYTH.

Last of the First Series of University Lectures Given in the Y. M. C. A. Hall Before Large, Cultured Audience.

The last of the course of six lectures given at the Y. M. C. A. under the auspices of the University Extension Society took place last evening and was largely attended. Prof. Albert H Smyth, professor of the English language and literature, Central High School, Philadelphia, was the lecturer. The subject was "James Russell Lowell and American Culture." Prof Smyth handled it with the same ease that has characterized the previous lectures. He did not try to hide any of the mischievous traits of this noted statesman, but depicted him in a plain and everyday manner.

He stated that Mr. Lowell was born in a year when so many illustrious men first saw the light of day, both in this country and across the water. He was a Harvard student, but one that did not attend strictly to his studies. He was not altogether unlike the elder Dana, who received his degree fifty years after leaving college. In 1848 he appeared in literature and from that time until 1891 he was busily engaged in this work. He was a critic, essayist, poet and statesman of no mean ability, and the variety of his verse, humor, and his writings of the songs of freedom and of majestic memorial odes, were of the highest character.

Prof. Smyth gave an analysis of "The Vision of Sir Launfal," and his description of "The Biglow Papers" was greatly enjoyed. The speaker's portrayal of Mr. Lowell's humor was a source of pleasure, and he read several selections of the authors best writings in this line.

After the lecture an informal discussion of the subject followed. These lectures will be continued again early in January when Prof. Macey will give a series.

ROPES OF HUMAN HAIR.

One of Them Kept in the Great Museum of the Smithsonian Institution.

In the thirteenth year of Meiji (1880) Hiramatz Rei, High Priest of Japan and chief dignitary at the Temple Hon-zan, which is the principal temple in the Japanese Empire, decided to rebuild a portion of the Hon-gwan-ji Temple at Kioto, and after the manner of priests and other religious leaders in all countries, called upon the faithful to aid in the enterprise.

Those to whom he and his subordinate priests ministered, being devout Buddhists, gave of that which they had. Many gave gold and silver, and others, which to Americans will seem strange, gave of the hair from their heads.

Immense quantities of hair were given. They were sent to Hiramatz Rei from eight provinces of Japan, and were considered the most sacred of all the gifts that were received for the construction of the temple, it being a great sacrifice for a follower of Buddha to part with his or her hair. Under the direction of the Buddhist priests these gifts of hair were made into ropes—ropes that could lift the heaviest timbers that were used in the restoration of the temple. So great was the aggregate quantity of hair contributed by the faithful that fifty-three long lines of ropes were made of it. These ropes, had they been placed end to end, would have measured 9,972 feet, and their combined weight was 23,517 pounds.

During the rebuilding of the Hongwan-ji Temple many foreigners tried to get portions of these hair ropes, but it was not until 1890 that the priests could be prevailed upon to part with any portion of these curious yet sacred instruments which they were using in there construction of their temple, and then only would they part with a portion of one of the ropes as a gift to the American people.

When the priests of the Temple Hong-wan-ji were asked for a piece of one of the ropes they refused to part with it, fearing that it would be profaned by being in the hands of unbelievers, but when Hiramatz Rei was asked for it and was told that it would be received by the American nation as an especial gift, and, as such, kept in its great museum the Smithsonian Institution, he gave a piece of one of the old ropes to the people of the United States. The piece of rope was sent to this country as quickly as possible after it had been prepared for shipment, and is now in Washington. How many thousands of hairs there are in it no one knows, and how many millions upon millions of hairs there were in the original 23,517 pounds of rope no one can guess.—New York Times.

A NOBLE CHARITY.

Sisters Who Attend to the Care of a House as Well as Nurse the Sick.

An order of sisters has been established in New York, whose work impresses one at first sight as being the truest charity. It is called the Little Sisters of the Assumption, instituted originally in England, and its object is to care for the sick poor in their homes. The sisters work not only as nurses in the limited sense of the word, devoting themselves exclusively to the sick room, but more especially looking after the care of the house and the needs of the little children in the case, for instance, when a mother is obliged to stay in bed and leave everything to the working husband and the three or four little ones who may be about. The sisters go early in the morning to such a home, and, after giving the sick one whatever care and medicine she needs, they put the house in order, wash and dress the children if necessary, cook for them and for the mother, stay as nurses through the day when they are needed, and before they go they have the father's dinner or supper cooked and ready for him, put the children to bed and arrange everything for the sick mother during the night. The novices, besides being trained as competent home nurses, are thoroughly taught every detail of housework, and as their services are free to all who need them, they must be a real blessing to the afflicted poor, for whom sickness is a dreadful thing, not only in itself, but even more, perhaps, on account of the absolute neglect of the necessary duties of decent living that it generally involves. The Sisters are supported by voluntary contributions, and these they are not permitted to receive individually, but the offerings must be presented at the convent as a free gift. Many of those whom they care for give whatever small sum they are able to in gratitude for their services, but it is wholly unlooked for, and is a matter always of their own personal feeling of indebtedness. The support of the order must depend naturally on the charitably disposed among those who are blessed with this world's goods, but undoubtedly many of these, to whom the care of the sick poor has been a very real and heartbreaking problem, are glad to entrust their means to these good Sisters, who have solved it so well.—St. Mary's Hospital News.

"BILLY RAILROAD," THE GOAT.

He Is Owned by a Railway and Is Worth Big Money.

The International and Great Northern Railroad of Texas has a trained goat in its employ. The goat receives no salary for his services, but he receives the best of treatment and seems to fully appreciate the important position which he holds with the railroad corporation. This goat is used to load sheep on cars, and is well known to all the shippers along that line of road. He was raised in Mexico, near the town of Lampazos, on the line of the Mexican National Railroad. To all appearances he was only an ordinary goat and great was the surprise of his owner when, about a year ago, the goat, of his own free will, paid a visit to the stock pens at Lampazos, where a shipment of goats was being loaded, and led a big flock of stampeded animals back into the pens and into the cars.

The value of this particular goat was quickly recognized, and for several months he had regular employment as leader in rounding up and loading shipments of goats at Lampazos and other places along the line of the Mexican National. He had the Mexican name of "Guillermo Ferrocarril," which in English means "Billy Railroad." A few months ago a large shipment of sheep was to be made from Laredo, Texas, on the line of the international and Great Northern road. "Billy Railroad" was sent for, and he handled the big flock of sheep better than a force of twenty men could have done.

"Billy" has been employed at almost every shipping place on the line of the International and Great Northern road, and his value is appreciated to such an extent that a large price was offered for him by the Southern Pacific company. He is now owned jointly by the Mexican National and the International and Great Northern roads.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

My Toy Experience

is based upon all the year knowledge. I know the best place to buy games, blocks, iron toys, wooden toys, wagons, sleds, dolls, doll carriages, trunks, drums and all the other kinds of toys.

I do not lodge my entire order in one place, but each man gets the order for the toys on which he is the best. I try to buy the worthy kind just as far as it is possible—the ones that I believe in and can recommend to last That doesn't mean that they will never break, for that's not possible as long as boys are boys and girls are girls, but there is as much strength in them as I can get for the prices.

CURRENT COMMENT.

Officers of the Government have been obliged to eject 85,000 sheep from Yosemite Park. To teach the owners who have so little regard for Government property a lesson the animals should have been confiscated. Nothing but a loss in cash will make some persons realize the proprieties.

According to the agricultural papers the farm products of the United States this year will be worth at least $1,000,000,000 more than in 1895. The balance of trade in favor of this country during the past two years reaches the same amount. This nation could carry on a tolerably expensive war out of its annual profits alone.

There is a great deal of talk about the suffrage in the Louisiana Constitutional Convention, but one of the state papers tells the delegates that the man who will devote his energies to measures for the relief of the maimed confederate soldiers, and the other man who will labor to further the cause of education will be the true heroes, and will be largest and most gratefully remembered by the people of the Pelican State.

If battle-ships are to be faster and to have an increased steaming radius, they must be larger. The speed of Cervera's ships was due to the fact that they were protected rather than armored. But battle-ships must be completely encased in heavy armor, and to be swift the size of the engines must be considerably enlarged. Such vessels will require deep harbors and immense docking facilities. All of these conditions can and will be met in the future American navy, but the problem is not as simple as might be supposed.

Advices from Honolulu show that the annexation of Hawaii has attracted to the islands a host of newcomers—most of them persons of small means—who might better have remained at home. While the territory undoubtedly offers many attractive opportunities for business men commanding large capital, it has very few, if any, for those lacking money and influence. Hawaii is by no means a new country. It is already well developed; its resources are under the control of men who settled there long ago, and the person who goes out expecting to make his fortune without taking a reasonable amount of capital along with him is bound to be disappointed.

Pretty Home Wedding Celebrated in the Borough

HANDSOME DECORATIONS.

REV. CORNELIUS SCHENCK PERFORMS THE CEREMONY.

The Bride Was Miss Emily Leeds Austin—Frank Kleinhans the Groom—Ceremony Performed Beneath an Arch of Evergreens—Bride Gowned in White Organdie-Groom College Graduate

One of the prettiest home weddings of the winter season took place last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Vermeule, of 28 Jackson avenue, when their niece, Miss Emily Leeds Austin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Austin, of Warrenville, was united in marriage to Frank B. Kleinhans, of Easton, Pa.

Promptly at 6:30 o'clock, the appointed hour, the strains of the wedding march were played by Clifford Braider. At the same time the ushers, Arthur Austin, brother of the bride, and Frederick M. Townley, of Sayreville, N. J., cousin of the bride, entered the parlor, followed by the maid-of-honor, Miss Elizabeth G. Austin, sister of the bride. Then appeared the bride, leaning on the arm of her father, who gave her away in marriage. Near the centre of the room the party met the groom and best man, Arthur Kleinhans, brother of the groom, of Easton, Pa., and beneath an arch of choice evergreens, Rev. Cornelius Schenck, Ph D., pastor of Trinity Reformed church, impressively pronounced the marriage ceremony making the happy couple husband and wife.

After the ceremony the bride and groom received the congratulations of their many friends, who showed their appreciation of the young couple by the many handsome and useful gifts presented to them.

The house was prettily decorated for the event with palms, ferns, potted plants and choice cut flowers. The bride wore a gown of white organdie trimmed with white lace over white silk, and she carried bridal roses. The maid-of-honor was gowned in white organdie over pale green silk and she carried a bouquet of roses.

A reception followed the ceremony, after which supper was served so the bride and groom could take the 9:55 o'clock train for Philadelphia, where the groom has furnished a handsome home for himself and wife to begin housekeeping.

The groom is a graduate of Lafayette College, Class of '97, and now holds a valued position at the Baldwin Locomotive Works, Philadelphia.

There were about seventy guests present, including friends and relatives from Easton, Pa., Astoria, L. I., Sayreville, N. J., New York, Philadelphia, Flemington, Cranford and Plainfield.

CHISTMAS BOX FOR SOLDIERS.

J. J. Kenney and Henry Haurand are Getting up One for Plainfielders.

J. J. Kenney and Henry Haurand are getting up a Christmas box for the Plainfield boys in the Third New Jersey Volunteers now encamped at Athens, Ga. The box will be sent Monday and Mr. Kenney will receive any donations for it that the friends of the soldier boys care to give.

Mr. Kenney has been in correspondence with Thomas Platt, president of the United States Express Company, and has secured free transportation of the box over the lines of that company. The same courtesy will probably be secured from the Southern Express Company.

Death of an Aged Woman.

The death of Mrs. Catharine Conchea, aged 82 years, of 57 Pearl street, in the borough, occurred this morning after a long illness. Deceased had lived in the borough for many years and was well known. The particulars regarding the funeral will be announced tomorrow.

FIGHTING DEATH ALONE.

AWFUL PLIGHT OF WIDOW OF JOHN VARETTE.

Husband Killed By Train—Two Children Dead and Two Dying of Diphtheria—Living on Charity of Neighbors.

The lot of the Varettte family, at Berkeley Heights, is a hard one. Several months ago the father was killed by the cars at Summit. Two weeks ago the eldest daughter fell a victim to diphtheria. Monday another girl passed away from the same dread disease, and now the two remaining children are very ill with it. The mother, who is caring for them, is in very destitute circumstances, and has been compelled to live on the charity of the neighbors.

The second victim of diphtheria in the family was the daughter, Victoria, ten years old. Death might have been successfully encountered with proper treatment. The other children are now in a precarious condition, the disease being aggravated by the lack of proper food and treatment.

When John Varette died he left the family in want. He had a kiln of brick in his brickyard nearly completed but his creditors came and finished it and took all the proceedings leaving none for the widow and fatherless children. Since then the neighbors have been helping them and thus kept starvation away from the door. Now that diphtheria reigns outsiders dare not enter and the family are in a still worse plight.

George Wahl and Frank Soles, of Berkeley Heights, sent a ton of coal to the house which has kept them from freezing. Gus Daderline contributed $5 in cash that bought for them the necessities of life. Others have given provisons in various quantities.

IONA'S SIXTH ANNIVERSARY.

Programme of Music and Recitations was Presented.

Iona Council, No. 14, Degree of Pocohontas, celebrated its sixth anniversary last night with an entertainment and dance in Red Men's Hall on West Front street. A programme of music and recitations was presented, supper was served, and the anniversary closed with a dance which lasted until after midnight.

The committee in charge, who were Mrs. William Westphal, Mrs. Edward Bowman, Mrs. Holstein, Miss Elizabeth Dunlap, Mrs. Fred Westphal, Miss Ella Sebring, Mrs. Horton, Mrs. Denckiau and Mrs. Stephens, deserve credit for the elaborate decorations of the hall.

The entertainment consisted of vocal solos by Mrs. William Westphal and Miss Ethel Reynolds; recitations by Miss Ada Westphal, Miss Clara Weber and Willie Westphal, and a cornet solo by Zep Sorensen.

COMPLETE SURPRISE.

A complete surprise was given to Mrs. John Pool, of LaGrande avenue, last evening in honor of the celebration of the anniversary of her birthday. The affair was arranged by Mrs. Henry Palmer and Mrs. Stryker. During the evening refreshments were served. Those present included the following: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Ephraim Compton, Mr. and Mrs. D. N. Force, Mr. and Mrs. Hillard, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Stryker, Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Vail, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Weaver, Ephraim Vail, Clarence Vail, Miss Edith Vail, Miss Mabel Vail, Miss Margaret Vail, Mrs. Morrison, Miss Morrison, Mrs. E. THINGS FOR CHRISTMAS.

A PRESS REPORTER CONTINUES HIS TOUR THROUGH LOCAL SHOPS.

Peck's Store is Filled With a Fine Grade—Packer's Furniture is Substantial—Putnam & DeGraw's Seasonable.

Peck, of West Front street, is one of the oldest advertisers in the city. He began running a column ad in The Constitutionalist in 1871, an unheard of proceeding at that time, and has advertised with The Daily Press since its birth. Peck handles a line of goods peculiarly his own, and has sold these same lines ever since he has been in business.

Peck's specialties are fine handkerchiefs, laces, kid gloves, linens and linen goods. Peck's line of handkerchiefs is not to be equaled anywhere in the city. In addition to these this season he has a line of fancy, hand-painted fans, centrepieces, renaissance, hand-embroidered linen, damask towels, ribbons, sterling silver tipped pocketbooks, sterling silver jewelry and everything in the fancy line, most of the articles not handled by dry goods stores generally. Peck is experiencing a Christmas rush just as the other merchants in town are doing, for Plainfield shoppers have learned not to go to New York for these goods when they can be bought just as cheaply here as they can there, and when there is such a large stock to select from.

With the coming of every season, the appearance of G. Q. Packer's furniture store is changed. Within the past two weeks the whole main floor has been transformed, and presents a holiday look. Packer, too, handles a particular kind of goods. Everything is of the best, and Plainfield people know it and patronize him.

The assortment of holiday goods is at its height now. It is Mr. Packer's desire to keep up the stock to its present perfect state, but some choice things are sure to be sold, articles that cannot be duplicated. These goods will not be sold one cent cheaper the week after Christmas than they are selling today, so the best thing to do is to buy early, and thus secure the best bargains. Anything bought before 10 o'clock Christmas Eve will be delivered that night, and the store contains many articles already which have been purchased and are not to be delivered until the day before Christmas. The assortment is too large to mention particularly. A new feature this year is an assortment of fancy articles, and it is safe to say that anything in the furniture line, from a tencent workbasket up to a handsome cabinet or suit, can be purchased here this season. The stock is not all to be found in the front of the store by any means. A great many heavy pieces are in the rear, and also in the basement.

Putnam & DeGraw have made more of an effort this season in the purchase of their holiday stock, and as a result show a larger stock and a greater variety of goods than ever before. The goods are all new, and are not only good goods, but low priced ones, too. The firm have paid particular attention this year to gathering together a fine line of staple goods, such as underwear, hosiery and fancy articles.

There are two or three special lines for which this firm has always been noted as keeping, perfumes, gentlemen's furnishings and handkerchiefs. Their neckwear has always been well selected and complete, but this season it is even more so than usual. Their stock of fancy goods is original and attracts the attention of the purchaser as she or he enters the store. A full description of their line can be seen in their half-page advertisement on the special Christmas cover of The Daily Press which will be issued Saturday.

The members enjoyed a lunch at the noon hour and the session was continued until 4 o'clock in the afternoon.

A Consecration Service.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church will hold a consecration service next Friday evening at the church. The meeting will be conducted from memory, and the members are expected to respond in the same manner. No Bibles or hymn books will be used.

CHANGES MADE IN TAX ASSESSMENTS.

Commissioners of Appeal Have Completed Their Labors.

SYNOPSIS OF THE RESULTS.

OUT OF 265 COMPLAINTS, 206 WERE GRANTED BY COMMISSIONERS.

The Total Amount of Assessed Valuations Reduced by $109,435—Taxes to the Amount of $2,695.15 Were Remitted—The Commissioners of Appeal Found a Host of Objectors This Year.

The host of complaints against the present arrangement of the tax assessments gave the Commissioners of Appeal of this city an unusually difficult session. Heretofore there has hardly been a score of objectors but this year the number swelled to 265. The hearings of the Commissioners were held about a month ago and testimony taken in each complaint. Since then the Commissioners have been busy considering those complaints. Their labors are now completed.

Out of the 265 complaints made to the Commissioners, 206 have been granted and the valuation adjusted or the tax remitted as the case happened to be. The result shows $109,435 deducted from the assessed valuation and $2,695.15 the amount of tax remitted.

BICYCLE THIEF GOES TO PRISON.

Colored Man Who Stole Frank Denckau's Wheel Gets Eighteen Months.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, December 15.—In county court yesterday the case of W. R. Gray, colored, who is accused of stealing a bicycle from Frank Denckau, of Plainfield, was brought up and the offender arraigned for sentence before Judge Vail, assisted by Judge Bartine, of Somerset county, who heard the trial a short time ago while presiding in the absence of the former, who was sick. Gray was sentenced to State Prison for eighteen months.

An important decision that will affect this city was rendered by Judge Vail in the case of the township of Fanwood against the city of Elizabeth. It was to determine which municipality should support an old woman. She had lived in Fanwood for some time, but for nearly a year has been in the Elizabeth almshouse. The case was tried before a justice, who said the woman had a freehold in Fanwood. Judge Vail said he found that she did not hold that freehold for a year, and consequently she ought to be supported by the city of Elizabeth. He therefore reversed the decision of the justice, which is a victory for Township Counsel Codington.

WILL WIFE PAY BILLS?

INTERESTING DISPUTE HEARD IN THE COUNTY COURT.

The Case Was That of James E. Codington Against Caroline Clark—Decision Was Reserved by Judge Vail.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, December 15.—The case of James E. Codington against Caroline Clark, on appeal, was tried before Judge Vail in the Union County Common Pleas Court yesterday without a jury.

The testimony of the plaintiff was that in 1893 he began selling vegetables to the defendant on her representation to him that she was a part owner of the property where she lived and that she had a separate business of her own namely, a boarding house business, and that she would buy of him and would pay the bills. That she frequently said after obtaining credit that there were rents due her from her properties which she could not get, but that he would not lose a dollar as she would get the money and pay him. That she also promised to try and borrow the money at a later date of Mrs. Lannon. That her husband had nothing whatever to do with running the place, and that when he ordered a chicken of plaintiff for the house, the defendant found fault about it and said that her husband had nothing to do with her business.

The defendant swore that she did not keep any boarders until 1896. That she did not receive a cent of board or pay from her aunt and her brother's son, who were in the family, during the whole time that plaintiff was dealing with her. That Mr. Clark supplied the house and that his money which he made by working at his trade paid for everything outside of what the boarders' money paid for.

She denied having made the agreement with plaintiff in 1893, and said she had never agreed to be responsible for the debt.

Mr. Clark took the stand and supported his wife's testimony, saying that he was the head of the house and supported his family, and paid all the bills except what were paid with the boarders' money.

As it was necessary under the law to prove the special contract of the wife in order to bind her, the Court took time to consider and reserved decision until Wednesday next.

Codington & Swackhamer represented the plaintiff, and Winfield S. Angleman the defendant.

TROUBLE OVER INSURANCE.

Doctors Refuse to Testify to Cause of Death Accident or Not?

Regarding the insurance on the life of the late Robert Randolph, which still remains unpaid, there seems to be some trouble. It will be remembered that after Mr. Randolph's death an autopsy was held by Drs. Tomlinson and Hedges. Previous to this time Mr. Randolph's body had been examined by County Physician Westcott and Dr. Probasco, the family physician. After the autopsy it was given out that it was the supposition of those in charge of the autopsy that death was due to concussion of the brain, but at the same time it was also stated that the true origin of death was veiled in mystery. Mr. Randolph carried an accident policy for $2,000 and had held it long enough to pay between $40 and $50 in premiums. The company holding Mr. Randolph's policy stand willing to pay the $2,000 if the physicians will give the cause of death, providing it was accidental, and will sign their names to that effect. That, it is said, the physicians will not do, and thus Mrs. Randolph is seemingly deprived of receiving what no doubt belongs to her. Just how the case will be settled is a mystery and it will be watched with interest.

The Filmore Baptist Church Fair.

The fair at the Filmore Baptist church was continued last night. There was a large attendance, and a programme of singing by mixed voices was presented. Tonight the Chinese wedding will take place, at which Miss Hattie Wood will represent the bride and Howard Lowry the groom. In addition to the booths described yesterday, there is the grocery department presided over by Charles VanDervilt, Miss Viola Robinson and Miss Bettie Lanon, and the fancy table in charge of Miss Sallie Cooper.

To Rough It.

Henry Leal, of Central avenue, left this morning for Nebraska, where he will spend several months on his uncle's ranch. He will be absent until June when he will probably return to enter Yale University in the fall. There were a number of his friends of the Alls and Bachelor Clubs at the station this morning to see him off.

STOLE EDITOR'S HORSE.

THOMAS SCOTT, OF PASSAIC VALLEY NEWS, IN HARD LUCK.

Some Naughty Man Entered His Barn Saturday Night and Appropriated the Editor's Faithful Equine—No Clue.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Summit, December 15. — Editor Thomas Scott, of the Passaic Valley News, which appears weekly from its office in West Summit, is justly wroth. Somebody has stolen his horse. While a firm advocate of the principle that the pen is mightier than the sword, Editor Scott thinks that in this case a little force is eminently justifiable. So he and his friends are scouring the country far and wide in search of the missing equine and the man who so unrighteously appropriated it.

The office of the Passaic Valley News is in an old dwelling house in the settlement known as West Summit, which lies between Summit and New Providence. The editorial and business office is on the first floor, while the composing and press rooms are located above. In the rear of the house is a barn.

As The News is circulated through all the little towns in and bordering on the Passaic Valley, Editor Scott has found a horse and buggy very convenient in collecting the happenings of that section. Saturday afternoon the horse was returned to its stall after a short drive. Sunday morning the genial scribe went to feed his faithful assistant ere departing for morning worship. To his surprise he found that the lock had been pried off the barn door and the steed was gone.

When his neighbors heard of the loss another horse was tendered to the editor with which he might institute a search for the missing one. That afternoon Editor Scott went forth together with some half a score of his neighbors to look for the beast. And they are still looking.

NEARLY RUN OVER BY HOSE WAGON.

Bewildered Woman Ran Directly in Front of Gazelle Carriage Yesterday.

A small cloud of steam issuing from the building on North avenue occupied by Tony Lusardi, was thought to be smoke, and an alarm was sent in from box 13 yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock. It proved to be the vent to the old sewer and no fire after all. The whistle was out of order and did not sound.

When No. 2 hose carriage turned the corner of Second street and Park avenue the carriage slid across the roadway and struck a pole on the sidewalk. Walter Harrison, who was standing on the step, escaped serious injury by jumping.

A woman became bewildered at the noise and ran directly in front of Gazelle hose carriage as it turned the same corner. She had a very narrow escape from being run over by the apparatus.

Many Society People Called—Parlors Trimmed in Pink.

Yesterday afternoon was the second and last "at home" of Mrs. John Bushnell and her daughter, Miss Helen Frances Bushnell, following their large reception of last month. Many friends availed themselves of this opportunity to call. The parlors were prettily decorated with pink roses and shaded lights, the same color prevailing in the dining room, where dainty refreshments were served. Mrs. Frank Bushnell and Mrs. Schoonmaker presided at the table, assisted by Mrs. F. H. Andrews, Mrs. Curtis and Mrs. Louise Bushnell, Charlotte Lowe, Mary Whiton, Jessie Bushnell, Miss Burke and Miss Porter, of Ottawa, Ill.

WESTFIELD DOWNED IN THREE GAMES.

Parks Rolled Wonderful Scores on Their Own Alleys.

'TWAS LIKE OLD TIMES.

LAST GAME WAS WON BY ONLY FOUR PINS.

The Result Has Placed the Parks Second In the League, While Westfield Fell Down to Fourth Place—Parks Won First Game by 118 Pins—Their Score Within One of League Team Record—Finishes.

It was like the good old days. The Parks came to the front again with some phenomenal bowling and buried their old rivals from Westfield out of sight in three games. It was real bowling and made the hearts of the old enthusiasts grow young again. The result of it all is that the Parks are now in line for second place in the Central Journal Bowling League.

To sum it up briefly, the Park Club defeated the Westfield Athletic Club three times last evening on the Park Club alleys, first badly, second fairly and third by a wee small margin.

Westfield stood second in the league and came up with the intention of getting the best of the series with the Parks, at least. While the Parks defeated Roselle one game, the only game they they have lost this season, the Plainfield contingent had not done anything particular brilliant so far.

The first game opened with a rather poor showing for the home team. On the second frame Westfield was 32 pins in the lead. Then there came a great change. With an irresistable rush the Parks swept to the front. Westfield couldn't even keep them in sight. Strikes and spares became commonplace events. At the end of six frames the Parks were over 50 pins in the lead. When the windup came Westfield was so far behind that she might just as well not have been there at all. The Parks won by the comfortable margin of 118 pins. It wasn't the work of any one man in the home team, they all had the winning spirit and their scores were all good. The score, 852, was within one pin of the best rolled in the league this year.

Westfield made a brace for the second game and took the lead. It wasn't by a large majority but enough to say that they were ahead. The Parks cantered comfortably after until the seventh frame was reached, then they tied. Westfield gradually showed signs of becoming demoralized. The pins wouldn't fall and the Parks went into the lead winning out by some 21 pins.

The same tactics were noted in the third game. Westfield made a jump for the lead in the first frame and took it with the Parks only a few pins behind. The first half of the game seemed in favor of the visitors. They were in the lead but could not shake their opponents. At the fifth frame the old time Park Club spirit began to manifest itself. In the sixth strikes by Hibbard, F. O Ball and "Doc" Thiers brought the Parks up to within two pins of their rivals. A double by the doctor and spares by the rest sent the Parks into the lead by 19 pins in the seventh. And in the lead they stayed despite Westfield's strongest efforts to dislodge them. The lead was cut down to 6 pins in the ninth and four in the tenth frame, but the Parks were still there and Westfield had to rest content with defeat.

Captain F. O. Ball set a rattling good example for his team-mates, scoring 204, but his father was in rather poor form.

The individual scores were as follows:

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys.
Cure all kidney ills.
Hundreds of Citizens testify to this.
Here is a case in point:

Mrs R. Wortman, living with her daughter, Mrs. S. E Cook, of 204 Somerset street, says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills with good results for severe pain across my back and hips, which no doubt was caused by the kidneys being out of order. It was painful for me to stoop or bend forward and I could not sit 10 minutes in one position, but had to be constantly changing about. It was the same way at night time. I used many different kinds of medicine recommended for kidney troubles, but I could not see that any of them benefitted me. Doan's Kidney Pills were procured for me at L. W. Randolph's drug store, and it is the only remedy that I ever used that gave me any relief. I always keep a supply of them on hand and would not think of being without them. I can recommend Doan's Kidney Pills and advise all who suffer with a lame back to give them a fair trial."

DISORDERS AT HAVANA

The Texas Departs For That Port to Preserve Our Rights.

MORE SOLDIERS ARRIVING

The Brooklyn Coaling to Follow. Landing of Gen. Lee and His Staff. His Policy as Governor of the Province. More of Our Troops Marched Through the City.

Norfolk, Va., December 15.—The United States battle-ship Texas commanded by Capt. Sigsbee, and flying the pennant of Commodore Philip, passed out the Virginia Capes yesterday, bound for Havana, where she has been ordered, with the Brooklyn, Castine, and Resolute, on account of the riots there and to protect American interests. The Texas is fully coaled and provisioned and carries much ammunition. She is in first-class condition. She should reach Havana by Friday night.

The cruiser Brooklyn arrived at Hampton Roads from New York at one o'clock this afternoon. She will coal immediately and follow the Texas to Havana.

Havana, December 14.—The United States transport Panama, with Gen. Fitzhugh Lee and his staff on board, entered the harbor yesterday morning. When Gen. Lee was informed of his appointment as Governor of the province of Havana, he said that he was much gratified, but had only wished for a military command. He added that his duty was to preserve life and property, and that he proposed to do so with equal justice to Cubans, Spaniards, and persons of other nationalities.

Gen. Lee's headquarters will be established at Quemando Camp, Marianac. Many personal friends called on him, including Gen. Green and Capt. Chadwick of the United States cruiser New York. Later in the morning Gen. Lee and his staff accompanied Gen. Green in a tug and started for Vedado, where he reported to Gen. Wade. Thence Gen. Lee went on horseback to Quemado Camp.

A battalion of the Tenth infantry was landed from the United States transport Saratoga, and marched, with band playing and flags flying, to Marianao. The soldiers were followed by crowds of people. At every street corner two Spanish soldiers were stationed. There was some enthusiasm in the Cerro suburbs.

The troops which arrived here on the Michigan and Panama are all well.

The shooting on Sunday night was nearly all done by Spanish officers armed with pistols and by soldiers off duty. None has been arrested.

Havana is quiet to-day.

Missouri Pacific Gets the Alton.

St. Louis, Dec. 15.—A private message from New York says that a deal by which the Missouri Pacific Railroad comes into the possession of the Chicago and Alton has just been concluded there.

New York, Dec. 15.—The above bulletin was taken to the office of George Gould, president of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, for confirmation. Mr. Gould refused to be interviewed, sending word that he had nothing to say on the subject and knew nothing at all about it.

Filipinos Demand $20,000,000.

Madrid, Dec. 15.—There is great irritation here at the continued refusal of the Filipinos to release the Spanish prisoners, who are said to exceed ten thousand in number.

The insurgents are now demanding that Spain pay as a ransom for these prisoners the 20,000,000 which she is to receive, according to the terms of the peace treaty, from the United States as compensation for money expended in the betterment of the Philippine islands.

Gifts to McGill University.

Montreal, Dec. 15.—At a meeting of the board of governors of McGill University Lord Strathcona announced his intention of endowing the new Victoria College for Women, which he built at a cost of $250,000, to the amount of one million dollars.

Mr. W. C. McDonald, the millionaire tobacco man, who has given several millions to the university, also announced that he intended to endow the chair of history in the arts faculty.

Senate Commission to Cuba.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—Mr. Proctor, Republican of Vermont, offered in the Senate yesterday a resolution for the appointment of a committee of five senators to visit the islands of Cuba and Porto Rico and inquire into the condition of the islands and into the military force necessary to be kept in them.

The resolution was referred to the committee on contingent expenses.

Former Mayor Suicides.

Winsted, Conn., Dec. 15.—Charles M. Chase, a prominent citizen of this borough, of which he was four times mayor, and a well known figure in Republican state politics, was found dead in his room at the Hotel Winchester yesterday.

His death was caused by asphyxiation. The supposition is that he had turned on the gas with suicidal intent.

EXCHANGE OF COURTESIES.

Our Representatives in Paris Call on President Faure.

Paris, Dec. 15.—The United States peace commissioners, with the American ambassador, General Horace Porter, and the Spanish peace commissioners, with the ambassador of Spain, Senor Leon y Castillo, called upon President Faure and the minister of foreign affairs, M. Delcasse, yesterday, to thank them for kindnesses extended to the commissioners while at the French capital.

President Faure spoke partly in French and English, and Judge Day responded for the Americans. In the name of President McKinley he thanked President Faure for the uniform courtesy extended to the Americans here, and remarked that Paris had been the scene of the most important negotiations between the United States and foreign powers, particularly the signing of the treaty by which England recognized the independence of the United States.

President Faure requested the American commissioners to convey to President McKinley and the American people expressions of the warm sympathy of France and wished them a pleasant voyage.

M. Delcasse said that he regretted that his position as the representative of a neutral power had made it inadvisable for him to have cultivated a more intimate acquaintance with the American commissioners.

Judge Day particularly thanked the minister of foreign affairs for the dinner at which M. Delcasse brought together the American and Spanish commissioners, "thus establishing pleasant relations which continued throughout the negotiations."

The American commissioners were accompanied by Secretaries Moore and McArthur.

M. Delcasse showed them the table on which the treaty of the French-American alliance and the treaty of 1783 had been signed, and urged our commissioners to come to the exposition of 1900.

Presents for the Soldiers.

New York, Dec. 15.—The transport Mississippi left her dock at the foot of Pacific street, Brooklyn, yesterday afternoon, laden among other things, with Christmas presents for the soldiers and other government employes in Cuba and Porto Rico.

The presents are carried free of cost, the only thing necessary being the statement that it is a bona fide Christmas present.

The war department some time ago conceived the idea of sending presents free and obtained the president's permission to admit the packages free of duty into Cuba and Porto Rico.

Packages will be sent free every week until further notice, provided that they are properly addressed and delivered at the dock not later than Wednesday noon.

A letter must be sent, as there is no store house provided at the other end of the route.

The ship leaving next Wednesday will reach Cuban ports in time for Christmas.

A Cold Spell.

New York, Dec. 15.—Yesterday was the coldest December 14 on record. The mercury registered eleven degrees at 6 a. m., in the city.

Reports from other portions of the country show the cold to have been unusually severe for this time of year. In northern New York the thermometer registered from 16 to 26 degrees below zero.

In Waterville, Maine, the temperature was 36 degrees below zero, and in Springfield, Mass., it was 13 degrees below zero.

St. Louis Banks Combined.

St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 15.—The Globe-Democrat says that the rumored absorption of the St. Louis National Bank by the National Bank of Commerce in St. Louis has been confirmed.

The National Bank of Commerce has $3,000,000 capital and a business of $3,000,000. The St. Louis National Bank has $1,000,000 capital and a business of about $6,000,000.

The president of the former is William F. Thompson and of the latter William Nickerson.

The Moore Trial.

New York, Dec. 15.—The trial proper of William A. E. Moore on the accusation of having robbed by the badger game, one Martin Mahon, proprietor of the New Amsterdam Hotel, began for the second time yesterday morning. At the request of Abraham Levy, the counsel for the defendant, the assistant district attorney was instructed by the recorder to omit from his address the details of the assault on Detective Cuff by Moore, in the Grenoble Hotel.

ARMY INCREASE PLANS

Corbin Says Fifty Thousand Men For Cuba.

MILES SAYS 25,000 WILL DO

Twenty-five Thousand Required in the Philippines. The Police Force Needed in Our New Territory. Statements of Adjutant-General Corbin to the House Committee.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—Adjutant General Corbin appeared yesterday before the House committee on military affairs, which is considering the bills for increasing and reorganizing the army.

His statements attracted unusual interest because of their direct reference to conditions in Cuba, Porto Rico and the Philippines, and the military requirements on which the war department was acting.

As to the need of an increased army, General Corbin said that it was a most serious proposition, adding:

"The Cuban evacuation commission, consisting of Generals Wade and Butler and Admiral Sampson, has submitted a statement that in order to preserve peace and restore order in Cuba it will require the presence of an army of 50,000 men."

General Corbin said that he would send this recommendation in confidence, to the committee, but later it was arranged that it should be submitted without confidential reservations.

It was on this recommendation, said General Corbin, that the plan of sending troops to Cuba was based. It might be found that fifty thousand men would not be absolutely requisite, "but we are holding fifty thousand men in readiness to go, if required," said he.

"As to the Philippines," he continued, "General Otis, in command there, had recommended that twenty-five thousand men were required there. In Porto Rico the officers in command stated that the force now on hand was about adquate for the requirements. This force is six thousand men. The total made eighty-one thousand men, fifty thousand for Cuba, twenty-five thousand for the Philippines and about six thousand for Porto Rico, leaving an army of one hundred thousand, with about eighteen thousand for reserves at home."

"It must be borne in mind," said General Corbin, "that an army in time of peace is like insurance. It is a preparation for an emergency. If we had had such an army last June there would have been no such loss of life as occurred."

"Do you think fifty thousand men for Cuba a conservative estimate?" asked Mr. Jett of Illinois.

"I think it is," answered General Corbin.

"And how long will that last?" asked Mr. Hay.

"I wish I could say," answered General Corbin; "but no man can say. You cannot view conditions in Cuba as you can in Ohio or Pennsylvania. For one hundred years the people there have been accustomed to be ruled by force. The officers there fear that with these conditions and habits, if troops are not there, trouble may occur."

He went on to show how the Spanish soldiers had ruled throughout Cuba, forming even the rural police and the municipal police force at Havana. As to the trouble which had occurred at Porto Rico, General Corbin said it was not due to a disposition to fight the United States, but to a tendency in certain classes—wandering outlaw bands—toward disorder.

When questioned by Mr. Hay of Virginia as to how soon the United States troops could be withdrawn from Cuba, General Corbin said it was impossible to say, even approximately.

"There is not a man living, in my judgment," he said, "who can foresee even for thirty days, what the future will bring forth."

General Miles told the Senate committee on appropriations yesterday that he thought twenty-five thousand men would be enough for Cuba; that the island must at an early day be policed by natives

Starving at Sea.

New York, Dec. 15.—The Red Star line steamer Waesland, which recently left Philadelphia for Liverpool, supplied the crew of an unfortunate Nova Scotian bark with fuel and provisions on Monday.

The steamer L. P. Holmblad arrived here yesterday from Antwerp, and saw the Waesland hove to abreast of the bark, forty miles west of Nantucket lightship.

The sailing vessel had signals flying indicating "We are starving."

Return of the First New York.

San Francisco, Dec. 15.—The steamship Alameda has arrived here from Sydney and Honolulu. From Honolulu she brought the second detachment of the First New York regiment, consisting of Major Emmett, Dr. McCullough, Captain Serguson, Sergeant Major Wright, Lieutenant Oliver Gresham, Lieutenants Wood, Boyce, Boardman and Oothroudt, with twelve convalescent soldiers, as first class passengers, and three hundred and fifteen men in the steerage.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—A syndicate of Chicago and eastern people have invested $1,000,000 in wire and nail plants at Joliet, Ill., and Birmingham, Ala. The Joliet mill will be in operation in January and that at Birmingham within a few months.

C. E. Robinson and E. Shulee, formerly with the American Steel and Wire Company, are at the head of the company.

Demand for Steel Rails.

New York, Dec. 15.—It is stated by Charles C. Cluff, general eastern agent of the Illinois Steel Rail Company, that his company is so rushed with work as to be unable to fill an order from Russia for seventy-five thousand tons of rails.

The rails were thought to be for the trans-Siberian Railroad.

Christmas Shopping
—AT—
Wanamaker's

THERE never was such a Christmas Store as the Wanamaker Store of New York this season. The big Stewart Block is brilliant and humming with holiday business and holiday cheer. The holiday spirit is reflected in the elaborate decorations, and in the magnificent stocks, and, quite as much as in either, in the faces of the visitors.

We always make a good deal of Christmas, partly because it's the busiest business time of the year, and partly because we thoroughly believe in suiting our own tone to yours. We form ourselves on you. What you like, we like,—that's our business. What you wish, we have,—that's what we are here for. Just now, the Christmas idea is on top,—well, come and see what we have prepared you.

It's not alone the decorations—although they are worth coming to see. The huge Christmas stocks are a sight in themselves, and you will enjoy them for their own sakes, whether you buy or not.

Toyland
The Children's Store
is one of the city's sights just now. Toyland is in our basement. There is more than an acre of it. It is a question what you will enjoy most in it,—the biggest stock of toys that Germany, Austria, France, England and America ever sent to one store, or the wonderful and radiant faces of the little guests whose delight we delight in.

More to your interest may be the showings in French and Austrian china, the Cut Glass,—the fairest priced collection of really good glass in this city;—the marvelous collection of Fancy Goods and Silver, or the Art Goods and bric-a-brac and bronzes. But it is useless to try to tell you all,—we have prepared a catalogue of a hundred and fifty pages, and that doesn't tell all.

You must see for yourself. If you come to New York, of course you will visit us. You know where we are?

Broadway, Fourth Avenue, Ninth and Tenth Streets.

A whole block that simply radiates a welcome.

From the Grand Central Station, take the Fourth Avenue trolley cars. They pass our doors in nine minutes from 42d street,—we are the nearest large store to the station.

The Broadway cable line, the Fourth and Second avenue trolley lines and the Third avenue elevated and cable lines pass the door, or within a few yards. The Sixth Avenue elevated is distant three blocks. Get off at Eighth street.

No one will ask you to buy. There is enough here worth seeing to make a visitor who comes simply to enjoy the sights and the music, an expected and a welcome caller.

COSTLY REPATRIATION.

It Will Coast $1,000,000 to Return Philippine Spanish Army.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—There is much comment among members of Congress and officials on the section of the treaty of peace with Spain which provides for the return of the Spanish troops in the Philippines.

It is estimated that it will cost this government at least one million dollars, but the war department and other officials declare that the money will be well spent, and, in the end, will cost us less than to allow Spain to send the soldiers back.

The experience at Santiago, contrasted with the work under Spanish control at Havana, shows that the American idea was the best for both parties.

The eastern part of Cuba was freed of Spanish soldiers in a short time, while Spain has procrastinated at Havana until serious trouble occurred in some of the districts. If the Americans had had charge of the transporting of troops, Havana and the western portion of the island would be free of Spanish soldiers to-day. The United States contracted with the Spanish Transportation Company, and thus threw the responsibility for the care and comfort on the officers of that line. It is well known that hundreds of Spanish soldiers died on the return voyage, and hundreds of others were so ill and weak as to be unable to land when they arrived.

The Spanish would make no complaints because the United States government had made ample provision for the comfort of the men, and if this was not done, officers and men sailing under the Spanish flag were responsible for their condition.

Gas Tank Disaster.

New York, Dec. 15.—Two hundred laborers were at work yesterday in the ruins caused by the explosion of the largest gas holder in the world at the works of the Consolidated Gas Company, as noticed in yesterday's dispatches.

The laborers were searching for the bodies of persons who are known to be dead or are missing. The list of dead and missing included six known to be dead and one who is missing is supposed to be dead.

Of the score who were injured it was reported that all were recovering.

Twenty-first street, near Avenue A, is completely blocked with a mass of twisted steel girders and plates fifty feet high and a hundred feet across. The rear portion of the tenements and furniture manufactory fronting on Avenue A is torn away, and along the avenue, for over a block in each direction, are fragments of wreckage washed there by the flood of water that came rushing down Twentieth and Twenty-first streets when the tank gave way.

All users of Consolidated gas were greatly inconvenienced by the cutting off of the supply. The loss fell especially heavy upon the newspapers and printers, as gas is used for melting the metal in all linotype machines. Some of the papers were compelled to resort to hand typesetting. It was not until late last evening that the flow of gas was restored.

Bliss for Ambassador to England

New York, Dec. 15.—A Washington dispatch says that Secretary Bliss's resignation from the cabinet means that he is going to England as American ambassador.

The statement is made on the authority of Representative James Schoolcraft Sherman of New York.

Mr. Sherman is chairman of the committee on Indian affairs, and his committee has under consideration the Indian appropriation bill, which comes under the jurisdiction of the interior department.

During the deliberations of the committee allusion was made to the reported resignation of Secretary Bliss from the cabinet.

Mr. Sherman informed his associates on the committee that the president has decided to dispose of the contest over the English mission by sending Mr. Bliss to the court of St. James as America's representative.

Boston Election Results.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 15.—Election returns for the city of Boston are not all in yet, but it now seems certain that the Republicans and the Democrats have each elected six members of the board of aldermen and that the Democrats have elected the two members of the new board of apportionment, and also the street cimmissioners.

The vote for license has been reduced a great deal from last year's figures, but there is still a majority for license of about 10,000.

Big Gift to Presbyterian Summer School.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—Three men have given $55,000 to raise the mortgage on the Presbyterian summer school at Winona Lake, Ind.

The money was at once paid to the treasurer of the board of directors of Winona assembly.

The donors are John M. Studebaker, Thomas Kane and Alexander McDonald of Cincinnati.

Recess of Congress.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—The committee on ways and means will report a resolution providing for a recess of Congress from Thursday, December 22, to Wednesday, January 24.

Before adjournment it is hoped that the pension, Indian and agricultural appropriation bills will have been passed by the House.

O'Donnell Pardoned.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 15.—Governor Black has pardoned Michael O'Donnell of New York city, who, since 1888, has been serving a thirty year sentence in Sing Sing prison for burglary, of which James O'Donnell, an older brother, on his death bed a few months ago, confessed to having been guilty.

Stars and Stripes on the Clyde.

Glasgow, Dec. 15.—A thousand tons of ships' plates have just been landed here from Norfolk, Va. The event is more notable, however, in the fact that the steamship which brought them was flying the American flag, which is itself a rare sight on the Clyde.

ONE COUNTRY, ONE FLAG

President McKinley, at Atlanta Sounds a New Note.

PEACE JUBILEE A SUCCESS

A Warm Reception for the Presidential Party. The President Addresses the Legislature. He Says Sectional Lines No Longer Mar the Map.

Atlanta Ga., Dec. 15.—The presidential party arrived at eight o'clock yesterday morning as noted in the day's dispatches. A large crowd was at the station, despite the cold weather, and a rousing cheer went up as the train came to a stand still.

General Joseph Wheeler was the first to alight. A strong chorus of cheers greeted the distinguished Alabamian, accompanied by his daughter, and the members of the reception committee, he made his way to a carriage.

When the president appeared on the rear platform of his car a hearty cheer was given him, breaking forth with renewed vigor an instant later, when Mrs. McKinley came out of the car. The welcome to the members of the cabinet was very cordial.

The men of the president's party partook of luncheon at noon in the chief executive's apartments at the Kimball, while the ladies at the same hour were the guests of the ladies of the jubilee committee at a delightfully informal breakfast in the ladies' ordinary of the hotel.

A few minutes before one o'clock the president's party were assigned to carriages and escorted by fifty mounted police and the members of Governor Candler's staff, started for the capitol.

Guns boomed the presidential salute as the chief executive ascended the steps of the capitol. At the Hunter street entrance the president was met by a committee composed of Colonel William G. Obear, acting adjutant general, representing Governor Candler; Senator Hand, representing the Senate, and Representative Hardwick of the House, and conducted to the governor's parlor.

Here he was received by Governor Candler and the state house officials, after which the general assembly in joint session received the president and party and the governor.

After being introduced to the legislature President McKinley said:

"Sectional lines no longer mar the map of the United States. Sectional feeling no longer holds back the love we bear each other. Fraternity is the national anthem, sung by a chorus of forty-five states and our territories at home and beyond the seas. The Union is once more the common atlas of our love and loyalty, our devotion and sacrifice. The old flag again waves over us in peace with new glories which your sons and ours this year have added to its sacred folds.

"What cause we have for rejoicing, saddened only by the fact that so many of our brave men fell on field or sickened and died from hardship and exposure and others returning bring wounds and disease from which they will long suffer. The memory of the dead will be a precious legacy and the disabled will be the nation's care.

"A nation which cares for its disabled soldiers, as we have always done, will never lack defenders. The national cemeteries for those who fell in battle are proof that the dead as well as the living have our love. What an army of silent sentinels we have and with what loving care their graves are kept.

"Every soldier's grave made during our unfortunate civil war is a tribute to American valor. And while, when those graves were made, we differed widely about the future of this government, the differences were long ago settled by the arbitrament of arms, and the time has now come in the evolution of sentiment and feeling under the providence of God, when, in the spirit of fraternity, we should share with you in the care of the graves of the Confederate soldiers.

"The cordial feeling which now happily exists between the North and South prompts this gracious act, and if it needed further justification it is found in the gallant loyalty to the Union and the flag, so conspicuously shown in the year just passed by the sons and grandsons of these heroic dead."

In the evening a reception was given the president and party by the Capital City Club.

Vote on Turpie Motion To-day.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—The Nicaragua canal bill held its place as the principal subject before the Senate again yesterday. Speeches were made by Messrs. Harris, Money, Stewart and Morgan.

Mr. Money urged the postponement of the question in order to permit an opportunity for negotiations with England for a modification of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, and Mr. Morgan antagonized the proposition.

An agreement was reached to take a vote on the Turpie postponement motion to-day.

Other questions before the Senate were the government's pension policy and the bill regarding the registry of foreign built vessels wrecked on the American coast.

The pension discussion was precipitated by Mr. Vest. The registry bill went over until to-day.

Russia Fears an Alliance.

London, Dec. 15.—The Vienna correspondent of the Standard says:

It is asserted here, from both St. Petersburg and London sources of information, that serious negotiations have been begun between Russia and Great Britain for the solution of the Chinese problem.

Columbus Statue Stoned.

Madrid, Dec. 15.—A mob of women at Granada, considering that the discovery of America was the principal cause of Spain's misfortuner, stoned the statue of Columbus there.

LEITER'S MOTOR DEAL.

He Has Great Confidence in the Compressed-Air System.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—Joseph Leiter is as enthusiastic over his compressed air company as he was over his wheat deal. He has secured control of the International Air Power Company and the American Air Motor Company, having seven million dollars capital, and has the right to operate compressed air motors in this country and Europe.

"It cannot be said any longer," said Mr. Leiter, "that this new system of using compressed air as power is an experiment. It has been thoroughly tested on the Metropolitan Traction Company's line in One Hundred and Sixteenth street, New York city, and as a result that company is installing a plant for the use of air power on its lines in Twenty-eighth, Twenty-ninth and Thirty-fourth streets. The compressor plant is being built at Twenty-fourth stret and the East river.

"The air is compressed in cylinders, arranged in multiple series. In the first cylinder the air is reduced till it gives a pressure of sixty pounds to the square inch against the atmosphere, which itself has a pressure of thirty-two pounds to the square inch against a vacuum. Then the air is reduced in a second cylinder eight times, that is, till its compass is one-eighth what it was in the first cylinder, and its pressure eight times as great, or 480 pounds to the square inch. The same multiple is preserved in the next compression, so that in the third cylinder in the compressor plant the air has a pressure of 3,840 pounds to the square inch. There is no waste of power at any time."

TO SETTLE IN MANILA.

The Philippine Development Association of American Volunteers.

Manila, Dec. 15.—At an enthusiastic meeting of the Astor Battery yesterday preliminary steps were taken to establish the Philippine Development Association of American Volunteers to promote the development of the islands when the volunteers are discharged.

While willing to bear arms as long as required, many volunteers desire to remain here and engage in various enterprises.

The association proposes to request the United States authorities to grant the discharge of volunteers desirous of settling here, and will urge that the men be granted a travelling allowance, in lieu of transportation, when their time has expired.

The Astor Battery has been ordered to deliver up its equipment to the quartermaster, preparatory to embarking on a homeward bound transport.

Official advices from Iloilo contain the names of the members of the newly formed Visayan republic.

A proclamation issued by the governor general salutes "the sovereignty of the Visayas and expresses the hope that "under God's protection they will soon be a free people under the shadow of the tricolor banner and on the basis of the constitution of the Filipino republic."

Indian Appropriation Bill.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 15.—The House committee on Indian affairs has completed its work on the Indian appropriation bill and it will be reported to the House to-day.

The bill carries about $7,500,000. The usual appropriation of twenty thousand dollars for educating Indian children at the Lincoln Institute at Philadelphia was stricken out on the ground that the school by its charter was a sectarian institution (Episcopalian).

The appropriation for the Carlisle Indian School was increased from $121,000 to $150,000, conditional on increasing its facilities so as to care for one thousand Indians.

The report will not mention Cardinal Gibbons's petition for the reopening of the question of aid for secular institutions engaged in educating the Indians.

Congo Natives on Warpath.

Brussels, Dec. 15.—Advices received here from the governor of the Upper Congo confirm the news brought by the steamer Leopoldville, from Africa, which arrived at Antwerp yesterday, that four Belgian traders had been killed and eaten by the natives of Upper Ubanghi.

The governor adds that the traders' escort of thirty soldiers were massacred, and that another detachment of forty soldiers, in charge of two white officers, who were proceeding to the assistance of the traders, were surprised by the natives and all were put to death.

Senator Kenney's Trial.

Wilmington, Del., Dec. 15.—In the trial of Senator Kenney, District Attorney Vandegrift yesterday caused a surprise by making a motion that the government be permitted to reopen its case for the admission of testimony refuting the explanation given by Senator Kenney at the close of Tuesday's session with respect to the voucher indicating that Kenney had received Bay State Gas stock amounting to $3,000 as part payment for a year's services as private counsel to the company.

The motion was strenuously objected to.

More Londonian Survivors.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 15.—The overdue North German Lloyd line steamer Marie Rickmers from Bremen, passed in Cape Henry yesterday morning at four o'clock and signalled that she had aboard eight survivors of the British steamship Londonian of Hull, which foundered at sea.

The British steamship Vedamore rescued forty-five of the crew, whom she landed here last week. She lost the wreck on the night of November 27, with eight aboard. They were rescued by the Rickmers next day.

Legislative Leaders.

Trenton is the mecca for Republican politicians today, as the caucus of the Republican Assembly is being held there. Naturally the big fry men are around to see that things run evenly and smooth, and the little fry are omnipresent in the hope of knowing what crumbs of political comfort will be dropped in the way of minor places of patronage. There is no doubt but that Acting Governor Watkins will be made Speaker of the next session of the Lower House by the action of the majority today.

The Rebublican members of the Senate have not yet decided about the time of holding their caucus, but as the Upper House is a much smaller body than the Assembly and therefore easier for the majority to come to an agreement their caucus will probably not be held till just previous to the opening of the session. There is not likely to be great dissensions over the honors anyway, as it is almost certain that Senator Reed will be made the presiding officer of the Senate. Mr. Reed's friends claim that all the South Jersey Senators, with the exception of Stokes, of Cumberland, are enthusiastically in his favor. Senator Johnson, of Bergen, his closest competitor, will be leader on the floor.

How the mighty have fallen may be well said of former United States Senator Rufus Blodgett. He who succeeded in beating the late Leon Abbett out of the most highly-prized honor of the State was Tuesday defeated in the control of a single town in Monmouth county—Long Branch. For many years Mr. Blodgett has carried Long Branch and pretty much all of Monmouth county around in his vest pocket, politically speaking, but his day of reckoning with the dissatisfied ones has come, and now we have this pathetic and somewhat philosophical post-election statement from the defeated leader: "I expected it, and I should have retired last year." The defeat of the former Senator was due to a combination of all his enemies in and out of his party under a Citizens' movement.

Referring to the terms of the proposed new street railway franchise in this city, the Newark News says:

Plainfield has lost nothing and gained much by going slow in granting this franchise. The ordinance has been before the Council for at least six months, but, as at first presented, contained few of the favorable conditions now embodied in it. The firm stand taken by the Council and supported by popular opinion brought the company to terms.

That sounds good. But had the Common Council been left to its own purposes Plainfield would not be enjoying the probability of securing terms as are now proposed. The Common Council deserve credit, however, for bowing to public sentiment.

Work on The Daily Press calendar for 1899, which was started nearly two months ago, was finished this morning, and they are now ready for delivery on Christmas by the carrier boys, whose compliments of the day go with them. As described a few days ago, the calendars will be among the prettiest and most appropriate that The Daily Press has ever issued. On Christmas they will be delivered to all regular subscribers, but after that they will be presented to all who ask for them until the stock is gone. The usual correct list of fire-alarm boxes will be printed on the calendar.

It may be interesting to those in the city who desire to see a District Court established here to know what the experience of Orange in a financial way has been with such a judicial institution. During the past year the fees received through the court have been $1,501.96 and the expenses paid out to maintain the court $4,009 60.

The sanitary authorities of Sutton Surry, England, have gone into the perfume business in an unusual manner, for they are producing lavender on their sewage farm.—The British Architect.

Eureka! Forthwith let us plunge into the lavender producing business, and all this talk of the ill-smelling sewage beds will vamoose the premises at Evona. By all means, pattern after Sutton Surry's plan.

It is hinted that Attorney-General Griggs' name may be brought up as a candidate for United States Senator in opposition to John Kean. The Sage of Ursino's campaign for the high honor, however, seems to have gone too far to be stopped by even Mr. Griggs.

Rival trolley companies appear to think that there are millions in a line between Elizabeth and Plainfield.—Newark News.

Oh, dear, no. The poor railway promoters are only in this thing to help the people along. Perish the thought that they should want to make a cent out of the dear public.

Assemblyman Murray will have one colleague in the Assembly this winter whose occupation is the same as his. He is Assemblyman Quaid, of Middlesex, who, like Mr. Murray, is in the insurance business.

It didn't take Col. Bryan long to get over the military lockjaw after he left the service of Uncle Sam as a soldier. The Colonel will doubtless attempt to make up loss of time now.

It has been hinted at that Councilmon Fred Andrews may be the president of the new City Council.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The city of Plainfield wants to have North Plainfield annexed to it, and thus increase its prestige and population. The two places are in different counties, though in other respects they are practically one. If the two towns are consolidated and North Plainfield annexed to Union county, Plainfield city would have a population nearly as large as New Brunswick. But, before the Legislature indorses this expansion idea New Brunswick will have forged far ahead of Plainfield, which is a pretty residence town, but lacks the commercial advantages and natural attractions of this city. Some of these days New Brunswick may annex Highland Park, Metuchen, Milltown and South River and be able to boast of a population of 40,000.—New Brunswick Home News.

* * * * *

There is a lugubrious atmosphere hanging over the camp of the Reed faction of the Somerset Republicans, while over in the big wigwam of "Lew" Thompson's tribe "high jinks" are going on day and night. This is due to the fact that high on the ridgepole of Chief Thompson's wigwam hangs the scalp of ex-Assemblyman VanDoren, who ran for Sheriff last month. "Charlie" Reed favored his election while Thompson opposed. Had Thompson's township given him the same vote it did the other Republican candidates, like them he would have been elected. This matter has been kept under the surface since the election, but it could be held in no longer, and last week it broke out in flame. A Reed Republican sent a letter to a Republican paper, blaming Thompson for Van Doren's defeat, and one of Thompson's braves answered. Recrimination followed recrimination until the line is becoming closely drawn and the Republicans are tearing each other to pieces. The situation is being carefully watched by the Democrats, who confidently expect to carry the county at the next election.—Jersey City News.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

THE SUCCULENT REED BIRD.

How He Should Be Roasted and How He Should Be Eaten.

Philadelphia is the only city in the world where the reedbird can be found in a state of overrunning obesity, and the only place where he can be cooked to perfection. In New York the French cooks conceal its delicate toothsomeness in rich dressing. There they know as little about reedbirds as they do about terrapin, scrapple, and pepperpot. Recently there was given in this city a dinner in which reedbirds were served in thirteen different forms. Among the courses were soup made from reedbirds, reedbirds stuffed with Blue Point oysters, reedbirds placed inside a hollow potato and roasted, reedbirds stuffed with herb filling and baked, reed birds stewed with fresh mushrooms, reedbirds split and broiled—an abominable practice, by the way—reed bird saute, and a seeming pie, from which two dozen reedbirds flew forth and around the room.

But, after all, there is only one way to cook and eat the succulent reedies—saute! Select birds which have little clumps of yellow fat on both sides of the part last over the fence. Place them in a sauce pan, or, better still, a chafing-dish, with plenty of the best butter, salt, black pepper, and a plentiful sprinkling of paprika—the sweet Hungarian pepper which nowadays can be found in any first-class grocery. They must not be split and their heads must not be removed. Coook them for five or six minutes, according to the size of the bird and the heat of the fire, but do not allow the yellow fat to become browned. Nothing could be simpler, and yet few, very few cooks can prepare a reedbird without destroying its toothsomeness.

There is also an art in the eating of his daintiness, but it can only be applied to birds of the character and prepared in the manner described above. Wring off the head and sink your teeth into and absorb the brains. Then hold the little darling aloft by the protruding bones of both legs, and, slipping him into a watering mouth, crunch your way through his carcass until not a bit of him remains but the leg bones. Then cast your eyes about and say grace. That's eating reedbirds, that is.—Philadelphia Times.

GEORGE FRANCIS TRAIN.

How That Philosopher Gave Relief to a Poverty-Stricken Couple.

"I was an eye witness," said one of a party, "of an occurrence that would have been regarded as remarkable had I not understood it. Late one afternoon I was sitting on a bench in Madison square. On another bench near by were a man and woman, both young. The man was thin and pale, and I gathered from such of his talk as I overheard, that he was recovering from a long illness, that the woman was his wife, and that they were in desperate need of money.

"George Francis Train came along and sat down beside me on the bench. I knew him well and told him about the young people and their troubles. Presently he went on his way and I saw him go into a store on the south side of the square. A few minutes later he came back to the young couple. As he passed them a shower of gold and silver coin dropped from his pocket, directly at their feet, jingling musically on the asphalt. Mr. Train walked right along, paying no heed. The young man sprang up and called Mr. Train's attention to his loss, saying, 'You've dropped a lot of money, sir.' 'You're very much mistaken, young man,' Train replied, and he walked rapidly away.

The young people were utterly dumbfounded, and, after they had gathered up the coins, seriously talked of turning the money over to the police. Fearing that they would really be so foolish, I went to them and advised them to keep the wealth, as the man who had dropped the money had a way of doing just such eccentric things, which he could well afford, as he possessed a great fortune. They left the square soon after with smiling faces.

"Train undoubtedly had gone to a store, obtained a lot of coin, cut the lining of his coat pocket, holding the gap together with his hands to keep the coin within until he reached the young couple, when he let go and the coin fell at their feet. It was his way of helping them without embarrassing them with an offer of charity."—Washington Post.

Boxing a Bride's Ear.

In Lithunia, a province of Russia, it is customary that the bride's ears should be boxed before the marriage ceremony. No matter how tender-hearted the mother may be, she always makes it a point of administering a hearty smack to her daughter in the presence of witnesses, and a note is made of the fact. The mother's intention is a kind one, though the custom itself is bad. The reason for it is to protect the bride should her marriage prove an unhappy one. In that case she will sue for a divorce, and her plea will be that she was forced into the marriage against her will, and on that score the verdict of the judge will be in her favor.—Washington Star.

"Manna" of the Scriptures.

The true "manna" of the Scriptures is a grayish lichen, about the size of a small pea, and farinaceous inside. It is found in the Saraha and South Algeria, also in Persia, Arabia and Mesopotamia. According to some authorities, the spores are brought by the wind, and develop with the dew, while others hold that it leaves a germ, or seed, behind it when it perishes.—St. Louis Globe Democrat.

THE ORIGIN OF ICE CREAM.

Made Its Appearance Near the Close of the Last Century.

The New York Post Boy of June 8, 1786, makes this announcement: "Ladies and gentlemen may be supplied with ice cream every day at the City tavern by their humble servant, Joseph Cowe." At a ball given by Mrs. Johnson in New York, on Dec. 12, 1789, there were "served pyramids of red and white ice cream, with punch and liquors, rose cinnamon and parfait amour." Ice cream was first introduced at the national capitol by Mrs. Alexander Hamilton, who had had it in her home in New York. She used to tell with amusement of the delight with which President Jackson first tasted it, and how he promptly decided to have ices at the executive mansion. Accordingly guests at the next reception were treated to the frozen mystery, and afforded considerable fun to the initiated by the reluctance with which they tasted it. Those from the rural districts especially first eyed it suspiciously, then melted each spoonful with breath before consuming it. Their distrust was soon removed, however, and plates were empt'ed with great rapidity.

The man who made the cream was, oddly enough, a negro by the name of Jackson, who in the early part of the present century kept a small confectionary store in Washington. Cold custards, which were cooled after being made by setting them on a cake of ice, were very fashionable, and Jackson, at Mrs. Hamilton's suggestion, froze them by placing the ingredients in a tin bucket and completely covering it with ice. Each bucket contained a quart, and was sold for $1. It immediately became popular, and the inventor soon enlarged his store, and when he died left a considerable fortune.—Harper's Bazar.

EARS IN SCOOLROOMS.

Children are Often Deaf and Not Stupid, As Is Sometimes Thought.

Defective hearing is a symptom frequently seen in the school room about which teachers should know something. Pupils are sometimes considered backward and stupid, whose worst fault is their deafness. This is not as common, probably, as defective sight, but it is quite as apt to be neglected and to lead to disastrous results. Head colds, diseased conditions of the pharynx and tonsils, and discharges from the external ear are all common with children in this climate, and are all prolific sources of permanent deafness.

The teacher is in a position to detect this symptom early, and should investigate every case of apparent inattention and stupidity, especially if it is noticed that this is accompanied with persistent mouth breathing. The teacher can easily inform herself about a child's hearing, and quite accurately; thus, a child should be able to hear words spoken in a clear, low voice twenty feet away, and should be able to hear a watch tick three feet from either ear. Children with defective hearing, should, of course, be seated near the teacher's desk. Parents' attention should always be called to this symptom, for it is usually possible to cure it when early treatment is instituted. Neglected, it is very sure to become permanent.—Sanitarian.

Food and Drink in One.

According to tradition the discovery and use of pulque in Mexico dates from the eleventh century.

Pulque is both a food and a drink, and among the poor it forms a very important addition to the frijoles, tortillas and chile, making up their limited fare. In employing a Mexican servant, a few cents a day for the purchase of pilque is generally allowed by the mistress of the house. A Mexican can do with little clothing and scanty fare, but life is a thirst-panged desert if the usual allowance of pulque is interfered with. It possesses large medicinal properties, acting in a beneficial way upon the digestion, blood, nerves and system in general; but if used to excess it finally dulls the intellect and makes one drowsy and stupid.

One hundred thousand quarts a day is the average consumption of pulque in the City of Mexico alone, and special trains are regularly employed in the carrying trade between the maguey plantations and the city markets—Godfrey's Magazine.

A Penitent Dog.

Walking along a residence street of Susquehanna a citizen noticed a little child at play with an immense Newfoundland dog on a lawn. In the rough and tumble sport of the two the child hurt his dumb playmate, who snapped rather angrily at the child. A woman who stood watching on the porch, cried out: "Nero, aren't you ashamed of yourself to frighten the baby? Go away, you bad dog!" The dog slunk away, whining. Suddenly he sprang toward a flowering plant, bit off one of the fragrant blossoms and with many extraordinary capers laid it at the feet of the little child, and then bounded toward the woman to receive a caress of forgiveness.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

A Man of Resources.

"I don't know that I need any work done about the house. What can you do, my good fellow?"

"Sir, in my day I've been a carpenter, a barber and a school teacher. I can shingle your house, your hair or your boy."—Chicago Tribune.

The thin one—A feller's wife never believes more than half he tells her. The fat one—I would not mind that if she'd only believe the right half.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

ADVICE TO CATHOLICS

A CATHOLIC NEWSPAPER INDISPENSABLE TO EVERY HOME.

Is the Best Ally of the Priest—A Conscience on the Matter of Reading Needs to Be Cultivated—Secular Press Dangers.

There are well to do householders who study economy in providing good reading for their children's minds, just as they would in the matter of boots and clothes—driving hard bargains with heaven as they would with the draper or the butcher—and there are those who apparently regard the Catholic paper as a sort of luxury, and look upon an invitation to become a subscriber much in the same way as if they were expected to smoke half crown cigars or wash down their dinner with long drafts of Steinberg or Marcobrunner. Others again regard the necessity—real or imaginary—of subscribing to their local secular news sheet as an all sufficient reason for excluding the Catholic paper from their homes.

One and all fail to reach the root of the matter. They do not see the dangers that lurk in the columns of the secular press. They fail to realize the great and chief functions of a Catholic paper, to expound and defend the sacred principles of our holy religion, to instruct other unto justice—in a word, to supplement one of the noblest functions of the priesthood, and to be the shield of Catholic truth, the fearless defender of Catholic rights. The Catholic press is in these days of omnivorous reading a (humanely speaking) indispensable branch of the church's work. We trust that the day is near at hand when the Catholic paper will be as intimately and formally a wing of the church's many sided activities as her institutes of learning, piety and charity. Meantime, under papal encouragement and sanction, the true Catholic newspaper is doing a duty toward the Catholic public as real as that of priest or prelate. The Catholic public have likewise a duty toward the Catholic press. The nature of that duty is obvious. In the circumstances of these times and countries it rests upon no less a foundation than the solid bedrock of conscience itself.

Even were the secular press in every way and at all times irreproachable the duty of supporting the Catholic paper still endures. The newspaper press is the Archimedean lever of our days. It moves the world. Mopsa says in "The Winter's Tale," "I love a ballad in print, a' life, for then we are sure they are true." The superstition of the printed page lives on. The secular press molds the multitudes of individual convictions that go to form public opinion. What is the staple of its contents? Mere news, articles dealing with matters of fact and matters of opinion—stories. Among the news of the day, ample space is devoted to morbid details of murders, suicides, divorce proceedings—a policy which a wise legislation in Germany makes illegal. The articles (original or selected) are written by men of every creed and of no creed—by agnostics, positivists, materialists. Some appeal to political passion. Some deal lightly with eternal truths, sneer at Providence, lay down the most hopeless, wrong headed ideas of man's origin and destiny. Occasionally they make covert or open attacks on the Catholic church—publishing "no popery" sermons, which in nine cases out of ten are not replied to, or copying statements that were made by six other sons of Ananias.

We speak of what we have ourselves seen, and this is the sort of stuff that some thousands of Catholic parents give to their children as their sole or chief mental pabulum—some of it breathing of the abyss as if it were edited by a lost soul, and still further danger occasionally lies in the illustrated weeklies.

It matters not that even pious persons may fail to see the danger of making the secular press the sole reading for themselves and their children. They may even deny the existence of any risk whatever. That does not affect the matter. How many of the general run of Catholics have a deep knowledge of theology and philosophy? Practically none. And yet they set themselves daily to read articles touching upon the highest and deepest religious subjects, written by agnostics, materialists, anti-Catholics, bristling all over with wily sophistries and couched oftentimes in charms of style and quips of fancy that captivate any reader who is not a master of the subject. And how many of them have the opportunity or the will to read or hear the other side of the question? Again, practically none. Those to whom I speak take no Catholic paper. A deep practical faith may and often does preserve our youth from the full natural consequences of such reading. But why will parents unnecessarily expose their children's faith to such assaults when they have at hand a Catholic paper which will at least to some extent provide an antidote to the poison doses of infidelity or anti-Catholicism which are from time to time conveyed into the home in the folds of the secular paper? Priests are few and usually overwrought. They cannot, like Sir Boyle Roche's bird, be in two places at the same time. By the very necessities of the case there will be vast numbers of places where the voice of the priest will be heard but rarely. Even if each could be in ten places at the same time and had the science of angels and the voice of the last trumpet, they could not overtake the harm that is being done to families by the exclusive perusal of merely secular news sheets. The Catholic paper is the priest's best ally. Thank God, we have many priests who are conscious of its mighty power for good and have proved their faith by words and works. One of the needs of the hour is to cultivate among our people a conscience on the matter of reading. This must ever be the function of the pulpit and the school. We recommend the good work to both.—New Zealand Tablet.

CATHOLIC SISTERS.

Methodist Minister's Tribute to Their Work as Nurses.

As chaplain of the United States flagship Lancaster, stationed in the harbor of Key West, I visited the hospitals to which sick and wounded men were sent from both army and navy. At the beginning of hostilities the Convent of Mary Immaculate had been offered and accepted as a hospital and was known as the general hospital. The sisters of charity who gave the use of the convent are known as the Sisters of the Holy Names of Jesus and Mary. Their work had been teaching, but when war was declared and they thought of the comforts of their convent, which fortunately is situated in the coolest place in that hot, dusty city, they decided to share their blessings with sick and wounded men who could nowhere else secure them. Their decision was beautiful in its unselfishness, for not only did they who offered the use of their convent become faithful nurses, but they asked no remuneration at the hands of the government either for the use of the convent or for the services of themselves as nurses, the only stipulation being that the convent should be returned to them at the end of the war in as good condition as when it had been accepted by the government. As most of the sailors who were sick were sent to this hospital I visited it day after day, and though a Protestant minister I could not have been more warmly welcomed had I been of their faith.

From inexperience they rapidly advanced until they were nurses to whom might safely be confided the care of even the most dangerous cases. And such nurses! They were veritable angels of mercy in their ministrations to men who were in every degree of sickness and who were suffering from every sort of wound. And the men grew to love their sweet, smiling faces, and they wondered how human beings could tread so gently and how human hands could so softly brush away the cares from their fevered brows. Then their hands were ever ready to write long letters to the homes that could not otherwise have heard from husbands, fathers and sons whose arms were weakened and whose nerves were unsettled. And they never complained of weariness, though sometimes their faces spoke of overwork in a slightly intensified pallor that came from long vigils of watching, that were frequently followed by additional hours of prayer. And they never apparently were dissatisfied, claiming that the pleasure of helping others for Christ's sake was in itself its own recompense.—Rev. Mr. Helms in Christian Advocate (Methodist).

TRIBUTE OF A DOCTOR.

In the Field Hospital the Sister of Charity Is Far Superior.

The services of sisters of charity as nurses in the army hospitals have been noticed and commended, but Uticans have probably not realized that sisters from Utica, N. Y., have been prominent in alleviating the sufferings of the soldiers both in field and camp. Following is a list of these Utica sisters and the hospitals where they are located: Sister Isidore, field hospital, Huntsville, Ala.; Sister Mary Ellen, field hospital, Huntsville, Ala.; Sister Frances, Camp Wheeler, Huntsville, Ala.; Sister Margaret, military hospital, Knoxville; Sister Genevieve, military hospital, Knoxville; Sister M. Agnes McQuade, daughter of Robert McCreary, general hospital, Ponce, Porto Rico.

In this connection there will be interest in the report of Dr. S. P. Kramer of Cincinnati, major and brigade surgeon, United States volunteers, who was in charge of the hospital annex at Camp Wikoff. He says:

"Whatever may be the case in civil institutions, in the field hospital the sister of charity is far superior. There is with them none of the bickering with the ward doctor, no fussiness, no refusing to perform menial work when necessary, no desire to 'shine,' as is often the case with the 'trained nurse.' The sister of charity has no ambition but duty; she obeys all orders quietly, with a prompt, orderly and willing manner. No sacrifice is too great, no service too menial."—Utica (N. Y.) Press.

A Church at the Summit of the Alps.

The bishop of Monaco, who has been visiting Switzerland, was invited the other day by the bishop of Coire to perform a very interesting ceremony—nothing less than to bless a church at the neck of the Spingen on the top of the Alps. It is the first Catholic church erected in this mountain region. Hitherto the only religious buildings in the part of the Grisons bordering on Italy were Protestant churches, and the Catholics had to go a long distance to hear mass. There was a very large attendance of the clergy and laity at the opening of the church, and the scene on the occasion was a memorable one. The new place of worship is situate at the foot of glaciers and within a short distance from mighty precipices which furrow this picturesque district.—London Catholic Times and Opinion.

He haunts the empty wharfs where once were heaped
Great bales of silk and orient fabrics rare,
And pungent spices scenting all the air,
And sandalwood in tropic fragrance steeped.

No more a world's mart here—no more for him
The creaking yards, the broad and bellying sails
Of the good ship that battled with the gales
And nine times touched the round world's utmost rim.

His slow step echoes from the warehouse wall,
That slants and sags beneath the sodden weight
Of moss black shingles. One decree of fate
To ship and master, storehouse, wharf and all.

Ah, well, a final port, an evening's rest
Before the long, long voyage—'tis fitting so.
No more great ships that to the earth's ends go,
But (thoughts of one white sail—ah, that is best)

FREE LUNCHES FOR EMPLOYEES.

Big Business Houses Save Hundreds of Dollars That Way.

Many rich corporations in the downtown business district of New York find it cheaper to treat their employees to a substantial free meal in the middle of the day than to allow them to go out and spend their own money for it. Three of the largest insurance companies, with big buildings of their own, several banks and a great telegraph corporation maintain at considerable expense kitchens, dining halls, and a staff of servants to provide a good luncheon for their clerks.

In the case of the telegraph company, which feeds about eight hundred people a day, a nominal sum is charged, covering only the cost of the food. But with the insurance companies and the banks everything is furnished free. The only thing required of the employee is that he or she shall not leave the building during the luncheon time, and that the usual hour be shortened to one-half hour.

This arrangement is not prompted by motives of philanthropy, by any means. The corporations make money by it, in spite of the large expense involved. Where several hundred clerks are employed, the management of the working force becomes a complicated question. If allowed to go out for lunch there are sure to be a great number of delinquents who do not get back within the alloted hour. The low-priced public restaurants are always crowded at noon, and the excuse of many of the clerks that they cannot get waited upon is a valid one. With many of the men the temptation to drink stimulants when they go out for luncheon is also a matter for consideration, but the saving of the employees' time to the company during working hours is the main factor. With the telegraph corporation, for instance, the total gain for one-half hour from each employee every day is enormous.

With the insurance companies the employees are not obliged to accept the company luncheon, but they are very few of them who do not take advantage of it. A good course meal is served that would cost the clerks far more than they could probably afford to spend out of the building. As the companies save from $200 to $300 worth of time each day they can afford to be liberal. It is an inducement to the employees, too, that the dining room devoted to their service is as exclusive as a club. Only under exceptional circumstances is a visitor admitted. The apartments are light, roomy and comfortably furnished, and are as well equipped as in many first-class hotels.

In the dining-hall of the telegraph company, where the employees are charged a minimum sum for their luncheon, a little different system prevails than where the meal is provided free. At the end of the room is a large blackboard with the soups and joints of the day chalked on it in large letters. The price is marked for each dish. Fish and meats are usually 10 cents, vegetables 5 cents, pies and puddings 5 cents, everything else in proportion. No fancy dishes are offered, but there is an abundance of good, plain, well-cooked food.

Every employee turns in a signed slip with the cost of the meal eaten. It is left entirely to the honesty of the employee to put the right amount on the slip. Every pay-day the amount on the slips is deducted and the cancelled slips put in the envelopes.—New York World.

Saved by a Handkerchief.

Wherever Miss Willard went in her wonderful ministry of life she dispensed the blessings of tenderest sympathy and Christian love. One day she wanted to visit a police station.

Among the prisoners was a poor girl who had been arrested for being intoxicated. She had been up several times before that. Miss Willard stopped and talked to her awhile, and the sweet and gentle way in which she pleaded with the girl had a wonderful effect upon her. The prisoner was moved to tears and doubtless they were tears of repentance. But she had no handkerchief with which to wipe them from her eyes. Miss Willard drew from her pocket her own handkerchief and handed it to the woman and said: "There, keep that." That kind act saved her. She reformed and has lived a different life from that day to this. She is now doing an excellent work in saving others and realizes what she owes Miss Willard.—Evangelical.

Alcohol in Sticks.

A new invention of great importance has been patented by a German chemist, Julius Norden, of Aldenhoven, Germany. He has succeeded in hardening alcohol until it becomes a solid mass. This will insure a very much greater popularity for the employment of alcohol. It now comes in small cylindrical pieces, packed in patent tin boxes, that can be used for cooking, lighting, heating and the various uses of everyday life.

The solidified alcohol burns without a wick, can be blown out after use, and then hardens again within a minute. The danger of explosion is absolutely done away with, and the neat little tin package, with its stick of alcohol, is always ready for use in the kitchen or bedroom, on the toilet table or under the milk pot, on the road or in the field, as a night lamp or going upstairs at night.—Philadelphia Record.

When Francis M. Cockrell finishes his fifth consecutive term in the Senate he will have cost this country $150,000 in cold cash, besides mileage and stationery—and nothing to show for it—Sedalia Capital.

CHINESE CHARACTERISTICS.

Their Indifference to Suffering and Their Business Honesty.

The Chinaman is not wantonly cruel, but he is marvelously indifferent to the sufferings of others. The cook will cover a rat with kerosene and set it alight, not to enjoy its sufferings, but because he believes its screams will scare its fellows away. A magistrate will fan himself gently on the execution ground on which a yelling malefactor is being gradually cut to pieces, not because he enjoys the spectacle, but because it is all part of his day's work. A crowd of spectators will watch a child drown because it is no one's special business to save it, and because to interfere in what does not concern you may give rise to trouble.

From what has been already said as to the keen interest taken by the Chinese in money matters, it may be surmised that they should be, par excellence, a "nation of shopkeepers." And so they are. To their credit be it said that they have thoroughly realized that bargains are binding. The tea merchant may endeavor in every way to get the better of his European confrere, but, once the mystic words "putte book"—that is, enter it in writing—have been uttered, the latter may rely on the transaction being faithfully carried through. This comparatively high standard of commercial morality naturally results in an elaborate system of credit, greatly to the advantage of both contracting parties, and, though the "squeeze," or perquisite, enters into every arrangement, it is not sufficient to stop the wheels of commerce, though undoubtedly it frequently clogs them.

To go back on your word in a business transaction, or to fail to meet your liabilities, causes a Chinaman to "lose face," and this is to him unbearable. The sacrifices which he will make on the approach of his new year to enable him to avoid being posted as insolvent are as extraordinary as they are admirable. Nor would it be right to omit all reference to the fact that to their justice they frequently add generosity. I well remember a case in which an American, who had failed after years of labor, was supported during the remainder of his life by his "compradore," as the native employed by European firms in their dealings with Chinese is termed.—Contemporary Review.

Queer Funeral Mistakes in Maine.

There have been some queer mistakes made, of all kinds, but this is one of the most unusual and undesirable, although no real harm was done: A man, one time prominent in professional life of this city, died. He was a member of a certain society in this city, which sent representatives to the funeral. The members of the organization were notified of the death of their fellow member by postal cards sent out by the Secretary. One of the cards was addressed to and delivered at the late residence of the dead member, inviting him to attend his own obsequies. A similar incident was, if anything, worse. A member of a secret society died and his fellows were notified of his death and the time and place of the funeral, as usual. A card was delivered at the address of the dead man, directed to him in his own handwriting! He had been the Secretary of the organization and had addressed sets of postal cards to the members at his leisure. When a member died, a set of the addressed cards were sent to the printer, who printed the name of the deceased member on the back with the other matter used in the notice. So when the Secretary died his assistant or successor sent a set of the cards to the printer, so that the dead man was sent one addressed by his own hand.—Portland Express.

No Loafers In This Town.

"Three miles from nowhere, in a little backwoods village over in North Carolina the other day, I found the one town in the world where everybody works, and no loafing is permitted," said a well known travelling salesman. "In this hamlet there's no idleness that is not voluntary or vicious, and this privilege is not allowed even to the wandering Willie out of a job. On a sign at the postoffice in Beechland is this injunction, from which there is no appeal: 'No loafing allowed in this town. We work, and so must everybody else who expects to reside here for any length of time. Idleness breeds crime, and, as we never had a murder or a robbery here, we have determined to strike at the root of all evil. Tramps will be given one hour in which to depart, and honest men out of employment will be given work if they desire it. If not, they must git, and git as quick as their lazy legs will carry them away from our village. This means you.'"

A Paradise for Women.

In the matter of women's rights Abyssinia is far ahead of Europe and America. According to an authority, the house and all its contents belongs to her, and if the husband offends her she not only can but does turn him out of doors till he is duly repentant and makes amends by the gift of a cow or the half of a camel—that is to say, half the value of a camel. On the other hand, it is the privilege and duty of the wife to abuse her husband, and she can divorce herself from him at pleasure, whereas the husband must show reasons to justify such an act on his part.—Chicago Times Herald.

Chance to Get a Rest.

"Timmins, do you know anything about literature?" "No." "Know anything about art?" "Nothing." "Know anything about music?" "Not a rap." "Good! Come over to my room, pick out a pipe and let's enjoy ourselves."—Chicago Record.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Yank Newell's original "Muldoon's Picnic" will be the attraction at Music Hall tomorrow night. This old time favorite farce has been re-written and brought up to the hour by Co. T. Murphy, who has retained the original story, many of the best situations and much of the dialogue, but has filled it in with much that is new, bright and full of flavor of true, clean Irish wit and humor. Manager Newell promises a first-class production in every way, given by a strong company of well-known farceurs and head line specialty people, who will introduce songs, sayings and dances that are not hack neyed and done to death, but are the latest things in their line, and many of them will be heard and seen for the first time during this engagement. The play has always been a favorite, and as this will be its first time here in over ten years it will no doubt be welcomed as an old friend. Barney Ferguson, of the old team of Ferguson & Mack, and well-known as the star in his own play, "McCarthy's Mishaps," heads the list of funmakers in "Muldoon's Picnic" characterization and his peculiar and laughable specialties will always keep an audience in a roar whenever he is in a company.

Minnie Lester, the local favorite, and her company of excellent artists will begin an engagement in Music Hall Monday evening. As usual, the little lady has been a good attraction elsewhere. There is certain to be delighted audiences to the close of this engagement every evening. There will be a matinee Saturday afternoon at which all the little ones should be present. The plays that are placed on the stage nightly are the most popular and attractive that can be found in the repertoire of any company.

* * * * *

A little story in connection with little Gertie Cochran, who is to appear at Music Hall Monday, December 26th, is going the rounds of the press. The little "Mental Marvel," as she is called, was appearing in New Haven, Conn., last week, answering during her act the several questions propounded to her by the audience, when one individual, desiring to floor the youngster, asked her the population of our new domains, the Zulu Islands. Gertie told him in a flash. "Now," he remarked, "I defy you to answer this correctly. What is the population of Heaven?" When she replied, rather confused, "I don't know." "Now," said Gertie, "Jan you tell me the population of your own city of New Haven?" The questioner could not reply. Well concluded Gertie, "If you never know any more about Heaven than you do of your own town, you stand a mighty poor chance hereafter."

CONSUMPTION OF PAPER COLLARS.

They are Still Made, Largely for Export Trade.

"Oh, yes, paper collars are still made," said a haberdasher smilingly, in reply to an inquisitive customer. "Thirty years ago they were worn by men who considered themselves very good dressers. Now their use is confined to a few old fellows who won't change, and of course they have to be manufactured to order. There are several customers for them here, and a wealthy planter who lives some distance north of the city orders them by thousand lots. I was in New England last summer, and while visiting a little town famous for its collar-makers saw an old plant used for turning out the paper article. It had been rusting away in silence for years, and I was astonished at its size. The buildings easily covered an acre, and the machinery was enormous. I was told that in its heyday the concern shipped its product all over the world, and sold paper collars even in the Fiji Islands. I supposed they must have been used as trimmings for missionary ragout.

"The celluloid collar industry is still very much alive, and you may be surprised to know that its trade last year was the largest on record. Who buys them? Lots of different people. Thousands are sold to seafaring men, particularly those whose voyaging takes them into the tropics. France, Germany and Italy import an immense number. Another big lot is supplied under contract to the Russian Army—a fact not generally known—and I understand there is a large sale for them in Turkey.

"The principal market in this country is in the West. The lumbermen up in the Minnesota and Wisconsin regions regard them as very recherche, and they buy them by the bale. In the cities they are worn generally by policemen, who would find it impossible to keep a linen collar looking neat in bad weather. The great objection to celluloid collars used to be their inflammability. Their composition is very like gun cotton, and it was formerly a common joke to touch a match to a fellow's neck gear and see it vanish. You can't do that now. A new process has rendered them fireproof."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

SHE BURIED THE WRONG BOX.

Mistake at a Funeral Which Made Even the Mourners Laugh.

It is not often that a man's funeral is funny enough to make his near relatives laugh. This, however, is what happened at the funeral of Dr. Kellogg of Ashland, Ohio. The Kellogg family is an old and respected one in town, and, as often happens in old families of small towns, is connected with nearly every other family in the town.

Dr. Kellogg died in New York. He was a widower, without any children, and left orders in his will for his body to be cremated and the ashes deposited in the grave of his wife at Ashland. Mrs. Patterson, a cousin, was directed to carry out this request. The death of the doctor cast a gloom over the whole big family of kinsfolk. Mrs. Patterson telegraphed directions for the cremation of the body, and watched anxiously for the arrival of the remains. One morning the expressman drove up with the box. A funeral was held, and attended by Ashland in a body. The wife's grave was opened, the box deposited solemnly, and the mourners dispersed.

A few days afterwards Mrs. Patterson received a small zinc box, about the size of the first. She was horrified to find that this last box undoubtedly contained the ashes of her cousin, Dr. Kellogg. She knew, of course, at once, that something else, no telling what, had been deposited in the cemetery in lieu of the doctor. A quiet investigation was made. It was found that another Mrs. Patterson in Ashland, a sister-in-law, had sent a dress to a dye firm in New York. The box containing this dress had been deposited in the grave of the late Mrs. Kellogg.

A second and very quiet burying was held, at which only Mrs. Patterson and the sexton were present. The story was too good to keep, and was soon passed around.

Weighed and Found Wanting.

Eugene Sue, the French author, used to visit daily one of the most fashionable ladies in Paris, Mme. de D., and hold forth in her richly-fashioned boudoir on the conditions of the poor, says an exchange. "Do you ever relieve their distress?" asked Mme. de D. at the close of one of these harangues. "To a trifling extent," answered Sue, "but though my gifts are small, they are always cheerfully bestowed; I give one-fourth of my income in alms." That afternoon as he left the Cafe de Paris, where he had been eating a costly dinner, an apparently old woman, poorly clad, came up to him and begged earnestly for charity. "Go away," was the stern reply. "But I am starving; give me a single copper to buy bread with." "I will give you in charge of the police if you continue to annoy me." "You will," said the beggar, "and M. Sue, you are the man who writes about the miseries of the poor; you are the workingman's champion, are you?" "Who are you?" exclaimed Sue. "Mme. de D.," was the reply, and the distinguished lady stepped into her carriage, which was waiting, and left the author to his reflections.

"Were you out in all that rain?" asked the Clifton girl.

"No," said the young woman from Boston. "I was merely in the portion of the rain that decended in my immediate vicinity."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

EMPEROR FRANZ JOSEF.

The tragic death of the Empress of Austria made it necessary to greatly modify the arrangements that had been made to celebrate the fiftieth year of the reign of Emperor Josef. On December 2, anniversary of the accession of Josef, in 1848, 4,000 civic honors were conferred. The reign of the Emperor was eulogized in the Reichsrath.

PARKS WON AT WHIST.

CAPTURED FIRST PLACE IN JERSEY CENTRAL SECTION.

By Defeating Jersey City Last Night, the Parks Won the Section and the Right to Play for the State Championship.

There is certainly something about the Park Club that is conducive to good whist playing. Last night the "pony" team from that club won the championship of the Central Jersey section of the New Jersey Whist Association and will have the honor of being one of the three teams to contest for the State championship.

The famous championship four of the Park Club has won the State championship for many years besides many honors in the national contest. This last year they withdrew from the State contest in favor of a team of younger men of the club, commonly bespoken as the "pony" team.

Up to last evening the Parks had won two game and lost one. A victory would mean championship of the section and defeat would bring all three teams tie for first place.

Last evening the Parks went to Jersey City where they met the crack team from the Jersey City Club at the latter's clubhouse, The game was hard fought, but the Parks had too much at stake to loose and their great playing finally landed them first by the small margin of 2 points.

In the first round the Parks led 3 to 2. They were also victorious in the second by a score of 5 to 2. In the third the Jersey City team made the better showing, 3 to 1, but they didn't gain quite enough to overcome the Parks' lead. The total score was 9 to 7 in favor of the Park Club team.

The home team was composed of Mecabe, D. Bowly, W. Bowly and Watson. The Park pony team was P. B. Matthews, Albert O. Woltmann, Arthur A. Freeman and Fred. H. Freeman.

The Parks will next year meet the Roseville team, winners in the Lackawanna section, and the Ridgewood Club, probable winners in the Erie section for the championship of the State.

VIVID WORD SKETCH OF A POWERFUL MAN

Dr. Gunsaulus' Splendid Description of Savonarola.

THE ITALIAN STATESMAN.

DELIVERED BEFORE A LARGE AND ABSORBED AUDIENCE.

The Striking Points in the Life and Character of the Famous Italian Reformer Were Made Intensely Interesting by the Noted Chicago Divine—The Spirit of Savonarola Still Lived, He Said.

Against the dark background of Italy in the fifteenth century, dark with corruption in both church and state, there stands out one brilliant and heroic figure, Girolamo Savonarola, reformer and statesman. Always a fascinating character in history, Savonarola becomes doubly so when his story is told by such a man as Rev. Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, of Chicago, whose lecture delivered last night in the chapel of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church was attended by a large and absorbed audience.

The lecture was not a history of the great Italian reformer so much as it was a word-picture. In tone, in gesture and in word, Dr. Gunsaulus has the art of painting for his audience a most vivid picture of the events he is describing. Savonarola the boy, born in Ferrara in 1453, the year of the fall of Constantinople, became a living figure, with his boyish love affairs, and his early hatred of tyranny. The Renaissance became real and the listeners entered into its intellectual and artistic excitement. The boy grew into an earnest and devotedly religious man, entered upon a monastic life, and became prior of St. Mark's at Florence. He ruled the brilliant but unscrupulous and wicked Lorenzo d'Medici. The problem of city government, then as now a question uppermost in the thoughts of patriot reformers, was handled with no gloved hands by Savonarola. The reformer's eloquence shook not only the city, but its ruler as well, and when the wicked Lorenzo lay on his deathbed the one man he would have to tell him how to die was the man who had never cringed before him. When Charles VIII. of France, came into Florence the Italian statesman wielded such an influence that he held Charles in one hand and Florence in the other. But such a man would never be allowed to die in peace. He incurred the enmity of the corrupt Pope Alexander VII, whom he had denounced, and who tried to wile him to Rome in order to have him assassinated. Savonarola was too busy in Florence. Alexander then offered to make him cardinal. Savonarola said that he would undoubtedly wear a red hat, but it would be the red hat of martyrdom, not that of the cardinal. He was excommunicated at the instance of Alexander, but when told that he was separated from the church militant and the church triumphant, replied that to separate him from the latter was beyond the power of man. He was executed, being strangled and then burned, but, said Dr. Gunsaulus, the flames of that fire never died out. The spirit of Savonarola has lived and still lives in all our great statesmen and reformers. He was a man who was not afraid to confront well dressed error; he asked one question: "Is it right?" He was an aristocrat, but his was the aristocracy of brains and of character.

Anxious for New Members.

A meeting of the membership committee of the Y. M. C. A. was held Monday night, and plans for getting in new members were talked over. The officers are anxious to increase their membership, and one plan was suggested by a gentleman presented by which this can be done. The plan will be made public in a few days. No change in the membership dues is anticipated.

FIRST AID TO SHOPPERS.

WHERE CHRISTMAS PRESENTS IN GREAT ARRAY CAN BE FOUND.

Fancy but Practical Articles are to be Found in Drug Stores—Fine Things to be Seen Now at Gavett's and Kohn's.

Drugs and medicines are strange things to advertise for Christmas, but drug stores keep other things besides drugs, and do as much of a business in the sale of toilet articles and confectionery as they do in their other departments.

One of the largest and best patronized pharmacies in the city is L. W. Randolph's. The store is centrally located, and draws custom from all quarters of the city. Mr. Randolph is noted for his line of toilet articles, perfumes and confectionery as well as for his famous soda. This year he has made special preparations for the holiday trade by laying in a particularly large stock of everything in those lines, and arranging them in show windows and around the store in the most conspicuous and advantageous positions. Everything is there for the toilet, hair and clothes brushes, hand-mirrors, combs, perfumery in all kinds of cut-glass and plain bottles, and all these articles are displayed in a most attractive manner.

J. H. Leggett is the only agent for Huyler's celebrated candies in the city. Huyler's need no words of praise; if one has once partaken of it he will never eat any other. Mr Leggett has sold several hundred pounds of it already for the Christmas holidays, and it will be delivered a day or so before Christmas. Just before the holidays he will have a quarter of a ton of their chocolates and bon bons fresh from the New York factory which he intents to sell to Plainfield people. Leggett also sells some fine perfumes and atomizers, and also has a line of fancy goods.

Powers, the phalmacist, believes that Christmas day will be a bad one for colds, and advises each holiday purchaser to lay in a bottle of his famous cough remedy, and thus be ready for them. Mr. Powers does not believe in doctoring one's self if the illness requires a physician's care, but for ordinary colds his cough remedy is unexcelled.

But as a presentative a visit to Kohn's fur store is suggested. Here are furs, tail stolls, muffs, collarettes of sable, mink and stone martin that will make fine Christmas presents. Mink and sable capes at half price, and all ranging from $10 to $.00. Kohn also sells tailor made suits for ladies, and lap and carriage robes. Their stock is complete, and a visit to the store will convince purchasers that they can save money by buying here.

Gavett, in the Jackson building, presents a bewildering array of china and glassware to select from this year. His line of lamps in wrought iron and gold, Dorflinger's cut glass, Haviland's decorated china, chocolate sets, fine metal goods, etc., are the finest to be seen in the city. Gavett has been here long enough to have a reputation for selling the best quality of goods obtainable, and the public are not slow to realize it. A look at his display is well worth going into the store to see, and when once inside there will surely be something there that you want.

"BIRD GODS."

A New Volume Decorated by George Wharton Edwards.

The publishing house of A. S. Barnes & Co., of New York, announce the early publication of "Bird Gods," a small but very artistic volume by the Hon. Charles de Kay, late Consul-General at Berlin and decorated by the skilled pencil of George Wharton Edwards, of Franklin place. The book notice says of his decorations: "His clever hand and fancy have struck just the right note of savagery and quaintness for such a theme."

The contents of the book, as well as the decorations, are pronounced unique from cover to cover.

PARTOOK OF PANCAKES AND COUNTRY SAUSAGE.

Novel But Successful Sociable at Trinity Church.

GIVEN BY SUNDAY-SCHOOL.

A SATISFACTORY REPAST WAS PROVIDED FOR ALL.

Lecture Room Was Patriotically Decorated—American and English Flags Intertwined—Three Pirates Guarded the Door and the Donation Plate—Informal Programme Rendered—Those in Charge.

"They have a great way down here at Trinity, haven't they?" remarked the Sausage, frying merrily in the pan.

"You're right, my friend," responded the Buckwheat Cake as they turned him over on the griddle and his face began to brown. "It's all for a good cause, I suppose. But 'tis hard to be sacrificed to pay for matting even if it is to cover the floor of the lecture room of the Trinity Reformed church."

Such were the remarks that the Coffee Pot on duty at the "pancake sociable" at Trinity last evening heard in a quiet interval in the kitchen where the good things were being prepared. Soon after, both Sausage and Buckwheat Cake were served to Chief Doane, the first customer of the evening. The Chief promptly sent in a second alarm for more sausage and more cakes. They were even more enjoyable than a fire he said.

The social was arranged by the Sunday-school to raise funds to pay the amount still due on the matting for the lecture room where the affair was held. A long table was arranged in the primary room and there the good folk hastened to follow in the footsteps of the genial Chief. Pancakes, both wheat and buckwheat, country sausage and coffee were served. There were many customers, and a large corps of waitresses were kept busy supplying the demand that continued well into the evening.

The supper began at 6 o'clock and for the first hour Mrs. E. E. Anthony presided over the dining department, assisted by a corps of waitresses. From 7 until 8 o'clock Mrs. H. J. Martin was in command. For the next hour Mrs. E. Randall became commander-in chief.

With such a precious cargo within doors it did not seem right to leave the place unprotected, and the "three pirates" stood guard at the door. They were J. P. Laire, R. A. Meeker and Albertus Swaim. To those who encountered them, it is unnecessary to explain whence they derived their title of pirates. Beside them was a plate for which was received a silver offering, only sometimes it was paper.

The room was prettily decorated in the national colors, the work of William H. Olmstead, assisted by Miss Gertrude Tier. Right at the entrance was the motto, "Friendliness Makes Friends," beneath which the American and English flags were draped together. A reception committee, headed by Mrs. Cornelius Schenck and Robert Clark, Jr., welcomed the visitors.

During the evening, an informal programme was rendered which included vocal solos by Miss Etta Krymer, with Miss Lillian A. Force as accompanist, and cornet solos by Benjamin LaVere, with Miss Mabelle Force as accompanist. This part of the entertainment was arranged by a committee of which Miss Lillian A. Force was the chairman.

At the head of the whole affair was a general committee composed of Fred E. Smith, Miss Mabel Wilson and E. E. Anthony.

There is one soulless corporation that is famous for its kindness to churches. The Hecker-Jones-Jewell Milling Company furnished the material for the pancakes and further sent one of its expert cooks to the scene to prepare the cakes themselves. And the cakes well sustained their reputation for they were positively delicious.

The net proceeds will amount to about $25.

Divorce Granted.

Mrs. Sebring, of Greenbrook, has secured from the Court of Chancery an absolute divorce from her husband, Charles P. Sebring, on statutory grounds. The testimony in the case was taken before J. H. VanWinkle, and then submitted to Chancellor McGill for a decision. No defense was made and the decree was readily granted.

—A communication of Anchor Lodge, No. 119, F. and A. M., was held Tuesday evening and routine business was considered.

FIRST STEP TOWARDS SECURING SILK MILL

Board of Trade Appoint Committee to Organize Company.

STOCK TO BE $25 A SHARE.

SEVERAL SHARES SUBSCRIBED FOR LAST NIGHT.

The Enterprise to Be Known as the Plainfield Silk Company—Special Committee to Make a Very Favorable Report of Their Visit to Paterson—Payment for Shares Paid in Installments.

The prospects of a silk mill being started in this city now seems favorable, as a good start was made in this direction at a special meeting of the Board of Trade last evening. President Lounsbury was in the chair and there was a fair representation of the members. Mr Lounsbury, as one of the committee composed of Eugene A. Laing, Charles H. Hand and himself, made a report of the committee's visit to Paterson last week. He stated that everything as represented by the two promoters from that city had been found true. They found that the silk industry had done a good deal for Paterson and would no doubt be a good thing for Plainfield. The committee visited several silk mills and especially the plant now idle which it has been proposed to purchase and move to this city. The machinery in this idle mill is owned by Bannigan Bros., elderly men, who have become wealthy and retired from business. It is in fine condition and equal to new machinery. The plant is complete in every respect and can be purchased reasonable. It can also be moved to Plainfield for $250, which is considered remarkably cheap.

An informal discussion of the subject followed. Secretary Harry C. Runyon said that he had seen a number of prominent Plainfielders who signified a willingness to take shares of stock. To assist matters the committee was instructed to draw up a prospectus and to make their report in writing. A motion was to the effect that a committee composed of Eugene A. Laing, J. C. Pope, Garret Dunham, C. H. Hand and H. C. Runyon retire to another room and draft a plan of organization and report back to the meeting. The president was also made a member of the committee. In a short time the committee returned with their plan, a substance of which is that the new organization shall be known as the Plainfield Silk Company. The capital stock shall be $25 000 in shares of $25 each. The subscriber shall pay 20 per cent. of the the total subscribed ten days after the first call, and 20 per cent. each thirty days thereafter until the whole amount shall be paid. The subscriber is not bound unless the whole amount desired shall be subscribed.

On the strength of this plan forty-two shares of stock, representing $1,050, was subscribed as follows: Eugene A. Laing, J. C. Pope, Garrett Dunham, ten shares each; Fred C. Lounsbury, M. F. Elderton, five shares each; and Harry C. Runyon two shares.

Should this company be organized they will not be bound to take the Crescent Rink building for a mill. A number of good offers have been made for a site, etc., and after the company is organized it shall be for them to say where the plant shall be located and who shall be the officers of the company.

METRONOME CLUB'S FIRST CONCERT.

Took Part in One at Madison Avenue Reformed Church, New York.

The Metronome Banjo and Mandolin Club made its first appearance this season in public last evening when the members took part in an entertainment given in the Madison Avenue Reformed church, New York. The very fashionable audience present gave the Plainfielders a most flattering reception and enthusiastic encored every selection. The club appeared on the programme three times, but they were compelled to give two selections each time. The club showed a striking improvement over its work of the past and playing in excellent time and with feeling.

Frank O. Bristol, of East East Fifth street, took part in the same entertainment as reader and impersonator, and scored a remarkable hit. His selections were cleverly given. His laugh was contagious and the audience found his impersonations very delightful.

HORSE WAS KILLED; RIDER WOUNDED.

Serious Accident on Brunswick Trolley Line.

STRUCK BY MOVING CAR.

HORSE WAS FRIGHTENED AT HUMMING OF THE MOTOR.

Was Whirling around When the Car Struck Him From Behind—Candee VanNatta, the Rider, Was Thrown—Horse Died in a Few Moments—Van Natta Received Severe Injuries Near Somerville.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, Dec. 16.—A horse was killed and the rider, Candee Van Natta, of Plainfield, had a miraculous escape from fatal injury as the result of a collision on the line of the Brunswick Traction Company between this place and Bound Brook, yesterday, shortly before noon.

Mr. Van Natta lives in Plainfield, on South avenue. He is in the employ of the Jersey Central railroad at Cranford where he is on night duty. Yesterday morning he went to White House to ride home a horse that Victor Schomp, of Plainfield, a railroad painter, had just purchased there.

The journey was made without incident until Somerville was passed. At the top of a rise, a mile from Somerville, he met a car. The humming of the motor frightened the horse and it began to rear and plunge. The horse danced and whirled despite the efforts of the rider, while the car came on without stopping.

Meanwhile the horse had turned its back to the car and was walking sideways. The corner of the car struck the animal on the flank and sent it whirling to the ground. VanNatta was thrown and turned somersault in the air. No one knows how he struck, but he was up again as his horse's head before the car could be stopped, 200 feet away. The animal died in a few moments from internal injuries. VanNatta had his hip and shoulder badly strained and bruised so that he could not work last night. He says the car was moving rapidly at the time.

The car was No. 32, in charge of Motorman John Pelfer and Conductor Charles Adair. The passengers were George V. Tunison, of Plainfield; Mrs. Charles Smith and Walter Rose, of Bound Brook; I. R. Thatcher, of South Bound Brook, and Mrs. J. L. Wilbert and A. K. Howell, of Somerville.

A suit against the traction company will probably follow.

HONORED ALMA MATER.

Annual Dinner of the Union County Princeton Club at Elizabeth.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, December 16.—A meeting of the Union County Princeton Club was held at the Town and Country Club in this city last evening, which was attended by many of the Princeton graduates from Plainfield.

The hall of the clubhouse was decorated with orange and black flags and bunting, while banks of palms on the stage and about the room and college crests and banners on the walls all served to make the banqueting room a thing of beauty.

Chief Justice Magie, of the Supreme Court of the State, presided and introduced the speakers of the evening. President Patton, of Princeton, spoke first and proclaimed himself an optomist as regards Princeton's future development.

Rev. Dr. Wilton Merle Smith, of the New York Alumni Association, spoke eloquently of the democracy of college life at Princeton.

Benjamin H. Campbell, of this city, responded to the toast of "Columbia," and Samuel St. John McCutcheon, of Plainfield, spoke for "Yale." Edward J. Patterson, of Plainfield, spoke ably for that city.

Mr. Wilder, formerly of Plainfield, closed with some of his immitable remarks on things in general and thus brought to an end a delightful evening of college chat and reminiscence.

Law Debating Society Offers.

The Plainfield Law Debating Society met Wednesday night and nominated officers for the next term, as follows: President, Edward Bellis and Charles McCann; vice president, Howard Drake; secretary, Harry DeMeza and Charles McCann; treasurer, V. W. Nash; sergeant-at-arms, Edward Baker.

Death of Mrs. Casey.

FELL THREE STORIES.

THRILLING ACCIDENT TO ELEVATOR IN BABCOCK BUILDING.

Twelve Freemasons Were in the Car—They Escaped With a Severe Shaking up—Elevator Man Remained at His Post.

The elevator in the Babcock building fell three stories yesterday afternoon and the thirteen occupants escaped with nothing more serious than a severe shaking up, in which they were decidedly lucky. The elevator is laid up for repairs in consequence.

Twelve members of Jerusalem Lodge, No. 26, F. and A. M., took the elevator for their lodge rooms on the top floor to assemble for the purpose of attending the funeral of the late Samuel Ball, of Scotch Plains. When the car reached the third story, it stopped of its own accord and then began to descend. The colored elevator man turned pale, but pluckily clung to the rope.

At last the electric brake gave way, and the speed of the car rapidly increased until there came a crash and the car suddenly ended its downward journey at the ground floor. The car withstood the shock while the occupants were thrown down in a heap. They recovered in a moment and climbed out to a place of safety. None were injured, save for the mental shock.

The elevator is run by electric power. Part of the mechanism gave way which resulted in the fall. It is understood that it has been known for some time that the elevator needed attention.

BAZAR AT GRACE M. E. CHURCH

Given Under the Successful Auspices of the Queen Esther Band.

A two days' entertainment and bazaar was opened in Grace M. E. church last night, under the auspices of the Queen Esther Band of the church. A programme was presented last night and a different one will be presented tonight. The booths erected around the main auditorium are decorated with great care and skill, and being in different colors, contrast nicely with each other.

The church is trimmed with the national colors, long streamers of red, white and blue being displayed. The pillars are all wrapped with blue bunting, and the booths in other colors.

The fancy table, all in deep red, under a huge Japanese umbrella, is presided over by Miss Addie Marsh, Miss Adah VanHorn and Miss Carrie Pangborn.

The candy table was in yellow, and at this table are Miss Nellie Valiant, Miss Addie Carney, Miss Tena Voehl, Miss May Fairchild, and Mrs. Anner Moet.

The grocery table, which also was in red, was presided over by Miss Mabel Stevens, Miss Sadie Winckler, Miss Grace Gaddis and Miss Winnie Carroll.

At the fish pond over in the corner are Miss Nellie Vermeule, Miss Belle Smith, Miss Jennie D Camp and Miss Tessie Unrhahn. There are tables placed here and there where ice cream and cake were sold. Mrs. John Carney attended to the ice cream and Mrs. Edward Sebring to the cake, while the waitresses were Miss Mary Woolston, Miss Flossie Carney, Miss Eva Doeringer, Miss Grace Powell, Miss Bessie Farley, Miss Eva Titus and Miss Stella Vermeule.

Besides the other attractions just named there is the art gallery, in charge of Benjamin Schuck, and assisted by Miss Elizabeth Hoagland, Miss Mary Grace Steiner, Miss Adah Woolston, Miss Delia Voehl, and Miss Marguerite Schuck.

The entertainment consisted of an overture by the orchestra, Professors Frazee, Creiger and Guttman; recitations by Miss Elizabeth May Loveland and John H. Carney; a violin solo by Mrs. George Saums and comic songs by William N. Runyon.

Miss Raybert Entertains.

Miss Etta Raybert, of North avenue, entertained about fifteen of her friends at her home last evening at a musicale, which was a delightful affair. Almost the entire evening was devoted to music. There were violin solos by I. H. Lambert, of Westfield; Albert Garland, of New Brunswick; cornet solos by Mr. Brittingham, of Westfield; flute solos by Mr. Holland, of New Brunswick, and Mr. Wilcox, Westfield; piano solos by Miss Mabelle Force and Miss Etta Raybert, and vocal solos by Miss Charlotte Messersmith and Miss Raybert. Following the programme refreshments were served and a short time was passed in sociability.

Sent to County Jail.

Henry Morse, colored, of Washingville, was arrested in the borough last evening by Marshal Campbell for being disorderly and intoxicated. He was arraigned this morning when Recorder Long sent him to Somerville for ten days.

BIT OF CHEWING GUM LED TO THEIR ARREST.

Police Round Up a Youthful Gang of Burglars.

CONFESS THEIR CRIMES.

AUTHORITIES CAPTURE A GOOD DEAL OF STOLEN BOOTY, TOO.

A Large Number of Petty Thefts Are Charged Against Them, and Indisputable Evidence of Their Guilt is Secured—Six Boys in the Gang—One's Mother Died Soon After His Arrest.

During the past week or ten days the police have been doing some detective work which has resulted in the arrest of six young men, ranging in ages from 17 to 20 years, who are charged with committing a series of petty robberies hereabouts during a period of a little over a year past. The boys were all arrested between the hours of 8 o'clock last night and 8 o'clock this morning, and have confessed the crimes. They will have a hearing some time this afternoon before Justice Nash. The young men are Charles Westerfield, of Central avenue; Thomas Casey, of West Third street; Alfred Springer, of Grove street; John Taylor, of South Second street; George Kline, of West Third street, and Abraham Connett, of Plainfield avenue, the two last named being colored.

Sunday, December 4th, Werner's clothing store on West Front street, was entered and robbed of $60 worth of clothing. Then the police set to work on that case and Sergeant Kiely soon had a clue, which, followed up, has resulted in this wholesale arrest. During the past year a dozen stores and houses have been entered by these lads, among them being C. K. Compton's store, where $10 worth of candy and gum were stolen; Scheuer's store, where $30 was stolen from the cash drawer; Fred Endress' Muhlenberg place store, where several hams, a silver watch and money was taken. The Grant Avenue station was entered twice. Once the lads were frightened away before they secured any booty, but the second time they broke open a nickel in the slot machine and stole all the pennies and gum it contained. They also broke into Mrs. Adam Smith's chicken coop on West Second street and stole 5 pullets which they sold to Krlman Rothberg, who keeps a dry goods store on Liberty street, and who will also be arrested for receiving stolen goods. They got into Schloss' shoe store and stole boots and shoes; also into Leal's schools where they found some money in one of the desks; into the Park Club and stole soda; into Voehl's bakery where they took cake; into the house on the corner of West Front street and Waynewood place and got away with an oil stove and some edibles; into Vito Ferraro's store on West Front street where the took ice cream and candy.

Casey and Springer went to Westfield a week or so ago and got into Piker's shoe store where they stole 4 pairs of shoes. Some one interrupted them in their work, but Casey pulled a revolved and fired at the intruder. It must of had a blank in it, for the man was not hurt.

Sergeant Kiely received his clue from a person to whom one of the gang gave a piece of gum one day. The Sergeant discovered that it was a piece from Giles' bakery, so putting this and that together, decided that he was on the right track. Captain Grant, Sergeant Kiely and Roundsman Frederickson deserve great credit for the work they have done during the past few days.

The first arrest was made last night when the Sergeant sent Officer Watson down to Casey's home on West Third street after Casey. The Sergeant has been waiting for a week to make this arrest, but owing to the illness of Casey's mother, the raid was held off as long as possible. As it was, the mother died this morning, although death may not have been hastened by the disgrace into which her boy had fallen, for the police handled the case so carefully that she was to remain in ignorance of the whole affair, and would not have known had not her husband told her.

Then Kiely and Frederickson arrested the others, and worked all night gathering them in. Westerfield's room contained three overcoats, several suits of clothes and pairs of trousers and there were also more clothes and shoes in Casey's room. The boys, even when locked up, denied everything until confronted with the stolen goods. Then they broke down and confessed. Westerfield, the lads say, was the leader and planned

Regarding Remedies for Dyspepsia and Indigestion.

The National disease of Americans is indigestion or in its chronic form, dyspepsia, and for the very reason that it is so common many people neglect taking proper treatment for what they consider trifling stomach trouble, when as a matter of fact, indigestion lays the foundation for many incurable diseases. No person with a vigorous, healthy stomach will fall a victim to consumption. Many kidney diseases and heart troubles date their beginning from poor digestion; thin, nervous people are really so because their stomachs are out of gear; weary, languid faded out women owe their condition to imperfect digestion.

When nearly every person you meet is afflicted with weak digestion it is not surprising that nearly every secret patent medicine on the market claims to be a cure for dyspepsia, as well as a score of other troubles, when in fact, as Dr. Worthier says, there is but one genuine dyspepsia cure which is perfectly safe and reliable, and moreover, this remedy is not a patent medicine, but is a scientific combination of pure pepsin (free from animal matter,) vegetable essences, fruit salts and bismuth. It is sold by druggists under name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. No extravagant claims are made for them, but for indigestion or any stomach trouble Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are far ahead of any remedy yet discovered. They act on the food eaten, no dieting is necessary, simply eat all the wholesome food you want and these tablets will digest it. A cure results, because all the stomach needs is a rest, which Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give by doing the work of digestion.

Druggists sell these tablets at 50c. per package. Circulars and testimonials sent free by addressing F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich. 12 12 14-16

CALVIN S. BRICE DEAD

Former Senator a Victim of an Attack of Pneumonia.

AN ACTIVE CAREER ENDED

He Was Taken Ill Last Saturday. Death Occured at His Fifth Avenue Home Yesterday Afternoon. He Was a Talented Lawyer, a Successful Business Man and a Prominent Politician.

New York, Dec. 16.—Calvin Stewart Brice, the noted financier and former United States senator from Ohio, died of pneumonia at 3.15 o'clock Thursday afternoon at his home, 693 Fifth avenue.

Mr. Brice was first taken ill on Saturday, but his condition was not regarded as serious until Monday, when symptoms of pneumonia appeared. He became worse rapidly and passed away.

Mr. Brice was unconscious for 24 hours before he died.

Calvin S. Brice was born in Denmark, Ohio, on September 17, 1845. He was the son of the Rev. W. K. Brice, a Presbyterian minister. After having received a common school education, young Brice entered the Miami University at Oxford, Ohio. He was then but 13 years old.

When the war broke out he was among the first to volunteer in the university company, and in 1862 he was enrolled as a member of Company A of the 36th Ohio volunteers.

After serving a year with the army in West Virginia, Brice returned to the university, being graduated in 1863.

Early in the following year he recruited a company which was assigned to the 180th Ohio volunteers. That regiment served in Tennessee, Georgia and the Carolinas until July, 1865, and when he left the army Captain Brice had been promoted to the rank of lieutenant colonel.

At the close of the war Colonel Brice took up the study of law and was admitted to practice in 1866. He practiced law with great success until 1880, when he abandoned the profession to take charge of various enterprises in which he was interested.

Among these were the New York, Chicago and St. Louis, the Lake Erie and Western, the Chicago and Atlantic, the Ohio Central, the Richmond and Danville, the Richmond and West Point Terminal, the Virginia and Georgia, the South Shore and Atlantic, and the Knoxville and Ohio Railroad Companies, the National Telegraph Company, the Southern Trust Company and the Chase National Bank of this city and the United States Express Company.

While practicing law Colonel Brice became interested in politics, always attending the Democratic conventions, both state and national.

He was frequently urged to accept nominations for office at that time, but he always declined the offers.

He was chosen delegate at large to the National Democratic convention, held in St. Louis in 1888, and as a reward for his services at the convention he was elected chairman of the national executive committee.

In conducting the campaign he introduced the same methods which he employed in his business enterprises, and turned an unexceptionally complete record of the work over to his successor.

Colonel Brice was elected United States senator from Ohio in 1890, to succeed Senator Payne, and served one term.

He had lived in this city two years, but maintained a residence in Lima, Ohio. He leaves a widow and four children, three sons and two daughters. His sons, Stewart and John, and his daughters, Helen and Kate, and his wife were with him when he died. His older son, Kirk Brice, is in China.

Mr. Brice was a member of many prominent and influential clubs and also held many offices in the various railroads in which he was interested.

Mr. Brice was the head of the Calvin S. Brice syndicate, which recently secured many valuable railroad and other franchises in China.

William B. Parsons, the engineer, is now in China arranging for the building of the roads.

Niagara's Treasurer Short.

Lockport, N. Y., Dec. 16.—The board of supervisors yesterday, at a public meeting, took cognisance of persistent reports that there were irregularities in the office of the county treasurer. A committee from the board, which has been examining the treasurer's books, hopes to make a full report in a few days.

It was urged by some members that the public had a right to know what was going on.

The committee has found that County Treasurer John C. Lammert's books show a balance on hand of $44,000, but the two local depositories have no county funds. Bills audited two weeks ago have not been paid when presented and this started the investigation.

Good Platt for Dog's Value.

New York, Dec. 16.—In the city court yesterday, Thomas C. Platt was sued to recover the value of a prize bulldog.

William M. Matthews, the soda water man, was the plaintiff. The dog he lost was Reve Royal, which had taken prizes at many exhibitions and was worth $200.

The complaint did not allege that Mr. Platt had made away with the animal personally, but as president of the United States Express Company. Judge Olcott sat on the case, and when he had heard all the evidence, he decided that Mr. Platt, as president of the express company, ought not to be made to pay the $200.

Tin Plate Company Incorporated.

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 16.—The American Tin Plate Company, with a capital of fifty million dollars, has filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. The state's fees [illegible] $50,000.

GEN. BROOKE'S TESTIMONY.

Much Trouble to Get the New Troops Equipped.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—Major General John R. Brooke was a witness before the war investigation commission yesterday.

He said that the most of the troops at Camp Thomas, where he was in charge, were volunteers, and they came supposedly with ten days' rations, but this was the so-called field ration, and at first they were hungry. This was remedied by the commissary department quite promptly. The commissary department was always prompt and efficient in its services. The volunteers were supplied with all sorts of tentage most of it antiquated. Their uniforms were the National Guard uniform mostly old and soon made worse by the severity of the service. Their equipment in general was what had been accumulated "through the parsimonious policy of the war department through the preceding twenty-five years." Some of the men were unarmed and some in their citizens' clothes, with only one blanket.

The whole energies of the commanding officer were bent on equipping this heterogeneous mass of men, but some of the departments were lacking in supplies and the work was necessarily slow.

Early in June the commanding general was ordered to send eight of the best equipped regiments to Tampa, and to do this it was necessary to strip some of the regiments to help out others.

Even with this expedient some of the regiments left for Tampa poorly equipped.

General Brooke noticed the One Hundred and Fifty-seventh Indiana regiment, which left Camp Thomas with its belts tied together with strings. Other men were without cartridge belts and had to use the old cartridge boxes.

The war department at this time had exhausted all the canvas and tentage in the country, and tents of all sorts were shipped to camp. Canteens, knives, forks, cups, and the like, were also short, and this condition, General Brooke said, continued practically up to the end of his administration at Camp Thomas.

During June orders came to equip three divisions of one army corps for service in the West Indies, and this was done with the Fifth Army Corps, which was more nearly equipped than the others.

General Brooke considered when he left the camp on July 23 that these divisions were fairly well supplied.

General Brooke said that he had nothing to do with the selection of the camp ground, but, being assigned there he made it his business to look after the water supply and to see that the necessary sanitary regulations were promulgated and enforced. He made personal inspections as frequently as his time would permit.

He said positively that the criticisms of the spring water supply were without foundation. He had verified this by personal inspection and by frequent analysis at Washington. He had made strenuous efforts to regulate the entrance of hucksters to the camp, and as a result of this he said that the sick report fell off from 10 to 15 per cent.

Speaking of his administration in general, the witness said that he had never hesitated to assume all responsibility by concentrating authority in his own hands and enforcing obedience to his orders among his staff officers. He had seen very few instances where there was not prompt and energetic compliance with all his orders.

He was both surprised and disappointed, he said, to notice the testimony of one of his staff officers before the commission that the headquarters camp was in "a distinctly filthy condition."

Big Liner Signals in Distress.

Shibbereen, Ireland, Dec. 16.—A dispatch received here from Baltimore, about seven miles southwest, says that a steamer supposed to be a transatlantic liner, is in distress off the coast there.

She has been throwing distress signals for some time.

London, Dec. 16.—Owing to the heavy fog which hangs over the channel, no further information has yet been obtained regarding the steamer which was throwing distress signals off Baltimore.

If the report, which is not confirmed, is well founded, the vessel may possibly be the Dominion line steamer New England, Captain MacAuley, which sailed from Boston on December 8, for Liverpool.

New York, Dec. 16.—The White Star liner Teutonic sailed from Queenstown at 1.10 p. m. yesterday for New York.

The Red Star liner Rhynland also sailed yesterday from Queenstown for Philadelphia.

A Woman's Long Cost-pee.

Reading, Pa., Dec. 16.—Two years in the penitentiary was the sentence imposed by Judge Endlich yesterday on Mrs. Clara Hartman, a pretty woman, 18 years old, who had been a bride for a few months.

The charge against her was shoplifting. In sentencing the prisoner the court termed her "a nuisance in this community."

ATLANTA'S GREAT DAY

President McKinley Receives an Ovation.

HIS SPEECH A REVELATION

Second Day of the Atlanta Jubilee a Great Success. Finest Civic Parade Ever Seen in the South. Many Distinguished Men View the Pageant.

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 16.—The second day of the Atlanta peace jubilee opened auspiciously. The temperature had risen materially, the crowds were enormous, and excursion trains were arriving at short intervals from all directions.

The hotels have been turning away people since noon of Wednesday.

The ovation given President McKinley at the Capitol by the members of the legislature was the greatest reception ever given an American citizen in Atlanta, and his speech, having relation to the care of Confederate dead, reported in yesterday's dispatches, has fired the hearts of southerners with admiration for the chief executive.

General Joe Wheeler is cheered at every step, and Generals Lawton, Young, Gates and other army officers are heartily received at each appearance.

The feature of yesterday was the civic and military parade, which passed through the streets during the afternoon. Starting from the corner of Garnat and Whitehall streets, at noon, the procession proceeded to Exposition Park, over Alabama, Broad, Marietta and Peachtree streets.

The parade consisted of ten divisions, under command of Grand Marshal A. J. West. His staff included among others the following prominent people: Major Cleveland Wilcoxson, Fifth Georgia infantry, chief of staff; Lieutenant Colonel William P. Hull, adjutant general department of the gulf; Colonel A. P. Cleary, Honorable C. O. S. Garnett of Virginia, Captain D. A. Frederick, United States army; James O. Ladd of South Carolina, Major C. L. Wing, Second Arkansas volunteers; Lieutenant Moorehead Wright, Second Arkansas volunteers; J. C. McL. Carter, United States army.

Six thousand infantry, ten thousand school children, four hundred carriages containing sixteen hundred people, one thousand members of secret orders, five hundred Confederate veterans, under command of General Joe Wheeler, one thousand laboring men, one hundred officers and marshals, twelve bands, one hundred Grand Army men, a squad of policemen, two hundred mounted police, members of the Young Men's Christian Association and Ministers' Evangelical Association, two hundred members of the Capital City Club and Fulton Club, the Atlanta fire department and representatives of five hundred civic organizations from all parts of the South took part in the parade.

The president and other distinguished guests, in carriages, were at the head of the pageant. They were escorted by the Third New Jersey and Fifteenth Pennsylvania, which came over from their winter camp at Athens for the occasion.

The president was compelled to bow almost continuously to the cheers from the crowd and from the windows of the buildings along the route of the march.

A rear of veterans escorted the position of General Joe Wheeler and his band of Cavalrymen who followed him through the civil war, and the famous leader was at times compelled to force his horse through the throngs that blocked his path.

Arriving at Ponce de Leon avenue, the president and party reviewed the parade. Among those on the stand with the chief executive were Major General Shafter, Mrs. McKinley, Hon. George B. Peck, Hon. Lyman J. Gage, Hon. Charles Emory Smith, Hon. Chas. F. Warwick, Secretary of the Navy Long, Lieutenant Hobson, Hon. John Addison Porter, Hon. Allen D. Chandler, Mayor Collier, Colonel William A. Hemphill and former Governor Atkinson.

After the parade had passed the reviewing stand the president and other guests of the city were driven to Piedmont Park, where they were the guests of the Piedmont Driving Club at an elaborate luncheon.

Among the arrivals yesterday were General William R. Shafter and his aides, Creighton Webb and Lieutenant Noble; Governor Joseph F. Johnston of Alabama and the Alabama legislature and a number of army officers from Anniston.

Civil Service Reformers.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 16.—The eighteenth annual convention of the National Civil Service Reform League began in this city yesterday morning and will continue until to-night.

The meetings are being held in the assembly room at Music Hall, and delegates from all parts of the country are present.

Yesterday morning's work was confined to a meeting of the members of the general committee and of the executive committee, the meeting being a joint one, held behind closed doors.

At the afternoon session reports of officers, of the special committee on the twelfth census and of the committee on violation of the civil service rules were read.

Kansas Populist Trick.

Topeka, Kan., Dec. 16.—Governor Leedy has issued a call for a special session of the legislature to meet on Wednesday of next week.

This course was decided upon at a conference of leaders who desire to enact several Populist measures before the inauguration of the Republican legislature which was elected in November.

The New Swiss President.

Berne, Switzerland, Dec. 16.—The Federal Assembly has elected M. Mueller, who was vice president for 1898, to be president of the Swiss Confederation.

M. Hauser of Zurich was elected vice president.

They are both Radicals. M. Mueller is President of Berne.

HIGH TRADE RECORD.

This Country's November Exports Far Surpass All Precedent.

New York, Dec. 16.—Within the last month almost every so-called high record in American finance has been broken.

Last week's New York bank statement showed the largest loan and deposit accounts ever recorded.

Last month's aggregate bank clearings, in New York city and in the entire United States, ran far beyond those of any month in American history.

The money supply in the country, as estimated by the treasury on December 1, is greatly in excess of any previous return. The total gold in the United States treasury, as reported yesterday, exceeds all records of the government.

The bureau of statistics has published the statement of the country's foreign trade for November which shows that in this direction too, all previous records are broken.

The previous high water mark of merchandise exports was last December, during the European grain famine, when the United States exported $125,059,723 worth of goods.

Last month, according to yesterday's report, it shipped $129,783,512. The excess of merchandise exports over imports is $77,673,952, also the largest of any month in our history.

For the eleven completed months of 1898 the excess of merchandise exports over imports was $537,827,046, an increase of $254,271,228 over the export excess even in the same months of the famine year 1897.

Our gold imports during the similar period this year are $149,396,370, a figure never approached in any of the previous years.

NATIONAL BOARD OF TRADE.

Broad Reciprocity Arguments Advocated. Resolutions Passed.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—The first matter which came before the meeting of the National Board of Trade yesterday was the report of the committee on reciprocity and export trade, presented by Mr. Ebersole of Cincinnati.

Resolutions which were adopted recommend that reciprocal treaties be negotiated, especially with the countries of the American continent.

It was asserted that the prosperity of the country will be greatly promoted by the nearest practical approach to the establishment of complete reciprocal trade relations between the United States, the Dominion of Canada and the colony of New Foundland.

From the committee on postal affairs, Mr. Giddings of New York presented a report which recommended that Congress carefully look into the matter of rates paid to the railroads by the government for carrying the mails.

The committee also reported a resolution favoring the establishment of a system of postal savings banks. The board adjourned to meet on January 23, 1900.

Sailing of the Brooklyn.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 16.—The cruiser Brooklyn, Captain Cook commanding, sailed from Hampton Roads yesterday morning for Havana.

She came from New York the day before and the entire time was devoted to filling her coal bunkers. It has been reported that General Miles would take passage on her, his object being to study the military situation at Havana and to recommend just how many American troops should occupy the city.

It was said at Old Point, however, that the commanding officer of the army had not arrived there, and it is not thought that he sailed on the Brooklyn.

Battleship in a Bad Way.

New York, Dec. 16.—It is figured by department experts that it will cost $24,000 to repair the battleship Massachusetts and it will take six weeks to do the work.

Her injuries are very much like those the Brooklyn received a year ago in the Delaware river, where she struck a pinnacle of rock and tore her bottom.

Naval men think that it will be a delicate piece of work to dock the Massachusetts, because for a time, while being shifted, she will have to rest her entire weight on her injured keel, and extraordinary care will be necessary to keep her from settling.

Socialists Oppose Gompers.

Kansas City, Decv. 16.—The delegates representing the Socialist element in the American Federation of Labor were in secret conference until nearly one o'clock yesterday morning to consider the advisability of nominating a candidate to oppose Samuel Gompers for the presidency of the Federation.

The nomination was offered to Frank P. Gobin, of Boston, representing the boot and shoe workers but he declined.

The caucus adjourned until last evening. The Socialists claim to control 890 of the 2,300 votes present in the convention.

Juvenile Capitalists.

Brooklyn, Dec. 16.—The public schools in the borough of Queens have adopted the penny savings bank system, and as a result pennies given to the children to spend for candy have been turned over to their teachers, who had them deposited to the credit of the children in the Long Island City Savings Bank. The total savings deposited aggregate $37,021.50.

Italy and Don Carlos.

Madrid, Dec. 16.—The Spanish ambassador at Rome has been instructed to intimate to the Italian government the necessity of expelling Don Carlos from Italian territory if he does not cease his conspiracies against the Spanish throne.

Troops Arrive in Spain.

Madrid, Dec. 16.—The steamer St. Augustine, with 1,305 troops from Cuba, arrived at Malaga yesterday. Two deaths occurred on the voyage, and there were eighteen cases of sickness on board upon the vessel's arriving.

PENSION BILL PASSED

The Work Done in the Shortest Time on Record.

IT CALLS FOR $145,223,836

Hundreds of Millions Unanimously Appropriated. Mr. Allen Thanks President Mckinley. Discussion Occupied Less Than Twenty Minutes.

Washington D. C. Dec. 16.—The House yesterday took up the pension appropriation bill, after adopting the conference report on the bill extending the marine inspection laws to sailing vessels of seven hundred tons and over and providing for the licensing of second and third mates.

Mr. Barney, Republican of Wisconsin, in charge of the pensions appropriation bill, explained its provisions.

Mr. Allen, Democrat of Mississippi, of the appropriations committee, said that when he first came to Congress, fourteen years ago, the pension appropriation bill invariably precipitated a bloody shirt discussion. He congratulated the country that Congress had progressed since then, and that there would be no acrimonious debate on this bill. The country had the gratifying information that the pension roll had reached the maximum.

"And I congratulate the country for this," said Mr. Allen, "that while one of the most gallant and desperate soldiers of the Confederacy (himself) helped to report this bill, the president of the United States is down in Dixie doing honor to the Confederate dead. We all have cause to rejoice." (Laughter and applause.)

There was no further debate. The bill was read through without a word of criticism and passed, the entire time occupied in its discussion being less than twenty minutes.

This is the shortest time on record for a general pension bill. The bill carries $145,223,836.

CRITICISED THE KAISER.

The Socialistic Leader in the Reichstag says Hard Things.

Berlin, Dec. 16.—During the debate on the estimates in the reichstag yesterday Herr Bebel, the Socialist leader, expressed satisfaction at the re-establishment of good relations between Great Britain and Germany.

He also criticised Emperor William's home policy, saying that it was a pity the revenues of the German empire were swallowed up by the army, the navy and the colonies, and that he understood there was an intention in influential quarters to introduce a still larger naval programme.

Continuing, Herr Bebel referred to the expulsions from Prussia, contrasting them with the conciliatory utterances of Emperor William in the Church of the Redeemer of Jerusalem. Herr Bebel then proceeded to criticise the imperial remarks, amid considerable uproar and cries of "Shame!" Finally he was called to order.

The commission has expended to date $21,400 for the purchase of land in and along the St. Lawrence river for an international park, which this state and Canada are establishing.

Reinforcements for Manila.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—Orders have been issued for the Twentieth regiment of regular infantry at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, to proceed to San Francisco and take passage on the transport steamer Scandia for the Philippines.

The auxiliary cruiser Yosemite has been selected for service with Admiral Dewey's fleet. She will be fitted out at the Norfolk navy yard and will make the trip to Manila by way of the Suez canal.

She will take a large quantity of naval stores and probably five hundred enlisted men for the relief of short term men on that station.

She will start early in the month of January and act as a convoy for transports.

Lord Curzon Leaves London.

London, Dec. 16.—Lord Curzon of Kedleston, the new viceroy of India, started yesterday morning for Marseilles, to join Lady Curzon, his wife, on board the Arabia there.

A party of friends, including his father, the Rev. Alfred Nathaniel Holden Curzon, Baron Scarsdale, Lord George Hamilton, the secretary of state for India; the Duke of Westminster, the United States charge d'affaires, Mr. Henry White, and Mrs. White, bade him farewell at the railroad station.

Rescued in Mideocan.

London, Dec. 16.—The British steamer Basuta, Captain Taylor, which has arrived at Gravesend from Buenos Ayres, reports having spoken the British bark Aretas on December 9, in latitude 40 north, longitude 12 west, with the crew of the Italian bark, Salvatore, from Bangor, Maine, on October 29, for Palermo, Sicily, and which was abandoned on November 22, in latitude 46 north, longitude 37 west.

Raleigh Starts for Home.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16.—Admiral Dewey has notified the navy department by cable that the cruiser Raleigh had sailed from Manila for New York.

The Raleigh was recently ordered home. She will proceed by the Mediterranean route.

AGONCILLO TALKS BIG.

Spain's Cession of the Philippines Void and Illegal.

London, Dec. 16.—Agoncillo, the representative of Aguinaldo, the insurgent leader in the Philippine islands, sails for New York on Saturday, to, he alleges, "resume his duties as representative of the Filipino government at Washington."

In an interview he made the following statement:

"The only portion of the Spanish-American treaty which we are concerned in is the cession of the Philippines, which is illegal, as the Spaniards lost their sovereignty over the islands and the Americans cannot dispose of the future of the archipelago without consulting the Filipinos. Their consent, by popular vote, is necessary. As universal suffrage forms the basis of the American constitution, the United States cannot but carry out this measure.

"The result of the peace commission's deliberations is only satisfactory to us inasmuch as Spain is turned out of the Philippine islands. I do not know officially why the Filipinos have not released the Spanish prisoners. I telegraphed to Aguinaldo on the subject, and I hereby declare it to be untrue that they are held for ransom.

"I can only regard the possible eventual sale of the islands as being nonsensical. My countrymen will resist to the bitter end any attempt to sell the Philippines to a foreign power.

"We are anxious to be united and allied to our good friends, the Americans; but beyond this we are determined at all hazards to remain independent."

HAVANA STREET RAILROAD SOLD.

Work Stopped on Railroad Combinations.

Havana, Dec. 16.—At a general meeting of the stockholders of the Ferro Carril Urbano yesterday the sale of the entire stock, amounting to 1,000,000, was authorized at 98.

Half of this amount was taken by George W. Young, president of the United States Mortgage and Trust Company; Senator Smith of New Jersey, Percival Farquhar, F. S. Pearson, Colonel C. B. M. Harvey and Hanson Brothers of Montreal. The other half was taken by Ruffe & Sons and T. W. Todd, bankers, of London.

Captain General Castellanos has issued an order stopping work on the railroad concessions, without prejudice to the rights of any of the parties interested, until the Americans take control here.

This prevents the American Indies Company from beginning the construction of a street railroad under the disputed De la Torre concession.

Captain McCullagh's police plan will embrace precinct station houses, if he can get money enough to rent them. The force will probably consist of 1,300 men and a detective bureau. Ex-policemen will be used as far as possible.

Killed by Avalanches.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 16.—The steamer Danube, arriving from Lynn Canal, reports a succession of fatal accidents during the construction of the White Pass Railway, caused by an avalanche. First Officer Lawrence of the Danube while at Skaguay, was told of six of these accidents occurring within a week.

He obtained no names, but was assured that at least fifteen or twenty persons had lost their lives on the railway since the opening of winter.

A number of deaths are also spoken of as having occurred on the trail to Bennett, only one, however, being positively confirmed.

In this case the victim was a man named Ferrow, a packer, who was found frozen to death on the summit.

The Attitude of the Czar.

London, Decv. 16.—William T. Stead, writing with reference to his recent visit to St. Petersburg, says that the czar is entirely animated by good will for Great Britain, and that he brought from India genuine admiration for British colonial administration.

"But," the czar is said to have sorrowfully observed, "colonization sometimes reduces itself to supplying natives with alcohol and other demoralizing agents."

The czar, it also appears, regards the partition of China with a feeling of horror, and he is said to have asserted that Russia only occupied Port Arthur under bitter necessity and in order to forestall German and British designs.

Haven't Heard of Peace.

St. Thomas, Danish West Indies, December 16.—The United States quartermasters steamer Gypsum King, which arrived here yesterday from Porto Rico to be docked, has been prevented from doing so by Danish government officials on the ground that it would be a violation of the neutrality laws.

They have cabled to Copenhagen for instructions.

Spain Will Not Repudiate.

Madrid, Dec. 16.—Senor Puigcerver, minister of finance in the cabinet council yesterday said that the finance department expects to pay the coupons of the Cuban debts, and that in eight years time he hopes that Spain will settle all the expenses of the war, the country having rich elements of production.

To Man a New Japanese Cruiser.

Port Townsend, Wash., Dec. 16.—The Nippon Yusen Kaisha liner Kinshiu Maru has arrived from the Orient with 191 Japanese blue jackets and officers on their way to San Francisco to man the new Japanese cruiser Chitose, built in that city.

The Disabled Atlantic.

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 16.—The steamer Elton from Baltimore for Queenstown, came in here yesterday, having in tow the steamer Atlantic, from the Delaware Breakwater for Liverpool, with tail shaft broken.

The Cuban Debt.

Madrid, Dec. 16.—The Spanish government has agreed to pay the January coupon of the Cuban debt.

The Curfew Again.

Down in Vineland there is a lively time between those who want to see the curfew bell made part of the municipal government and those who do not. The situation in that South Jersey town obtains contemporary interest in Plainfield, because we are confronted with the probability of a similar idea cropping out in the Common Council. As might naturally be conjectured, the curfew idea is being pushed by the women. A committee from the W. C. T. U. appeared before the Mayor and the Council and earnestly petitioned the enactment of an ordinance that would bring back to these modern days the ringing of curfew to warn the youth to hie themselves away to their respective home at seasonable hours of the evening. Subsequent happenings in the Council are best told in the words of a newspaper correspondent, as follows:

After the proposed ordinance had passed its second reading and the ladies had congratulated themselves upon its apparently clear sailing, Rev. E. I. Gifford created a sensation by taking the floor and vigorously denouncing curfew ordinances as severe, un-American and unjust. "I have a young son," said Mr. Gifford, "and would not want to be humiliated by his arrest and temporary imprisonment because he happened to be out at night after 9 o'clock. You boast of America being a land of liberty. Do you call the curfew freedom? I believe it is unconstitional, anyway!"

Inasmuch as the reverend gentlemen who delivered himself of those emphatic remarks is the pastor of the very church of which some of the most pronounced advocates of the curfew bell are members of, one can imagine in a small degree the flutter that was caused among the fair sex who had believed the sailing clear and unobstructed for the resuscitation of the puritanical notion. To use the words of the correspondent again: "Many uncomplimentary remarks concerning the pastor were made, but he kept gamely on and belabored the ordinance until it seemed to fall to to pieces. The Council sought safety from the gathering cycle by postponing action until the next morning."

Vineland's grappling with the curfew idea will be watched with interest by Plainfield, and perhaps in the end we may gather some profitable facts from the rumpus that has been stirred up down there between the women on one side and the outspoken minister on the other.

Notice is hereby given that the following ordinance has been introduced before the Common Council, read the second time and ordered engrossed preparatory to its third reading, and that it is the intention of the Council to adopt the same.

The above is the exact wording of the preamble introducing the ordinance containing the terms of the proposed new franchise for trolley extension. Mark well the last phrase, "and it is the intention of the Common Council to adopt the same." If it is the "intention of the Common Council to adopt the same," and they bring out the point in an emphatic official manner. What is the use of citizens attending a hearing on the ordinance. By their own words the Council say in in effect: Come on and do your talking; that's all the good it will do.

The defeat of a clergyman who ran for School Trustee in Plainfield excites the wonder of some of our contemporaries. It should not. There is an invincible feeling in American communities against the agency of the clergy in our common school system, and it was that feeling, no doubt, that defeated the clerical candidate in Plainfield, which has so large a proportion of church goers. He ught not to have been a candidate.—Newark Advertiser.

The Advertiser's comment is all out of tune. If the result of Rev. Mr. Richard's candidacy had been the opposite to what it was, The Advertiser's remarks would be more apt. It happens that the clergyman was elected.

The troubles between Fanwood township and the city of Elizabeth over a poor charge which were brought into court before Judge Vail and decided in favor of Fanwood township, have brought forward the fact that in all the cases in which Former Assemblyman W. R. Codington, of this city, has been attorney for various townships he has not lost a single one. In the case mentioned, he represented Fanwood township.

There are two things we are waiting anxiously for as incidentals to the cold weather. One is the item about some boy or girl who thought that a tenth of an inch of ice would sustain their avordupois and—well, you know the old story. The other—dare we even hint it for fear that it will come to true. Well, we'll venture it, but don't repeat it above a whisper, the price of coal hasn't gone up yet.

As the L. A. W. is the most comprehensive of American institutions, I move that we, in our organized capacity, take up the subject of universal peace, and make the effort of our lives toward its ultimate realization.—Sterling Elliott, of the L. A. W.

Elliott must be inclined to joking once in a while. The L. A. W. has got enough trouble to keep peace in its own ranks without trying to bring about universal peace.

I want a State Commissioner of Public Works who will put the knife into dishonest canal contractors, and if the man I select does not put the knife I to dishonest contractors, Republicans and Democrats, I will put the knife into him.—Col. Roosevelt.

That would seem to indicate that Col. Roosevelt will be the hardest political nut that Tom Platt has ever attempted to crack.

Kaiser Wilhelm makes a practice of getting up at 5 o'clock every morning and working hard till 10 o'clock every evening. A King's job under such conditions is no snap, but still we suppose there are people who would accept it if urged to do so.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

It would be interesting to know what pledges Senator Reed could have made for votes in the contest for the presidency of the Senate that Senator Johnson, his opponent, could not make with the same assurance of being able to deliver the promised goods. Many Republican sages are astonished at the strides made by Mr. Reed in the first week and more astounded over the sudden espousal of his cause by Barker Gummere, who took the Pitney end of politics as against Voorhees in last September, while Reed apparently was a Voorhees supporter. Some speculation is rife also because Representative Loudenslager is trying to push the South Jersey Senators in line for Reed when there is a well-grounded assumption that Senator Sewell, to whom Loudenslager owes much for his advancement, is in favor of Johnson as between Reed and Ketcham for the presidency.—New York Press.

* * * * *

There is a possibility—according to several of the State papers—that the State laws may again be published in the newspapers. It is said that the people have tried the pamphlet scheme and found it both inconvenient and unpopular. Moreover it has cost much more in proportion to the knowledge and information given to the people than the iniquitous system formerly in vogue. Very few people have sent for copies of the laws, and very few know what laws have been enacted. If a new plan is devised for printing the laws in the newspapers it will not be like the old plan. That was an outrage on the taxpayers and a partisan political club in the hands of the Governor. The new plan, not yet formulated into a bill so far as is known, will require the publication in each locality, county or city or town of the laws particularly affecting such locality, etc., and also the general laws which affect the whole State. For the most part a summary of each act will be quite sufficient, simply letting the people know what they are called upon to observe and obey. Publishing the laws in the papers is the only right way, and it should be restored in a reasonable and just manner.—Elizabeth Journal.

Was made every day during the period of the Omaha Exposition by the trains of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway on its Chicago & Omaha Short Line.

Altho its trains hauled from ten to thirteen well filled sleeping cars and coaches each night, yet schedule time of arrival at Omaha and at Chicago was an accomplished fact,—a record to be proud of, and which has resulted in establishing the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway in the minds of the traveling community as the shortest, best and most reliable route from Chicago to Omaha, as well as to California.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 16—Miss Emma A. Opper, a well-known literery woman, whose stories often appear in the Youths' Companion and other periodicals, has taken up her residence in the borough, and is boarding with Mrs Emily Apgar, of East Front street.

The checker players gather nightly in W. H Cole's coal office, now that the nights are long and cold, and many a hard fought game goes on under the low roof. The game is not only confined to the old men, but the young fellows sometimes take a hand in this innocent sport.

There is quite a little illness in the borough, most of the cases being nothing but severe colds, however. But there is danger of their developing in the grip or even into pneumonia.

Many young people from here have been quite regular in their attendance at the evangelistic meetings at Bound Brook this past week. Last night was the last one.

William H. Cole is to have a new electric light placed almost in front of his office on North avenue. It was so ordered at the last Council meeting.

Joseph Maier has purchased the Park Hotel from his mother, Mrs. Catherine Maier, and will hereafter conduct it.

Miss Minnie VanMiddlesworth, is assisting Miss Lincoln, the Plainfield florist, during the holiday season.

Miss Ella Smock, who has been visiting the Misses Jamison, has returned to her home in Jamesbury.

Herbert L. Moore will move into the Maier house on Front street January 1st.

Harry Apgar is out once more after being confined to the house by a long illness.

Mrs. Ann Dunham, of Church street, is detained at home by illness.

Washington avenue is being macadamized just outside the borough.

The Misses Messler have returned from a months' visit in Morristown.

Mrs. Josephine Dunham has returned from a visit in New York.

Miss Flossie Compton, of Rahway, is visiting the Misses Jamison.

Mrs. Emily Apgar is detained at home by an attack of the grip.

Mrs. Nancy Thomas is confined to her home by illness.

Mrs. William Dunham spent Thursday in New York.

The stone crushers have closed up for good.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, Dec. 16.—A union Christian Endeavor meeting was held last night in the Seventh-day Baptist church at which members of the Baptist church society, of this place, and the Presbyterian society and the Methodist Epworth League of Dunellen, were present. Rev. A. E Main, of Plainfield, and Rev. Mr. Dorward, of Stelton, spoke on "Good Citizenship."

The Lehigh Valley Railroad Company have decided to change the position of all the boards bearing the names of the stations along their line, from the front of the station to the side, so that passengers will be able to see the names as they fly by in the trains, a thing impossible with the name boards in front.

The Father Light Society will hold a poverty sociable at the home of Mrs. A. G. Nelson Tuesday evening.

John W Brady and family will move to Plainfield in a few days, having disposed of his property here.

Lakeside Council, at their meeting last night, considered two propositions for membership.

PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 16.—Funeral services of the late Samuel M. Ball, were held from his late residence yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The house was filled with the friends of the deceased who had come to pay their last respects to one whom they respected for his many good qualities. Dean Rodman, rector of Grace church, of Plainfield, had charge of the service at the house, which were impressive. The pall bearers were six brother members of Jerusalem Lodge, F & A M., of which the deceased had been a member for years. After services at the house the cortage started for Hillside Cemetery. In Plainfield they were met by a delegation from Jerusalem Lodge who took charge of the service at the grave. Winfield Scott Post G. A. R., of which the deceased was also a member, sent a delegation. The flowers were handsome, nearly hiding the casket. Jerusalem Lodge and the G. A. R. each sent a large pillow, while friends of the family sent several fine pieces.

Mrs. Thomas M. Paff, Jr. is spending a few days with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Gere in Brooklyn.

Mrs Wm. Maguire entertained the Thursday Afternoon Euchre Club, at her home yesterday afternoon.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, December 16—The M. E and the Baptist Sunday-schools will hold their Christmas entertainments Friday evening of next week. The Presbyterina school will hold their entertainment Monday evening, December 26th.

The sale of unpaid taxes on real estate for the year 1896 will take place in the township rooms Tuesday afternoon of next week at 2 o'clock.

Tax Collector Clark has been at the town rooms since Tuesday receiving taxes. He has already received about $18 000.

The board of deacons of the Baptist church will hold a meeting Monday evening.

Of Timely Application.

A twenty-million dollar salve may not cure the wounds of Spain, but it will go far toward healing them: There is great efficacy in salves, but their virtue depends on their cleanly keeping, and for this purpose there is nothing better than the silver topped salve boxes sold at Collier's for twenty cents: This is but one of the countless useful articles to be obtained for little or nothing at this holiday emporium.

—The recent cold weather has interferred somewhat with the work of building the new Calvary Baptist church on Central avenue. The work will, however, be pushed as fast as possible.

—It has been suggested that it would be a good idea if a street could be opened from North avenue to East Second street about midway between Park and Watchung avenues. It is claimed by many that such a street would be of incalculable benefit.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

NEW BUSINESS.

Freeholder King moved that the resolution pending before the Board relative to macadamizing South street in New Providence be taken up for consideration, which was so ordered.

Freeholder Wahl said that he desired to consult the members of the Morris County Board of Freeholders and ascertain if it was the intention of said board to macadamize the road in said county leading to Townley's bridge, provided Union County decided to macadamize South Street up to an ending at said Townley's bridge, he therefore moved that further consideration of said resolution lie over until next meeting, which was so ordered.

By Freeholder King:

"Resolved, That new and proper indices be made for the books of releases and accounts in the Surrogate's office, to same to be made up under the supervision of the Surrogate from the original records irrespective of the old indices and that the releases be indexed both in the names of the releasors and of the deceased for the benefit or protection of whose executors, administrators and estate the release was given, and that the accounts be indexed only in the name of the estate in which said accounting is made; and that the compensation for said work be five cents per name for indices of releases, and three cents per name for indices of accounts."

Freeholder King said that he had expected Surrogate Parrot to be present and explain to the Board the necessity for the passage of the resolution, but as Mr. Parrot was unable to be present, it was ordered on motion of Freeholder Farrell, that the resolution lie over until next meeting, which was so ordered.

Freeholder Farrell said that he desired to bring to the attention of the Board the matter of compensation of peace officers for services rendered on election day. He asked the County Attorney, who was present, to state his opinion on the matter.

County Attorney Codington then read from the law governing such matters and expressed his belief that the said peace officers were not entitled to compensation at the hands of the Board of Freeholders.

The following bills audited and approved were read and on roll-call unanimously ordered paid, viz:

Election Account—Joseph F. Sheppard $25, G. E Tattram $25, Henry T. Berry $36, John J. Clancy $25, William Cook, town clerk, $29.25, township of Linden $15, James J. Manning, city clerk, $1,234 63.

LOW FARES IN SWITZERLAND.

Tickets for $11.58 Will Keep a Man Going Fifteen Days.

In Switzerland, where the railway system is controlled by the government, passenger rates have been reduced to a basis that seems incredibly low to an American. There railway tickets are sold by time and not by mileage. On application a non-transferable ticket good for fifteen days, will be issued to a person. The cost is $11.58. During these fifteen days the holder may travel as much and as long as he likes over the entire railway system.

The lake steamers are also available, a second class railway ticket giving the right to a first class passage on any one of the steamers. One may travel for an entire year for $115. These tickets are rigorously personal, and each has the photograph of its holder attached. No baggage, however, is carried free. No allowance is made for tickets unused. On the Franco-Swiss frontier all vexatious questions, demands and delays have been done away with for members of the French touring club. Their bicycles are admitted free of charge. There is no longer a charge for permit of entrance. The wheel is treated simply as ordinary baggage.—Mail and Express.

Soap as a Disinfectant.

The use of soaps containing a disinfectant of some kind has become so general that observations on the practical value of such combinations cannot fail to be of interest. Dr. Reithoffer has recently published the results of some experiments carried out by him with various kinds of soap, having for object to determine their value as microbicides. He used the ordinary mottled soap, white almond soap perfumed with nitrobenzine, and hard potash soap. He found that these soaps were very inimical to the cholera microbe, a one per cent. solution killing them in a short space of time, while a five per cent. solution of the potash soap killed them in five minutes. We are, therefore, at liberty to infer that, as in washing the hands, the strength of the soap solution is never less than five and may go as high as forty-five per cent., this method of disinfecting the hands, as well as the clothes, etc., is fairly trustworthy. Much stronger solutions are required, however, to destroy the bacilli of typhoid, the colibacillus, etc., not less than ten per cent. being sufficient. None of the soaps experimented with appeared to have any effect on the pyogenic microbe. The practical result of these investigations is that it is always preferable to use soap and water first of all, rinsing the hands in the disinfectant solution afterward. This is an important point which merits to be generally made known.—Medical Press.

Gen. Chaffee's Way.

As General Chaffee's line went up a hill into action at El Caney this recruit dropped out of the ranks. The general noticed him, and went to see what ailed him. He found a young and very badly frightened soldier. He said to him: "Are you hurt? I saw how well you kept up under fire as we came on. Come with me to the crest and look through my glass at the enemy's works. We shall soon take them in the flank. We will try to lead the assault if you like." So, by the gentlest means, he put that recruit on his legs again, shared with him his own abundant courage, and brought him back renewed and grateful, into the fight where he belonged. That was like saving a soul. This story shows the general's quality—or one strain of it, at least—and makes it easy to believe that the Fifth corps look upon him as the Skobeleff of our army—a soldier who, like Skobeleff, combines magnetic influence with swift observation, great endurance, and whatever degree of heroism the occasion demands.—Harper's Weekly.

No Distinguishing Marks.

"Were there any marks about him by which he could be described?" asked the detective.

"Yes," eagerly replied the father of the runaway boy, "his trousers were nearly worn through at the knees, and he had in one of his pockets, as I heard my wife say a day or two ago, a knife with a broken blade, a pistol cartridge that had been fired off, a match, some of the wheels of an old watch, a leather shoestring, a broken key, a bunch of twine, two or three white pebbles, a piece of lead, some buttons from the last bicycle show, a stump of a lead pencil and a bit of red chalk."

And the detective wrote in his memorandum book, "No distinguishing marks."—Chicago Tribune.

A man by the name of Miles taught the Midway public school some twenty years ago. In organizing his class in geography the learned professor stated to his pupils that he knew the world was flat, but, as it was the wish of the trustees that he should instruct that it was round, round it should be.—Falmouth (Ky.) "Why, from the water works company's rates."—Chicago Record.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 18—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—"How to enjoy our religion."—Neh. viii, 8-12; I Pet. iv, 3, 12, 13.

"Go your way; eat the fat and drink the sweet, and send portions unto them for whom nothing is prepared; for this day is holy unto our Lord. Neither be ye sorry; for the joy of the Lord is your strength" (Neh. viii, 10).

True religion is not gloomy, sad and austere. By many people in some ages of the world and by some in all ages the Christian religion has been cloaked with gloom and austerity. But such an idea of the religion of Christ is false and un-Scriptural. Christianity sprang from Judaism and Judaism was a religion of joy and of gladness. Phariseeism had its long face, its black robe and its endless austerities, but Phariseeism was not Judaism. There was much that was joyous and gladsome in the religion of God's people. It was largely a religion of sacrificial offerings of thanksgiving, and the larger part of the offering was eaten by the offerer and his friends in a social festal meal. Thus it was here in connection with the celebration of the feast of trumpets, the New Year's festival of the Jews, after their return from captivity. At the reading of the law the people were inclined to be sad and sorrowful, as they remembered their sins, but Nehemiah calls upon them to put away sadness and to rejoice. The three great annual festivals of the Jews were seasons of joy and gladness and of social feasting. Of all the Jewish religious observances, only one was a fast, and that was the day of atonement.

Christianity is the flower of which Judaism was the bud, and it partakes of its joyful characteristic. Christianity is a gospel, an announcement of glad tidings. It was heralded by angelic songs of gladness. It produces results in the hearts and lives of men that awaken joy among the angels of God in heaven. Why should it not produce joy in the believers upon earth? As in the case of the Israelites here we are commanded to rejoice. "Rejoice in the Lord alway," says Paul, "and again I say rejoice."

The benefits of Christian joy are innumerable. Joy strengthens, invigorates. "The joy of the Lord is your strength." A joyful spirit is much better able to meet the trials and burdens of life. It fortifies us against the temptations to worldly joys. One who has tasted of the joy of the Lord cares little for the pleasures of the world, which were formerly so attractive. Our joy will also benefit others. Joy is contagious. If we are joyful, our joy will be imparted to others. If we are gloomy and sad, we will make them so. We owe it to Christ Himself to be joyful. In a joyful life we recommend Christ to men, in a gloomy life we make Him unattractive to them. Even in sufferings and trials we can rejoice. "Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial, which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you; but rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings, that when His glory shall be revealed ye may be glad also with exceeding joy." Understand your religion. Live it, and you will find joy in it.

Bible Readings.—Job xx, 4, 5; xxix, 1-25; Ps. xvi, 8-12; xlvii, 1-4; xlviii, 1, 2; li, 10-12; cxxvi, 5; Isa. xxix, 19; xxxv, 1, 2; lxv, 14; Jer. xv, 16; Matt. xxv, 14-30; Luke ii, 1-14; xv, 1-10; Phil. ii, 4.

Suffering Sorrow.

Over and over again the old truth comes back to us that no man is good for much till he has suffered a great sorrow. The baptism of pain is one of the instrumentalities which God uses for purging away the dross of our nature and making us fit to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light. Not those who have escaped the fiery trial, but those who have gone through it and come out unhurt and glorified are to be envied. God knows what is best for us. Therefore He sends first one affliction and then another upon us. Sometimes, because He sees it necessary, He lifts the very floodgate and allows wave after wave of misfortune to sweep over us. If we have the right stuff in us, we shall be helped and not harmed by these seeming calamities.—Nashville Christian Advocate.

Covetousness.

"I want to increase my pile" is the creed of the nineteenth century rich fool. Covetousness is always looking over neighboring fences and wishing both fence and neighbor were gone. Covetousness is selfishness full grown into greediness. It is the swinish trait in fallen human nature. Its peculiar peril is the premium put upon the power of accumulation both by the world and by the church. In our time a drunkard could not hold office in the Christian church, but a covetous man may not only hold office in a church, but hold the church in his office by means of a pocketbook swelled by unholy gains.—Christian Intelligencer.

Rejoice In the Coming Peace.

This war has surely not made war seem any more lovely. In fact, the full story of the camps, the field and the hospital is enough to sicken any heart, and no one can feel much satisfaction in the "meed of glory" won in conquering such an effete and incapable nation. Let us rather rejoice in the coming peace, and let us learn that righteousness and honesty and purity and genuine honor are the safeguards of a people, and may our terms of peace be sullied by no unjust or unfair demands.—American Friend.

Cherish an Ideal.

No one can cherish an ideal and devote himself to its realization from year to year and strive and struggle and make sacrifices for its attainment without undergoing a certain gracious transformation, of which the highest powers must be aware and into each kindly mist.—John White Chadwick.

THE SUNDAY LESSON.

INTERNATIONAL SERIES WITH COMMENTARY BY DR. STEARNS.

Golden Text.—Ye shall seek Me and find Me, when ye shall search for Me with all your heart.—Jer. xxix: 13. Dec. 18, '98.

1. "Zedekiah was one and twenty years old when he began to reign, and he reigned 11 years in Jerusalem." After the death of Josiah, the good king, three of his sons and one grandson succeeded him, reigning altogether 22 years—Jehoahaz, or Shallum, three months; Eliakim, or Jehoiakim, 11 years; Coniah, or Jeconiah, or Jehoiachin, three months, and Zedekiah, 11 years. The first two and the last were sons of Josiah, the third was his grandson and was 37 years a captive in Babylon (Jer. lii, 31). The story of the final captivity of Judah, the topic of this lesson, is found in three other places (Jer. xxxix, II Kings xxv, II Chron. xxxvi) and must therefore be something to be prayerfully pondered by us.

2. "He did that which was evil in the eyes of the Lord, according to all that Jehoiakim had done." What a brief but comprehensive summary of a man's life "evil in the eyes of the Lord," and how it confirms the statement that "the carnal mind is enmity against God!" (Rom. viii, 7.) The eyes of the Lord are running to and fro throughout the whole earth and wherever there is a heart trusting in Him He will show himself strong on behalf of such (II Chron. xvi, 9). The devil is also going to and fro in the earth seeking to destroy man and turn him from God.

3. "He cast them out from His presence." Thus the Lord did to Jerusalem and Judah because of their sins, for they mocked the messengers of God and despised His words and misused His phophets, until the wrath of the Lord arose against His people, till there was no remedy (II Chron. xxxvi, 16). He earnestly protested unto them, rising early and protesting, but they obeyed not nor inclined their ear and continued walking in the imagination of their evil hearts (Jer. xi, 7, 8). It is impossible to go where God cannot see us, but it is possible to lose the sense of His presence, as when Cain went out from the presence of the Lord (Ps. cxxxix, 1-4; Gen. iv, 16). The presence of the Lord is the assurance of all sure guidance and blessing (Ex. xxxiii, 14; xxiii, 20).

4, 5. "So the city was besieged unto the eleventh year of King Zedekiah." The Lord had said through Jeremiah that the king of Babylon would take the city and destroy it, and for this testimony the prophet was put in prison (Jer. xxxiv, 2; xxxii, 3), but shutting up a messenger of the Lord or stopping his mouth or even killing him or burning up his message will not prevent the purpose of the Lord from being fulfilled. All Scripture shall surely and promptly be fulfilled, and even the enemies of God can only fulfill His pleasure, for He maketh even the wrath of man to praise Him, and the remainder doth He restrain. The king of Babylon was unconscious by God's instrument in chastening His people of Judah and Jerusalem. Even Herod and Pontius Pilate and the gentiles and Israel when they combined against Christ were only bringing to pass what God foresaw would be (Acts iv, 27, 28).

6. "The famine was sore in the city, so that there was no bread for the people of the land." The study of the famines of Scripture, with their reasons and results as far as we can judge of the same, is a most profitable study, for example, the famine of Gen. xii and its results to Abraham, the famine in Bethlehem and its effect upon Elimelech and Naomi as recorded in Ruth. In Ezek. xiv, 21, famine is called one of God's four sore judgments, but in Amos viii, 11, we read of the worst kind of famine, even a famine of hearing the words of the Lord.

7. "All the men of war fled and went forth out of the city by night." In chapter xxxix, 4, we read that Zedekiah went with them. Ezekiel was at this time a captive in Babylon, but God showed him and he by an object lesson showed the people just what was going on in Jerusalem at this time, so that even without telephone or telegraph the Jews at Babylon knew of events at Jerusalem the very day they happened (Ezek. xii, etc.). God has permitted man to bring to pass most wonderful things in these days in which we live, but never in any nation has been seen or heard such wonderful things as God has done and will yet do in and for Israel, His chosen people.

8. "The army of the Chaldeans pursued after the king and overtook Zedekiah in the plains of Jericho." When Jonah would flee from the presence of the Lord, although he got off to sea and possibly fancied he was really on his way to Tarshish, the Lord wanted him at Nineveh and so sent two detectives after him, a storm to stop the vessel and a fish specially prepared to bring him ashore. The king Zedekiah may have thought himself safely away from the king of Babylon and possibly have ridiculed the words of Jeremiah, but if so it only proved that he did not know the Lord nor that every purpose of the Lord must be performed.

9. "Then they took the king and carried him up unto the king of Babylon to Riblah, in the land of Hamath, where he gave judgment upon him." Thus it came to pass as it had been foretold, but the most pitiful thing about it all, as it seems to me, was that one who should have been an honor to the Lord, an the throne of the Lord at Jerusalem, is found a prisoner in the hands of an enemy of God, and this enemy sitting in judgment upon him.

EPWORTH LEAGUE.

Lesson For the Week Beginning Dec. 18—Comment by Rev. W. J. Yeton, A. M.—Topic, The Motive of Our Lives.

Scripture Reading.—I Pet. iv, 11.—"That God in all things may be glorified through Jesus Christ."

The aim of a life may be one thing and the motive entirely different. The aim is an ideal of occupation, position, attainment or acquisition. The motive is the deep underlying sentiment and intention from which all ideals and aspirations spring. It is the power which drives all faculties to achieve the aim.

Self gratification and self glorification are the motive power of worldly life. What distinguishes the Christian is the replacing of self by the God impulse. To please God and glorify Him men will do what could not be done under any other stimulus. Love of home and kindred, love of native land, love of self, will enable a man to endure pain and scorn and brave hardships extreme, but there is no sentiment of which the human soul is capable which can so fire the imagination, kindle enthusiasm, fix determination and strengthen all bodily powers as the love of God and the desire to please Him and win His favor. No power of earth can withstand the onset of a divine inspiration.

All heroes and heroism calmly weighed yield in moral worth to the sublime life and death of Jesus Christ. Great men give stimulus to the emulation of others, but all have a breaking point. All are weak somewhere and reveal frailty. Jesus is nowhere weak and awakens devotion impossible to feel toward any other. In Him we see all possibilities of glorified human nature, the pinnacle of heroic achievement, the acme of perfected goodness and nobility, Admiration, adoration, self devotion, go out to Him. All satisfaction is found in His service, the fullness of all need, the solution of all doubt, the worth of all striving.

Life is worth living because the worthy end is found. The unfailing zest of effort is supplied. To glorify God as the true, the good, the beautiful, the right and perfect One brings glory into the whole nature of the man and makes him partaker of the divine glory and nature.

A Transformed Temple.

Twenty-seven years B. C. Agrippa, the son-in-law of the Emperor Augustus, dedicated in Rome a temple to all the gods. It was called the "Pantheon" from this circumstance. From its peculiar circular form it is called the "Rotunda." All the light of the interior comes through an opening in the top of the dome, which is open to all weather. It is the only building standing in Rome in a good state of preservation which dates back to ancient times.

In the seventh century it was transformed from an idol temple into a Christian church, and so remains to the present time. It contains many altars to various saints, and service is often performed before several of them at the same time.

PANTHEON, ROME.

This building was undoubtedly well known to St. Paul during his residence in Rome, but could never have had any considerable interest for him.

The portico is a later Christian addition, and, however beautiful, is out of keeping with the other architectural features of the building. In the seventeenth century one of the popes stripped the metal ornaments from the walls, which had been spared by all the barbarian despoilers of Rome. He melted them and made a canopy for the high altar of St. Peter's church.

There is much in the story of this edifice to remind one of the way the Lord works with a human soul. Altars replace idols.

Recreation Better Than Dissipation.

As the cold weather makes out of door exercise difficult or impossible, the summer recreations must give place to indoor occupations. Every league and young people's society should carefully plan for its social life. The world offers abundant allurements and attractions.

There are deep and abundant reasons why Christian young people should seek intimacies and friendly society among themselves. We cannot afford to let the world provide our recreations. Our loss is too great in moral force if we go among them. Their social life does not strengthen, but does dissipate the deeper and purer desires of the soul. If positive infection with vice does not follow, mingling with them in their pleasures, the keen edge of spiritual enjoyment is blunted and the power of close spiritual discernment is benumbed. It is as true today as it ever was, "Ye cannot serve God and Mammon," ye cannot enjoy Christ and the world. Seek companionship among the pure hearted and noble minded and escape many cares and snares.

"Each one of us is bound to make the little circle in which he lives better and happier; each of us is bound to see that out of that small circle the widest good may flow; each of us may have fixed in his mind the thought that out of a single household may flow influences which shall stimulate the whole community and the whole civilized world."—Dean Stanley.

I am always surprised when I read the New Testament at the splendor of Christ's purity and holiness and of His infinite pity.—Tennyson.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

The offering at Music Hall tonight is a revival of the first of Irish farce comedies "Muldoon's Picnic" which will be presented by a competent company of farceurs under the direction of Frank Newell, whose name has been for a number of years indentified with the play. The "Picnic has been rewritten and brought up-to-date by the introduction of many new lines and situations by Con. T. Murphy, the noted writer of Irish plays, and the interjection of a number of the latest specialties, interpreted by a company of well-know vaudeville artists. Since the days of Barry and Fay this farce has not been given here and the patrons of Music Hall will, no doubt, be glad of an opportunity to welcome such old friends as Muldoon and Mulcahey in their peculiar eccentricities and their flashes of genuine Irish wit and humor. The principal fun-makers of the company will be Barney Ferguson, who during the past ten years has been starring in his own play "McCarthy's Mishaps" and who has no peer as the delineator of eccentric Irish character. Mr. Ferguson has been specially engaged for this company, and is said to receive the highest salary ever paid an artist in farce-comedies.

The popular little soubrette, Minnie Lester, with her own company and superb orchestra, will appear at Music Hall next week for six nights and Saturday matinee. The plays this season are entirely new, and in addition to the dramatic company and orchestra several specialty artists are introduced, who will render the sketches, songs, dances, etc., between the acts every evening during the week like all first-class companies, and in order to keep up with the times Miss Lester at great expense will introduce here for the first time the genuine wargraph machine, which will introduce each evening actual scenes of the different battle ships, the fight in front of Santiago and the battle of Manila complete. These are accurate productions, and in addition to the company; a novelty that is thoroughly instructive, as they are actual reproductions. Miss Lester has surrounded herself with a dramatic company of excellent merit, and as the plays are new, plenty of specialties and splendid orchestra, no doubt the theatregoers have in store for them a genuine week of pleasure, beginning next Monday night. Seats are now on sale.

DIED AT A RIPE OLD AGE.

Miss Josephine Amburster, Aged Eighty-three Years, Passes Away.

Miss Josephine Amburster, aged eighty three years, a well known resident of the borough, died last evening in her apartments on Somerset street over J. K. Arnold's grocery store, after a long illness with dropsy. Miss Amburster was born in Holland, and came to this country about forty years ago with her parents and brothers. Her father and one brother died in New York, while her mother and the other brother died in this city and are buried in North Plainfield cemetery. Miss Amburster was until a few years past very active and worked for many well known families in the city and borough.

She lived alone until three months ago, when her condition became such that it was necessary that she should have care. Mr. and Mrs. Menzenbach, of Somerset street, then took charge of her and Dr. Carman was the attending physician. All that is left of the family is one niece who lives on the mountain back of North Plainfield. Overseer of the Poor David S. Weaver was notified this morning of the death of Miss Amburster and he has arranged for the funeral services for tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the house.

Adventist Meeting.

The regular Sabbath service of the Seventh-Day Baptist Adventists will be held in the Christian church on Grove street tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock. Subject of sermon by Elder S. B. Horton, "Causes Which Lead to the Multiplicity of Tongues and Sects." All are welcome.

—The funeral services of the infant child of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Patterson, of Johnson avenue, was held yesterday afternoon from the house at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. C. E. Herring officiated. Interment was in Evergreen Cemetery.

Harry McIntosh, of this city, who has been confined at Muhlenberg Hospital, for eight weeks, the result of a critical operation, is improving slowly and hopes to be out the first of the year.

In resources, agricultural and mineral, Cuba is one of the very richest islands in the world. But under oppressive taxation and the worst imaginable administration the greater part of the country remains an untamed, unused wilderness. The coming invasion of American merchants and manufacturers will quickly change all that. There will be roads built—which is the first necessity. The rude trails that render the transport of goods almost impossible will give place to thoroughfares of modern construction. Bridges will safely span streams that now bar the way to trade and intercourse. Railroads and telegraph, built by American energy and with American capital, will lace the country. Its waste places will be converted into fertile fields. Way will be opened for the marketing of crops that it has not hitherto been worth while to grow, and minerals which it has been a needless waste of toil to dig out of the ground. Whatever may be decided as to the political future of Cuba, its industrial and commercial future will be directed by American enterprise and stimulated with American capital. This next invasion will be beneficent to Cuba, enriching to us, and gladdening to the world at large.

The Attractive Woman.

A clever woman, provided she be not sarcastic and too fully alive to a sense of her own importance, is generally an attractive one. Men may be charmed for a time by a pretty face, but they soon tire of mere prettiness. Nor does it follow that all women of good sense and sharp intellect are necessarily plain. Bright thoughts enliven the most ordinary face, until the reflection of the mind shining out in all its radiance makes one forget that the features are not pure Grecian, and leads us to believe that such a woman is in reality a great beauty. The vivacious creature of varying moods and quaint fancies is the one charm. A man forgets the type of beauty she may or may not possess, so interested does he become in the pleasing study of a mind that renders her face ever winning, irresistible, and pleasing, because, like the surface of a lake, there comes a change with every varying emotion. The attractive woman should cultivate the mind, for grace of soul and education of spirit count for more than limpid eyes, a rosebud mouth, and a dimpled chin. She should be ever teachable, for there is not one iota of lovableness in the man or woman who thinks he or she knows it all.

A Corner Sofa.

A pretty sofa corner may easily be made with a little expense for a sitting or drawing room. The platform, one foot in height, may be made by any amateur carpenter. Upon this is fitted a mattress or cushion, which may then be covered as elaborately or as simply as desired, the same scheme being carried out in the curtain at the back, which should be lined with a plain cover.

The looping is done by drawing the fullness through brass curtain rings, the last on either side being finished with an ornament, such as a Japanese fan, or any other effective bit of color. Piled up with cushions this makes a charming piece of furniture.

The Way to Practice.

The object of all practice is to establish that reflex action of the muscles known as mental automatism. This is best secured by practising a difficult passage a great many times at so slow a tempo that there is time for deliberate thought in advance of the muscular action.

When the passage has been played, say, ten times in this manner without the slightest variation from the correct order of notes, fingering, touch and shading, exactly doube the speed. At this new tempo there will be time for thought.

After, say, eight repetitions without error, again double the speed. There is now no time for thinking each separate note, but the passage must be conceived "in a lump," so to speak, or exactly as we read a word without stopping to think of the letters of which it is composed. At the appearance of the least mistake return to the slow tempo, and go through the series as before.

A Royal Editor.

The Emperor of China is a newspaper editor, and his paper, which is called the "Pekin Gazette," is a very remarkable production. The unique distinction belongs to it of having been issued daily for upwards of eight hundred years. Its circulation is limited to a single copy of each issue, which is nailed up on a big board outside the Purple City, where the Emperor resides. The "Pekin Gazette" is the organ of the Court, and it contains some sixteen pages, which are all news, no advertisements ever being permitted to vulgarize them. Most of the articles are dictated by the Emperor, and they usually consist of official acts and reports. The Emperor's sub-editor is his mother.

CHRISTMAS CAROLS.

By T. B. CHRYSTAL.

Christmas bells,
Oh! Christmas bells,
Chiming through white-mantled dells
Sweet the tale your music tells,
Of that blessed birthday when
Came to earth the Infant King!
Peal, oh, bells! with rapture ring,
While the Children sweetly sing,
"Peace on earth, good will to men."

Old Santa comes,
With dolls and drums,
And everything that
squeaks or hums,
He'll make no noise
When with his toys,
He fills the hose of girls and boys

A CHRISTMAS GIFT.

BY C. PARKER.

ROBERT GOODman, pastor of a certain church in a certain town, seated himself at his study table one morning, and drew toward him his writing material; then he took a deliberate survey of the room in which he sat. The view was not a very pleasing one. The walls were adorned with paper sadly discolored and falling away in places; the bare, smoky ceiling was traversed by numerous cracks; the paint on the woodwork, of dismal hue to start with, showed the ravages of time; the carpet was wretchedly shabby.

Mr. Goodman gazed at all this and sighed, as he had often done before.

"I could write better sermons in a decent study, I am positive," he said to himself. "This room certainly is depressing. It does seem that the church might paint and paper it. The expense would be small. Then there is the carpet; but if that remained I should have to 'look up and not down.' Well, that is what I must do anyway," and with a faint smile he turned again to the work before him.

Just then there was a little tap at the door, and he rose and opened it.

"Good morning, Mr. Goodman," said Miss Hope Arnold, who stood outside the study door, looking fresh and bright as the morning itself. "Shall I disturb you? Mrs. Goodman said she thought you wouldn't be fairly at work yet, and told me to come right up."

Meanwhile the young girl had entered the room at the minister's invitation and seated herself with a comprehensive glance at her surroundings.

"I wished to consult you, Mr. Goodman," she continued, "about some of our Christian Endeavor work, but first of all, I want to tell you how much good your sermon last Sunday morning did me. I thank you for it. It was just what I needed."

"I am very happy to hear you say so, Miss Hope," replied the minister with a flush of pleasure, "and I thank you for telling me;" but the visitor little guessed how much good in turn she had done her pastor.

When they had finished their talk on Christian Endeavor work, and Hope had risen to go, she exclaimed impulsively: "So this is our minister's study! I have never been in it before. Really I should think the church could afford to paper it, at least."

"It would be a great improvement certainly," responded Mr. Goodman, smiling.

"It ought to be done," she declared in decided tones, "and it shall be," she mentally added.

When his caller had gone, Mr. Goodman, greatly cheered and encouraged, turned once more to his study table, and the next Sunday morning's discourse was generally pronounced one of his best.

Mr. Goodman was all that his name implied, but, though an earnest preacher, he was not brilliant nor eloquent, and the large churches with corresponding salaries were not for him. And as there were several small people at the parsonage to be fed, clothed and otherwise cared for, there was no money for superfluities, or for many other things not generally reckoned as such.

Mrs. Goodman, fortunately, was a cheery, efficient little woman, with a wonderful knack for compelling a dollar to do more than full duty, and in every way she was a true helpmeet to her husband.

On leaving the parsonage Hope hastened to the office of her uncle, one of the trustees of the church, and inquired whether the pastor's study could not be repapered and painted, but he shook his head.

She did not give up, however, by any means, and at the next meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society she presented the case.

"Now," she said, "I propose that we rejuvenate that study as a Christmas present to our pastor. I have made some inquiries, and find that it can be done at small expense.

"Mr. Ball, who is a member of our church, would furnish and put on good paper for four dollars. A neat matting for the floor would not cost over four dollars more. Fred Johnson (a young painter, and a member of the C. E. Society) will kindly attend to the woodwork without charge. So you see that the actual expense of the undertaking need not exceed eight dollars, though some other changes and additions might be made to good advantage."

Much to her delight, Hope's plan met with general approval, and then arose a discussion as to the best method of raising the money to carry it out.

Finally Ellen Berry, one of the most active members, said: "There are so many oyster suppers, sociables and things of that sort, let us try something different. Suppose each member becomes personally responsible for fifty cents."

After a little discussion this plan was unanimously adopted, and the meeting adjourned.

The Sunday before Christmas, Mrs. Bardwell, a good, motherly woman who lived four miles from the town, and who was a member of Mr. Goodman's church, said to the pastor and his wife as they shook hands after service, "I want you folks all out to my house for one good holiday visit. Can you come the day before Christmas? It seems a kind o' queer time, may be, but if you can possibly come, that's the day I want you."

Mrs. Goodman reflected a few moments, then replied, "Why, thank you, Mrs. Bardwell, I think we could come that day. I could arrange to go, I am sure. Couldn't you, Mr. Goodman?"

"Yes, I think so," he responded, very cheerfully. "Of course, there will be preparations going on for the evening exercises, but I don't know that I shall be particularly needed. Thank you very much for your kind invitation, Mrs. Bardwell. We shall enjoy the visit, I assure you."

Mrs. Goodman securely locked the front door on the day appointed, and dropped the key in her pocket; but scarcely had the sleigh containing Mr. Goodman and herself and the four hilarious little Goodmans vanished down the road, than a man with rolls of paper appeared at the parsonage, and was admitted by Hope Arnold, who had secured a duplicate key from her uncle.

The man with paper and paste was speedily followed by another bearing a pot of paint, and the transformation of the study was soon under full headway.

Late in the afternoon three of the male members of the C. E. Society took possession with a roll of matting, and when in a short space of time, their work with that was finished, they were re-enforced by several of the girls, and the study was soon in readiness for its occupant.

Great was the satisfaction of the conspirators as they surveyed the rejuvenated room. The paper on the walls and ceiling was restful to the eye, with its soft tints and unobstrusive pattern. The coloring of the woodwork harmonized with that of the paper. In spite of fresh paint, neat muslin curtains had been put up in place of the shabby lace ones; and the well worn table cover had given way to another just from the store. Over the neat matting, before study table and easy chair, rugs were placed for warmth and cosiness.

And as a crowning touch a beautiful etching that was of itself an inspiration hung on the wall opposite the pastor's seat at his study table. This was a personal gift from Hope Arnold. Care had been taken to have everything done before it should be time for the pastor and his family to arrive at the church, that they might not be so soon surprised at seeing a light in their house. But toward the close of the evening's exercises Fred Johnson slipped over to the parsonage, and when Mr. and Mrs. Goodman stepped out into the wintry air they were startled by a gleam from the study windows.

"What can it mean!" cried Mr. Goodman in alarm. "Can it be fire?"

Home was soon reached and they hurried upstairs. A lighted lamp was on the stand before the study door, and against it leaned a placard bearing the words, "Beware of paint" in large letters. Mr. Goodman carefully opened the door and entered the room, followed by Mrs. Goodman ushering in her brood with due deference to the warning without and the odor within.

The little folks chattered and exclaimed, and pointed out to one another the various changes, but for a few moments the pastor and his wife said not a word.

Then Mr. Goodman took an envelope from the table. It contained a $10 bill and a card, from which he read aloud in a rather unsteady voice:

"Please accept the alterations in your study as a testimonial of affection and esteem from the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, and use the inclosed for such further improvements in the way of books as it will make, and you may desire."

Mrs. Goodman sat down and cried. "Oh!" she exclaimed, "this study has worried me so! I've tried and tried to plan for having it fixed up, but there didn't seem to be any way to do it. Finally I gave up and just left it with the Lord, and since then I've been sure it would be done some day. And it is! Those blessed young folks! And $10 for books, too!"

"Yes," replied Mr. Goodman, wiping his own eyes, "I am very thankful for it all. It was Hope Arnold's idea, I am positive. She looked very determined when she left the study that morning she was here."

"Well, it is certainly a welcome Christmas gift, and a great surprise."

Then small Johnny Goodman, who had been regarding his parents in great perplexity, exclaimed: "I don't see what makes papa and mamma cry about it! I think it looks nicer than it did before!"

A Lakeside Christmas.

"Ouch!"

The beautiful maiden withdrew her foot hastily.

Plunging her arm into the silken depths she took from the toe of her stocking a five-pound box of candies she had overlooked.

Need it be added that this happened in Chicago?

Baggs—Well, old man, what did you get in your stocking this morning?

Waggs—My foot.

MERRY CHRISTMAS.

A merry Christmas to all, my dear fellows, say I—
May you live in enjoyment, and live till you die,
May you share in the good things the world can afford
And never look sad at the gay, social board.

A happy New Year—let me drink to you all—
To the men, to the ladies, to the great, to the small;
The ladies I'll toast in a glass of good wine—
May your phizes, when old, look as smiling as mine!

ORIGIN OF YULE TIDE.

The Festive Season Celebrated Long Before Christmas Came.

Once upon a time, when Christmas was yet unknown, the northern nations of the world held a yearly festival which they called Yule. They wreathed with greens the temples of their heathen gods, as we wreathe our churches to-day; they burned great yule logs in honor of the sun, that he might make the earth blossom into Spring; and they gave their children yule gifts from fir trees loaded down with pretty things, just as we give to our children upon Christmas Eve.

It was not until 180 years after Jesus Christ, in the reign of the Roman Emperor Commodus, that Yule became Christmas, and it was in the fourth century, at the time of Constantine the Great and of Diocletian, that there lived Saint Nicholas, whom boys and girls know everywhere as Santa Claus. The legend of the jolly old fellow traveling with his reindeer to fill the stockings, or, in some countries, the shoes, which children placed ready for him, grew from the fact that Saint Nicholas was regarded as the patron saint of young people the world over. We English-speaking nations have the story from the Dutch.

But what shall we tell our boys and girls of Santa Claus. Do they not know him? Are they not looking eagerly for his visit of this year. Let us remember, however, the history of the Christmas holidays; for what is more beautiful than that the living religion of Christ should touch and vivify one of the oldest of the heathen festivals, not only taking away nothing that it was good to retain, but hallowing one particular day, the 25th of December, as the birthday of the child Jesus?

PLEASANT FOR THOMAS.

MRS. ENPEQUE—Thomas, you must not make any noise when you dress up as Santa Claus and fill the children's stockings tonight. Jimmy and Freddy have each got an air gun and a bow and arrow, and are going to shoot you with them to see if Santa Claus is really alive. But you won't mind, will you?

UNDER THE MISTLETOE.

Some Girls Won't Go Near It, But There Are Others.

Let me see. Isn't it somewhere about this time that the mistletoe hangs out? Oh, where are the girls of long ago, I kissed beneath the mistletoe? asks a writer in Illustrated Bits. I don't know, I'm sure. Mislaid 'em somewhere.

In olden days I have been told by a dear friend whose veracity I respect unless I'm dead sure he's lying—in olden days the Druids used to go out and cut the mistletoe down as it hung on trees; but nowadays mistletoe generally hangs in a doorway or at the bottom end of the chandelier, and any young man taking it down is earnestly requested to replace it after he has been round the room and kissed all the pretty girls he wants to. It is not good form at all for one fellow to stick to the only piece of mistletoe in the room all the evening. We've all got to have a chance, you know.

There are some girls who won't go near the mistletoe anyhow. And there are others. The others generally freeze on to a chair or lounge immediately under the biggest piece of mistletoe in the room and hope for good luck. Some of them will hang around a piece of mistletoe for an entire evening on the off chance of a fellow coming up behind and mistaking them for a pretty girl, and kissing them before he finds out the bitter, relentless truth.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL.

The frost gleams white on the housetops high,
And the clouds—they look like snow;
And the plumber man goes briskly by—
Blow, little tin horns—blow!

And I view my cash with a secret sigh,
And I say to my soul: "Go slow!"
But the children come, and I can't look grum—
Blow, little tin horns—blow!

So, I'm quite resigned to the rocket's noise,
And the Roman candle show;
It's hands all around with the girls and boys—
Blow, little tin horns—blow!

—Frank L. Stanton in Atlanta Constitution.

THE CHRISTMAS TABLE.

How to Arrange It in an Artistic and Up-to-Date Fashion.

There are no hard and fast rules for setting the Christmas table—or any other table, for that matter—but custom prescribes certain forms with more or less definiteness.

In many private families, for instance, a cocked-up napkin is placed at the left of each plate, and in the snowy linen jaws is stuffed a dainty roll. In many others this style has been abandoned and the napkin plainly folded, so as to show the monogram is laid on the plate. The latter method is perhaps the most "up-to-date."

So of the glasses. Time was—and, to a certain degree, still is—when a little forest of crystal was ranged at the right of every plate. "A glass for every wine and a wine for every glass." But here again the later day method is toward moderation. Three glasses—champagne, claret and apollinaris—are counted in better form for social gatherings. Indeed, the deep drinkers and large eaters of not so very long ago would shiver with hunger apprehension at the sight of the stylish banquet board of to-day.

Good taste, as we see it now, requires that no eatables whatever, except the merest nibbles—the hors d'oeuvres of the high-toned menus—shall be on the table before the guests are seated.

Daintily heaped on mounds of cracked ice are the olives at one end and the radishes at the other end of the table, flanked right and left by salted almonds and French candy.

How shall we be knived, and wherewithal shall we be spooned and forked is not so easily answered.

Any hostess may have notions of her own on these matters within rather wide limits, and be in no wise an offender.

But again, the best way is the short one. The oyster fork, a spoon for the soup, and two knives at the right, and two forks—one for the fish—at the left are all that are required at the beginning of the banquet.

A butter chip and individual salts and peppers are bunched before each plate. But butter plays a minor role in the very pretentious dinner casts.

For the centre piece a large piece of holly gives a Christmas-like air, and the red and green form a pretty bit of color contrast.

The olives and radishes carry out the same color scheme, and add to the attractiveness of the board.

For a soft, pretty light candleabra with colored paper shades, prettily tinted, are the thing and they are very decorative.

All table decorations and fixtures tend toward simplicity. The high centre pieces of fruits or flowers—once so prevalent—are rarely used now.

When friends or intimates meet around the social board there is no sense in making the conversation of opposites so largely a matter of peek-a-boo.

CHRISTMAS.

(Rhymed Acrostics.)

Christmas, come and bring again
Holly-berries all aglow,
Rovi'ng mistrel's merry strain.
Ivy-wreath and mistletoe,
Sweet reunions, friendly faces.
Tender thoughts, bring, too, for me
My lady's kiss and fond embraces,
And thy poet I will be,
Singing oft in measures soft of love and thee!

Christmas, monarch of the year,
Haste and spread thy wonted cheer;
Rock the steeples, bid each bell
Iron-tongued thy tidings tell;
Sorrow strangle, nurse content,
Tune all hearts to merriment!
Mirth is brief, and care will wait
At the threshold soon or late,
So scare him out with song and shout beyond the gate!

A New Turkey Dressing.

A lady from the South says that peanuts make a far finer dressing for the Christmas turkey than chestnuts do. The peanuts must be parched, as usual, pulverized in a mortar and mixed with chopped celery, a little butter and the usual herbs, held well together with a paste of cornmeal. The peanuts are said to impart a singularly fine flavor to the turkey.

A CHRISTMAS CASUALTY.

MRS. SANTA CLAUS—What's the matter with your hand?

SANTA CLAUS—Some fresh little boy put a steel trap in his stocking to see if there really was such a person as me.

THE ANGEL AT THE HELM.

A CHRISTMAS STORY.

I was a wild lad, stranger,
And, seemed to be "hell bent";
But time, the great reformer,
Had taught me to repent.
The money I had taken
I longed, now, to restore;
To tread again the pathway
Before my mother's door.

I longed to ask her pardon,
And see her saintly face—
My brothers and my sisters,
And view the dear, old place.
To turn their grief to gladness—
Set mother's heart at rest;
For, I had been her fav'rite—
The son that she loved best.

One scene I saw in fancy,
When I should cross the sea—
The time, it seemed glad Christmas
With its gift-bearing tree.
As "Santa Claus" I'd enter,
Dres't like that carl of old;
And, with a pack of playthings—
Likewise the stolen gold.

I saw the yule log blazing.
The mirth and mistletoe;
The little ones all crowding
Around the tree a-glow.
And, then the cry of rapture—
The quick, responsive start
Oh, mother, as the wand'rer
She presses to her heart!

And mem'ries, but haunting vague,
Came stealing soft and low;
While far, faint spirit voices
Kept urging me to go.
And, so for home I started
Across the salt sea wave,
To win my mother's pardon,
Or seek a sailor's grave.

• • •

The sea was bright and sparkling
When first we sailed the craft,
Which floated like a feather
While winds were fair abaft.
But, when the land no longer
A single eye could view,
A hurricane descended
That threatened ship and crew.

And fiercely flashed the lightning
Along the flapping sail;
The men grew faint and fearful
Who gazed upon the gale.
I felt myself a craven
With blanched and haggard cheek;
I feared the gold I'd hidden
Had made the good ship leak.

I thought of the dear mother
I had not seen in years,
Whose prayers, like white doves, followed
Her sorrow and her tears.
Of mother, sweet and gentle—
And, of her broken heart,
It now, some guarding spirit
Did not its aid impart.

But, brighter flashed the lightning.
And, higher dashed the waves,
Where many of my messmates
Had found their wat'ry graves.
Then, called I upon heaven,
And prayed with all my soul
The ship might reach its harbor,
The golden store its goal.

And, as I called in anguish
Across the sea at night,
Methought I saw a spirit,
All clad in shining white.
And, kneeling down, I worshiped
Though waves sought to o'erwhelm;
For, lo! there stood as pilot
An angel at the helm!

And there he stood in glory
Until the dawn of day.
When ocean's conflict over
We anchored in the bay.
But, oft, again in fancy,
I see that raging tide,
The dark, dismantled vessel,
And bright, celestial guide!

• • •

So, that sweet scene I pictured
I, thus, was spared to see—
Dear mother and the children—
The candle-sparkling tree.
And to return the money,
With one repentant tear;
And cry, hurrah for Christmas,
The Monarch of the Year!

Christmas in the Far North.

When Peary was in the Arctics his party had hurdle races for Christmas games and ice cream made from condensed milk for the dinner dessert. Their menu for that occasion included broiled salmon trout with tomato sauce, potato patties, olives, roast saddle of venison (reindeer) with cranberry sauce, cheese, candy, nuts, raisins, champagne, cigarettes and coffee.

The Old Soldier at Last Forced to Retreat.

Philadelphia's Great Christmas.

American history is replete with Christmas events. First comes Philadelphia's "tea party." On December 25, 1773, the tea ship was intercepted before it reached Philadelphia and sent back to England. This was nearly ten days after the still more famous Boston tea party, but it is a cherished event in Philadelphia's history.

Encouragement.

Jack—I suppose that young Richman who comes to see you so often will give you such an expensive Christmas gift that you won't want the trifling present I can afford to give you.

Marie—No. I think you had better save your money for—er—future contingencies, Jack.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE.

Where the Glass Decorations Come From.

How many of the hundreds of thousands of children and grown people who have enjoyed the sight of and helped to fasten the fragile ornaments to the Christmas tree know whence these dainty nothings come? At least nine-tenths of the world's supply of these flimsy little knick-knacks come from Thuringen-Wald, the forest of Thuringen, in Central Germany. Nothing could more appropriately be called the storeroom and workshop of Santa Claus than these elevated, as well as isolated, forest-clad mountain regions.

Every cottage among the mountains is a complete little factory, which turns out just as many goods as the numerical strength of the family permits. Everybody works, from the venerable grandparents, if they are alive, to the smallest child able to toddle.

As a rule the older members of the family—the father, mother and grown sons—perform the most difficult and hardest work, that of blowing and shaping the glass ornaments. The blowers generally sit three to five around a table, each making his particular pattern as suits his fancy. The three chief points of all absorbing importance observed are speed, cheapness and quality. The people might be said to be a race of artists in their particular line, and there is little waste from faulty designs. The glass used a great deal is known in the trade as flashed glass. The workman has two pots, one with colored and one without any mixture. As the work requires he dips his blowpipe in one or the other, sometimes mixing the two substances.

COLORING THE GLASS BALLS.

To produce the film of color he quickly immerses his bulb in the coloring fluid, which gives the object a marvelous lustre. The most delicate shading is obtained by eating away the color by means of fluoric acid, which is frequently employed, and most beautiful effects are thus produced. No one has seen these variegated Christmas tree decorations but has marveled at the intense brilliancy of their color. These superb effects are obtained by the use of metallic oxides, and are generally applied by some of the children of the family.

PUTTING ON THE LUSTRE.

As soon as the object leaves the glass blower's hand it is passed to some other member of the family, whose duty it is to fasten an eye or a hook, as the case may be, to the ornament. If to be dyed it goes to another who stands at the bath and dips every object with lightning rapidity. He or she then hands it to some child who puts it on a long stick for the drying oven. If an oven is not to be had the heat of the room or the sun has to perform this office. Then the silvering, which gives additional lustre to the object is attended to. This is done by dropping some quicksilver solution through a small opening left that for that purpose. The final touches are then given the ornament in the buffing or polishing with soft cotton batting.

In the immediate vicinity of the Louscha in the village of Steinheid, the people have taken up the manufacture of Christmas tree ornaments, made chiefly of the cheapest kind of tin. These ornaments are more durable and almost as cheap as the ones made from glass. The objection to them, however, is that from an artistic point of view they do not compare favorably with the latter. But there are many things to recommend them, and the dealers predict an enormous trade in this line. All sorts of shapes are made—stars, crescents, suns and all sorts of geometrical designs. They are cast so as to have one side deeply indented. On this side the ornamentation is done, which consists in lining the depressions or indentions of the pattern with a wonderfully brilliant substance. By skillfuly combining harmonious colors some very beautiful effects are obtained.

THE SONG OF THE FROST KING.

BY W. TYLER OLCOTT.

I'm king of the Alpine heights;
I'm lord of the snow-capped peaks;
For me the avalanches roar,
And the "cold-wrought silence" speaks.
I dwell in a palace of gleaming snow,
Where the cloud-mists dream of the sunset glow.

At my heels the wind-dogs cringe;
At my word they swiftly dash
In mad career, over all the world,
For they fear my stinging lash;
And the dawn-pink lingers alone for me
In the glorious light of the golden sea.

I'm king of the rock-bound crests;
I'm lord of the rugged steeps;
For me the frost-sprite weaves a veil,
And the sluggish glacier creeps.
I'm monarch of Earth's vast Solitude,
Where the frost and the cold forever brood.

A CHRISTMAS WOOING

BY E. B. BARTEN.

There has been many a memorable Christmas in my life, seared and scarred as it is by Time's rebuffs, but none is so fixed in my mind as that of 18—, none that comes back to me with so stirring, so boldly—outlined, so sweet a memory.

Perhaps it is as well not to dilate on my personality in that year, except to say that I was fresh from college, and full of the energy with which we all begin the real battle of life. Perhaps I was handsome. I thought so, at least, although I was not vain, and I am quite sure that one other certainly agreed with me. I was at—but I must stop descanting on myself, for I cut but a sorry figure in this tale.

Among my circle of acquaintances at college was Eugene Kerr, wealthy beyond the dreams of avarice, keen-souled and bright-eyed, dark-featured and handsome, taller than I by several inches, and with a nature as free and open as his speaking sparkling eyes. It was to his home that I had been invited to spend the holidays before engaging in the business of which I was destined to become the head in a few years.

At the Kerr home, a delightful country residence near New York, I was but one of a gay young party, for the Kerr family kept open house for a score of friends during the holidays.

As usual at these gatherings, we were thrown together continually, and my whole soul had suddenly gone out to the sister of my friend Eugene. Her head was covered with dark, shining, chestnut hair, luxuriant hair, that looked all the more luxuriant, perhaps, by reason of the careless way in which it was wrapped about her head. The great gray eyes were set deeply under a straight wide brow. A delicate nose that would turn up a little when she lifted her head, and a splendidly-cut, clever, wide mouth, the lips of which parted every now and then with a sweet smile, were there. This was her face, and it was fair enough; but it was her figure, her glorious, graceful, full, yet supple figure that struck me most.

Nor was she averse to my attentions, yet I noticed from time to time a coldness in the voice and face of Mrs. Kerr, the mother of my young friends. She was a stately matron, and in her sweeping black velvet dress and softly falling delicate white lace, which nestled about her head and throat, looked strikingly handsome.

Grace—that was the name of the daughter—seemed at times to be under the spell of the mother's eye. I noticed that the conversation would lag when the elder woman entered the room, and that all the airy gayety and sprightliness of the daughter would disappear under the withering glance of the mother.

There was a secret, a mystery which I had determined to fathom and so I proceeded about it in anything but a diplomatic manner, for I was young and thoughtless. My whole soul had become wrapped up in Grace. She was the ideal woman I had pictured in my dreams, and I had determined that she must be mine at any cost.

I look back to those days with wonderment, more perhaps at my own temerity under the circumstances, for I did not even know that I was loved in return.

"Gene," I remarked, one morning, after I had lain awake all night planning and hoping, "I want to talk with you about a matter that concerns me nearly—concerns us both."

He looked at me in some little amazement. Then putting his arm through mine, laughingly pushed me along, saying, "Well I should judge from your long face, it's something serious. Drive it away, old man, don't consort with your cares during the holidays. Never worry in December. January is an awful good month for broken vows, worriments and all that sort o' thing."

"Gene, I'm going to blurt it out and have it over with. I'm head over heels in love with your sister!"

"Walter!"

If I haven't mentioned it before I will say the above is my given name, although it really has nothing to do with the story.

There was that in Eugene's face which fairly dazed me. He seemed terror-stricken at my abrupt but simple announcement. All the acts of my life passed before me, for I was in vain endeavoring to find a cause for his consternation, and then I poured out my soul.

"Truly, 'Gene, there can be nothing against me. I have some wealth, excellent prospects, I am not a roue——"

"Hush, my boy," cried Eugene. "It isnt that! why my sister has been engaged for a year, and do you think my mother would ever forego a coronet! It's impossible!"

"Engaged! A coronet! What do you mean," I cried.

"I mean simply this," he replied, putting his hands on my shoulders, "Grace was abroad with mother, a year ago as you know. At that time—but please remember that this is all confidential, it's a family secret—Lord Deerland fell madly in love with Grace and proposed for her hand. Mother accepted the young man with alacrity, and I think Grace likes him. The formal announcement is to be made after the holidays and they are to be married in the spring. That's all there is to the story, my boy, and now don't make a fuss over it, but just accept the inevitable."

I presume I looked crestfallen after this disclosure and for twenty-four hours kept to my room, determined to get over my chagrin and not to spoil the Christmas party by any hasty departure.

On the following day, the day before Christmas, I summoned all my courage and went down stairs, into the midst of the gayety. The expression on Mrs. Kerr's face had undergone a delightful change. She fairly beamed on me, and a lurking suspicion filled my mind. 'Gene had undoubtedly told his mother and sister all, for in no other way could I explain the rhapsodic expression on the mother's face, and the sadness that seemed to have come over the younger woman. That of course was simply pity, I argued. She was like all the others, ready to play the coquette though she knew she would break a heart or two.

By a most fortunate chance I received a message late in the morning which summoned me to the city for a few hours on a matter of business. Eugene had arranged a sleighing party for the afternoon, and this I was forced to forego. My train left shortly after noon, and I was waiting at the station scanning a paper, my thoughts on a sweet face in the Kerr home, when I heard my name mentioned by the agent as he directed some one to the house on the hill. It was a telegram announcing the completion of the business and informing me that it would not be necessary for me to leave.

On this trifling incident hung my fate, for when I returned I found that the only one of the party who had not felt equal to the long drive was—Miss Grace.

She saw me coming up the hill, and in her amazement as I afterward ascertained, thought I had purposely deceived her mother and brother.

Oh, but her heart was beating for some one, and when she met me I knew by her sweet eyes that all the happiness of the days before my disclosure had come back to her heart.

I had her all to myself that afternoon, that glorious afternoon, the radiance of which has sent its light along the pathway of my whole life

I dare not tell you what occurred except to say that when the party came back I had my telegram to explain my sudden return but no word of explanation for the joy in my soul.

And now for the finale. Yet it was only a finale to the old lady's ambition, and but the beginning of my "long sweet story."

The Christmas dinner was on! I could tell you every detail of it. I could tell you where Grace sat, and I remember distinctly every flower in her corsage. I see in my mind's eye every laughing face, every feature of the table and of the room. Aye, I remember even the dainty country-maid, with her natty cook's cap, coming into the room with a steaming fowl. You must bear in mind that this was long ago, before the days of the country house luxury which now prevails.

I recall the arrival of the dainty maid, for it was at that moment that Grace, contrary to all banquet formulas, arose, and looked her mother and brother full in the face, her eyes aglow with the spirit within, her face handsomer than ever in its framing of American pluck, and her stately form like that of a queen.

"I want you all," she said, "to listen to an American girl's Christmas determination. Perhaps what I am going to say is not according to rule, but I think it is according to right. I, an American girl, promise to become the wife only of an American citizen. I promise that I will preside over an American home or over none at all."

I cannot picture the consternation of the mother. I am quite sure that it completely spoiled her Christmas dinner. The guests, who knew nothing of the mother's plans, applauded the sentiment to the echo.

As for Eugene! Why, he is a sensible fellow, and he rather prides himself on his brother-in-law even to this day. Mrs. Kerr never fully forgave me, and even to her dying day occasionally referred in the saddest of accents to "that dear broken-hearted Lord Deerland."

And Grace! Why, she's dressing for the Christmas dinner even as I write.

LETTERS TO SANTA CLAUS.

Post-office Authorities Find Them Frequently at Christmas Time.

In every well-regulated post-office of large size there is a corps of "guessers" and directory searchers, who are kept busy for the express purpose of finding out where people live, when addresses are carelessly or not fully written out. Last year a letter came to the post-office, New York, with the superscripton "To Santa Claus, 263 Goat Street." There is no Goat street in New York, so the letter was stamped "misdirected," as in the reproduction above, and sent to Washington, where, it was supposed, Goat Street might be found. The clerks thought that fuller directions might be discovered inside, so they opened the envelope, and found the following letter:—

Dear Santa,—When I said my prayers last night I told God to tell you to bring me a hobby horse. I don't want a hobby horse, really. A honestly lively horse is what I want. Mamma told me not to ask for him, because I probably would make you very mad, so you wouldn't give me anything at all, and if I got him I wouldn't have any place to keep him. A man I know will keep him, he says, if you get him for me. I thought you might like to know. Please don't be mad.—Affectionately, John.

P. S.—A Shetland pony would be enough.

P. S.—I'd rather have a hobby horse than nothing at all.

Another letter, written by a girl of seven, who is sometimes "norty," was sent off some time ago, in order that Santa might have a good opportunity to get the doll's baby carriage and the "squeak cat for the baby."

My Dear Santa Claus.

I hope you are quite well. I have got a great big stocking reddy to hang up at Xmas. There is only one big hole in it at the top for you to put the things in. Plese bring me a dolls pram. If it is too big to put in my stocking plese tie it outside where I can see it. Dear Santa Claus I do like butter scotch. Plese not forget to bring some, also some nuts and oranges. My teacher tells me you will look at my face to see if I have been good. I am norty sometimes but plese don't forget me, and bring a horse for my little Tommy and a squeak cat for the baby. I love you very much and hope you will not forget poor little Jimmy who lives at Hope Cottage.

For individuality, and expression of a sweet, womanly nature, the following letter, written by an eleven-year-old girl, could hardly be surpassed:—

My Dear Santa Claus

I have been counting up the weeks to Christmas and am longing for the time to come. You have put something in my stocking lots of times, so please Dear Santa Claus, remember me again. Last year I wanted a dear little baby a real live one you know but I suppose it was too cold, and besides I did not write to you as I am doing now, so it did not come. Please bring me one this year, a little girl if you can. I have saved money enough to buy a cradle, and I can get plenty of flannelette to keep it warm. As babies are so expensive I will not ask for anything else for myself. Please bring a chooky pig for my little Clement. He will be nearly two years old then. Good-bye dear Daddy Christmas, with my best love, hoping you will not forget little Gertie.

P.S.—If you really do manage to bring the baby, please not forget the feeding bottle.

GETTING AN EARLY START.

Second Bunny—"Yes, he is; but goodness, he's got to go clear to Manila!"—Minneapolis Tribune.

Uncontrollable.

"Poor Alice had to give up her bicycle riding. She just could not learn."

"And why not?"

"She was so used to driving a horse that she kept jerking at the handlebars all the time as if they were a pair of reins."—Indianapolis Journal.

Visitor—What kind of a man is your neighbor, Mr. Flint?

THE DESTROYING ANGEL.

BY CARD SMITH.

Oh, the whuffy-duff was the prettiest bird
That a toy shop ever knew,
With a great, long tail and with goose-quill wings,
And a glass eye good and true:
But his wings are gone and his tail's pulled out,
And his head is twisted awry,
For the goo-goo has torn him limb from limb,
And has swallowed the whuffy-duff's eye.

The ooglety-dum had a wobbling head,
And a nice, round, curving horn,
And a tail that would almost wag itself,
And a nose turned up in scorn;
But the ooglety-dum isn't scornful now—
He is meek and as sad as can be,
For the goo-goo has torn his short horn off
And has broken his tail in three.

The whank-whank-whank used to squeak her joy—
That is, when properly pressed—
With a voice that was hidden away somewhere
In the depths of her hollow breast:
But I wish you could see the hapless corpse
That is lying here on the bed;
Oh, the whank-whank-whank has a ghastly look
Since the goo-goo tore off her head.

And yet, in spite of her deadly work,
The goo-goo is dear to me;
Though she kill and maim I shall love her still,
And her comrade in crime I'll be,
For when I turned and looked just now
Where she lay, in her trundle bed,
She reached me the wreck of the ooglety-dum,
And "Papa" is what she said.

IN POVERTY ROW.

One of Them Had to Surrender.

During the revolution a little American privateer stole up on a British line of battle ship in a fog, mistaking her for an East India merchant, and ordered her to strike. When the seventy-four ran out her guns and threatened to blow her puny assailant out of the water, the Yankee skipper stepped to the gangway, and, taking off his hat, said politely: "Oh, very well, sir; if you won't surrender, I will."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Appearance Deceptive.

"You haven't changed much since I saw you last."

"You mistake. When you saw me last I was a Populist, and anti-expansionist and a free silverite. I am now a gold standard Republican expansionist."

"It's on me. What'll you drink?"

"I've quit drinking, too."—Chicago Tribune.

They Need Sympathy.

"Yes," said the young man, "literary work is very fatiguing."

"I should imagine so," replied Miss Cayenne. "When I realize that some authors have to keep their minds on the stuff they write I feel positively sorry for them."—Washington Star.

SAMMY TO SANTA.

Oh, Santa, dear old Santa,
As this is Christmas eve,
Of you what rosy fancies
Beside the hearth I weave.

Oh, now I know you're skimming
Across the drifts of snow,
The whirlwinds madly kindling
Your nose into a glow.

But when beside the gateway
You tell the deer to stop,
And swiftly down the chimney
Into my room you drop,

I wish you'd stack my playthings
Upon the table near,
With all the shining candy,
To me so very dear.

Not in this swinging stocking
Are pretty playthings put—
'Tis mother's and a "biker,"
That hasn't got a foot.

PRISONER'S PRESENT.

The Sheriff's Kindness Was Not the Sort They Wished For.

"Boys," began the Sheriff as he went among his prisoners in the county jail on Christmas eve, and sat down with them in a friendly way—"boys, I reckon yer awar' that to-morrer's C'rismas, hain't ye?"

"Yaas," drawled a couple of them, and all looking at the officer indifferently.

"Wall, I've bin a-thinkin'," he went on, "that I orter do sunthin' fur ye to-morrer, boys. I'm shore ye's appreshuate it if I die?"

"Ye bet we would!" was the hearty reply as they began to pay some attention to his remarks now.

"Wall, I believe ye would, boys. It's a blamed shame to keep ye penned up yere on C'rismas, an' I'm goin' to let ye all out fur the day. How does it strike ye?"

"Fust class—fust class!" they exclaimed, crowding around him and shaking his hand with great vigor.

"I'm mighty glad it pleases ye, boys," continued the Sheriff, seeming as happy over the matter as they were. "A man in my posishun, ye know, has gotter be hard-hearted an' strict, but I'm durned if I'd keep even a dawg shet up on C'ristmas."

"About what time will you let us out, Tom?" asked one of the delighted prisoners, while the others danced around excitedly.

"About 6 o'clock in the mornin', I reckon. Yaas, I'll hev the saws an' axes all ready by that time an' "——

"Saws an' axes?" he was interrupted with. "Saws an' axes?"

"Yaas, saws and axes. I'm a-goin' to let ye fellers come up to my house on C'rismas an' cut about six cords o' wood fur me. It'll be a big change fur ye all to git out o' yere an' sniff the fresh air again, but ye kin repay me fur my kindness by workin' fast an' "—

But he was interrupted again by every man trying to tell him at once that they'd be hanged if they wanted to go out for that purpose, and when the Sheriff realized that his offer had been refused he got up with a red face and thundered, as he turned to go:

"Wall, of all the durned idjets! Yere I come down an' offer to gin ye a change jest to make it a merry C'rismas fur ye, an' ye don't know 'nuff to take me up! Wall, jest go to blazes, the hull pack o' ye, an' the fust prisoner I h'ar grumblin' to-morrer will git throwed out o' this jail an' never be allowed to come back again!"

Why Tommy is Doing Penance.

Grandma—Are you looking forward to your Christmas dinner, Thomas?

Tommy—Yep, grandma, but not as much as Johnny Green, what lives up the street.

Grandma—Why so, Thomas?

Tommy—His grandma died last week and he'll get all her Chrissmus turkey.

Thomas is still standing on the cassock.

His Method.

"I never make Christmas presents," announced Cawker, solemnly, when the subject of holiday gift-giving was under discussion.

"Don't you?" replied four or five hearers in unison.

"No, I never make Christmas presents. I buy them."

Whited Sepulchres.

"Bobbie," said genial Mr. Thinlimm, "don't you want one of my golf stockings to hang up?"

"Naw, I don't! Then golf stockings are bluffs! All wool, but not an inch wide inside."

A Good Lesson.

Downtrod—I always take my wife to church on Christmas day.

Quizzer—Any special reason?

"Yes. The sermon's about 'peace on earth, good will to men.'"

In Faraway Asia.

Among the converts to the Christian religion on the eastern coast of Asia the custom prevails of telegraphing or cabling their Christmas congratulations to each other.

CHEERFUL.

There's many a trouble
Would burst like a bubble,
And into the waters of Lethe depart,
Did we not rehearse it,
And tenderly nurse it,
And give it a permanent place in the heart.

There's many a sorrow
Would vanish to-morrow
Were we not unwilling to furnish it wings;
So, sadly intruding
And quietly brooding,
It hatches out all sorts of horrible things.

Resolved to be merry,
All worry to ferry,
Across the famed waters that bid us forget;
And no longer fearful,
But happy and cheerful,
We feel life has much that's worth living for yet.

Georgiana C. Clark.

HER HUSBAND.

We were dining at the Savoy in London, and I was staring about me at the beautiful Englishwomen in the evening dress which is so strange to American eyes in a public restaurant. It was a gay scene and I enjoyed its full flavor.

I liked London. I had been there exactly three hours, but the peculiar atmosphere of the place, the Embankment with the strings of barges on the little, slow river, the great Nelson monument in Trafalgar Square—with its lions, the cabs—were all old friends. Like everybody else in America I was saturated with English literature, and as most of us need to have a thing described to us before we can see it though it be before our eyes, I really felt that I knew London better than New York. I had read more about it.

The man who sat opposite me smiled now and then in vast and beautiful content. He had told stories of Australia, where he had been for three years. He had had important business in San Francisco and had come home that way—for England was home to him. That was all that I knew of him, except that he was brown of skin, deep of chest, and with honest eye and a good laugh. One can't dislike a man with a real laugh. He had great tales of riding in Australia, of the red dust in the gold country, of the winds and the desolation. Evidently he had felt the tragedy as well as the comedy of his life. He was a likable chap and I wished I knew more of him than that his name was Gordon.

We left the table presently and strolled down towards the Embankment with our cigars. It was the sort of night in which a man wants to confide in something. I didn't know much, but I felt like telling it. Perhaps I was hunting a leader when I said, "Odd a man likes England as much as you do should have left it."

The answer I expected was that he had gone out to make money; and I had a tale of my own which hung on money. But he grew suddenly grave.

"I went to Australia for the same reason nine men out of ten do anything—a woman."

I waited a minute for something more, and then I could think of nothing more original than the old saw about a woman being at the bottom of everything.

"Certainly she was at the bottom of my going to Australia. I loved her too much to stay."

"Was she married?" I asked.

"She was—and to a confounded rake, a chap who ought to have been horsewhipped all over England. He drank, he raced, he gambled, he led her the devil of a life."

"That must have hurt."

"But not half as much as it hurt her."

"Do you think she loved you?"

"I know she did. That was the thing which finally gave me the courage to go away. There hasn't been a minute in these three years that I haven't known it, and it has made my life possible. If I hadn't known that she was here in this part of the world believing in me, trusting me, loving me, I'd have lost my head many's the time."

"And now?" asked I.

"Now I am going to see her again. She will be on the train from Paris which comes over that bridge there in just one little half hour. I haven't seen her for three years."

"I suppose her husband has died?" I ventured.

"No." He spoke with sternness.

"But——"

"There are no buts about it. We are going to pretend that drunken wretch is dead, and begin our lives all over again. We are going to take a yacht and poke its nose into every corner of the globe. I am going to take her out to Australia and show her some of those places where I suffered—and where the thought of her kept me alive."

"Do you think that is just fair to her? She may love you enough, but——"

"She's willing to risk life with me, and I am willing to risk it, although there was a time when I wasn't. When two people love each other as much as she and I do it overcomes everything."

I had liked the man so much that I hated to see him so wrong, and I made a final plea.

"But her husband? The man whose lawful wife she promised to be?"

He gave me a heavy grasp on the arm and burst into his happy, boyish laugh.

"But, man, I'm her husband! She's my wife!"—Robert McDonald in Munsey's.

THE PERSIAN JEWELS.

A Description of Their Splendor Reads Like a Fairy Tale.

A writer in the Illustrated Magazine says: Who has not heard of the Persian jewels—their glory, their number, their priceless worth? When the doors were unlocked and I was taken into the peacock throne room I found myself surrounded by a mass of wealth unequalled in the world. Nowhere are such treasures, but nowhere also is there such an accumulation of rubbish. I will, however, dismiss the rubbish and refer only to the treasures. Down each side of the room were chairs entirely covered with sheeted gold, and at intervals there were tables of gold nailed, and I shuddered to note, with the commonest of black headed tacks.

At the far end of the room was the wonder of the world, the peacock throne. Whether it is one of the seven thrones of the great Mogul and was brought from Delhi, I don't know, but it is certainly the most costly ornament that the eye can look upon. I inspected it most carefully. It is entirely of silver, a great camp-bed structure, but modeled in lovely designs. It is encrusted from end to end and from top to bottom with diamonds.

At the back is a star of brilliants that makes you blink. The rug on which the shah sits is edged with precious stones, and the pillow on which he reclines is covered with pearls. I could keep on writing about the dazzling beauty of the throne of the king of kings, but I never could get beyond declaring it to be a superb jewel.

But although the peacock throne is the magnum opus of the Persian crown jewels, it by no means extinguishes the magnificence of the other treasures. Who can attempt, however, to recount the number of bejeweled arms, the royal arms, the flashing aigrets, the trays piled up with cut and uncut stones and the bowls filled with pearls that you can run through your fingers like a handful of rice? Every one has heard of the Daria-i-Nur, or Sea of Light, sister-diamond of the Kohinoor, or Mountain of Light. Every one has also heard about the Globe of the World, made of seventy-five pounds of pure gold and 51,326 gems—the sea of emeralds, Persia of turquoises, India of amethysts, Africa of rubies, England and France of diamonds.

A COURAGEOUS DEED.

Went Inside a Furnace, on Top of a Banked Fire, to Fix a Bolt.

Few readers are aware that our warships carry boiler makers who are often called upon to perform perilous repairs, and, in cases of emergency, these men go inside of the boiler or furnace, which but a few minutes before had been filled with boiling water or red hot coal. There is no task too dangerous for these men to do. One of them undoubtedly saved the "Castine" from destruction in the harbor of San Juan. The "Castine" went into action under full speed. The furnaces were heated to the highest degree, forced draught being used. Without warning, a fierce hissing noise was heard inside one of the furnaces. A socket bolt in a back connection at the farthest interior extremity of the furnace had become loose, springing a leak. The steam was pouring in upon the fire, threatening in a few minutes to put it out and stop the progress of the vessel, if it did not cause a terrific explosion. All in the boiler room knew that, unless this hole was stopped, disaster was at hand. One of the boiler makers, named Huntley, ordered the forced draught turned off and the fires banked. Taking a plank, he threw it into the furnace on the top of the wet, black coal with which the fire had been banked and then climbed far back to the place where the steam was rushing from the loosened socket. For three minutes he remained inside the furnace. His friends drew him out of the door; the forced draught was turned on, and in a few minutes the ship was proceeding on her way as though nothing had happened.

Those Two Useless Buttons.

The story is told of a missionary who was laboring to convert a Chinaman, who found himself confronted by a question from the heathen, in this wise: "You think you know everything. Tell me, then, why you wear those two superfluous buttons on the back of your coat?" Many who suppose that the buttons in question were used to support the sword belt are in like manner nonplussed, as the practice of wearing a sword from the waist belt is comparatively recent; formerly, the sword belt crossed the right shoulder, as it is still worn in some uniforms, particularly that of the Scottish Highlanders. The two buttons, in fact, were used to button back the skirts of the long frock coats formerly worn by men, and corresponding button holes or loops occupied the corners of the said skirts. The French soldiers' overcoats are made in this manner to the present day. We have seen men use the same contrivance as a convenience for riding the bicycle.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A woman returning from a stay in England is authority for the statement that it is not uncommon over there for the owner of a handsome suburban residence to receive for pay an autumn or winter house party. She will act as chaperon if desired, or will efface herself in her own quarters, directing the management of the servants to relieve the temporary hostess from all care of that sort.—New York Post.

HANDLING A MODERN WAR RIFLE.

Something No Fellow Can Do Until He Has Had Instructions and Practice.

The "magazine rifle, caliber 30," familiarly called the Krag-Jorgensen, is the army equipment of the infantry of the United States army. It has a range of about three miles and an accuracy never before attained in small arms; that is, when in the hands of a man trained to its use, for at the same distance a properly instructed soldier will pick off a man and the untrained one "miss a barn."

When one of these rifles is put in the hands of a new man the theory of its care and use is explained to him by a non-commissioned officer, and before the lecture is through his feelings are somewhat like those of Mark Twain after receiving his first lesson in piloting. He is ready to say "Sergeant, I can never get all that into my head, and if I did it would be so heavy that my legs would not be able to support it. I would have to go on crutches."

The sergeant's reply would be like that of Mark's preceptor: "My son, you have got to learn it, or you will never be able to use your rifle. You will get it by degrees. Private Blank is in the next bunk. Go to him and let him overlook every time you tilt a latch or turn a lever. Little by little you will learn it all, but if you are not careful you will have your piece unserviceable before you are aware of it."

Then comes the training in the gallery at close range, the grip of the piece, the pull on the trigger, the proper time and degree of expansion of the lungs, the proper expiration, &c.

And after that comes estimating distances, the theory of the course of the projectile through the air, the elevation required for certain distances. The recruit is taught that the expulsion of the bullet from the barrel gives it that eccentric movement called "drift," and that the air gives it another movement called windage; that atmospheric conditions often carry with them optical illusions, so that while the target appears to be in a certain place it is in reality several feet distant, and in order to shoot well he has to estimate these influences separately and in combination in every variation of light and wind.

By continued application he masters point after point until what first appears to be a tangled mass now proves to be a pleasing study, and then he thinks he knows it all, but he doesn't.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

NOTES FOR DAILY THOUGHT.

Sunlight and Shadow.

Men turn their backs to the sunlight and call the shadow adversity.—Presbyterian Journal.

Always Safe.

It is always safe to take it for granted that, as yourself, so others are trying to do their best. Shortcoming is no sign of shortwilling. Sweetness is never whipped in.—J. F. W. Ware.

Be Glad For Something to Do.

Thank God every morning when you get up that you have something to do that day which must be done, whether you like it or not. Being forced to work, and forced to do your best, will breed in you temperance and self-control, diligence and strength of will, cheerfulness and contentment, and a hundred virtues which the idle will never know.—The Reformed Church Messenger.

Cultivate Cheerfulness.

We should train ourselves to see the good things, the bright things of life. There are few habits more common, even among Christians, than this of seeing and remembering unpleasant things and being blind to and forgetting the pleasant things, and there is no habit which is more inimical to cheerfulness.

The truth is, there are in the ordinary life a thousand pleasant things to one that is unpleasant. It is a shame, therefore, to let the one roughness of pain spoil for us all the gladness of a thousand good things, the one discordant note mar for us all the music of the grand symphony.—Forward.

Mourning in Colors.

The custom of wearing mourning is of an antiquity so great that its origin is uncertain.

People are accustomed to think of black as the only mourning color, but almost every color of the rainbow is used somewhere in the world as an emblem of mourning; black and white striped in the South Sea Islands, grayish brown in Ethiopia, pale brown in Persia, sky blue, Syria and Armenia; deep blue, Bokhara; purple and violet in France; Turkey, violet; China white, and Egypt and Burmah, yellow.—St Louis Globe-Democrat.

Hindoo Hospitality.

In his private capacity the Hindoo is frequently very hospitably inclined. The fact that his caste prejudices preclude him from eating with Europeans does not always prevent him from offering an invitation to dinner—his idea of English hospitality. This consists of his driving his guests to a hotel and paying for dinner, while he awaits its consumption in another part of the house. It takes one some little time to get used to this sort of procedure; but after a while one sees the propriety of accepting the kindness in the spirit which prompts it.

"Why," asked the youngest boarder, "do they measure the speed of a ship in knots?"

"I think," said the Cheerful Idiot, "that it has something to do with the tied."—Indianapolis Journal.

QUEER CONVENT IN MONTREAL.

Nuns are Mere Girls and Choose Coffins for Their Beds.

The city of Montreal can boast of the strangest convent that can be found in the civilized world. It is known as the Convent of the Holy Face. It is a very strange place, and very few persons have ever got much further than its reception-room. An old French-Canadian doctor founded the convent in his own house, where at the same time he keeps up the practice of medicine. The first members of the community were the five daughters of a couple whom he had known for years. The eldest of these was at the time of the inception of the institution, not over 18. These girls led a life of religious rigor, in which scourges and chains, and coffins as beds, and skulls as ornaments of their cells play a part. Although they have a mother superior in the eldest sister, the doctor is the final arbiter of all questions that pertain to the management of the community in which he, the sole male in the place, lives. Many of the good Catholics of Montreal have declared, when asked, that the institution is a very proper and good one, and hundreds of women go there to have prayers repeated and to obtain rosaries, which the little nuns make.

An English woman who visited the place in company with a French-Canadian describes it as being more like a children's home. The nuns, some of whom are not more than 14 years of age, laugh and play about the house like so many happy little ones who are quite contented with their lot. The black dress is the every-day uniform, but at night and on feast days they put on a dress with a crimson front, upon which is painted the "saint face"—the face of the Savior—and wear a crimson veil. Dressed like this they sleep in their coffins.

When the Superioress was asked if they did not find the coffins uncomfortable and horrid to sleep in, she replied that, although at the beginning the coffins were rather creepy and strange, they had become so accustomed to them they would be really sorry if they should be obliged to do without them.

In summer they have a beautiful garden behind the house, with the stations of the cross, but beyond going there and to mass the nuns never go out. Every Friday they chain one another up and scourge one another, but their appearance does not show that these harsh measures have either affected their physical welfare or their good spirits.

LOUIS PHILIPPE IN EXILE.

He Wanted to Marry an American Girl, but Her Father Objected.

A merchant prince was a great man in old Philadelphia—a far greater man than the master of a little school, even though it were the most select in the city—even though the teacher were an exiled French gentleman of royal blood, Duke of Orleans then, King Louis Philippe in after years.

The story of how the princely school master courted the charming Abigail, daughter of Thomas Willing, is related with new detail in the Ladies' Home Journal. Dressed in his best, and probably, notwithstanding that he was a modest and sensible young man, little in fear of an unfavorable response, the exiled Prince called on the American merchant and asked him for his daughter. There was, perhaps, more pride than humility in the answer he received:

"Sir, should you ever be restored to your hereditary position, you will be too great a match for my daughter; if not, she is too great a match for you."

So the poor schoolmaster went away disappointed and, although only his "position" and the lady's appear to have been considered by the hard-hearted parent, it is probable that if Mistress Abigail had not agreed with his opinion she would have made her influence felt. As it was, Louis Philippe married the Princess Marie Amelie, daughter of the King of Naples, while Abigail Willing of Philadelphia, who might have been Queen of France, became plain Mrs. Richard Peters.

HER MISSION AMONG SAILORS.

Countess Schimmelmann Spends Her Life on a Gospel Yacht.

The Countess Adeline Schimmelmann of Denmark, has adopted a unique manner of accomplishing mission work. She makes her home on a yacht and goes from port to port for the purpose of evangelizing sailors.

The Countess who deserted the gayeties and luxuries of the Danish court to become an evangelist to the sailors of the world, has done untold good in the great seaports of Europe which she has visited. A coffee house or home of some kind remains in almost every port where she has labored, as a lasting memorial to her efforts.

The Countess is an enthusiast in her work. Despite the opposition of her relatives, who once had her placed in an asylum, she has consecrated her life and fortune to the work. All the expenses of her mission yacht are met from her own funds, although unsolicited donations are received. She sold her jewelry and her country home to carry on the work. The Countess has never been married, and is still a comparatively young woman. Although the appointments of her yacht are luxurious, her dress is simple. In no way does she attempt to impress upon people her high rank, meeting all on the common plane of humanity.

BARRELS AND BOTTLES OF PAPER.

Inventions That Will Probably Benefit Large Consumers.

John Vandeveide of Cleveland, is the inventor of two articles, which will have a tendency to decrease the price of several commodities. His inventions are paper barrels and paper bottles for beer or other beverages. For a long time the price of many liquid commodities sold in bulk has been gauged by the price of the barrels in which they are transported. The barrels are constructed for the greater part of paper cardboard, which is impervious to water. They are slightly shorter in height than the ordinary barrrel, but will hold as much, as they are without the usual bilge of the wooden barrel. The paper in the walls of the barrel is three-fourths of an inch in thickness, of many plies, between which are thick coatings of a specially prepared glue. About the middle of the barrel is a single hoop of steel, three inches wide and three-eighths of an inch thick. This, therefore, extends from the barrel to such a distance as to permit of the barrel being readily swung about on its center. Pressed over the ends of the walls of the barrel are rims of pressed steel three-fourths of an inch thick and extending downward three inches. It is on an indented surface in the inner portion of this rim that the head of the barrel rests. The heads are also made of paper, slightly thicker than that in the walls of the barrel. They are held in place by three bolts passing through the barrel from end to end. Nuts on each end hold them in place and permit of the heads being easily removed or placed in short order.—Toledo Commercial.

WHEELED VEHICLES IN MADEIRA.

Only Six on the Whole Island—Runners in Most of the Conveyances.

Our consul at Madeira reports that ten years ago there was not a single wheel on the island of Madeira, while now six vehicles boast of wheels. Then, how do the people travel? On sleds drawn by oxen, the roads and streets being over two hundred years old and worn smooth as ice. Where the country is hilly travel is on horses and in hammocks. "Our sleds," writes the Consul, "or cars, as they are called, are carriages on runners, instead of wheels. Some of the private cars are beautifully upholstered. The bodies are made of hard wood, carved and finely finished. The bullocks are large, well groomed, and can be safely used up or down hill at almost any angle. Every driver carries a rag or coarse towel well saturated with grease. This from time to time he puts down in front for the runners to pass over. In summer during the dry season, the grease and friction make the pavements almost as smooth as glass, and this compels the buying of Madeira-made boots. The soles of these boots are spongy and cling to the pavement." It is said that roads outside of Funchal are so crooked and the hills are so steep that there never has been and probably never will be any demand for bicycles, or, in fact, for any wheeled vehicle.

Stanley's Regard for His Cat.

As the bonds of friendship are strengthened by a heavy affliction so does a prolonged sojourn in foreign places, amid strange scenes, turn the most common of every-day sights at home into luxuries. A magazine tells a story of Henry M. Stanley, who, after his return from Africa, was busily engaged in writing his story of the "Dark Continent."

He used to spread his reference maps upon the floor of his room, and on this particular day, after searching in his near neighborhood for a chart which he much needed, he spoke to his assistant, who presently descried it near the fireside, with Stanley's favorite cat upon it asleep.

He started to turn the intruder off, when the great man interrupted him, saying:

"Never mind; don't disturb the cat. I'll get along without the chart until the cat wakes up. If you only knew how good the sight of that domestic cat curled up in front of that bright English fire is to me, you would never chase her away."

The cat slumbered on, and not until she arose with a lazy yawn, scratching her front nails on the rug as she stretched, did the famous explorer reach for his map.

Fishing as a Help to Eloquence.

It seems that Daniel Webster went fishing when he wanted to compose the finest passages in an oration. One of his biographers was with him on a fishing excursion to Mashpee Brook, on Cape Cod. Webster, at times, was so deeply absorbed with his own thoughts that he held his hook out of water. Suddenly wheeling, he extended one hand to the overhanging trees and uttered the memorable sentences in the Bunker Hill oration, addressed to the survivors of the revolution, and beginning: "Venerable men, you have come down to us from a former generation." On the strength of this precedent, fishing for eloquence is to be recommended.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

IF I WERE SANTA CLAUS.

If I were only Santa Claus,
And Santa Claus was me,
I'd show to him just what a good
Old Santa Claus I'd be.
I'd always bring the kind of toys
And story books for him;
I'd find his stocking ev'ry year,
And fill it to the brim.
This year I'd bring a book or so
On how we conquered Spain,
Or how a boy pursued his foe
Across the Klondike plain.
And boxing-gloves—and, say, I guess
A pistol would be great
To Klondike with. And then—oh, yes,
A wheel for ninety-eight.
I'd bring a leather suit and hat—
The kind that cowboys wear.
Of bowie knives and things like that
He'd have a lot to spare.
I'd fill his stocking then with all
The candy it would hold,
And where the packages were small
I'd fill in round with gold.
And when they saw how good I was,
How happy folks would be
If I were only Santa Claus
And Santa Claus was me.

CHRISTMAS LIGHTS.

Christmas was at hand. The stores in the fashionable shopping quarters of New York, with their gorgeous show windows, furnished abundant evidence of the fact. In the poorer districts of the city Christmas did not seem quite so much a prospect, as, for example, in Plug Alley, which was not very distant from the bazaars, yet few of the gay crowds ever troubled themselves to visit its dingy confines. Indeed, the calling list of the alley might be said to be confined to the rent collector, the sanitary inspector, the city missionary, a Salvation Army lassie, the fire engine, police van, and ambulance. Policemen were frequent sights in that congested miniature world, which seemed to lie in an unusual amount of wickedness.

Now, as Cripple Dick, who lived, or at least existed, in the third story front room of the dilapidated building which formed one side of the alley, was unable to feast his eyes on the displays in the shop windows, he took it out in watching the miscellaneous sights just referred to, when missioners passed, or hoodlums were arrested. Dick had never seen any such specimen of gorgeous tophamper as a full-rigged hat of the fashionable style, but he respectfully admired the bonnets of the Salvationists. Dick often wondered why the Salvationists looked so happy when they worked so hard and had so little. Dick was a good judge of hard things, for he had been accustomed to them all his life of eight painful years. Like Mephibosheth, of whom he had never heard, he had been dropped when a child and so crippled for life; but unlike Mephibosheth, his fall was not due to the fright of a nurse, but to the brutality of a drunken father, who in a fit of rage had knocked him from his weak mother's arms on the hard floor. Orphaned Dick's world ever since had been Plug Alley. He knew that there was a bigger world about him, but judging from the representatives of it, he had seen that the world had no concern with the denizens of Plug Alley save to lecture, arrest or fumigate them.

One day, however, Dick had learned the secret of the happy-heartedness of the Salvationists. One of them, a sweet-faced young lassie, who Dick was sure must be a lady, found the maimed boy out and told him some things he had never heard before, speaking to him of the Lord Christ as though he were some one who was very lovely and very near, who once was bruised and maimed in a more cruel way than Dick had been, yet through no fault of his own, but for the sin of men. Dick had cried that day, from thought of that Other's woe.

The lassie visited Dick again, just before Christmas. "Do you know what Christmas means?" she asked. "Sort of!" said Dick. "It means that the grocer down at the corner tries to sell greens that ain't no good for cookin', and that the coves down at the Five Pints has a bang-up dinner for once in awhile. And I've heerd," he added reflectively, "from Bill Jenkins wot has a news-stand!" (Dick spoke the words with great respect) "that other coves wot lives on the avenue has big game that day in the way of presents!"

Dick looked wistfully out of the window as he spoke at the bit of smoke-blurred sky that lightened dimly above the clothes-lines on the roof of the house opposite. Dick always supposed that if he ever went to heaven his soul would somehow have to pass by those clothes-lines and run the gauntlet of the shirts and socks of the day laborers whose washing Mrs. O'Grady did "for a consideration," but probably, if the truth were known, without much consideration.

"Oh, Dick," replied the lassie, "Christmas is more than that. The first Christmas was when the dear Lord came to earth and lay as a little child in a rough stable yard in Bethlehem, as the great Gift which cannot be told out in all its preciousness. And ever since people have been giving their little gifts one to another as tiny copies of his great sacrifice. He came to bring light to those who sit in darkness—"

"Like me!" interpolated Dick.

"Yes," said the lassie, "like you. But, Dick, we were all in the dark till the Christ came. He is the light of the world. And ever since his coming the Christmas lights have been burning—the lights of faith, love, joy and hope."

This and more the lassie said, while Dick listened as an exile might eagerly give ear to the tidings from a distant shore and sphere. And then Dick's visitor, handing him a toy bank, said: "The money in this is for you, dear boy, to get yourself something nice for Christmas. It's a little present from the Christ. I hope you will enjoy it!"

Dick awkwardly murmured his thanks, half-dazed by such kindness. He had never been called "dear" except by the deaf aunt who took care of him, who had several times intimated that he was a charge rather dear to keep. The money in the bank happened to amount of $1.89, the nucleus of a sum that the lassie had been saving toward a new bonnet, since the one she had was decidedly weather-worn. But she did not tell Dick that.

Dick made a mental note of all the things he would like to get. But then—he thought of that great gift. Strange dreams of Judean hills and of the outreaching in blessing of Christly hands afterwards pierced on the cross came to him. The result was that Dick formed some very definite plans. He commissioned Bill Jenkins to make some purchases for him.

Christmas eve came. A little company assembled on invitation in Dick's humble lodgings. Mrs. O'Grady was there, and Bill, and little Towzie-head from the floor below, and a day laborer who sometimes waved his hand to Dick from the sidewalk, and Dick's deaf aunt. A wee tree which had cost nine cents at the grocer's stood in the window, with a number of candles attached thereto. Near by were mysterious packages. There was a mop for Mrs. O'Grady (Dick meant it for a hint), and a cap for the day laborer, and a rocker for the old aunt, and a pair of gloves Dick had made Bill get for himself, and some toys for "Towzie."

"But where is your Christmas?" they all exclaimed to Dick.

Mine is the Christmas lights!" cried Dick gleefully, feasting his eyes on the tallow dips.

Some one had long ago said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Had Dick heard this? At any rate, he felt the truth of it in his heart that night. In the height of the festivity Bill slipped quietly off. He wanted to buy something for Dick. At the door below he ran across some Salvationists who were passing. One of them was the lassie. She recognized Bill, and looking up to the third-story window, asked:

"What are those candles in the window?"

"Oh, those are Dick's Christmas lights," answered Bill. And then he told her how Dick had spent his money.

"Oh," said the lassie, "I wish I could get him something for his generous little self. Perhaps I can in the mornings. Good night!"

"Good-night," answered Bill, as he ran off.

By the next morning the lassie had made up a wonderful package for Dick. As the Christmas chimes rang out on the frosty air, she went to Plug Alley, full of the pleasurable excitement of surprising Dick. But something had happened in the night. Dick was not there. He had gone beyond the patch of sky which lightened over the house-top yonder. Only his still and crippled form was left. He had smiled as he went, so the heavenly beacons must have blazed for him in welcome. "Don't cry," exclaimed the lassie to the old aunt. But as she said this, the tears ran down her own cheeks. Yet it wasn't a time for tears, but for hallelujahs! Dick had gone from the dark world where the Christmas lights are sometimes lit to one where the Christmas lights are always burning.

THE BABY'S FORTUNE

"Bring me the baby," Hammond said, and the nurse, used to sick people's fancies, complied with the request, setting the baby down on the bed.

"Now, if you please, I'd like to have you leave us alone a while. You see," he added apologetically, "I want to have a little private conversation with him."

The nurse smiled faintly and went away. Hammond looked at the baby for a few moments in critical silence.

"You're a bouncer," he said at length. "You most certainly are."

The baby gurgled and laughed and showed four small teeth.

"Oh, it's a great old joke, of course!" Hammond went on rather bitterly though he was smiling back into the boy's big, bright eyes.

Hammond tipped the small head forward and closely examined the top. The tiniest of ringlets were beginning to curl themselves thereon, and when he let the baby straighten up a small damp spot had appeared down among the curls. Hammond fumbled about under the pillows for his handkerchief, but failed to find it, so drew his sleeve across his eyes.

"Don't you imagine, my boy, that I'm crying. Not a bit of it! It's just this beastly cold I've got that gets into my eyes sometimes. I wonder if you've noticed the doctor? He was here this morning, and do you know that fellow told me I can't get well, all on account of this cold? He even seemed to think that I might be going before long, for he shook hands with me before he went away and told me not to worry, that it wouldn't be hard at the last, that I'd just go to sleep."

Hammond regarded the baby whimsically for a moment, then his face changed. "How I could have loved you if you had been mine!" he said, intensely. "Great God! How I do love you, any way!"

"Perhaps when you get big, you'll like to tell people about that money of yours; that it's gold from the Klondike. It's all right to preach against going to the Klondike, for it's a nasty kind of place; but the gold is there and some men find it and get home with it, too, even though they do catch their death doing it and have to leave the stuff to kids like you."

"One fellow was fool enough to expect when he got back to find a lovely girl whom he could make comfortable and happy forever after, and who would make a heaven on earth for him. He stayed a long time, I'll admit; but then, he was grubbing out more and more every day. And what does he find when he gets back? You, sir; yes, you!

"Not that I'm blaming you for it—not at all. I don't intend to blame anybody, not even her mother; that is, not now. But it's been hard on me, you know, uncommonly hard on me. Besides," he added reflectively, "you mustn't take offense at my mentioning it, but you did's distinctly commonplace, even if he is a friend of mine. But then, I'm rather on the commonplace order myself."

He was growing weary, so it was a relief to have the nurse enter and to hear her say, "The baby will have to be going now, Mr. Hammond, he's stayed long enough." So Hammond kissed the baby's cheek and his forehead, his knees and his hands, and the back of his neck; and closed his eyes while the nurse carried the child away.

That was about six o'clock in the evening, and some twelve hours later the nurse drew the sheet up over Hammond's face and went to tell Mr. and Mrs. Margrave what had happened.

It was a week after this that Mr. Margrave came home trembling with suppressed excitement. "What do you think Marie?" he exclaimed to his wife.

"What is it?" asked Mrs. Margrave, trying to show an interest which she did not feel.

"There's been a good deal of speculation at the club as to what Hammond brought back from the Klondike. Nobody had any idea how much it was. Well, to-day I received an invitation from Judge Morehouse to be present at the reading of his will. And what do you think?"

Mrs. Margrave was non committal, partly because she feared to trust her voice. It was not easy for her to talk about Hammond.

Mr. Margrave's face was flushed and his eyes shining. "It's a hundred and fifty thousand if it's a cent, and he's left every penny of it to the baby, our baby, Margrave, Jr., if you please. What a stroke of luck that I asked him here when he got so desperately sick! It was dreary at the hotel, but his dread of the hospital was mere childishness. I felt at the time that it was rather a weakly sentimental thing to do; but you know I am soft hearted, and he was an old friend, though I never thought he amounted to much. Supposed at one time that he was in love with you; but I never was certain about it. Poor old Hammond! I wish I'd liked him better; he must have been very fond of me. Well, I shall always regard his memory with gratitude and affection."

Mrs. Margrave was silent. She held the baby up close to her face, so that her husband did not see her tears or that she had grown very pale.—Carrie Clark Nottingham, in Munsey's.

A Distinction.

"Isn't that new neighbor of yours rather eccentric?" inquired the commercial traveler.

"No," answered one of the village's prominent citizens. "He ain't rich enough to be called 'eccentric.' He's just a plain crank."—Washington Star.

WHAT A DEVOTED WIFE WILL DO.

Portugal's Queen Becomes Doctor to Save the King.

Marie, Queen of Portugal, is a doctor of medicine. She is the only woman of royal blood in the world who has achieved such distinction.

Five years the queen devoted to the study of medicine. She had the ablest physicians in Portugal for instructors. Every moment of time which she could call her own was given to study.

Behind this history of the scientific labors of the queen is a pretty love story. It was not love of sciences, but love of her husband which has been the incentive to her work.

The Princess Marie Amelie was the daughter of the Comte de Paris. She married blond, good natured Carlos, and then straightaway fell in love with her husband. Their romantic attachment is one of the prettiest stories ever chronicled of royalty.

Soon after the marriage King Carlos, already stout, became corpulent to a painful degree. The formation of fat about the heart became highly dangerous. The doctors could not agree about the treatment. The king travelled about to many spas and used all of the obesity cures, but without avail.

The devoted queen, meanwhile, was his devoted and constant companion. Finally, becoming disgusted with the physicians, she determined to become one herself.

There are many ludicrous stories told of the queen's first experiments. She pressed the entire court into service as patients.

The queen has done more to restore her husband to health than any of the great specialists to whom he resorted.

Queen Amelie is one of the royal European beauties. She is immensely popular with her subjects. When she went as a bride to Lisbon she infused new life and spirit into the sleepy old town. She organized fairs and entertainments for the poor. The court circle became noted for its brilliant gayety.—New York World.

THINGS FORBIDDEN IN WAR.

Certain Regulations Which Are Recognized by Civilized Countries.

It is perhaps not generally realized that the game of war is hedged round by as many restrictions as a boxing contest under Queensberry rules. These regulations, which are under the sanction of all the civilized countries of the world, are designed to insure fair play for the combatants.

When it is intended to bombard a place, due notice should be given so that all women and children may be removed to a place of safety; and every care must be taken to spare churches and hospitals, as well as all charitable or educational buildings.

All chaplains, doctors and nurses are protected in every possible way, and are not to be taken prisoners or in any way injured.

Any soldier robbing or mutilating an enemy is liable to be shot without trial, and death is the penalty for wounding or killing a disabled man.

The bodies of the enemy are to be carefully searched before burial, and any articles found on them which might lead to their identification are to be sent to the proper quarters.

Explosive bullets must not be used and quarter must be given the enemy whether he asks for it or not. In an attack on the enemy there must be no concealment of the distinctive signs of the regiments. Poisoning drinking water is strictly forbidden.

Put to the Proof.

"Yes, darling," he said, in tones of deep tenderness, "I would do anything to show my love for you."

"Ah," sighed the gentle maiden, "that's what all men say when they are striving to win a woman's heart!"

"Put me to the proof!" he exclaimed, in wild passionate tones; "put me to the proof! Test me, and see if I fail! Set me any task within the bounds of possibility, and it shall be performed!"

"Ah," she murmured, "if I could only believe you!"

"Put me to the test. Say to me, 'Do this or that,' and it shall be done."

"Then I will put you to the test."

"Ah," he exclaimed, exultantly, "you shall behold the height, the depth, the length, the breadth, the circumference of my love! What is the test?"

The maiden dropped her eyes, a smile dimpled the corners of her mouth, and, bending over the youth at her feet, she whispered:

"Marry some other girl."—Tit-Bits.

Why Do We Yawn?

There can be little doubt that one of the objects of yawning is the exercise of muscles which have been for a long time quiescent, and the acceleration of the blood and lymph flow which has in consequence of this quiescence become sluggish. Hence its frequency after one has remained for some time in the same position—for example, when waking in the morning.

Co-operating with this cause is sleepiness and the shallow breathing which it entails. This factor, as well as muscle quiescence, is apt to attend the sense of boredom which one experiences in listening to a dull sermon. Hence it is that the bored individual is apt to yawn. As in the cose of signing, the deep breath which accompanies the act of yawning compensates for the shallow breathing which is apt to excite it.

"Did that stuff revive you?" asked the attending physician of his impatient patient.

"Revive me, Doc? Good heavens! Three doses of that medicine would resuscitate the dead languages."—Detroit Free Press.

THEIR HARLEM BENEFACTORS.

A Procession of Old Women Moving Toward Work and Something to Eat.

The number of old women who beg on the streets seems larger this year than ever before, says the New York Sun. All the well known types are out. But one role seems to be the favorite. A wretched, poorly clad, feeble old woman stops a passerby. He is proof against the pitiful tale of the artful beggar; but this respectable old soul doesn't want to beg. Far from it. She wants only information.

"Is it a long walk to 168th street, sir?" she asks in a tremulous, weary tone.

"About a hundred and fifty blocks."

The woman sighs and turns away without another word. Then the victim does the expected thing.

"Why did you ask?" he says.

"Oh, I know a lady up there that would help me, and I'm going up to ask her for work and something to eat, but it's a long walk."

She gets a carfare and goes on her way rejoicing. If she isn't on her way to some charitable friend, she is bound for a hospital and doesn't quite see how she can walk so far. In the course of one afternoon's shopping last week a young woman met five respectable looking old women, all of whom were toiling toward Harlem benefactors. The story is being overworked, but it is a good one.

A Grave Disappointment.

"The small son of the people," says the Philadelphia Record, "and his little sister were inside the great West Philadelphia church for the first time. 'Um—m—my! but it's a beaut place,' he whispered. 'I bet people wot belong here comes every time dey can.' Her breath came to her in little gasps. Her soiled little finger pressed on his with thrilled intensity. Her eyes feasted on the splendid chancel. 'Heaven mus' be next door,' she said. They hardly moved throughout the service and never once let go each other's hands, for it was as a strange land. At last the sweet-voiced procession of choir boys came down the aisle. At its head was a slim young seraph, with a face as fair and pure as the linen he wore. Faint, dark circles beneath his eyes completed the ethereal effect. 'Is dem angels?' the little girl began, but stopped short, surprised at the look on her brother's face. 'Dat kid in front's 'Bill' Griggs, wot I licked last week fer swipin' tings from ole Mrs. Maguire's apple stand. He ain't got over dem black eyes I gev 'im yet. Come on, let's get out.' His face was stern and set as they went. She furtively wiped a tear."

A DAKOTA MONSTER.

The rain, which had turned to icy pellets since sundown, beat against the ragged, storm-rent covering of a cricket covered wagon slowly wending its way along a lonely road in the western part of North Dakota.

Within the vehicle was a heart bowed down by the touches of a recent bereavement; and, there was another heart therein also—one as yet incapable of understanding emotions. A mother and her child were on their way toward the setting sun, to a home that had been offered them when the death angel came and visited their own. The mother hourly realizes the distance growing between her and her husband's grave; and the babe, awed to silence by the choking sobs and caresses of the heart-broken mother, was finally lulled to sleep by the sighs of the quivering lips and the soothing pattings of the tremulous hand.

Afar in the distance ahead, beyond the jagged horses whose limbs rose and fell mechanically, reared an ominous cloud whose import was well known to the African who held the reins in his hands. East, west, north and south, the plain stretched away into the distance—cold, cheerless, merciless, frozen into ghastly melancholy by the silver glitter of the stars, and white-coralled by the frosty grass blades, sere and brittle.

"I reckon dar's gwine fo' to be one oh dem nasty blizzi's soon. Whoof! Dem's de debil's own bref fo' blowin de life out ob folkses. G'long dar, ole Gray! You'ur alleses hangin' back fo' Sandy. Hi, golly! I hope de good missy won't look out now. She'd be down—"

"What is the meaning of that cloud ahead, Joe?" asked the woman, as her eyes ranged the sky beyond the horses' heads.

"Nuffin', nuffin,' missy! Jess a cloud or'nary cloud, dat's all," responded Joe, as he touched old Gray with the goad.

"Joe, why not stop here for the night? The jolting of the wagon makes me ache all over; and I am so tired!"

"Honey, yo' see dat brack hill 'way ober dar?" asked Joe, as he pointed toward the dark outlines of an object rising from the plain. "I's gwine fo to reach dat hill if old Gray gotter bust a shoe."

"I see the hill, Joe—It must be some miles away; but why so anxious to reach it?"

"'Case—dat's all!" laconically replied Joe, urging on the tired horses.

"Well, I suppose you know best. Oh, shall we never reach home? Home! What a strange word that seems to me! I have no home—no home!"

"We'll git dar purty s'un, honey; an when the babby an' yo' aur dar, why—yo'll be dar, chile, dress yo'!"

There was but slight consolation to be derived from the honest fellow's words. So the widowed mother withdrew her face and closed the opening in the canvas.

"I—I doan dar tell poo' missy 'bout de nasty blizzar' dat's comin'. If dem poo' nags kin holl out little longer we'll reach de hill—an' dat'll keep off de wusser part ob de debil's bref."

The cloud beyond grows larger and larger every moment. It swells and spreads as it approaches the wagon, sweeping like a giant crescent between earth and sky, obscuring the blinking stars, and murmuring ominously like the sullen roar of the distant tempest.

With gaunt, gloomy, ghostly arms the giant monster of the Northwest approaches. The cold, like the grim premonition of death's draught, penetrates the canvas of the wagon, piercing the flesh of mother and child with daggers as of ice.

"Joe! Joe! What is it?" cries the voice from within.

"Nuffin', nuffin', honey!" chatters the negro, as his frozen fingers mechanically clutch the reins. "Yo' jess pull dem blankets close 'bout yo' an de babby. We'll git dar, bress God. Yes, chile, we'll git dar by—by de bright light!"

The words falteringly fall from the half-palsied lips like the murmurs that come when the speaker is slowly but surely drifting into the land of slumber.

Five, ten minutes pass; the tempest increases. The pale face of the woman again appears in the rent in the canvas. She speaks. Joe is silent. Again she speaks, and louder. The faithful black's lips are locked, and he does not answer. She reaches out her hand and shakes him. Merciful heaven! The rigid form topples over the side of the wagon and falls upon the ground, stiff, frozen! His eyes are wide open, and they stare up out of the depths of chaos into the illimitable eternity beyond the swishing gusts of snow and leaden, sullen sky.

The sudden drag upon the reins stops the horses. The poor creatures lean to the pole and rub their noses together; and thus standing they freeze, freeze inch by inch, while their legs turn to ice, rigid, supporting.

And then the monster, the white wraith of the Northwest, engulfs the fated wagon. It rips the canvas from the stays and bears it away with shrieks of laughter. The mother and child are now exposed to the pitiless buffeting of the whirlwind raging furiously about them. The entire plain seems one heaving undulating mass as far as the eyes can reach. Like the swallowing waves of the ocean the clouds of snow beat against the skeleton-like wagon as though to tear it from earth and bear it away in fury's arms.

One last yell of demoniac laughter and the monster has performed its work. The icy lips of the mother are pressed to the icy lips of the dead baby. A life goes out to its God in a sighed prayer, and all is over.

PLYMOUTH BRETHREN.

Dismissed from Beecher's Church, Mrs. Tilton Joined this Society.

The strength of that peculiar sect, the Plymouth Brethren, cannot be satisfactorily estimated, since it has no formal organization. It has no connection with the Plymouth Church of Brooklyn, N. Y., where the mighty intellect of Beecher swayed the most enlightened congregation that ever honored a preacher with hard listening and high thinking, yet, by some strange perversity of fate, it became the harbor of refuge for the tortured soul of the woman who wrecked her home, destroyed herself and weakened the influence of the great Congregationalist.

The Plymouth Brethren are wise in one way—they have no official ministry, recognize no order of ministers, condemning pulpit calls as the cause of sectarian divisions. They utterly reject confirmation. They receive into communion all who confess Christ and acknowledge the Holy Ghost as His vicar. They exclude persons known to have been guilty of gross sins from participation in the Lord's Supper until proof is afforded of repentance. They administer the sacrament to one another at the Sunday meetings. Among their tenets are original sin and predestination, and the baptism of adults without regard to previous infant baptism. As to the earthly future—why, every man Jack of them is a red-hot millennialist. As to that other future in the Great Beyond, they believe solemnly in the efficacy of Christ's sacrifice and the power of His intercession.

The charges against Henry Ward Beecher ended, as we all remember, in the Scotch verdict—"not proven." Social ostracism Mrs. Tilton could survive, but to be banished by her church, to be sent into spiritual, pietistic exile, was too much for her thin, wavering, dependent soul. Her hysterical temperament made it positively necessary that she should either die or have the shadow of an imaginary substance to cling to. She learned of the Plymouth Brethren, she studied their tenets, she inquired of their quality of Christianity, and finally after years she went to them and confessed her sin. Satisfied of her repentance they took her in, and she died in April, 1897, a member of their order. Some men maintain that her confession is to be found in Matthew v., 28, but others are less charitable.—New York Press.

POLITICS WORSE THAN WAR.

Why an Old Woman Worried About One of the Soldiers.

"A month ago," remarked the drummer who sells saddlery and harness goods, "I was out in that part of West Virginia where Grover Cleveland and Joe Miller used to go fishing, and in the course of a side trip I was making in a buckboard, in order to take in some of my customers along the edge of civilization, I stopped one day at a hillside tavern presided over by Aunt Susan Mullins, who is as wise a philosopher as she is superior in the art of preparing a fine mountain dinner. I was talking to Aunt Susan on the war.

"Were any of your folks at the front, Aunt Susan?' I inquired.

"'None uv my own kinfolks, but Sarey Jacksons boy was, and Sarey is almost a sister to me.'

"'I supose you were worried a good deal about him during the fighting before Santiago, weren't you? I know how I felt about a brother I had with the Rough Riders. It is a terrible strain on people at home to have to sit still and wait, every minute expecting to hear that they are killed, or badly hurt.

"'Yes,' she replied, rather hesitatingly; 'that's mighty bad and oncomfortable, but 'twan't that what worried me so much about Sarey's boy as his comin' home after the war's over.'

"'How do you mean?' I asked, puzzled past understanding, for the home coming seemed to be the most joyous part of it.

"'Well, you see, Jeemes is fer all the world like his pappy was—one uv these here good natered men that everybody likes and is so all fired popular that they ain't got no time to 'tend to their own business. Jeemes' pappy went into the last war and fit like a wildcat, and when he come home the people run him fer the Legislater and elected him, and he never wuz wuth shucks from that day until they buried him. Jeemes has fit just like is pappy done, and a constable told me t'other day that they wuz goin' to run Jimmy fer the Legislater shore ez shootin' and he'd sweep the county like a whirlwind, and that's wat skeers me fer Jeemes. Politics is a heap sight wus on a man than war.'"—Washington Star.

An Erroneous Diagnosis.

After breaking into a doctor's office, relates the Cincinnatti Enquirer, he sat down and said: "Will you kindly look into my eye and tell me what is the matter?"

"Certainly," was the quick reply. Then the physician opened up the refractory optic and began in a hurried manner: "I see at a glance that you have been suffering from kidney trouble. Your liver is also out of order, and there is danger of you having an attack of gastritis unless the matter is quickly corrected. From the distended pupil I should say that your nerves are in a debilitated condition, and that—"

"Hull up there," came the voice of the patient.

"What's the matter?"

"Dad burn it. You're looking into my glass eye."

WINTRY WRINKLES.

Oh, the happy boy is flopping
Down the hill with his new sled,
While the humble tramp is chopping
Kindling wood out in the shed;
And the ruffled,
Muffled, stuffled
Chicklet pecks the frozen corn,
And the golden,
Molden, olden
Brandy's looked for ev'ry morn.

The fragile maid is skating
On the pond behind the mill,
The sparrow's masticating
Frozen crumbs upon the sill;
And the bawling,
Sprawling, crawling
Infant's wrapped in flannel's hot,
While the zealing,
Ever-healing
Goose grease stands beside the cot.

The suburbanite is skipping
To his snow-becovered lair,
And old Boreas is flipping
Merry snowflakes through the air;
And the creeping,
Leaping, sleeping
Trolley car hops through the mush,
While the rosy,
Always-dozy
Butcher's boy slops through the slush.

These wintry scenes I fancy
As I'm snuggled in my bed,
Concealed so that you can't see
E'en the baldness of my head—
And the dashing,
Clashing, smashing
Hailstones rhyme upon my pane,
While I coolly,
Honest-truly
Dream that summer's here again.

A CHRISTMAS VISION.

Abraham Columbus was worried. "Daddy, Crismus is comin', and I wants a doll baby with a yeller coat on."

It was the first faint whisper of the coming storm. But she was little, and she was a girl, so it was easy to ignore her small, plaintive voice.

"Daddy, Crismus is comin'."

Abraham Columbus looked up from his work and glared. He was engaged upon a corn shuck collar for mule wear, and was sitting flat upon his cabin floor, half buried in a pile of musty smelling shucks. As he thrust his gray head and great round spectacles through the oval collar, he looked tremendously imposing.

"I kin lookin' for it! Patsy fus' and now you, Mr. Sandy. Torectly the whole kit and bilin' of you'll be yelpin' 'Daddy, Crismus is comin'."

"Daddy, Crismus is comin'."

It was like a faint echo of his own sonorous growl. This time from the open doorway.

"An' they got er whole raft er fire crackers down at Mr. Bryan's sto'"—from the fire-place.

"An' snakes at riggles like they wuz live"—from the doorway.

"Betsy's got a doll wid a yeller coat"—from Patsy.

"An'—An'—An'" in full chorus.

Abraham dropped his ball of twine to clap his hands to both ears. He was tender hearted and generous, but "Whar were the use of studyin' 'bout Crismus with cotton down to five cents?" He groaned once or twice and then resumed his most awe-inspiring voice.

"I hev made up my mind not to stan' a bit er foolushniss this year. I puts up with too much all the time. Ef you don't snet up you'll ketch gorss, chillun, you will indeed. I hev made up my mind fumly. The fus one that sez 'Crismus' to me, under this roof, is goin' t' get a lam'bastin', an' that's the word wid the bark on it. Bring me some mo' shucks, Sandy."

Sandy drew his ten bare toes out of the ashes and brought the shucks.

"A jumpin' jack an' er red waggin'," he sighed in audible soliloquy, as he dumped the shucks down on the floor.

"Ef you don't want me to make a jumpin' jack outer you, you jus' get out of my reach, Alexander Columbus, that is all I desires to remark on this occasion, less'n it is to repeat that the fus one that sez Crismus to me will get a lam'bastin'."

The door was darkened by a commanding figure enveloped in a long ulster of ancient date. It was Mrs. Columbus just back from a trip to Bryan's Crossroads store. She was a woman of unfailing energy. Just now she was fairly brimming over with it. The sap of the season was rising. She glanced down at the shuck plaiter as she untied her bonnet strings.

"Well, ol' man, Crismus is comin'."

Abraham dropped his head in spiritless surrender.

"Yes, Morier. 'Cordin' to the almanac it jus' two days off."

"Bryan is laid in a big Crismus stock."

"Yes, Morier. An' I bin lookin' it over."

"These are mighty hard times, Morier. Cotton down to five cents a pound."

Mrs. Columbus was bustling about the cabin, hanging up the ancient ulster, sweeping the shucks into a more compact stack about Abram's shoulders, flinging chips on the fire, dispatching Sandy for the greens and Jake for the sweet potato pump, all with positively cyclonic force and rapidity, that left every one breathless but herself:

"An' while the chillun is out of hearin', Ab'um, I mout as well lay down the law. I want you to go to Bryan's sto' befo' the things is all picked over."

Abram spread appealing hands outward to prove the emptiness of his pockets.

"No use tellin' me what you want, Morier. No use in the worl'. I is po'rer than Job's turkey this C'rismus, an' cotton down to five cents."

Mrs. Columbus was a remarkable woman. She would have been pronounced so in any era of the world. She never wasted words in idle argument, and she never permitted her remarks to be side-tracked.

"You can get me a pa'r er fine shoes. I ain't had but one pa'r out er this year's crap, an' five yards a green serge for a bas'. Bryan ought to throw in the trimmin's. An' Patsy's goin' to have a doll an' a tea set ef the skies fall—a tin one'll do; Sandy wants a jumpin'-jack and some firecrackers. An' Jake wants a red waggin'. I see one this mornin' hangin' in the sto' winder. You kin bring a bundle er crackers for him, too."

Mrs. Columbus knelt to blow the fire into greater vitality with her strong lungs. Abraham looked at her broad back furtively.

"Is that all, Morier?" Then he groaned.

"That's all, Ab'um, an' I think I'm lettin' you off easy. Sister Sallie's goin' to have—what you groanin' 'bout, Ab'um?"

"Toothache, Morier; mighty bad. But I ain't got no money to have it pulled out. Times is awful hard. I is jus' got to grin an' b'ar it. But don't say Crismus to me, I baigs of you."

Maria arose in her might with a generally inflated aspect, perhaps from her recent lung exercise. She towered loftily over the little shuck-environed man on the floor.

"Ab'um Columbus, we won't was'e our breath talkin'. I needs all mine t' keep green-wood fires fum goin' out. I done tol' you what me an' the chillun wants fur Crismus. That toothache er yours comes roun' as reg'lar as Crismus does. Thar's the balsam apple on the chimbly piece an' some raw cotton stickin' in the jamb."

* * * * *

Only two more nights before Christmas. Two nights of mental and physical agony to Abraham Columbus. He never could refer to them in after years without chattering teeth.

Why he should have waked up that night at the hour when "graveyards yawn" he could never tell. His habit was to sleep peacefully from dusk to dawn. But wake up he did to see standing at the foot of his bed a tall, white-winged object emitting a faint phosphorescent glow, to hear a solemn command laid upon him in a sepulchral voice. The words burned themselves into his terrified brain:

"An' Mosis appeared unto Ab'um in a dream, and sayeth, arise and do the biddin' of thy wife, ef thou wouldst live long in the land and prosper."

The faint light came closer. The white wings fanned his clammy forehead. He flung himself backward upon the bed and drew the covering tight over his starting eyeballs. Sandy was snoring by his side. Maria had declined the risk of being kept awake all night by a tooth that only ached at Christmas times.

Once again the white-winged visitants, once again the sepulchral adjuration to arise and do the bidding of his wife, and then Christmas dawned bright and sparkling.

Abraham demanded an early breakfast. His mule, resplendent in a new shuck collar, was saddled and hitched to the rack by the time the coffee pot was on the table. Mrs. Columbus beamed sympathetically on her husband.

"Goin' to the tooth puller, Abum?"

"Not this mornin', Morier."

"Goin' ridin', Abum?"

Abraham cast a haggard glance across the table at her, then swallowed his coffee at a gulp. "Yes, Morier."

"Which way, Abum?"

"Out to Bryan's sto', Morier."

"Well, don't be gone too long. I done stuff a fat pullit, an' made some sweet tato pies for dinner, s'long as we couldn't 'ford nothin' better for Crismus."

But Bryan's store was ten miles away. The roads were heavy. The crowds at the store were jolly. Bryan's whiskey was good, and it flowed freely. Not even the fear of meeting on the lonely ride homeward the white-winged spook that had frightened him into unearthing his treasure gourd could start Abraham home before the setting sun and the departing crowds rebuked him. And then his progress was slow, for the burden of his Christmas shopping was heavy upon him. Maria's five yards of green serge for a basque and pair of fine shoes made a bulky paper parcel. The pasteboard box containing Patsy's doll and tea set refused to be pocketed; Jake's red express wagon was slung over one shoulder, and Sandy's jumping jack and snake wriggled harmoniously together among the firecrackers. Nothing had been forgotten. Not even the spook!

The stuff pullet was filling the cabin with savory odors, and the sweet potato pies were shining in varnished splendor under the lighted lamp when Abraham opened the door and stood staggering under his burdens. His entrance was impetuous. His utterance rather thick.

"M—m—Morier, Crismus done come."

"I see it is, Abum, and—so is you."

* * * * *

Mrs. Columbus smiled inscrutably as she helped her husband to unload, mentally deciding that:

"The ol' white crane wings had served her one good turn, sure."

Infantile Deduction.

"I guess paw hasn't got much money this year," said little brother.

"What makes you think so?" asked little sister.

"'Cause he was telling me that it wasn't right to impose on Santa Claus just because the old feller was good natured."

DROPPED INTO ARMS OF A POLICEMAN.

Story of Capture of Ringleader of the Gang.

HE IS CHAS. WESTERFIELD.

HOW THE POLICE ROUNDED UP THE YOUTHFUL BURGLARS.

Chewing Gum and a Conversation Gave the Clue—Most of the Boys Were Arrested in Bed—Westerfield Tried to Escape—Springer Was Captured in the Borough—All Six Held for Grand Jury.

The story of the capture of Plainfield's gang of boy burglars will long stand as one of the most important happenings in police annals in this city. Had Plainfielders realized what an organization was at work in the very heart of the city, their slumbers would no doubt have been less sound. They can rest secure now, however, for the six young men, the record of whose crimes startled the whole community, are safe behind the bars of the county jail, where they were escorted yesterday afternoon to await the action of the Grand Jury.

The circumstances of their discovery and capture sound more like the happenings of a great city rather than incidents in quiet Plainfield.

A conversation and a piece of chewing gum were the clues that finally led the police to discover the identity of the youthful culprits. The series of burglaries had led the police to believe that there was a gang at work somewhere. Sergeant Kiely was given a piece of chewing gum bearing Compton's mark, that had been passed out by one of the boys. Then Roundsman Frederickson overheard a conversation between Thomas Casey and a friend regarding the disposal of certain chickens which proved to be those stolen from the coop of Mrs. Adam Smith, of West Second street.

Thomas Casey, alias Trainor, was released several months ago by Chief Grant on giving his promise to pay a fine. He never paid it and the police made use of that charge. The officers were instructed to arrest him on sight, ostensibly on the charge of never paying the fine.

Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock he was arrested by Patrolman Watson and locked up. It was then deemed best to capture all the gang before they should learn of Casey's arrest and depart suddenly. Westerfield and several of the rest, it was learned, had gone to New Market skating and would not be back until late. A warrant was issued by Justice Nash for Westerfield's arrest, and the police waited for his return.

At 9 o'clock Sergeant Kiely and Roundsman Frederickson went to the homes of George Kline and Abraham Connett, both colored. The boys were found in bed and placed under arrest. They dressed and were taken to the jail.

At midnight Sergeant Kiely, Roundsman Frederickson and Patrolmen Totten and Cash went to Westerfield's home. The first two went to the front door, Totten was stationed in the rear and Cash at the side. Then Kiely and Frederickson rang the bell.

Mrs. Westerfield, it is alleged, came to the door and assured the officers that Charlie was not at home. The officers insisted on entering and searching the premises. At first she refused but the determined front of the policeman had its effect and they were finally allowed to enter. Meanwhile, Patrolman Totten was at the back of the house. He heard a window above his head open and saw a figure creep softly out and slide down the leader pipe from the third story to the second. Then the figure stepped out on the roof of the back porch and prepared to clamber down. Totten hid in the shadow and, as a pair of slim legs dangled before his face made a grand swoop and took them in, owner and all.

Westerfield, for it was he, struggled to escape but the officer had him fast. At length the prisoner gave in and asked to go up stairs and get his coat. They went up and there met Mrs. Westerfield, the Sergeant and Roundsman. Westerfield was locked up at once.

A hurried visit to the home of Justice Nash at 1 o'clock obtained a warrant for Alfred Springer. Justice Thomas was roused up to endorse it. For over an hour the borough marshals and Sergeant Kiely pounded on the front door before they could gain admittance. Meanwhile Roundsman Frederickson and Patrolman Totten kept guard at the rear of the house. He was finally arrested in bed.

The prisoners were left supposedly alone while two policemen hid in the adjoining room. Sufficient was learned to implicate John Taylor, of South Second street, and to prove that the boys had been the burglars who had visited Scheuer's store. At 6:30 o'clock Roundsman Frederickson and Patrolman Totten arrested Taylor in his bed.

The boys were questioned separately and several of the younger ones told the whole story of their misdoings.

Besides learning what the young burglars had accomplished, the police found out some of the plans that the youthful criminals had made for the future. Last night they were to enter and rob Woodhull & Martin's big store. Edward White's store and the shoe stores of M. C. VanArsdale and Doane & Edsall were counted in their list of visiting places for the near future. They also planned to lay for Edward White as he was returning to his home on Myrle evenue some evening. A wire across the street was to throw him from his wheel, sandbags would keep him quiet and then the boys were to ransack his pockets Other crimes were being planned as well.

The six boys were given a hearing before Justice Nash yesterday afternoon. They all entered a plea of guilty and were committed to the county jail to await the action of the Grand Jury which will mean sentence in their case unless they change their pleas. Not one of them showed any signs of weakness, they took the hearing and the trip to the county jail afterwards as a matter of course and seemed supremely indifferent to the disgrace of it all.

They were taken down on the 3:12 train to Elizabeth, chained together in gangs of three. Chief Grant was in command. Their departure was witnessed by several hundred people. The prisoners looked unconcerned as several smoked cigarettes.

TOO MANY IN THE ELEVATOR.

Accident in Babcock Building Explained by Assessor Hubbard.

Assessor J. A. Hubbard, who is manager of the Babcock building, called at The Press office yesterday afternoon and stated that the report that the elevator in that building, which fell with a number of Masons as passengers Thursday afternoon, was out of order and needed repairs, was erroneous. Mr. Hubbard says that he personally makes an examination of the elevator machinery twice a week and if there was any defect that needed remedying it would be fixed immediately. The cause of the accident the other day was the overloading of the car, which caused a fuse to blow out and put the controlling apparatus out of the power of the young man who runs it.

Senate Lodge Elects.

The annual meeting of Senate Lodge, Knights of Honor, was held Thursday evening and the officers elected for the ensuing year as follows: Past dictator, J. H VanMiddlesworth; dictator, W. D. Williams; vice dictator, H. C. Reynolds; assistant dictator, A. A. Lake; reporter, R. A. Frey; financial reporter, John H. Doane, treasurer, E G. Smith; guardian, Richard Warnock; chaplain, E. H. Graves; guide, James R. Phillips.

Tested the Memory.

The Christian Endeavor consecration service at the First Baptist church last evening, was one of the most interesting in the history of the society. The topic was 'God's Unfailing Promises," and the service was conducted from memory. Each member responded from memory and no Bibles or hymn books were used.

Seniors Won From Juniors.

The Seniors and Juniors of the Park Club met in a friendly match last evening on the club alleys. The Seniors gave their young opponents 50 pins handicap on each game. The Seniors won two out of the three games by the following scores, which include the handicaps: 766 726, 702-727 and 880-738.

Increased Delivery Facilites.

Manager Mills, of the U. S. Express Co., will receive two new express delivery wagons today making in all seven delivery wagons. This move was found necessary owing to the heavy express business of the holiday season.

Newark Academy Won.

The basket ball game between the scrub team from the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. and the regular Newark Academy team, played at Newark last evening, resulted in an overwhelming victory for the Newark boys.

Christmas in the Schools.

Next week Christmas exercises will be held at the Borough Public High School in which the scholars will take part. The school will be closed between Christmas and New Year's.

—The work of building a new bridge for the trolley at Bound Brook is nearing completion.

TARIFF FOR PORTO RICO

IT IS BEING PREPARED BY DR. H. K. CARROLL.

New Tariff for Cuba is Being Used as a Basis—Dr. Carroll Will Not Sail the 21st as He Expected He Would.

Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, of North Plainfield, one of the United States Commissioners to Porto Rico, is preparing a tariff schedule for that island. The new tariff for Cuba, completed several weeks ago, is being used as the basis. Dr. Carroll said yesterday:

"The Spaniards evidently had no desire to give the natives of Porto Rico a chance. A four-seated carriage, for instance, was taxed $350 in Porto Rico and $250 in Cuba. All the necessities of life were highly taxed. This will be changed under the new schedules.

"One great need in Porto Rico is an American postoffice. When I was there in November the men were almost dying from homesickness. They had not heard from home in thirty days. A good postal system will do more for the health of our troops than anything else I can think of."

Dr. Carroll will not sail on the steamship Obdam the 21st, as was announced. He will confer first with the Secretary of the Treasury, and will probably start south by the last of December.

TREATED TO SURPRISE PARTY.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Fraleigh Taken Unawares by Friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Fraleigh, of 1130 West Seventh street, were treated to a surprise party Thursday night. They were taken unawares by about forty of their friends who came in upon them and insisted upon making themselves at home. When the couple had recovered their equilibrium they entered joyfully into the festivities, and played the parts of host and hostess to perfection. Dancing was the order of the evening, and before the guests departed refreshments were served.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. John Abbott, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Coch, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Connett, Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Scott, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Storr, Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Hand, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. John H Mowen, Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Pugh, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Wyckoff, Mr. and Mrs. Bolmer, Miss Pugh, Mrs. A. Campbell, Mrs. H. Hague, of Three Bridges; Mrs. Winter, of Phoenicia, N. Y.; Mrs. Neal, Miss Alice Pugh, Percy Hand, Miss Mabel and Miss Sadie Hand, Newton Mowen, Edward Mowen, Harold Storr, Russel Abbott, Raymond Pugh and Samuel Avres. W. C. Townsend furnished music for dancing.

FIRE IN A HOTEL.

Lamp Exploded in a Hall in the Somerset Hotel.

Considerable excitement prevailed in the Somerset Hotel in the borough last evening shortly before 8 o'clock by the explosion of a lamp in one of the hallways. The burning oil, which spread rapidly, set fire to the stand on which the lamp was standing, as well as the carpet and bric-a-brac.

Mrs. Dreyer, the mistress, happened to be passing through the hall at the time, and noticed the flames. She gave the alarm and in a few moments Joe Neuman and Thomas McGann, members of Warren Engine Company No. 1, rushed in with a chemical extinguisher and with the assistance of some of the guests succeeded in quenching the flames.

The damage was about $50, covered by insurance.

No Change in Trolley Schedule.

There will probably be no change in the present arrangement of running trolley cars between Dunellen, Bound Brook and New Brunswick, until next spring after the new bridge is completed at Bound Brook. It is then proposed to run through cars. The present arrangement is far from satisfactory, but still is better than nothing, for it is claimed that the Brunswick Traction Company were not compelled to operate the road until spring, and are doing so merely for an accommodation to the public.

Y. M. C. A. Reception.

The Y. M. C. A. this year will hold a reception to their members and a few invited guests on the evening of December 26th, which promises to be a pleasant affair in every way. This is a new departure for the Y M. C A. New Year's day being "open house," but this year Christmas, too, will be observed that way.

Kept Busy Receiving Taxes.

Borough Collector Brown is kept very busy these days receiving taxes. All taxes must be paid by December 20th, unless the delinquent wants to pay interest and be placed in an embarassing position.

GIFTS FOR CHRISTMAS

PLENTY OF ARTICLES TO BE FOUND IN LOCAL STORES.

Some of the Practical and Handsome Things to be Found in the Clothing and Gents' Furnishing Goods Stores.

One of the most acceptable gifts for Christmas is a nice warm overcoat or suit of clothes, and Plainfield has clothing stores enough to equip a small sized army. The New York Clothing Company, of West Front street, of which M. Weinberger, is manager, is without a doubt the cheapest place in town to buy, and this season they are abundantly supplied with everything in the clothing line, with a corps of efficient clerks and salesmen to wait upon you. Mr. Weinberger has been established here long enough for the public to know that what he sells is all right. His are no shoddy goods. Honest value for your money is his motto, and it is surprising what a lot of things a small amount of money will buy there.

Overcoats, suits, both for business and dress occasions, hats, clothing for little children and grown men, all are there, and are sold at such low prices as to surprise you.

Harry Werner, another West Front street clothier, handles a larger variety of goods. A look at his windows, dressed by his window dresser, Max Lindeman, tempts one to enter. Werner carries a full line of suits, overcoats, business and dress suits, extra trousers, hats, gentlemen's furnishings, etc. A fine arry of neckties attracts the eye, and the goods are all displayed so that they can be looked at and examined easily. Werner's goods are sold as cheaply as the goods he carries can be sold for. His stock of very cheap suits is extensive, just as his line of higher priced and better finished clothing is.

Sebring makes a specialty of merchant tailoring, and his custom made clothing is worn by people all over the city. This department of his store is complete, as well as his stock of ready-made clothing, hats and gentlemen's furnishings. Sebring at present is offering a line of $7 trousers made to order for $5, and is receiving orders every day for them.

Charles Frey, the Somerset street tailor, is also offering special inducements to Christmas purchasers. His all-wool suits made to order are the talk of the city.

J. R Blair's store on Park avenue presents a holiday look, indeed. Blair deals in gentlemen's furnishings of every description. He has an elaborate display of neckwear, also mufflers, suspenders, silver handled canes and umbrellas, hats, underwear, collars, cuffs, gloves and everything the well dressed man of today wants. His entire stock is large and complete, and the prices are consistent with the quality of the goods he keeps.

A. M Griffen and J. P. Laire are the places to go for knives, razors, skates, hockey sticks, metal goods, kitchen utensils, carpet sweepers, etc. There are lots of nice presents for Christmas to be found in a hardware store, and both Griffen and Laire have a complete stock of them.

The Christmas season is a good time of year to freshen up that house of yours by adding a new mantel or by putting in a new grate. Curtis M. Thorpe, who keeps "everything for the fireplace," is the man to go to, and just let him give you a few suggestions. A look over his establishment, filled with mantels, tiles, open grates, etc., is well worth the time spent.

CHARGED WITH NON SUPPORT.

Judge Stillman Gave Reasoner Until Monto Make Amount Due Good.

Elwood Reasoner did not appear before City Judge Stillman yesterday morning as was expected. He was charged with non-support by his wife. He came before the late City Judge DeMeza last February and was instructed to pay $3 a week. It is alleged that he has not paid any since the first week in November. Judge Stillman gave him until Monday morning in which to make up the amount due to his wife.

Somerville's New Gas Plant.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, December 17.—The machinery for the new gas plant of the Somerset Lighting Company has arrived at Somerville, and the gas people expect to have it in working order by January 1st. The gas receiver will have a capacity for 50,000 cubic feet of gas. The new system of gas mains will be completed as rapidly as the weather will permit. The Board of Commissioners has ordered that the incompleted portion shall be put in proper shape at once or the board will do the work and charge the expense to the company.

—A caucus of the Mayor-elect and new City Council will be held in a few days to arrange for organization.

ACCIDENT ON THE ICE.

MISS ELSIE SMITH KNOCKED SENSELESS BY A FALL.

Was Playing "Snap the Whip"—Harry Rogers Cut Over the Eye With Golf Ball—Midge Kline Fell in Tier's Ponds.

Yesterday saw a renewal of skating on Tier's pond and several accicents, only one of which proved serious. Miss Elsie Smith, of Westervelt avenue, met with a fall that rendered her unconscious and caused a slight concussion of the brain.

Some twenty young people were "snapping the whip" on the pond during the afternoon. Thomas U. Smith was on the end while Herbert Schutt represented the lash. Just as the long line was well in motion, a break occurred in the line making Miss Smith the end of the lash. She shot forward, whirled, lost her balance and fell striking on the back of her head. She was unconscious when picked up.

There was a rush of the skaters to the spot until the cracking of the ice warned them back. Then Miss Smith was carried to her home by her brother and Herbert Schutt. She recovered consciousness for a few moments. She was delirious during the night, but is better this morning. The physician says that it was a slight concussion of the brain but there will be no serious consequences.

During the afternoon a colored lad called Midge Kline skated where the ice was thin and went into the icy water up to his waist. He scrambled out quickly. Another colored boy, with a bottle in his hip pocket, sat on the ice suddenly with startling results.

Harry Rogers was hit over the eye with a golf ball in a game of hockey, and a cut made that necessitated three stitches to close it.

FELL TWENTY FEET.

Borough Mason Receives Serious Dislocation of Hip.

Oscar Moore, a carpenter residing at No. 15 Westervelt avenue, had a narrow escape from fatal injury yesterday noon while working at the top of a long ladder in a new building that is being erected on Sandford avenue.

He made a misstep and fell a distance of about twenty feet with the result of receiving an exceedingly bad dislocation of the right arm and bruising the shoulder. He was picked up by fellow-workmen and taken to his home, after which Dr. Buchanan was called and gave the proper treatment.

The doctor experienced considerable difficulty in getting the arm back in place on account of the seriousness of the dislocation. Today Mr. Moore is feeling somewhat better and he expects to go to the home of his parents in the country today, where he will remain until his troubles are over.

JUSTICE NEWCORN'S LAST CASE.

A Contract Case Growing Out of the Removal of a Tenant of a House.

Wm. Newcorn presided over a court as Justice of the Peace for the last time yesterday, and listened to the evidence in the case of Mrs. Agnes Bushnell against Miss Kate Daly. Mr. Newcorn having resigned his office as Justice cannot legally take any new cases, but has the right to finish up all his old ones, and yesterday's case was the last one of these.

Miss Daly's defense was that she was only acting as agent for her mother in renting the house, and was therefore not liable for the rent. Nevertheless the jury brought in a verdict for the full amount $20 for the plaintiff. The jury men were Samuel Tunison, A. W. Stites, John Ross, Frank Wyckoff, William Remsen and B. T. Barnes.

Low Grocery Prices

The advertisement of V. L. Frazee, the cash grocer, appearing on the fifth page of to-day's Press, is sure to attract the attention of housewives. The prices quoted by Mr. Frazee for articles of standard reputation are probably the cheapest ever known in this city. By doing a strictly cash business Mr. Frazee is able to get the advantage of liberal discount on all his purchases and the result is that low prices rule in his store.

Mishap to Livery Rig.

A rig owned by Liveryman George Cole met with a mishap early this morning on West Front street, near Sycamore avenue, while answering a call. The horse stumbled and in falling broke the shafts. The wagon was allowed to remain on the street for a time while the driver came back to the stables for another wagon. No one was injured in the accident.

—Shoes and slippers are proper things for Christmas presents. Everybody wears them in Plainfield and VanArsdale sells them for everybody at popular prices.

JURY COULDN'T AGREE.

Case of Cold Storage Company Against Fred Hand Must Be Tried Again.

The case in tort of the Plainfield Ice and Cold Storage Company against Fred Hand for $71.18, which the company claim Hand collected and kept after selling out his ice business to them several months ago, came to trial in Justice Moffett's court yesterday before a jury of twelve men, who considered the evidence for over an hour and at last came to the conclusion that they couldn't agree and were discharged.

When Hand sold out his business to the Cold Storage Company he sold all claims, and the plaintiffs say that instead of abiding by his contract Hand collected over $70 worth of old bills on his own responsibility and kept the money. Pope & Runyon represented the plaintiffs and Codington & Swackhamer the defendant.

The jury were in favor of bringing in a verdict for the full amount claimed, but five of them refused to bring it in in tort, because if Hand could not pay the money he would have to go to jail. As the plaintiffs' lawyers would not agree to change their form of action the jury could not agree, so the case will be tried over again next Friday.

LAST NIGHT OF BAZAAR.

Queen Esther Band's Affair Was a Successful One.

The entertainment and bazaar given under the auspices of the Queen Esther Band of the Grace M. E. church was concluded laft night. The entertainment consisted of a piano solo by Miss Florence Rugg; a tenor solo by Elton C. Martin; a recitation, "The Lost Baby," by Miss Helen Wooley; a solo by Miss M. McKeon and a recitation, "The Irish Schoolmaster," by A. A. Lake, of Dunellen.

The patronage at the various booths was excellent, and most of the articles were sold. To Miss Della Voehl and Miss Marguerite Schuck, managers of the affair, great credit belongs. These two were assisted by Mrs. George Fairchild, Mrs. G. Gardner, Mrs. E E. Winckler, John Carney, A. A. Taft, A. Marsh, J. Lunger, Mr. Hoagland, Mr. Wilson, Mr. Fairchild, W. Woodland, Robert VanNess, J. P. D. Kirch and Mr. Vermeule. The ushers, who saw that every one was made welcome and offered a seat, were John Carney, Harry Schuck, David Fairchild and Grover Schuck.

The Christmas exercises of the various city schools will be held the afternoon of Friday, the 23d, with the exception of the High School, where the exercises will be at 10:30 a. m.

If Friday should prove to be stormy, so that the schools hold one session, the exercises will be given in the morning at about 10 o'clock.

In two of the schools, the Irving and the Bryant, a small admission fee will be charged to all except the children, for the benefit of the school.

Damages for Chickens Trespassing.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Market, Dec. 17—The trouble between the two neighbors, Clarence Hallett and Frederick Krouse, over the inroads of Krouse's chickens, was again tried in court yesterday. Hallett succeeded in getting a verdict for $1.00 damages, which satisfies him. The case was tried before Justice Storms and a jury.

A POPULAR FUND FOR SOLDIERS' MONUMENT.

Rev. W. C. O'Donnell Proposes a Plan.

SONS OF VETERANS TO LEAD

HIS IDEA TO GET EVERYBODY INTERESTED IN THE PROJECT.

Rev. Mr. O'Donnell Believes That a Committee From Sons of Veterans and the Common Council Could Work Together Jointly and With Success—Plan Will be Presented to Former.

There is a scheme on foot to erect a soldiers' monument in Plainfield, and if the plan meets with general favor there is no reason why the city should not have such a monument. Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, pastor of the Monroe Avenue M. E church, is the originator or the plan and he is very enthusiastic over the idea. He is a member of John Hand Camp, No. 28 Sons of Veterans. His plan is to have a committee of three from the camp appointed to confer with a committee from the City Council for the purpose of forming plans to raise the necessary amount of money for the monument. He thinks that in this way the people of the city can be interested in the movement to such an extent that they will contribute liberally to the fund.

His idea is to give everybody in the city an opportunity to contribute something toward the fund, and to give concerts, entertainments, etc., whereby money can be raised. He thinks that the sons of veterans of the war are the ones to take hold of the work and thus rear a monument of those who have given their services for the country.

Rev. Mr. O'Donnell has estimated on the cost of such a monument as would be suitable for the city, and thinks that the amount can be raised if properly looked after by interested persons. It is his intention to attend the meeting of the Sons of Veterans next Tuesday evening and present the plan to the members and to secure if possible the unanimous and hearty support of all in the movement. If his plan is adopted the Council will be asked to appoint a committe also.

FREEHOLDERS HEARD HOT WORDS

Dispute in Somerset County Over the Use of Crushed Stone.
(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, December 17.—The proceedings of the Board of Freeholders at Somerville Tuesday were enlivened by the competition of two or three stone crushing concerns located near Bernardsville. The contract for the construction of the Mine Brook road was recently awarded to Osborn & Marcellus, of Orange. The firm submitted three bids, all of them varying in accordance to the quarry which furnished the stone.

The bid accepted was not the lowest, but the stone came from the quarry at Child's Hill. Now the Somerset Stone-crushing Company, through its counsel, R. V. Lindabury, has obtained a restraining order to stop the granting of the contract. Affidavits were submitted to the Board alleging that the stone from the Somerset quarry was just as good as that from the Child's Hill quarry, and the contract should have been awarded on that bid because it was the lowest. County Engineer Dougherty and Superintendent Tainter, of the Somerset Company, had some hot words at the meeting, the former claiming that the stone from that quarry was not in good condition.

Boarders Skip, Landlady Follows.

The goods and chattels of Mrs. Margaret Johnson have been stored in George Stover's barn at Oak Tree since her departure several months ago, leaving unpaid bills behind her. It seems that Mrs. Johnson, who is a colored woman, boarded a number of the men who were laying pipe for the Water Company, and the majority of them, when the work was done, gave nothing but leg bail for their board. So Mrs Johnson followed suit, and Aug. 30th Grocer Russell O. Howell, of Plainfield, procured an attachment from Justice Moss, and Mrs. Johnson's belongings will be sold by constable's sale.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

CONGRESS WILL RATIFY

Serious Opposition to the Treaty of Peace Not Expected.

BRYAN GIVES HIS ADVICE

Fight Against Expansion will Come Later If at All. Bryan and Bailey Confer with Democratic Leaders in Congress. Important Political Plans Being Laid.

Washington D. C., Dec. 17.—The opposition to the ratification of the peace treaty which was expected in the Senate may evaporate. It is almost certain that no serious attempt will be made to defeat the treaty.

There may be no vote against ratification, the understanding being that a settlement of the question of expansion will not be involved in it.

This situation is brought about chiefly by the fact that Mr. Bryan advises his friends against making their fight on the treaty. The fact that in the South a celebration of the signing of the treaty is being held helps to stifle opposition.

The opposition in the Senate comes chiefly from supporters of Mr Bryan, largely southern men. A canvass of the Senate discloses that up to a few days ago there was nearly, but not quite, a two-thirds vote in favor of ratification, and that the Republican opposition numbered not more than three men.

The fight against expansion will be postponed until after the treaty has been ratified.

It will come up when legislation for the government of the islands is proposed, and that will not be before the next Congress.

Both parties are divided on the question of expansion, but the Republicans almost to a man will support whatever policy is adopted by the administration.

The Democrats have been much more seriously divided, but now they are trying to agree on a definite policy.

With respect to the question of expansion they will probably very generally unite upon a proposition that the Philippines should be treated in the same manner as Cuba.

Mr. Bryan yesterday, after conferences with many Democrats, visited the Capitol and at one time had around him in the cloak room nearly the entire Democratic membership of the House.

Yesterday morning Mr. Bailey of Texas breakfasted with Mr. Bryan in his private room, and was with him for a long while.

Some important political plans are being laid by the Bryan Chicago-platform combination.

Confederate Soldiers.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—Representative Rixey of Virginia has introduced a bill for the admission of Confederate as well as Union soldiers to all soldiers homes and government institutions maintained by the government.

Although in line with the president's suggestion in his speech at Atlanta, this referred to government care for Confederate cemeteries, whereas the Rixey bill refers to living ex-Confederates who are "maimed, crippled or needy." The text of the bill is:

"That after the passage of this act all Soldiers' Homes and other institutions maintained by the government for the maimed, crippled and needy soldiers and sailors of the United States shall be open to all soldiers and sailors of the civil war of 1861-65, upon the same terms and without discrimination as to whether they were enlisted upon the side of the Union or the Confederacy."

Missionaries Slain.

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 17.—The steamer Empress of India brings news of the butchery of Catholic and native Christians by the rebels of Sze Shuen province, China, under the notorious outlaw Yumantse, who, with his followers, has rendered twenty thousand native Christians homeless in central China and taken over sixty lives.

Six thousand Catholic refugees have gathered in the city of Chun King from the surrounding country.

Property destroyed by the rebels is reckoned at five million taels.

France is making a claim for destroyed property belonging to French missionaries.

The Telegram Tax.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—Commissioner Scott of the internal revenue bureau has sent a letter to Chairman Dingley of the ways and means committee, withdrawing a recommendation that Congress should settle definitely whether the writer of the telegraph company should pay the tax on telegrams.

He does this, he writes, because as the attorney general and the courts have ruled that the writer of the telegram should pay the tax, his office has no further interest in the matter.

Branch Bank at Manila.

New York, Dec. 17.—J. & W. Seligman & Co., have confirmed a rumor that a branch bank is to be opened shortly in Manila, Philippine islands. They said that the Anglo-California Bank of San Francisco was associated with them in the enterprise, which is yet in its incipiency.

The same interests propose opening a branch bank in Honolulu, Hawaiian islands.

Russia Helps the Chinese.

Tacoma, Wash., Dec. 17.—Advices by the Empress of China state that Russia has sold half a million obsolete Berdan rifles to China through the Russo-Chinese Bank at the rate of five taels per rifle and twelve taels per 1,000 cartridges.

Manchu troops throughout the empire are to be armed at once.

Gen. Miles Not Going to Havana.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 17.—General Nelson A. Miles, commander of the army, who it was expected would embark at Hampton Roads for Havana, has notified the Chamberlain Hotel at Old Point that he would not come, and will remain in Washington.

In the absence of oxygen, the microbe of consumption dies.

Prof. Frankland, Ph. D. of London, has plainly proved that cod-liver oil consumes in the body almost three times the amount of oxygen that starches or sweets do. Scott's Emulsion is cod-liver oil partly digested and combined with hypophosphites, it is more valuable than the plain oil and in all conditions of wasting its marvelous reconstructive properties are unequalled.

McKINLEY ADVISES PATIENCE.

Tells the Tuskegee Students that in that Line Lies Their Hope.

Tuskegee, Ala., Dec. 17.—The presidential party arrived here at eight o'clock yesterday morning and were met by the mayor and town council. The trip from Atlanta was without incident.

The party entered carriages and were driven to Booker T. Washington's school.

At the school the president made a speech. He praised Professor Washington and his pupils and the institution they represented. In the course of his remarks he said:

"One thing I like about this institution is that its policy has been generous and progressive; it is not so self centered or interested in its own pursuits and ambitions as to ignore what is going on in the rest of the country, or make it difficult for outsiders to share the local advantages.

"I allude especially to the spirit in which the annual conferences have been here held by leading colored citizens and educators, with the intention of improving the condition of their less fortunate brothers and sisters. Here we can see is an immense field and one which cannot too soon or too carefully be utilized.

"The conferences have grown in popularity and are well calculated not only to encourage colored men and colored women in their individual efforts, but to cultivate and promote an amicable relationship between the two races—a problem whose solution was never more needed than at the present time.

Patience in moderation, self control, knowledge, character, will surely win your victories and realize the best aspirations of your people.

INTERNATIONAL BANK BILL.

The Debate Resumed in the House and Measure Defeated.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—Some miscellaneous business, including the passage of several minor private bills, was disposed of at the opening of the session of the House of Representatives yesterday.

The debate upon the bill to incorporate the International American Bank was then resumed.

Mr. Bell, Populist of Colorado, opposed the measure. He took the ground that it was both unconstitutional and against good public policy.

Mr. Sulzer, Tammany of New York, also antagonized the bill, claiming that it would create a gigantic monopoly which would in time regulate interest and exchange rates.

Mr. Barrett, Republican of Massachusetts, offered an amendment which provided that the powers granted under the bill should be conferred upon any national bank which filed an application with the comptroller of the currency in conformity with the general requirements of the bill.

Mr. Ridgely, Populist of Kansas, offered a substitute, providing that the United States should establish such a bank as the bill created, and that the bank should have a branch in every city or town exceeding in population 2,500, and in every Central and South American country where the United States had a consular officer, such officer to be the bank's representative.

At the close of the debate a vote was taken, which resulted in defeat for the measure by a vote of 103 to 143.

Funeral of Mr. Brice.

New York, Dec. 17.—The funeral of ex-Senator Calvin S. Brice, who died Thursday of pneumonia at his home, No. 693 Fifth avenue, will be held today at noon in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church.

Immediately after the services in the church the cortege will proceed to the Jersey City station of the Erie Railroad, where the funeral party will take a special train for Lima, Ohio, the old home of Mr. and Mrs. Brice.

The Rev. Wallace Radcliffe of Washington, D. C., an intimate friend of the Brice family, has been asked to officiate.

The body will occupy Mr. Brice's private car, the Argonaut.

The party accompanying the funeral car will include Mrs. Brice, the Misses Helen and Katherine Brice, Stewart M. and John Brice and Mr. Brice's private secretary, Thomas S. Beatty.

The train will leave Jersey City at two o'clock.

The interment will be made at Lima at 11 o'clock Monday morning.

Oppose Governor at Control.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 17.—The Interstate National Guard Association, composed of military officers from nearly every state in the Union, has denounced the proposal to nationalize the National Guard by putting it under control of the general government, and denounced Governor-elect Roosevelt because he criticised the efficiency of the volunteer regiments in actual warfare.

The general sentiment of the association was that the National Guard did not have a fair show at the hands of the regular army and that Congress should appropriate less for the army and more for the Guard.

DEWEY FEARS NOTHING

Hopeful Views of the Rear-Admiral at Manila.

LOCAL AUTONOMY TALKED

Belief that the Filipinos will Not Make Trouble. In Favor of Paying Arrears in the Insurgent Army. Opportunities for Released Volunteers.

Manila, Philippine Islands, Dec. 17.—Rear Admiral Dewey, in an interview yesterday, courteously but firmly declined at first to discuss the political situation in the Philippine islands, on the ground that his sphere was purely naval.

He seldom goes ashore, and insisted that his interviewer was in a better position to acquire information than himself.

He then proceeded to cross examine the correspondent about everything ashore. He said he was glad to learn that the insurgents were releasing the sick Spanish soldiers they held prisoners, notwithstanding Aguinaldo's grandiloquent refusal to do so.

This proves that the insurgents are conciliatory, in spite of their defiant talk.

Rear Admiral Dewey always believed that the insurgents were friendly, and especially since the warships of our fleet have visited the different ports of these islands, and since some of our officers have made tours inland, carefully investigating popular sentiment, and preaching the gospel of peaceful settlement everywhere with highly satisfactory results.

A few influential Filipinos, in an ambitious attempt at self advancement, are clamoring for independence, although unable to realize its true meaning.

They are utterly ignorant of the difference between the name and the reality.

The agitators here invariably admit that they would be unable to stand without American protection. But, in spite of this they continue their meaningless outcry for independence, and may possible create trouble.

The rear admiral, however, believes this to be improbable at the present juncture. Every day that passes without a conict means so much gain because the friendly feeling is steadily increasing, the incipient roughness is disappearing, and the agitators are weakening.

The newspapers of Manila are doing particularly valuable work in the simultaneous publication of conciliatory articles printed in Spanish and English.

This course is looked upon as being certain to eliminate the friction which has existed here.

The rear admiral is greatly interested in the movement among the American volunteers to obtain their discharges here and engage in business enterprises. He believes that there is a practically unlimited field for planters, farmers, and miners here.

It is believed that the Germans have now entirely abandoned their designs on the Philippine islands, though formerly the German attitude here caused Admiral Dewey much anxiety.

According to recent information received here, the Filipino insurgents are endeavoring to maintain a brave show for the purpose of securing the best terms possible from the Americans.

It is the opinion of Rear Admiral Dewey that it would be advisable for the United States to pay the insurgent troops their arrears of wages. The whole amount would be only a comparatively trifling sum, and the payment of the troops would have a valuable effect and might save incalculable trouble.

He also is strongly convinced that the Filipino insurgents deserve acknowledgement. He is a believer in the practicability of liberal measures in the direction of local autonomy.

Regarding the possibility of international complications, Rear Admiral Dewey said:

"Prior to the arrival of the monitors I felt uneasy. But now I am ready to hold this position against the whole earth."

Maines Shipbuilding Boom.

Bangor, Me., Dec. 17.—The very best sign of the good times in Maine is the arrival of a ship building boom which, while coming too late to make a great showing of tonnage launched this year, has set the yards and shops going at a busier rate than they have known for a decade.

In years past Maine used to build from forty thousand to seventy thousand tons of shipping annually, but of late, for reasons that have been told over and over again, the industry has fallen into decay, and the figures have been too small to be worth publishing.

Now, however, Maine has a boom in her ship yards, and the good effects are felt from Portland to Eastport.

War Tax Ruling Reversed.

Washington D. C., Dec. 17.—The commissioner of internal revenue has reversed a former important ruling on the war revenue tax by declaring that releases of mortgages and deeds of trust considered as mortgages shall be exempt from taxation, no matter in what form they are executed.

The ruling applies whether the deeds are executed with the solemnity of a deed, a certificate of satisfaction or simply as an entry of satisfaction on the margin of the record book in which the released mortgages or deed of trust is recorded.

The Peace Treaty.

Madrid, Dec. 17.—A semi-official note says:

"As the American Senate must ratify the treaty of peace, our government should wait for this ratification and not hasten to cede territory which the United States may not accept."

Paris, Dec. 17.—All the members of the American peace commission will leave here for the United States, via Havre and Southampton, sailing for New York to-day on board the American line steamer St. Louis.

Wanamaker's
A Chistmas Store
... THAT ...
Deserves Its Name.

NO one page will tell you all there is to tell of Wanamaker's. We can but summarize and suggest and dimly outline. The preparations here are the work of nearly an entire year:—how could we tell them in a story you could read in a few minutes?

Take it from us that nothing has been left undone to attain your satisfied verdict on these matters:—

The Stock; the Service; the Decorations.

Of these the chief thing is the stock. We dispose of that with a single sentence:—

There has never been such a collection of goods gotten together in this city, nor, except as it is duplicated in our Philadelphia store, in any other city.

These are strong words, but, coming from us, we know that you will take them just as we wish you to take them:—literally.

Concerning the decorations, the Rotunda tableau, "Christmas in Church and Home," is the most successful thing we have ever presented, and is gaining us some of the best things that have ever been said of us. Its motive is, we suppose, very well known by this time. It represents a village street, with church and houses. The time is Christmas Eve. The preparations for the little folk's happiness are well under way,—some of the little ones are even tasting it already. The chimes ring gayly from the church tower;—the organ sends its rich notes rolling through the whole.

Up on the fifth floor the Bench Show of Dogs attracts much attention. It is a show worth seeing.

The entire premises fairly bubble with holiday jollity. We never asked you to visit us with more pride in your reception.

The Wanamaker Book Store

In matters of books we can speak with some assurance. It may surprise some readers of this—even friends of ours.—to know that we are one of the largest, if not the VERY largest sellers of books at retail in this country "Biggest in America" is a phrase that can be tacked to more than one of our lines of business.

We sell books on this policy—it has proven a good one, if we may judge by results:—Have every wanted book, be quick with the new books, and not too quick with the old ones, and sell at a price that holds just one profit, and that a small one.

During the holiday season, we are making some extra exertions to win your approval. Some of these are mentioned below. Note should be made of our own editions of leading writers, called the "Wanamaker Illustrated Library Editions," and of the beautiful specimens of binding by Riviere and Sons and Zehnsdorf on other desirable works

BULWER, EDWARD (Lord Lytton). A complete edition of the novels and tales. Three etched frontispieces and 77 full page illustrations; 15 vols., $9.75; half calf, $16.50.

THE WAR INQUIRY.

Testimony of the Chief Commissary of the Santiago Expedition.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—Brigadier General John F. Weston, chief commissary of the Santiago expedition, testified before the war inquiry committtee that there was an absence of red tape methods in feeding the volunteers at Siboney.

He said that he never heard a complaint of the condition of the commissary supplies at the front. Everything possible, he asserted, had been done for the men, special efforts having been made for the volunteers, whose officers, he recognized, sometimes did not quite understand how to get what was due the men.

Surgeons were given articles from hospital stores on mere memorandum receipts, and they were paid for out of funds at Washington.

Colonel Roosevelt once came to him at Santiago and wanted to buy tomatoes and certain extra supplies for his men, and he refused to let him pay for them, as there was no need for it.

The witness said he took 5,000 with him when he went to Florida and still has "a lot of it left."

"Well you are the only man, then," interjected Captain Howell, "who ever went to Florida and brought money back."

Referring to difficulties caused by the subsistence department, depending on the quartermaster's department for transportation, he said it was a ridiculous idea, and the transportation was a matter he would not like to speak of without "thinking it over," and he had "thought a heap about it, too."

So far as the food was concerned, General Weston characterized the Santiago campaign as a mere bagatelle, the hardships being trifling compared with his own experiences in frontier Indian campaigns, when he and his men were forced to use the wagon mules for food.

THE WAR BONDS

Shipments to Subscribers Still Going On Slowly.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—The shipment of the war revenue bonds to the subscribers, who received allotments, is going on at the average rate of about one-quarter million dollars a day.

About eleven million dollars' worth out of the two hundred millions subscribed, remains to be disposed of. The distribution has grown constantly slower as it neared its end, on account of the number of subscribers who preferred to pay on the instalment plan. It will be recalled that the subscription did not close till July 14, and that the allotments were made thereafter, beginning with the smallest subscriptions and gradually ascending to the largest which fell within the necessary limit.

Every subscriber for more than five hundred dollars' worth of bonds was permitted to make his payments in parcels of 20 per cent. each, the first within ten days after notice of allotment, and the others at intervals of forty days each.

This grant of 170 days' time for final payment will carry some of the payments well over into next year, and the shipments are expected to drag along until then, notwithstanding the fact that a number of subscribers who started with the idea of paying only the compulsory instalments have been doing better.

Troops for the Philippines.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—Orders have been issued for the immediate preparation of the following regiments of regular infantry for service in the Philippines:

Twelfth at Jefferson Barracks, Twenty-second at Fort Crook, Nebraska, Third at Fort Snelling, Minnesota, Seventeenth at Columbus Barracks, Ohio, and the Fourth at Fort Sheridan, Illinois.

In each case the order states that the date of embarkation and point of sailing have not yet been decided, and depend upon the transportation facilities, which may become available.

"It is impossible," the order reads, "to state the duration of the tour of service of this character at this time, but preparations should be made with a view to at least two or three years' service before returning to the United States. It is not the intention of the department to send any wagon transportation."

For a Uniform Calibre.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—The joint board of army navy and marine officers appointed to consider the question of the adoption of a uniform calibre for small arms and machine guns, and of a standard and uniform small arm cartridge for the use of the army, navy and marine corps, have submitted their report.

The board was composed of experts of high standing, as follows:

Colonel A. Mordecai and Major S. E. Blunt of the ordnance department, U. S. A.; Captain George S. Anderson, Sixth cavalry; Captain George F. Elliott, Marine Corps; and Professor Philip R. Alger, U. S. N.

The conclusions were in favor of a uniform calibre for all devices and of the adoption of the calibre now in use by the army.

Won by a Mideean Vote.

Topeka, Kan., Dec. 17.—The state canvassing board has decided a tie between A. E. Scott, Republican, and L. M. Marks, Populist, candidates for the legislature from Jefferson county, and ordered the drawing of lots.

Mr. Scott won, but did not demand his certificate, expecting it would be sent by mail.

Before the certificate was forwarded, the mid-Pacific ocean vote of the 20th Kansas, en route to Manila, was received, with one vote for Mr. Marks. The state canvassing board reversed its decision and issued a certificate to Mr. Marks.

Tortures for Carlists.

Madrid, Dec. 17.—Count Casa Sola, brother of the Marquis Ceralbo, has confirmed the reports that savage cruelties, similar to those inflicted upon the Anarchists confined in the Fortress of Montjuich, at Barcelona, have been applied to the Carlists arrested at Bilbao, to extract information regarding their armament and designs.

Sad Ending of a Christmas Shopping Expedition. Were Returning from Asbury Park When the Accident Occurred. Little Child Playing with New Doll in Carriage Escapes Unhurt.

Freehold, N. J., Dec. 17.—Four persons were instantly killed and three were hurt mortally by a train on the Pennsylvania railroad crossing in Allenwood, nine miles from here, last evening.

The dead are:
Mrs. Ellen Allen,
Bessie Allen, her infant daughter.
Mrs. Alice Algor,
Jennie Cranmer.

The wounded are:
David Allen, husband of Ellen, dying.
Kate Allen, his sister, dying.
William Allen, his brother, dying.

Mrs. Algor's little child, Baby Algor, was the only one in the party that escaped uninjured.

All the parties live in Allenwood, which is a small village, founded by the ancestors of the Allens who were killed.

Mrs. Algor and Miss Cranmer are friends and neighbors of the Allens.

Early yesterday morning the entire party got into the Allen family's covered wagon and drove to Asbury Park, where the day was spent in buying Christmas presents.

The start for home was made about 4 p. m., and the horses, tired from the day's travel, were going along slowly. The journey was uneventful until William Allen, who was driving, attempted to cross the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railroad in front of train No. 298, which is due here at 6.3 o'clock.

William Allen evidently had miscalculated the distance between the approaching train and the crossing, and probably did not figure on the pace of the tired horses.

The carriage was squarely on the track and at right angles with it when the oncoming train struck it. With its occupants the carriage was hurled into the air. The bodies of the occupants were thrown in every direction.

David S. Allen has a fractured skull, one of his legs is in shreds and he is injured internally. William Allen's right arm is severed, several ribs are broken and he is otherwise injured.

Kate Allen's head is crushed, all her limbs are broken and her death is momentarily expected.

Mrs. Algor's child was found near the tracks, holding in her arms a box which contained a doll, her gift for Christmas from her mother.

Gas Works Explode.

Poughkeepsie, Dec. 17.—This city had a gas explosion late last night in which one man was killed, another fatally injured and a third seriously injured.

At 5.30 o'clock a monster column of fire suddenly shot skyward, followed by a terrific explosion, caused by the blowing up of the main building of the Poughkeepsie Gas Company's works.

The explosion was caused by an overcharge of crude gas being pumped into a few small refining tanks, one of which burst, allowing the gas to fill the room, which was ignited by a jet. The building was completely wrecked by the explosion.

Every house in the city was shaken and those near the works were damaged. Windows were shattered and plaster on the walls and ceilings fell. A flame of gas, a hundred feet high, lighted the streets for half a mile.

The city probably will be dark for at least a week.

Extradition With Mexico.

Mexico City, Dec. 17.—The foreign relations department is preparing a draft of an extradition treaty with the United States, which will be forwarded to Washington to Ambassador Romero, who will negotiate it with Secretary Hay.

The treaty contains a retroactive clause, making it apply to refugees from justice during the period elapsing between now and the signing of the new treaty.

The Mexican government is disposed to make a very liberal treaty.

A Large Find of Real Estate.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 17.—Major William F. Aull, manager of the Denny estate, has just secured by state patent land in the Fifteenth ward valued at over one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, which has for years been without an owner.

It has long been considered as a part of the Denny estate and has been rented for years by the Carnegie Steel Company, limited, whose Thirty-third street mills are located on it.

Big Failure in Buffalo.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 17.—George H. Dunbar, proprietor of the Eagle Iron Works, was adjudged a bankrupt by Referee Hotchkiss yesterday morning.

The liabilities, according to the schedule filed, amount to $96,277.57. The assets are $138,672.55, included in which are $25,000 of doubtful accounts and $89,000 of real estate, mortgaged to secure the payment of about $50,500.

Lottery and Gambling.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—The House judiciary committee gave a hearing yesterday of the Gillett bill to prohibit the use of the telegraph and telephone lines for lottery and horse race gambling purposes.

Anthony Comstock and Dr. Wilbur F. Crafts appeared before the committee.

Moore Found Guilty.

New York, Dec. 17—William A. E. Moore was found guilty of robbery in the first degree, with a recommendation to the mercy of the court, by a jury in general sessions at 7.01 o'clock last night.

The jury was out less than three hours.

DUN'S WEEKLY REVIEW.

The Volume of Business Still Continues Second all Precedent

New York, Dec. 17.—December is adding a surprising close to the most surprising year of American history. November had surpassed all other months of the century in volume of business and production, and thus far December is doing even better, in payments through clearing houses, in railroad earnings, in foreign trade, in output of pig iron and in activity and strength of securities.

But that is saying a great deal, for in all these and other tests November was far the best month of American financial history.

December began with a pig iron output of 238,523 tons weekly, against [illegible] stocks of unsold iron diminished 28,988 tons in November, which indicates a consumption of 1,024,313 tons during the month. Not only is the output the greatest ever known, but it has increased 22 1-2 per cent. since 1892, when the greatest monthly record then ever known was made.

In other lines the demand for finished products is of the same surprising magnitude, especially in plates and in sheets.

The woolen industry also comes to the front with very extensive purchases of wool by large houses and small, helped by material concessions at Boston, so that sales at the three chief markets have been 17,968,700 pounds, of which 13,860,200 were domestic, against 15,307,100 last year, of which 7,447,000 were domestic.

The exports of wheat continue heavy from Atlantic ports, flour included, 5,492,632 bushels, against 3,562,805 last year, and from Pacific ports 741,991 bushels, against 1,520,613 last year, so that for two weeks the outgo has been 11,871,540 bushels against 9,401,555 last year.

The corn movement is the most astonishing feature of the business, the exports for three weeks having been 7,187,302 bushels, against 6,226,894 bushels last year, and the price has advanced one cent for the week.

Should such a demand for American corn continue it would be of enormous value to western farmers.

The volume of business indicated by payments through clearing houses continues far beyond all precedent, exceeding last year by 23.2 per cent., and exceeding the corresponding week of 1892 by 96.8 per cent.

Foreign trade is also remarkably encouraging, exports for two weeks having been from New York 25.1 per cent larger than last year while imports have been 3.1 per cent. smaller.

Failures for the week have been 267 in the United States against 329 last year, and 31 in Canada against 28 last year.

GATLING EXHIBITS NEW GUN.

Can be Constructed at Half What Built-up Weapons Cost.

New York, Dec. 17.—It transpires that the tests just made at the Sandy Hook proving grounds of Dr. Gatling's new cast steel gun may result in revolutionizing the system of great gun manufacture.

The piece, which is of eight-inch calibre, withstood a powder pressure in the chamber of approximately thirty-seven thousand pounds to the square inch without giving any indication of strain.

When it is recalled that the service pressure for the present built up guns is but 32,000 pounds to the square inch it will be seen that the new weapon far exceeds the requirements.

Six shots were fired with powder charges varying from 132 to 142 pounds. The showing made by the gun so delighted General Miles that he grasped Dr. Gatling's hand and congratulated him warmly.

But the crowning virtues of the new gun, in case it meets other tests successfully, is in that it can be made for fifty per cent. of the cost of guns built up by the present system.

Furthermore, eight similar eight-inch guns could be made in the time now required to make a single built up gun of the same calibre.

The new gun, which was made at the Otis works in Cleveland, was cast in an ordinary gun mould. After boring, the piece was subjected to a very high heat pressure on its exterior surface, a blast of cold air being forced through the bore.

The effect was to cool the gun from the bore outward. In addition to this treatment, during the casting a radial twist was given to the mould.

There is also an alloy, which is kept a secret, used in the steel.

A cast steel gun was never before made that would withstand ordinary service pressure.

As it now costs one thousand dollars a ton approximately to construct a built up gun, it is evident that even the cutting in two of that expense is sufficiently important if nothing else is considered.

Fooling the Public.

Those who favor the demands of the Plainfield Street Railway Company in their application for trolley extensions say that it will be impossible for the company to sell their bonds on the money market unless secured by a fifty year franchise. Admitting for the sake of argument that that is true, then what is the use of the Common Council making them a present of forty-nine years' use of the streets after that? Why not stop at fifty years?

While on this question of bond selling business we would like to ask some of these eminent financiers if the stockholders of the Plainfield Street Railway Company—the Nevins', the Rikers and the Serrells, etc.—are so poor in pocket that if they have to go down in Wall street to raise the small sum of money that will be required to construct this extension of a little over a mile in the eastern section of the city.

As a matter of fact, the plea for a long term franchise on the ground that it is necessary in order to ensure the sale of the bonds to raise money to build the extension is a mere subterfuge for gaining extraordinary concessions from the people.

Thomas Nevins, of Orange, the real owner of the Plainfield Street Railway Company, is several times a millionaire and there is not the slightest doubt but that if he cared to—and he wouldn't hesitate probably if it was not that such action would be the entering wedge that would effectually show up this system of financiering in which the people are the too willing tools—to advance the money to build this extension in the same manner as he would in any other enterprise that did not first require the consent of the people to undertake.

The idea of granting a franchise for a long term of years to millionaires on the plea that the rights thus granted must exist for extended periods of time in order to secure the bondholders is a trick of financiering aimed to fool the public.

We presume that the eminent financiers will regard such talk as the wildest sort of socialistic rantings, but it is plain facts and nothing more.

As the legislative session approaches there is the usual talk about having a law passed that will either restrict the functions of Justices of the Peace or else entirely do away with them. There is crying need for reform in the justice of peace system of New Jersey. Abolish the justice of peace and the percentage of fool cases that regularly turn up to impede the work of grand juries would be reduced to a minimum, and the ends of justice would be as well satisfied in every respect.

According to the apportionment decided upon by the steering committee of the Republicans in the Assembly Union county will get the appointment of one doorkeeper and one page besides the places already given her by the G. O. P. caucus. We have no doubt but that the places will go begging. Union county politicians are usually bashful about asking for things of that sort.

Mr. Thompson advised against VanDoren's nomination, and it seems that the voters agreed with him. Had another been nominated the result might have been different.—New York Press.

We thought The Press was opposed to bosses in politics

Senator Reed is still far in the lead for the presidency of the State Senate. The Senator seems to run well in all his political races. Even Chancery Clerk Thompson seems unable to drop the the flag on him.

The whiskey trust has failed. The price of old John Barleycorn will remain the same, however, to the consumer, and you can't get a lurid nose a cent cheaper than before.

James J. Corbett is soon to become the proprietor of a saloon. All doubt about Corbett being a truly great pugilist is now removed.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Any reasonable request for lower train fares between Rahway and Elizabeth and other towns in Union county and New York ought to receive favorable attention from the big railroad companies that connect with these points. There are hundreds of commuters and transient passengers on these roads daily between towns in Union and the metropolis, and the revenues from them make up a considerable portion of the railroad receipts in a year. The present petition of the Board of Trade of Elizabeth for lower fares to and from that city is a just one, and doubtless will be granted by the Pennsylvania and Central roads.—New York Press.

* * * * * *

The Common Council of Plainfield has been driving a pretty good bargain in disposing of a franchise to the Plainfield Street Railway for the use of certain streets in that city. The franchise which the company is to get is made subject to re-adjustment of terms at the end of fifty and seventy-five years respectively. After the gross receipts of the entire system of the city shall reach $80 000, the company is to pay the city 5 per cent on the total in lieu of the tax per car now imposed on the present system. Favorable concessions are also made by the railroad company in regard to fares; teachers and school children to be carried for three cents each. Transfers are to be given on all lines that may be constructed in the city. Fifty years seems a long way ahead, but the men who will make the city's laws at that time will doubtless be glad of the opportunity to revise the stipulations laid down by their ancestors. It would be interesting to predict what these terms would be.—New Brunswick Home News.

The Sunday-school of the Presbyterian church will hold their Christmas entertainment a week from tonight.

A. A. Lake recited one of his selections at the entertainment given in Grace M. E. church, Plainfield, last night.

Mrs. Harry L. Terry has returned from a visit with her sister, Mrs. Sherman Cooley, of Flemington.

Miss Mary Coriell is teaching in the Lincoln school in the place of Miss Fulper, who is still ill.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, December 17—The committee of the Baptist church appointed to wait upon Mr. Braker regarding his resignation, recently tendered to the church, will make their report after service tomorrow morning. Mr. Braker declines to withdraw his resignation, and has given the committee his reason for so doing.

Wm. Collins, who has been driving the Fanwood stage for years, was taken suddenly ill at the Fanwood station Thursday afternoon and had to be sent home in a carriage. His condition is said to be improved and his many friends hope they will soon see his cheery face in its accustomed place again.

Drying preparations simply develop dry catarrh; they dry up the secretions which adhere to the membrane and decompose, causing a far more serious trouble than the ordinary form of catarrh. Avoid all drying inhalants and use that which cleanses, soothes and heals. Ely's Cream Balm is such a remedy and will cure catarrh or cold in the head easily and pleasantly. A trial size will be mailed for 10 cents. large for 50 cents. All druggist keep it. Ely Brothers, 56 Warren Street, New York.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

The popular favorite Minnie Lester and a new company of first class dramatic people will make her reappearance in this city after an absence of some two or three years, at Music Hall, Monday night. No repertoire artiste has ever given more satisfaction than Miss Lester, and in the presentations of the coming week, the little lady will be seen to best advantage. The engagement is for six nights and one matinee on Saturday only. There will be a change of bill at each performance, the names of plays being announced in these columns each and every day. "Ragged Jack" will be the play Monday night.

* * * * *

Guy Bros. Minstrels, popular favorites everywhere, will make their annual visit to this city within the next two weeks, appearing at Music Hall.

* * * * *

Don't forget the Christmas attraction at Music Hall, Monday week. "George Thatcher's Fashionable Vaudevilles" will be a great novelty.

* * * * *

The New York Castle Square Opera Company presented this week the old and favorite opera "Faust," which seems to possess an enduring fascination for the patrons of the American Theatre. Revived periodically, it meets with a spontaneous response from the music lovers who crowd the theatre at every performance. This retention of interest is due to the fact that each production at this theatre is characterized by novelty. New scenic equipment and accessories, and fresh dresses are provided for the current revivals.

Balfe's "Bohemian Girl," almost the equal of "Faust" in popularity, will be given next week. The production in every detail will approach the standard established by the management.

Tonight will mark the 350th performance of opera in English at the American Theatre. The occasion will be celebrated by the distribution of the costliest souvenir of the season. It will be the third of the series of articles designed for the writing desk. The token will not alone commemorate this mile stone in the progress of the Castle Square Opera Company, but will also be a greeting of the Christmas season.

An Unparalleled Time Record

Was made every day during the period of the Omaha Exposition by the trains of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway on its Chicago & Omaha Short Line.

Altho its trains hauled from ten to thirteen well filled sleeping cars and coaches each night, yet schedule time of arrival at Omaha and at Chicago was an accomplished fact,—a record to be proud of, and which has resulted in establishing the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway in the minds of the traveling community as the shortest, best and most reliable route from Chicago to Omaha, as well as to California.

All coupon ticket agents sell tickets via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul R'y. For information regarding the line address Wm. Kelly, Jr., General Eastern Passenger Agent, 381 Broadway, New York.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

TOYS FOR THE CHILDREN

Have Been in Existance Ever Since Santa Claus First Made His Rounds.

It has been said that children's toys are of comparatively recent origin, but this statement must refer to what may be called mechanical toys—those which it requires a mechanic or an artist to construct. What may be called home-made toys must be as old as the race. The first boy and girl who ever lived invented playthings, and what are playthings but toys? Parental fondness early took the form of gifts of some superior order of playthings. There have certainly been toys since Santa Claus commenced his rounds, and how long has that been?

Children who live in the country far from the toy stores, and the madding crowd, and all that, may be supposed to be in the condition of the primitive children, and their toys are those of the oldest time. Rag babies must date back to the beginning of rags and of babies, and the periods were nearly contemporaneous. The first girls made dolls because they were girls. Anything which had the stained or painted semblance of eyes and nose and mouth would do with which to imitate the labors and cares and reproofs and praises of motherhood. The rag doll is very ancient among the distinguished families of toys. The boys of the first hunter doubtless made little bows and arrows.

As mankind has advanced in the mechanical arts and in the field of invention, toys have become more numerous and elaborate. The toys of every age simulate the weapons and machines of the time. In the days of the Crusades we may believe that toys took the form of lances and helmets and shield and armor, and children marched in pilgrimage from the house to the barn. In our day we have toy locomotives and toy trains and all that. If we had a collection of all the toy boats that have ever sailed we should have models of every rig which has been known from Noah's ark to the White Squadron. The Christmas season is at hand, and superwise people are engaged in another attempt to abolish the Santa Claus myth and lecture fathers and mothers on the character of the toys they should buy for their children. Such people remind us that this is a weary world, and that heaven is, indeed, our only rest.

Bobbie and George's Father.

Bobbie was no longer a baby except in his fond mother's imagination, but his long golden curls, his short girlish dresses and the Santa Claus story were still in evidence in the nursery.

Many mothers dislike to lose their babies by growth almost as much as they do by death, and Bobbie's mother was one of the many. Other boys of his age were strutting about in knickerbockers with real pockets, but Bobbie still clung to the "serfdom of skirts" because mamma decreed it.

In pursuance of the same general plan of perpetual babyhood, the Santa Claus story was retold in all its fascinating details each Christmas, and

She Should.

"Mrs. Small never minces matters," said the star boarder to the new acquisition.

"Not even when she is preparing the pies for the Christmas dinner?" asked the latter.

had any visitor become openly sceptical before Bobbie concerning the reindeer, the chimney gymnastics and the polar toy factory, immediately he would have found himself a sufferer from the arctic frigidity of the fond mother's displeasure.

One night shortly before Christmas Bobbie's father was retelling the Santa Claus tale for the hundredth time, when Bobbie, who had also been told about George Washington and the cherry tree, inquired if Washington's father had told George about Santa Claus when George was a baby.

"Of course he did," said papa.

"And he told George all about the reindeer and the sleigh?" asked Bobbie.

"Certainly."

"And he told little George about Santa Claus riding over the tops of the houses and through the air?"

"I suppose so."

"And he told little George about Santa Claus coming down the chimbley?"

"Chimney, my boy. Of course he did."

For a moment Bobbie seemed oceans deep in curly-headed thought.

"Isn't that funny," he said at last. "George's father wasn't at all like George, was he, papa?"

"George's father wasn't like George? What do you mean?" Bobbie's papa asked in surprise.

"Why, papa," said Bobbie, with a wise shake of his head, "didn't you tell me that little George cried: 'Father, I cannot tell a lie, I did it with my little hatchet?'"

Provinz Westfalen.

Münster. Zu Ostern nächsten Jahres soll hier eine Oberlehrerinnen-Bildungsanstalt unter der Oberleitung des Bischofs Dr. Hermann Dingelstadt in's Leben treten. In einem zweijährigen Lehrgange sollen darin junge Lehrerinnen durch akademische Vorlesungen für die Oberlehrerinnen-Prüfung vorbereitet werden. Die neue Lehranstalt, die einzige derartige mit katholischem Charakter in ganz Preußen, verdankt ihre Entstehung dem gemeinsamen Wunsche der preußischen Bischöfe und ist für ganz Preußen bestimmt. Zur Uebernahme von Vorlesungen sind mehrere Dozenten der Akademie, sowie Oberlehrer der hiesigen höheren Lehranstalten gewonnen worden.

Dortmund. Der Obstbauverband für Westfalen und Lippe will zum Zwecke der besseren Verwerthung des Obstes in Verbindung mit dem Westfälischen Bauernverein und den hiesigen städtischen Behörden von nächstem Herbst ab einen jährlichen Obstmarkt hier veranstalten.

Dresden. Als Sprecher seiner Arbeitskollegen rief der streitende Maurer Duda seinem Arbeitgeber zu: „Wenn Sie nicht sofort uns 45 Pfennige Stundenlohn bewilligen, werden wir dafür sorgen, daß Sie in drei bis vier Wochen keinen Maurer bekommen." Das Gericht erblickte in diesen Worten eine vollendete Erpressung, und bestrafte den Maurer mit sechs Wochen Gefängniß. Wegen Fluchtverdachts wurde Duda auch sofort verhaftet.—Den erhöhten Fleischpreisen auch im „Detail" Rechnung tragend, haben sich verschiedene Fleischermeister geeinigt, die „Würmen":—die bekannte Dresdener Würstchen-Spezialität—um 1 Pfennig pro Stück im Preise zu erhöhen.

Altendorf. Erschossen hat sich der Schuldirektor Ernst Hesse, weil er bei seiner vorgesetzten Behörde wegen eines vor mehreren Jahren begangenen geringfügigen Vergehens, das ihm höchstens einen Verweis eingetragen hätte, denunzirt worden war. Der Unglückliche konnte sich hierüber nicht hinwegsetzen.

Crimmitschau. Der Zusammenbruch der Firma H. F. Wagner, Vigognespinnerei hier und in Glauchau, ruft allgemeine Verwunderung hervor, indem der jetzige Inhaber Ferdinand Wagner nicht nur das vor circa einem Jahrzehnt ererbte väterliche Vermögen von circa 1,000,000 Mark verloren hat, sondern jetzt die Passiven auch noch reichlich 1,000,000 Mark betragen.

Leipzig. Unlängst wurden am Nordfriedhofe bei umfangreichen Ausschachtungen Massengräber aufgefunden, welche die Ueberreste der preußischen, russischen und französischen Soldaten bargen, die am 19. Oktober 1813 bei der Erstürmung von Leipzig ihren Tod fanden. Diese Gebeine, 25 hochbeladene Fuhren, wurden nach dem Friedhof geschafft und in eine gemeinsame Gruft versenkt. Hier werden nun pietätvolle Hände den tapfern Kriegern ein schlichtes Denkmal, aus Steinblöcken und Koniferen, errichten.

A CHRISTMAS EPISODE.

We pulled the wishbone, and I wished
To kiss sweet Mistress Molly.
I lost, alas! and felt rebuked
For my audacious folly.

But later when the yule-log glowed,
I had no cause to rue it;
For then I somehow understood
That she had wished I'd do it.

THOSE CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

The Boys Differed With Their Mothers in Regard to the Diamonds.

Mrs. Smith, accompanied by her little boy, called on Mrs. Jones a day or two after Christmas, and while the Smith and the Jones boys sat on the floor to play the two ladies sat down on the sofa to tell each other about the Christmas presents they had received.

"One of my presents," began Mrs. Smith, proudly, "is the most magnificent diamond ring you ever laid eyes on. I forget now just how many carats it weighs, and unfortunately have mislaid it, or I'd show it to you."

"Oh, how lovely," replied Mrs. Jones, without the least bit of enthusiasm. "But just let me tell you what one of my presents was—a pair of the most beautiful diamond ear-rings one could wish for. I meant to wear them over here to-day, but stupidly forgot to do so."

"You fortunate woman," remarked Mrs. Smith in tones as cold as Klondike weather and a jealous look on her face. "The stone in my ring, I want to tell you, is fully the size of a pea, and"—

"Oh, my diamonds," interrupted the other with a toss of her head, "are both fully as large as a hickory nut."

"Well, I'm glad mine is not that size. Too showy, don't you know. Say, but my magnificent little ring sparkles"—

"And as for sparkling," put in Mrs. Jones, "why the stones in my ear-rings shine like the headlight on an engine."

"Indeed!" and Mrs. Smith gave a tantalizing little laugh. "If that's the case, then you won't need to light the gas in your house, will you?"

"Maybe you think I'm exaggerating," and Mrs. Jones' jaws set.

"Why, of course not, my dear—of course not! Knowing you as I do, that would be impossible, you know. Oh, how your eyes would open if you could see my ring!"

"And how yours would open if they could see my ear-rings! Why, I know"

But at this juncture she was interrupted by the Jones boy saying to the Smith boy:

"Say, Billy, what did yer ma git for Crismas?"

"She got a ring, Tommy, but it had such a thiny piece of glass in it that she up and threw it in the stove. What did your ma git?"

"A pair of ear-rings, but they wasn't any good. Pa said they was dimuns, but ma said they were only paste, and you'd have to take a spyglass to see 'em at that, and she flung 'em away."

Then the ladies hemmed and hawed a full minute and finally changed the subject and began to tell how Mrs Green, across the way, always exaggerated everything she said.

1. MABEL THINKS HER STOCKING TOO SMALL

2. SO SHE MAKES ONE OF HER NIGHTGOWN.

For Rich and Poor.

Christmas is a festival which the rich can't confine to themselves, even if they try to. For hardly any one is so poor but he can afford his bit of green, with which to produce a festival effect in his home, however humble.

An Optimist.

May—My, I'm glad Jack isn't a pessimist, if he is near-sighted.

Maud—Why?

May—Why, he can't tell whether a bunch of anything is mistletoe or not, but he always hopes for the best.

Your Better Half.

At Christmas she is very strange,
Her queerness you can then spot;
She asks you for a little change,
And means thereby a ten-spot.

HOW PAPA CAUGHT THE BURGLAR.

1. Papa—Well, this will tickle Willie to death.

2. Papa (awakening in the middle of the night)—Bark! What noise was that? I guess I'll go downstairs and—

3. Well, I've got you, anyway.

Cause for Thanks.

"How is Rawhide Jim, the stage-driver, getting along?" inquired the editor of the Clarion on Christmas Day. "I understand that he went through a very painful experience yesterday?"

"Yes," replied Alkali Ike. "He had three grass widows in the stage when he started out from Rocket City, an' he thought they acted like they were tired of their single-blessedness an' had designs on him. Accordin', he drove all the way with the four mules layin' right out straight an' him pourin' the whip to 'em with both hands. He was so agitated that he never knew when he lost off a couple of the mailbags on the way an' ran over a buckboard with two tourists in it, an' tore the whole outfit. Easterners an' all, durn near to atoms. He jest kept his head turned back toward the widows, ready to abandon the stage at the first hostile movement on the part of the ladies, till he twisted his fool neck so that when he finally climb down from the stage at the end of the journey he walked backward. Now the business men are cussin' him for losin' their mail, the postmaster is after him for neglect of duty, the tourists are talkin of havin' him arrested for assault with intent to kill, the owner of the buckboard wants damages, an' the widows were so flattered by his continual notice that they have sent for him to call on 'em. Dr. Slade in tryin' to straighten his neck, an' not knowin' which direction he had twisted it around from in the first place, twisted it still further the wrong way till it sorter locked an' stuck fast, an' now won't turn in either direction."

"Well, well! This will be a painful Christmas for him!"

"Wal, yes; but from his p'int of view it hain't as bad as it might have been. He's the thankfullest man in town today. He says that but for the smile of Providence one of them widows might jest as well have been the wife that he left back yonder in the States when he sorter hopped out between days some three years ago."

GENEROUS FELLOW.

He stood quite near the mistletoe,
And snatched full many a kiss
Until almost intoxicated
By so much excess bliss;
Then happily remarks, the while
His head with rapture whirls:
"I wish the clouds were mistletoe
And all the people girls."

AN OLD ENGLISH CUSTOM.

A Remarkable Celebration in Honor of St. Nicholas by the Boy Bishop.

Perhaps the most remarkable of all celebrations in honor of St. Nicholas was the old one of the boy Bishop. The boy Bishop assumed his office on St. Nicholas' Day, December 6, and held it till Holy Innocents' Day, December 28. The custom originated on the continent of Europe, and was adopted in England, where it reached what was probably its fullest development. A boy was chosen to represent a Bishop and was clothed with all the robes and invested with all the insignia pertaining to the station. Other boys represented priests, deacons and other suitable persons for the Bishop's train. The boy Bishop conducted a service in the church, and in some cases he and his companions went about from house to house singing and collecting money, which they did not ask as a gift, but demanded as a right.

The boy Bishop attained his fullness of dignity at Salisbury Cathedral, though he was known all over England. There he was chosen from among the choir boys, the rest forming his retinue, and he ruled with the highest pomp and most absolute authority. He is said to have conducted all the services of the church except the mass. In some other places the boy Bishop is said to have celebrated the mass itself. If any prebend fell vacant in his term of office he filled it, and if he died before his term expired he was buried with all the honors due to a genuine Bishop. There is record of a boy Bishop at Salisbury filling a vacant prebend by the appointment of his schoolmaster, and there is in the cathedral there the tomb of one who died while holding his office. On the top of it is an effigy of the child in full Episcopal robes.

Such masquerading plays as this were not then deemed offensive or derogatory to the dignity of the church. In fact, much coarser and more uncouth exhibitions were freely permitted on some occasions, even to the extent of burlesques of the services of the church within its own walls. Of course, the evil and discreditable side was bound to be seen in time, and the functions of the boy Bishop were at last forbidden by Henry VIII. They were restored, however, for a time by Mary. The peculiar custom at Eton known as the montem is supposed to have originated in that of the boy Bishop, but the montem is too large a subject to be discussed here.

1. "Here is the goat Willie has always wanted. I'd like to see him when he opens his eyes in the morning."

2. Next morning.

His View of Christmas.

The minister's little boy did not look at all pleased as he came down from his father's study the day after Christmas. Something had gone wrong about the rectory, his name had been mentioned almost too prominently in regard to the matter, and he had but moments before submitted to an interview in the awe-inspiring room where his father composed the sermons of the week.

"I don't like Christmas," the little boy muttered as he gazed out upon the snow in the rectory yard and wiped the last straggling member of a procession of tears from his cheek.

"No," he continued, "this Christmas business isn't what some people say it is—not by a long shot. Everybody seems to think it's a great thing for the little boys of the country, but I can tell 'em that it's anything but great for a minister's son. He doesn't have any show at all. He isn't it."

"Why, say," he said, as he cautiously settled himself in a chair with a soft cushion, "would you like Christmas if you were a minister's little boy? Would you be pining for it and lying awake nights waiting for it to get here? I don't think! Just think of all the big, hard-soled slippers a minister gets on every Christmas tree!"

Keeping His Word.

African Explorer (dumfounded)—What, you, Clarence Vere de Vere, in the heart of darkest Africa!

Clarence Vere de Vere—I'm wearing the necktie Miss Darling gave me for Christmas. I promised her I would, you know!

Good Shooting.

The following information will be of interest to gunners and sportsmen. On the James river, between Curle's Neck and Claremont, Va., there are plenty of ducks and good quail shooting. City Point is the best place to locate. Good accommodations, guides, boats, blinds and batteries will be found here, and duck shooting will be at its height until the first of the year. Gunners should take their own dogs. City Point is easily reached by the Old Dominion Line from New York, to whom application for further particulars should be made.

A Cab Trust for Manhattan.

New York, Dec. 17.—A movement has been on foot for several weeks to consolidate the cab and livery interests of Manhattan into one corporate body, in effect a cab trust.

A representative of a well known English company is rapidly pushing these plans toward completion.

A company with a capital of seven million dollars is to be incorporated under the laws of New York and will include nearly all the leading cab companies and will secure control of most of the livery stables in Manhattan. Its aim will be to give better and more economical service.

Russia's French Loan.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 17.—The Russian government recently contracted a loan of $55,512,00 in France, to be used in replacing her artillery with rapid firing small calibre guns, according to advices sent to the state department by Consul General Holloway at St. Petersburg.

As six thousand guns will be required within the next two years and Russia will not be able to manufacture that number contracts will be made with foreign firms to furnish the remainder.

Washing Woolens.

The secret of washing well any woollen goods lies chiefly in having the different waters of equal temperature with none of them at any time too hot to put the hand in comfortably. Soap should not be rubbed on the article, but used in the form of thin suds. It should be a good, white soap, too. A little borax is probably the best thing to soften the water. For washing blankets or baby flannels it is to be preferred. Woollen should not be wrung by the hand, but rinsed or dried by squeezing. Woollens of any sort should never be allowed to freeze.

A CHRISTMAS GIFT.

BY C. PARKER.

ROBERT GOODman, pastor of a certain church in a certain town, seated himself at his study table one morning, and drew toward him his writing material; then he took a deliberate survey of the room in which he sat. The view was not a very pleasing one. The walls were adorned with paper sadly discolored and falling away in places; the bare, smoky ceiling was traversed by numerous cracks; the paint on the woodwork, of dismal hue to start with, showed the ravages of time; the carpet was wretchedly shabby.

Mr. Goodman gazed at all this and sighed, as he had often done before.

"I could write better sermons in a decent study, I am positive," he said to himself. "This room certainly is depressing. It does seem that the church might paint and paper it. The expense would be small. Then there is the carpet; but if that remained I should have to 'look up and not down.' Well, that is what I must do anyway," and with a faint smile he turned again to the work before him.

Just then there was a little tap at the door, and he rose and opened it.

"Good morning, Mr. Goodman," said Miss Hope Arnold, who stood outside the study door, looking fresh and bright as the morning itself. "Shall I disturb you? Mrs. Goodman said she thought you wouldn't be fairly at work yet, and told me to come right up."

Meanwhile the young girl had entered the room at the minister's invitation and seated herself with a comprehensive glance at her surroundings.

"I wished to consult you, Mr. Goodman," she continued, "about some of our Christian Endeavor work, but first of all, I want to tell you how much good your sermon last Sunday morning did me. I thank you for it. It was just what I needed."

"I am very happy to hear you say so, Miss Hope," replied the minister with a flush of pleasure, "and I thank you for telling me;" but the visitor little guessed how much good in turn she had done her pastor.

When they had finished their talk on Christian Endeavor work, and Hope had risen to go, she exclaimed impulsively: "So this is our minister's study! I have never been in it before. Really I should think the church could afford to paper it, at least."

"It would be a great improvement certainly," responded Mr. Goodman, smiling.

"It ought to be done," she declared in decided tones, "and it shall be," she mentally added.

When his caller had gone, Mr. Goodman, greatly cheered and encouraged, turned once more to his study table, and the next Sunday morning's discourse was generally pronounced one of his best.

Mr. Goodman was all that his name implied, but, though an earnest preacher, he was not brilliant nor eloquent, and the large churches with corresponding salaries were not for him. And as there were several small people at the parsonage to be fed, clothed and otherwise cared for, there was no money for superfluities, or for many other things not generally reckoned as such.

Mrs. Goodman, fortunately, was a cheery, efficient little woman, with a wonderful knack for compelling a dollar to do more than full duty, and in every way she was a true helpmeet to her husband.

On leaving the parsonage Hope hastened to the office of her uncle, one of the trustees of the church, and inquired whether the pastor's study could not be repapered and painted, but he shook his head.

She did not give up, however, by any means, and at the next meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society she presented the case.

"Now," she said, "I propose that we rejuvenate that study as a Christmas present to our pastor. I have made some inquiries, and find that it can be done at small expense.

"Mr. Ball, who is a member of our church, would furnish and put on good paper for four dollars. A neat matting for the floor would not cost over four dollars more. Fred Johnson (a young painter, and a member of the C. E. Society) will kindly attend to the woodwork without charge. So you see that the actual expense of the undertaking need not exceed eight dollars, though some other changes and additions might be made to good advantage."

Much to her delight, Hope's plan met with general approval, and then arose a discussion as to the best method of raising the money to carry it out.

Finally Ellen Berry, one of the most active members, said: "There are so many oyster suppers, sociables and things of that sort, let us try something different. Suppose each member becomes personally responsible for fifty cents."

After a little discussion this plan was unanimously adopted, and the meeting adjourned.

The Sunday before Christmas, Mrs. Bardwell, a good, motherly woman who lived four miles from the town, and who was a member of Mr. Goodman's church, said to the pastor and his wife as they shook hands after service, "I want you folks all out to my house for one good holiday visit. Can you come the day before Christmas? It seems a kind o' queer time, may be, but if you can possibly come, that's the day I want you."

Mrs. Goodman reflected a few moments, then replied, "Why, thank you, Mrs. Bardwell, I think we could come that day. I could arrange to go, I am sure. Couldn't you, Mr. Goodman?"

"Yes, I think so," he responded, very cheerfully. "Of course, there will be preparations going on for the evening exercises, but I don't know that I shall be particularly needed. Thank you very much for your kind invitation, Mrs. Bardwell. We shall enjoy the visit, I assure you."

Mrs. Goodman securely locked the front door on the day appointed, and dropped the key in her pocket; but scarcely had the sleigh containing Mr. Goodman and herself and the four hilarious little Goodmans vanished down the road, than a man with rolls of paper appeared at the parsonage, and was admitted by Hope Arnold, who had secured a duplicate key from her uncle.

The man with paper and paste was speedily followed by another bearing a pot of paint, and the transformation of the study was soon under full headway.

Late in the afternoon three of the male members of the C. E. Society took possession with a foll of matting, and when in a short space of time, their work with that was finished, they were re-enforced by several of the girls, and the study was soon in readiness for its occupant.

Great was the satisfaction of the conspirators as they surveyed the rejuvenated room. The paper on the walls and ceiling was restful to the eye, with its soft tints and unobstrusive pattern. The coloring of the woodwork harmonized with that of the paper. In spite of fresh paint, neat muslin curtains had been put up in place of the shabby lace ones; and the well worn table cover had given way to another just from the store. Over the neat matting, before study table and easy chair, rugs were placed for warmth and cosiness.

And as a crowning touch a beautiful etching that was of itself an inspiration hung on the wall opposite the pastor's seat at his study table. This was a personal gift from Hope Arnold. Care had been taken to have everything done before it should be time for the pastor and his family to arrive at the church, that they might not be so soon surprised at seeing a light in their house. But toward the close of the evening's exercises Fred Johnson slipped over to the parsonage, and when Mr. and Mrs. Goodman stepped out into the wintry air they were startled by a gleam from the study windows.

"What can it mean!" cried Mr. Goodman in alarm. "Can it be fire?"

Home was soon reached and they hurried upstairs. A lighted lamp was on the stand before the study door, and against it leaned a placard bearing the words, "Beware of paint" in large letters. Mr. Goodman carefully opened the door and entered the room, followed by Mrs. Goodman ushering in her brood with due deference to the warning without and the odor within.

The little folks chattered and exclaimed, and pointed out to one another the various changes, but for a few moments the pastor and his wife said not a word.

Then Mr. Goodman took an envelope from the table. It contained a $10 bill and a card, from which he read aloud in a rather unsteady voice:

"Please accept the alterations in your study as a testimonial of affection and esteem from the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, and use the inclosed for such further improvements in the way of books as it will make, and you may desire."

Mrs. Goodman sat down and cried. "Oh!" she exclaimed, "this study has worried me so! I've tried and tried to plan for having it fixed up, but there didn't seem to be any way to do it. Finally I gave up and just left it with the Lord, and since then I've been sure it would be done some day. And it is! Those blessed young folks! And $10 for books, too!"

"Yes," replied Mr. Goodman, wiping his own eyes, "I am very thankful for it all. It was Hope Arnold's idea, I am positive. She looked very determined when she left the study that morning she was here."

"Well, it is certainly a welcome Christmas gift, and a great surprise."

Then small Johnny Goodman, who had been regarding his parents in great perplexity, exclaimed: "I don't see what makes papa and mamma cry about it! I think it looks nicer than it did before!"

A Lakeside Christmas.

"Ouch!"

The beautiful maiden withdrew her foot hastily.

Plunging her arm into the silken depths she took from the toe of her stocking a five-pound box of candies she had overlooked.

Need it be added that this happened in Chicago?

Baggs—Well, old man, what did you get in your stocking this morning?

Waggs—My foot.

ORIGIN OF YULE TIDE.

The Festive Season Celebrated Long Before Christmas Came.

Once upon a time, when Christmas was yet unknown, the northern nations of the world held a yearly festival which they called Yule. They wreathed with greens the temples of their heathen gods, as we wreathe our churches to-day; they burned great yule logs in honor of the sun, that he might make the earth blossom into Spring; and they gave their children yule gifts from fir trees loaded down with pretty things, just as we give to our children upon Christmas Eve.

It was not until 180 years after Jesus Christ, in the reign of the Roman Emperor Commodus, that Yule became Christmas, and it was in the fourth century, at the time of Constantine the Great and of Diocletian, that there lived Saint Nicholas, whom boys and girls know everywhere as Santa Claus. The legend of the jolly old fellow traveling with his reindeer to fill the stockings, or, in some countries, the shoes, which children placed ready for him, grew from the fact that Saint Nicholas was regarded as the patron saint of young people the world over. We English-speaking nations have the story from the Dutch.

But what shall we tell our boys and girls of Santa Claus. Do they not know him? Are they not looking eagerly for his visit of this year. Let us remember, however, the history of the Christmas holidays; for what is more beautiful than that the living religion of Christ should touch and vivify one of the oldest of the heathen festivals, not only taking away nothing that it was good to retain, but hallowing one particular day, the 25th of December, as the birthday of the child Jesus?

PLEASANT FOR THOMAS.

MRS. ENEQUE—Thomas, you must not make any noise when you dress up as Santa Claus and fill the children's stockings tonight. Jimmy and Freddy have each got an air gun and a bow and arrow, and are going to shoot you with them to see if Santa Claus is really alive. But you won't mind, will you?

UNDER THE MISTLETOE.

Some Girls Won't Go Near It, But There Are Others.

Let me see. Isn't it somewhere about this time that the mistletoe hangs out? Oh, where are the girls of long ago, I kissed beneath the mistletoe? asks a writer in Illustrated Bits. I don't know, I'm sure. Mislaid 'em somewhere.

In olden days I have been told by a dear friend whose veracity I respect unless I'm dead sure he's lying—in olden days the Druids used to go out and cut the mistletoe down as it hung on trees; but nowadays mistletoe generally hangs in a doorway or at the bottom end of the chandelier, and any young man taking it down is earnestly requested to replace it after he has been round the room and kissed all the pretty girls he wants to. It is not good form at all for one fellow to stick to the only piece of mistletoe in the room all the evening. We've all got to have a chance, you know.

There are some girls who won't go near the mistletoe anyhow. And there are others. The others generally freeze on to a chair or lounge immediately under the biggest piece of mistletoe in the room and hope for good luck. Some of them will hang around a piece of mistletoe for an entire evening on the off chance of a fellow coming up behind and mistaking them for a pretty girl, and kissing them before he finds out the bitter, relentless truth.

A CHRISTMAS CAROL.

The frost gleams white on the housetops high,
And the clouds—they look like snow;
And the plumber man goes briskly by—
Blow, little tin horns—blow!

And I view my cash with a secret sigh,
And I say to my soul: "Go slow!"
But the children come, and I can't look grum—
Blow, little tin horns—blow!

So, I'm quite resigned to the rocket's noise,
And the Roman candle show;
It's hands all around with the girls and boys—
Blow, little tin horns—blow!

—Frank L. Stanton in Atlanta Constitution.

THE CHRISTMAS TABLE.

How to Arrange It in an Artistic and Up-to-Date Fashion.

There are no hard and fast rules for setting the Christmas table—or any other table, for that matter—but custom prescribes certain forms with more or less definiteness.

In many private families, for instance, a cocked-up napkin is placed at the left of each plate, and in the snowy linen jaws is stuffed a dainty roll. In many others this style has been abandoned and the napkin plainly folded, so as to show the monogram is laid on the plate. The latter method is perhaps the most "up-to-date."

So of the glasses. Time was—and, to a certain degree, still is—when a little forest of crystal was ranged at the right of every plate. "A glass for every wine and a wine for every glass." But here again the later day method is toward moderation. Three glasses—champagne, claret and apollinaris—are counted in better form for social gatherings. Indeed, the deep drinkers and large eaters of not so very long ago would shiver with hungry apprehension at the sight of the stylish banquet board of to-day.

Good taste, as we see it now, requires that no eatables whatever, except the merest nibbles—the hors d'oeuvres of the high-toned menus—shall be on the table before the guests are seated.

Daintily heaped on mounds of cracked ice are the olives at one end and the radishes at the other end of the table, flanked right and left by salted almonds and French candy.

How shall we be knived, and wherewithal shall we be spooned and forked is not so easily answered.

Any hostess may have notions of her own on these matters within rather wide limits, and be in no wise an offender.

But again, the best way is the short one. The oyster fork, a spoon for the soup, and two knives at the right, and two forks—one for the fish—at the left, are all that are required at the beginning of the banquet.

A butter chip and individual salts and peppers are bunched before each plate. But butter plays a minor role in the very pretentious dinner casts.

For the centre piece a large piece of holly gives a Christmas-like air, and the red and green form a pretty bit of color contrast.

The olives and radishes carry out the same color scheme, and add to the attractiveness of the board.

For a soft, pretty light candleabra with colored paper shades, prettily tinted, are the thing and they are very decorative.

All table decorations and fixtures tend toward simplicity. The high centre pieces of fruits or flowers—once so prevalent—are rarely used now.

When friends or intimates meet around the social board there is no sense in making the conversation of opposites so largely a matter of peek-a-boo.

CHRISTMAS.

(Rhymed Acrostics.)

Christmas, come and bring again
Holly-berries all aglow,
Roving minstrel's merry strain,
Ivy-wreaths and mistletoe,
Sweet reunions, friendly faces,
Tender thoughts, bring, too, for me
My lady's kiss and fond embraces,
And thy poet I will be,
Singing oft in measures soft of love and thee!

Christmas, monarch of the year,
Haste and spread thy wonted cheer.
Rock the steeples, bid each bell
Iron-tongued thy tidings tell;
Sorrow strangle, nurse content,
Tune all hearts to merriment!
Mirth is biter, and care will wait
At the threshold soon or late,
So scare him out with song and shout beyond the gate!

A New Turkey Dressing.

A lady from the South says that peanuts make a far finer dressing for the Christmas turkey than chestnuts do. The peanuts must be parched, as usual, pulverized in a mortar and mixed with chopped celery, a little butter and the usual herbs, held well together with a paste of cornmeal. The peanuts are said to impart a singularly fine flavor to the turkey.

A CHRISTMAS CASUALTY

MRS. SANTA CLAUS—What's the matter with your hand?

SANTA CLAUS—Some fresh little boy put a steel trap in his stocking to see if there really was such a person as me.

THE ANGEL AT THE HELM.

A CHRISTMAS STORY.

I was a wild lad, stranger,
And, seemed to be "hell bent";
But time, the great reformer,
Had taught me to repent.
The money I had taken
I longed, now, to restore;
To tread again the pathway
Before my mother's door.

I longed to ask her pardon,
And see her saintly face—
My brothers and my sisters,
And view the dear, old place.
To turn their grief to gladness—
Set mother's heart at rest;
For, I had been her fav'rite—
The son that she loved best.

One scene I saw in fancy,
When I should cross the sea—
The time, it seemed glad Christmas
With its gift-bearing tree.
As "Santa Claus" I'd enter,
Dres't like that carl of old;
And, with a pack of playthings—
Likewise the stolen gold.

I saw the yule log blazing,
The mirth and mistletoe;
The little ones all crowding
Around the tree a-glow.
And, then the cry of rapture—
The quick, responsive start
Oh, mother, as the wand'rer
She presses to her heart!

And mem'ries, but haunting vague,
Came stealing soft and low;
While far, faint spirit voices
Kept urging me to go.
And, so for home I started
Across the salt sea wave.
To win my mother's pardon,
Or seek a sailor's grave.

* * *

The sea was bright and sparkling
When first we sailed the craft.
Which floated like a feather
While winds were fair abaft.
But, when the land no longer
A single eye could view,
A hurricane descended
That threatened ship and crew.

And fiercely flashed the lightning
Along the flapping sail;
The men grew faint and fearful
Who gazed upon the gale.
I felt myself a craven
With blanched and haggard cheek;
I feared the gold I'd hidden
Had made the good ship leak.

I thought of the dear mother
I had not seen in years,
Whose prayers, like white doves, followed
Her sorrow and her tears.
Of mother, sweet and gentle—
And, of her broken heart,
It now, some guarding spirit
Did not its aid impart.

But, brighter flashed the lightning,
And, higher dashed the waves,
Where many of my messmates
Had found their wat'ry graves.
Then, called I upon heaven,
And prayed with all my soul
The ship might reach its harbor,
The golden store its goal.

And, as I called in anguish
Across the sea at night,
Methought I saw a spirit,
All clad in shining white.
And, kneeling down, I worshiped
Though waves sought to o'erwhelm;
For, lo! there stood as pilot
An angel at the helm!

And there he stood in glory
Until the dawn of day,
When ocean's conflict over
We anchored in the bay.
But, oft, again in fancy,
I see that raging tide,
The dark, dismantled vessel,
And bright, celestial guide!

* * *

So, that sweet scene I pictured
I, thus, was spared to see—
Dear mother and the children
The candle-sparkling tree.
And to return the money,
With one repentant tear;
And cry, hurrah for Christmas
The Monarch of the Year!

Christmas in the Far North.

When Peary was in the Arctics his party had hurdle races for Christmas games and ice cream made from condensed milk for the dinner dessert. Their menu for that occasion included broiled salmon trout with tomato sauce, potato patties, olives, roast saddle of venison (reindeer) with cranberry sauce, cheese, candy, nuts, raisins, champagne, cigarettes and coffee.

The Old Soldier at Last Forced to Retreat.

Philadelphia's Great Christmas.

American history is replete with Christmas events. First comes Philadelphia's "tea party." On December 25, 1773, the tea ship was intercepted before it reached Philadelphia and sent back to England. This was nearly ten days after the still more famous Boston tea party, but it is a cherished event in Philadelphia's history.

Encouragement.

Jack—I suppose that young Richman who comes to see you so often will give you such an expensive Christmas gift that you won't want the trifling present I can afford to give you.

Marie—No. I think you had better save your money for—er—future contingencies, Jack.

THE CHRISTMAS TREE.

Where the Glass Decoration Come From.

How many of the hundreds of thousands of children and grown people who have enjoyed the sight of and helped to fasten the fragile ornaments to the Christmas tree know whence these dainty nothings come? At least nine-tenths of the world's supply of these flimsy little knick-knacks come from Thuringen-Wald, the forest of Thuringen, in Central Germany. Nothing could more appropriately be called the storeroom and workshop of Santa Claus than these elevated, as well as isolated, forest-clad mountain regions.

Every cottage among the mountains is a complete little factory, which turns out just as many goods as the numerical strength of the family permits. Everybody works, from the venerable grandparents, if they are alive, to the smallest child able to toddle.

As a rule the older members of the family—the father, mother and grown sons—perform the most difficult and hardest work, that of blowing and shaping the glass ornaments. The blowers generally sit three to five around a table, each making his particular pattern as suits his fancy. The three chief points of all absorbing importance observed are speed, cheapness and quality. The people might be said to be a race of artists in their particular line, and there is little waste from faulty designs. The glass used a great deal is known in the trade as flashed glass. The workman has two pots, one with colored and one without any mixture. As the work requires he dips his blowpipe in one or the other, sometimes mixing the two substances.

COLORING THE GLASS BALLS.

To produce the film of color he quickly immerses his bulb in the coloring fluid, which gives the object a marvelous lustre. The most delicate shading is obtained by eating away the color by means of fluoric acid, which is frequently employed, and most beautiful effects are thus produced. No one has seen these variegated Christmas tree decorations but has marveled at the intense brilliancy of their color. These superb effects are obtained by the use of metallic oxides, and are generally applied by some of the children of the family.

PUTTING ON THE LUSTRE.

As soon as the object leaves the glass blower's hand it is passed to some other member of the family, whose duty it is to fasten an eye or a hook, as the case may be, to the ornament. If to be dyed it goes to another who stands at the bath and dips every object with lightning rapidity. He or she then hands it to some child who puts it on a long stick for the drying oven. If an oven is not to be had the heat of the room or the sun has to perform this office. Then the silvering, which gives additional lustre to the object is attended to. This is done by dropping some quicksilver solution through a small opening left that for that purpose. The final touches are then given the ornament in the buffing or polishing with soft cotton batting.

In the immediate vicinity of the Louscha in the village of Steinheid, the people have taken up the manufacture of Christmas tree ornaments, made chiefly of the cheapest kind of tin. These ornaments are more durable and almost as cheap as the ones made from glass. The objection to them, however, is that from an artistic point of view they do not compare favorably with the latter. But there are many things to recommend them, and the dealers predict an enormous trade in this line. All sorts of shapes are made—stars, crescents, suns and all sorts of geometrical designs. They are cast so as to have one side deeply indented. On this side the ornamentation is done, which consists in lining the depressions or indentions of the pattern with a wonderfully brilliant substance. By skillfuly combining harmonious colors some very beautiful effects are obtained.

THE SONG OF THE FROST KING.

BY W. TYLER OLCOTT.

I'm king of the Alpine heights;
  I'm lord of the snow-capped peaks;
For me the avalanches roar,
  And the "cold-wrought silence" speaks.
I dwell in a palace of gleaming snow,
Where the cloud-mists dream of the sunset glow.

At my heels the wind-dogs cringe;
  At my word they swiftly dash
In mad career, over all the world,
  For they fear my stinging lash;
And the dawn-pink lingers alone for me
In the glorious light of the golden sea.

I'm king of the rock-bound crests;
  I'm lord of the rugged steeps;
For me the frost-sprite weaves a veil,
  And the sluggish glacier creeps.
I'm monarch of Earth's vast Solitude,
Where the frost and the cold forever brood.

A CHRISTMAS WOOING

BY E. B. BARTEN.

There has been many a memorable Christmas in my life, seared and scarred as it is by Time's rebuffs, but none is so fixed in my mind as that of 18—, none that comes back to me with so stirring, so boldly—outlined, so sweet a memory.

Perhaps it is as well not to dilate on my personality in that year, except to say that I was fresh from college, and full of the energy with which we all begin the real battle of life. Perhaps I was handsome. I thought so, at least, although I was not vain, and I am quite sure that one other certainly agreed with me. I was at—but I must stop descanting on myself, for I cut but a sorry figure in this tale.

Among my circle of acquaintances at college was Eugene Kerr, wealthy beyond the dreams of avarice, keen-souled and bright-eyed, dark-featured and handsome, taller than I by several inches, and with a nature as free and open as his speaking sparkling eyes. It was to his home that I had been invited to spend the holidays before engaging in the business of which I was destined to become the head in a few years.

At the Kerr home, a delightful country residence near New York, I was but one of a gay young party, for the Kerr family kept open house for a score of friends during the holidays.

As usual at these gatherings, we were thrown together continually, and my whole soul had suddenly gone out to the sister of my friend Eugene. Her head was covered with dark, shining, chestnut hair, luxuriant hair, that looked all the more luxuriant, perhaps, by reason of the careless way in which it was wrapped about her head. The great gray eyes were set deeply under a straight wide brow. A delicate nose that would turn up a little when she lifted her head, and a splendidly-cut, clever, wide mouth, the lips of which parted every now and then with a sweet smile, were there. This was her face, and it was fair enough; but it was her figure, her glorious, graceful, full, yet supple figure that struck me most.

Nor was she averse to my attentions, yet I noticed from time to time a coldness in the voice and face of Mrs. Kerr, the mother of my young friends. She was a stately matron, and in her sweeping black velvet dress and softly falling delicate white lace, which nestled about her head and throat, looked strikingly handsome.

Grace—that was the name of the daughter—seemed at times to be under the spell of the mother's eye. I noticed that the conversation would lag when the elder woman entered the room, and that all the airy gayety and sprightliness of the daughter would disappear under the withering glance of the mother.

There was a secret, a mystery which I had determined to fathom and so I proceeded about it in anything but a diplomatic manner, for I was young and thoughtless. My whole soul had become wrapped up in Grace. She was the ideal woman I had pictured in my dreams, and I had determined that she must be mine at any cost.

I look back to those days with wonderment, more perhaps at my own temerity under the circumstances, for I did not even know that I was loved in return.

"Gene," I remarked, one morning, after I had lain awake all night planning and hoping, "I want to talk with you about a matter that concerns me nearly—concerns us both."

He looked at me in some little amazement. Then putting his arm through mine, laughingly pushed me along, saying, "Well I should judge from your long face, it's something serious. Drive it away, old man, don't consort with your cares during the holidays. Never worry in December. January is an awful good month for broken vows, worriments and all that sort o' thing."

"Gene, I'm going to blurt it out and have it over with. I'm head over heels in love with your sister!"

"Walter!"

If I haven't mentioned it before I will say the above is my given name, although it really has nothing to do with the story.

There was that in Eugene's face which fairly dazed me. He seemed terror-stricken at my abrupt but simple announcement. All the acts of my life passed before me, for I was in vain endeavoring to find a cause for his consternation, and then I poured out my soul.

"Truly, 'Gene, there can be nothing against me. I have some wealth, excellent prospects, I am not a roue——"

"Hush, my boy," cried Eugene. "It isnt that! why my sister has been engaged for a year, and do you think my mother would ever forego a coronet! It's impossible!"

"Engaged! A coronet! What do you mean," I cried.

"I mean simply this," he replied, putting his hands on my shoulders. "Grace was abroad with mother, a year ago as you know. At that time—but please remember that this is all confidential, it's a family secret—Lord Deerland fell madly in love with Grace and proposed for her hand. Mother accepted the young man with alacrity, and I think Grace likes him. The formal announcement is to be made after the holidays and they are to be married in the spring. That's all there is to the story, my boy, and now don't make a fuss over it, but just accept the inevitable."

I presume I looked crestfallen after this disclosure and for twenty-four hours kept to my room, determined to get over my chagrin and not to spoil the Christmas party by any hasty departure.

On the following day, the day before Christmas, I summoned all my courage and went down stairs, into the midst of the gayety. The expression on Mrs. Kerr's face had undergone a delightful change. She fairly beamed on me, and a lurking suspicion filled my mind. 'Gene had undoubtedly told his mother and sister all, for in no other way could I explain the rhapsodic expression on the mother's face, and the sadness that seemed to have come over the younger woman. That of course was simply pity, I argued. She was like all the others, ready to play the coquette though she knew she would break a heart or two.

By a most fortunate chance I received a message late in the morning which summoned me to the city for a few hours on a matter of business. Eugene had arranged a sleighing party for the afternoon, and this I was forced to forego. My train left shortly after noon, and I was waiting at the station scanning a paper, my thoughts on a sweet face in the Kerr home, when I heard my name mentioned by the agent as he directed some one to the house on the hill. It was a telegram announcing the completion of the business and informing me that it would not be necessary for me to leave.

On this trifling incident hung my fate, for when I returned I found that the only one of the party who had not felt equal to the long drive was—Miss Grace.

She saw me coming up the hill, and in her amazement as I afterward ascertained, thought I had purposely deceived her mother and brother.

Oh, but her heart was beating for some one, and when she met me I knew by her sweet eyes that all the happiness of the days before my disclosure had come back to her heart.

I had her all to myself that afternoon, that glorious afternoon, the radiance of which has sent its light along the pathway of my whole life.

I dare not tell you what occurred except to say that when the party came back I had my telegram to explain my sudden return but no word of explanation for the joy in my soul.

And now for the finale. Yet it was only a finale to the old lady's ambition, and but the beginning of my "long sweet story."

The Christmas dinner was on! I could tell you every detail of it. I could tell you where Grace sat, and I remember distinctly every flower in her corsage. I see in my mind's eye every laughing face, every feature of the table and of the room. Aye, I remember even the dainty country-maid, with her natty cook's cap, coming into the room with a steaming fowl. You must bear in mind that this was long ago, before the days of the country house luxury which now prevails.

I recall the arrival of the dainty maid, for it was at that moment that Grace, contrary to all banquet formulas, arose, and looked her mother and brother full in the face, her eyes aglow with the spirit within, her face handsomer than ever in its framing of American pluck, and her stately form like that of a queen.

"I want you all," she said, "to listen to an American girl's Christmas determination. Perhaps what I am going to say is not according to rule, but I think it is according to right. I, an American girl, promise to become the wife only of an American citizen. I promise that I will preside over an American home or over none at all."

I cannot picture the consternation of the mother. I am quite sure that it completely spoiled her Christmas dinner. The guests, who knew nothing of the mother's plans, applauded the sentiment to the echo.

As for Eugene! Why, he is a sensible fellow, and he rather prides himself on his brother-in-law even to this day. Mrs. Kerr never fully forgave me, and even to her dying day occasionally referred in the saddest of accents to "that dear broken-hearted Lord Deerland."

And Grace! Why, she's dressing for the Christmas dinner even as I write.

LETTERS TO SANTA CLAUS.

Post-office Authorities Find Them Frequently at Christmas Time.

In every well-regulated post-office of large size there is a corps of "guessers" and directory searchers, who are kept busy for the express purpose of finding out where people live, when addresses are carelessly or not fully written out. Last year a letter came to the post-office, New York, with the superscripton "To Santa Claus, 263 Goat Street." There is no Goat street in New York, so the letter was stamped "misdirected," as in the reproduction above, and sent to Washington, where, it was supposed, Goat Street might be found. The clerks thought that fuller directions might be discovered inside, so they opened the envelope, and found the following letter:—

Dear Santa,—When I said my prayers last night I told God to tell you to bring me a hobby horse. I don't want a hobby horse, really. A honestly lively horse is what I want. Mamma told me not to ask for him, because I probably would make you very mad, so you wouldn't give me anything at all, and if I got him I wouldn't have any place to keep him. A man I know will keep him, he says, if you get him for me. I thought you might like to know. Please don't be mad.—Affectionately, John.

P. S.—A Shetland pony would be enough.

P. S.—I'd rather have a hobby horse than nothing at all.

Another letter, written by a girl of seven, who is sometimes "norty," was sent off some time ago, in order that Santa might have a good opportunity to get the doll's baby carriage and the "squeak cat for the baby."

My Dear Santa Claus.

I hope you are quite well. I have got a great big stocking reddy to hang up at Xmas. There is only one big hole in it at the top for you to put the things in. Plese bring me a dolls pram. If it is too big to put in my stocking plese tie it outside where I can see it. Dear Santa Claus I do like butter scotch. Plese not forget to bring some, also some nuts and oranges. My teacher tells me you will look at my face to see if I have been good. I am norty sometimes but plese don't forget me, and bring a horse for my little Tommy and a squeak cat for the baby. I love you very much and hope you will not forget poor little Jimmy who lives at Hope Cottage.

For individuality, and expression of a sweet, womanly nature, the following letter, written by an eleven-year-old girl, could hardly be surpassed:—

My Dear Santa Claus

I have been counting up the weeks to Christmas and am longing for the time to come. You have put something in my stocking lots of times, so please Dear Santa Claus, remember me again. Last year I wanted a dear little baby a real live one you know but I suppose it was too cold, and besides I did not write to you as I am doing now, so it did not come. Please bring me one this year, a little girl if you can. I have saved money enough to buy a cradle, and I can get plenty of flannelette to keep it warm. As babies are so expensive I will not ask for anything else for myself. Please bring a chooky pig for my little Clement. He will be nearly two years old then. Good-bye dear Daddy Christmas, with my best love, hoping you will not forget little Gertie.

P.S.—If you really do manage to bring the baby, please not forget the feeding bottle.

GETTING AN EARLY START.

Uncontrollable.

"Poor Alice had to give up her bicycle riding. She just could not learn."

"And why not?"

"She was so used to driving a horse that she kept jerking at the handlebars all the time as if they were a pair of reins."—Indianapolis Journal.

Visitor—What kind of a man is your neighbor, Mr. Flint?

THE DESTROYING ANGEL.

BY CARL SMITH.

Oh, the whuffy-duff was the prettiest bird
  That a toy shop ever knew,
With a great, long tail and with goose-quill wings,
  And a glass eye good and true:
But his wings are gone and his tail's pulled out,
  And his head is twisted awry,
For the goo-goo has torn him limb from limb,
  And has swallowed the whuffy-duff's eye.

The ooglety-dum had a wobbling head,
  And a nice, round, curving horn,
And a tail that would almost wag itself,
  And a nose turned up in scorn;
But the ooglety-dum isn't scornful now—
  He is meek and as sad as can be,
For the goo-goo has torn his short horn off
  And has broken his tail in three.

The whank-whank-whank used to squeak her joy—
  That is, when properly pressed—
With a voice that was hidden away somewhere
  In the depths of her hollow breast:
But I wish you could see the hapless corpse
  That is lying here on the bed;
Oh, the whank-whank-whank has a ghastly look
  Since the goo-goo tore off her head.

And yet, in spite of her deadly work,
  The goo-goo is dear to me;
Though she kill and maim I shall love her still,
  And her comrade in crime I'll be,
For when I turned and looked just now
  Where she lay in her trundle bed,
She reached me the wreck of the ooglety-dum,
  And "Papa" is what she said.

IN POVERTY ROW.

One of Them Had to Surrender.

During the revolution a little American privateer stole up on a British line of battle ship in a fog, mistaking her for an East India merchant, and ordered her to strike. When the seventy-four ran out her guns and threatened to blow her puny assailant out of the water, the Yankee skipper stepped to the gangway, and, taking off his hat, said politely: "Oh, very well, sir; if you won't surrender, I will."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Appearance Deceptive.

"You haven't changed much since I saw you last."

"You mistake. When you saw me last I was a Populist, and anti-expansionist and a free silverite. I am now a gold standard Republican expansionist."

"It's on me. What'll you drink?"

"I've quit drinking, too."—Chicago Tribune.

They Need Sympathy.

"Yes," said the young man, "literary work is very fatiguing."

"I should imagine so," replied Miss Cayenne. "When I realize that some authors have to keep their minds on the stuff they write I feel positively sorry for them."—Washington Star.

SAMMY TO SANTA.

Oh, Santa, dear old Santa,
  As this is Christmas eve,
Of you what rosy fancies
  Beside the hearth I weave.

Oh, now I know you're skimming
  Across the drifts of snow,
The whirlwinds madly kindling
  Your nose into a glow.

But when beside the gateway
  You tell the deer to stop,
And swiftly down the chimney
  Into my room you drop,

I wish you'd stack my playthings
  Upon the table near,
With all the shining candy,
  To me so very dear.

Not in this swinging stocking
  Are pretty playthings put—
'Tis mother's and a "biker,"
That hasn't got a foot.
—R. K. Munkittrick.

PRISONER'S PRESENT.

The Sheriff's Kindness Was Not the Sort They Wished For.

"Boys," began the Sheriff as he went among his prisoners in the county jail on Christmas eve, and sat down with them in a friendly way—"boys, I reckon yer awar' that to-morrer's C'rismas, hain't ye?"

"Yaas," drawled a couple of them, and all looking at the officer indifferently.

"Wall, I've bin a-thinkin'," he went on, "that I orter do sunthin' fur ye to-morrer, boys. I'm shore ye's appreshuate it if I did?"

"Ye bet we would!" was the hearty reply as they began to pay some attention to his remarks now.

"Wall, I believe ye would, boys. It's a blamed shame to keep ye penned up yere on C'rismas, an' I'm goin' to let ye all out fur the day. How does it strike ye?"

"Fust class—fust class!" they exclaimed, crowding around him and shaking his hand with great vigor.

"I'm mighty glad it pleases ye, boys," continued the Sheriff, seeming as happy over the matter as they were. "A man in my posishun, ye know, has gotter be hard-hearted an' strict, but I'm durned if I'd keep even a dawg shet up on C'ristmas."

"About what time will you let us out, Tom?" asked one of the delighted prisoners, while the others danced around excitedly.

"About 6 o'clock in the mornin', I reckon, Yaas, I'll hev the saws an' axes all ready by that time an' "——

"Saws an' axes?" he was interrupted with. "Saws an' axes?"

"Yaas, saws and axes. I'm a-goin' to let ye fellers come up to my house on C'rismas an' cut about six cords o' wood fur me. It'll be a big change fur ye all to git out o' yere an' sniff the fresh air again, but ye kin repay me fur my kindness by workin' fast an' "——

But he was interrupted again by every man trying to tell him at once that they'd be hanged if they wanted to go out for that purpose, and when the Sheriff realized that his offer had been refused he got up with a red face and thundered, as he turned to go:

"Wall, of all the durned idjets! Yere I come down an' offer to gin ye a change jest to make it a merry C'rismas fur ye, an' ye don't know 'nuff to take me up! Wall, jest go to blazes, the hull pack o' ye, an' the fust prisoner I h'ar grumblin' to-morrer will git throwed out o' this jail an' never be allowed to come back again!"

Why Tommy is Doing Penance.

Grandma—Are you looking forward to your Christmas dinner, Thomas?

Tommy—Yep, grandma, but not as much as Johnny Green, what lives up the street.

Grandma—Why so, Thomas?

Tommy—His grandma died last week and he'll get all her Chrissmus turkey.

Thomas is still standing on the cassock.

His Method.

"I never make Christmas presents," announced Cawker, solemnly, when the subject of holiday gift-giving was under discussion.

"Don't you?" replied four or five hearers in unison.

"No, I never make Christmas presents. I buy them."

Whited Sepulchres.

"Bobbie," said genial Mr. Thinlimm, "don't you want one of my golf stockings to hang up?"

"Naw, I don't! Then golf stockings are bluffs! All wool, but not an inch wide inside."

A Good Lesson.

Downtrod—I always take my wife to church on Christmas day.

Quizzer—Any special reason?

"Yes. The sermon's about 'peace on earth, good will to men.'"

In Faraway Asia.

Among the converts to the Christian religion on the eastern coast of Asia the custom prevails of telegraphing or cabling their Christmas congratulations to each other.

CHEERFUL.

There's many a trouble
Would burst like a bubble,
And into the waters of Lethe depart,
Did we not rehearse it,
And tenderly nurse it,
And give it a permanent place in the heart.

There's many a sorrow
Would vanish to-morrow
Were we not unwilling to furnish it wings;
So, sadly intruding
And quietly brooding,
It hatches out all sorts of horrible things.

Resolved to be merry,
All worry to ferry,
Across the famed waters that bid us forget;
And no longer fearful,
But happy and cheerful,
We feel life has much that's worth living for yet.

Georgiana C. Clark.

HER HUSBAND.

We were dining at the Savoy in London, and I was staring about me at the beautiful Englishwomen in the evening dress which is so strange to American eyes in a public restaurant. It was a gay scene and I enjoyed its full flavor.

I liked London. I had been there exactly three hours, but the peculiar atmosphere of the place, the Embankment with the strings of barges on the little, slow river, the great Nelson monument in Trafalgar Square—with its lions, the cabs—were all old friends. Like everybody else in America I was saturated with English literature, and as most of us need to have a thing described to us before we can see it though it be before our eyes, I really felt that I knew London better than New York. I had read more about it.

The man who sat opposite me smiled now and then in vast and beautiful content. He had told stories of Australia, where he had been for three years. He had had important business in San Francisco and had come home that way—for England was home to him. That was all that I knew of him, except that he was brown of skin, deep of chest, and with honest eye and a good laugh. One can't dislike a man with a real laugh. He had great tales of riding in Australia, of the red dust in the gold country, of the winds and the desolation. Evidently he had felt the tragedy as well as the comedy of his life. He was a likable chap and I wished I knew more of him than that his name was Gordon.

We left the table presently and strolled down towards the Embankment with our cigars. It was the sort of night in something. I didn't know much, but I felt like telling it. Perhaps I was hunting a leader when I said, "Odd a man likes England as much as you do should have left it."

The answer I expected was that he had gone out to make money; and I had a tale of my own which hung on money. But he grew suddenly grave.

"I went to Australia for the same reason nine men out of ten do anything—a woman."

I waited a minute for something more, and then I could think of nothing more original than the old saw about a woman being at the bottom of everything.

"Certainly she was at the bottom of my going to Australia. I loved her too much to stay."

"Was she married?" I asked.

"She was—and to a confounded rake, a chap who ought to have been horse whipped all over England. He drank, he raced, he gambled, he led her the devil of a life."

"That must have hurt."

"But not half as much as it hurt her."

"Do you think she loved you?"

"I know she did. That was the thing which finally gave me the courage to go away. There hasn't been a minute in these three years that I haven't known it, and it has made my life possible. If I hadn't known that she was here in this part of the world believing in me, trusting me, loving me, I'd have lost my head many's the time."

"And now?" asked I.

"Now I am going to see her again. She will be on the train from Paris which comes over that bridge there in just one little half hour. I haven't seen her for three years."

"I suppose her husband has died?" I ventured.

"No." He spoke with sternness.

"But——"

"There are no buts about it. We are going to pretend that drunken wretch is dead, and begin our lives all over again. We are going to take a yacht and poke its nose into every corner of the globe. I am going to take her out to Australia and show her some of those places where I suffered—and where the thought of her kept me alive."

"Do you think that is just fair to her? She may love you enough, but——"

"She's willing to risk life with me, and I am willing to risk it, although there was a time when I wasn't. When two people love each other as much as she and I do it overcomes everything."

I had liked the man so much that I hated to see him so wrong, and I made a final plea.

"But her husband? The man whose lawful wife she promised to be?"

He gave me a heavy grasp on the arm and burst into his happy, boyish laugh.

"But, man, I'm her husband! She's my wife!"—Robert McDonald in Munsey's.

THE PERSIAN JEWELS.

A Description of Their Splendor Reads Like a Fairy Tale.

A writer in the Illustrated Magazine says: Who has not heard of the Persian jewels—their glory, their number, their priceless worth? When the doors were unlocked and I was taken into the peacock throne room I found myself surrounded by a mass of wealth unequalled in the world. Nowhere are such treasures, but nowhere also is there such an accumulation of rubbish. I will, however, dismiss the rubbish and refer only to the treasures. Down each side of the room were chairs entirely covered with sheeted gold, and at intervals there were tables of gold nailed, and I shuddered to note, with the commonest of black headed tacks.

At the far end of the room was the wonder of the world, the peacock throne. Whether it is one of the seven thrones of the great Mogul and was brought from Delhi, I don't know, but it is certainly the most costly ornament that the eye can look upon. I inspected it most carefully. It is entirely of silver, a great camp-bed structure, but modeled in lovely designs. It is encrusted from end to end and from top to bottom with diamonds.

At the back is a star of brilliants that makes you blink. The rug on which the shah sits is edged with precious stones, and the pillow on which he reclines is covered with pearls. I could keep on writing about the dazzling beauty of the throne of the king of kings, but I never could get beyond declaring it to be a superb jewel.

But although the peacock throne is the magnum opus of the Persian crown jewels, it by no means extinguishes the magnificence of the other treasures. Who can attempt, however, to recount the number of bejeweled arms, the royal arms, the flashing aigrets, the trays piled up with cut and uncut stones and the bowls filled with pearls that you can run through your fingers like a handful of rice? Every one has heard of the Daria-i-Nur, or Sea of Light, sister-diamond of the Kohinoor, or Mountain of Light. Every one has also heard about the Globe of the World, made of seventy-five pounds of pure gold and 51,326 gems—the sea of emeralds, Persia of turquoises, India of amethysts, Africa of rubies, England and France of diamonds.

A COURAGEOUS DEED.

Went Inside a Furnace, on Top of a Banked Fire, to Fix a Bolt.

Few readers are aware that our warships carry boiler makers who are often called upon to perform perilous repairs, and, in cases of emergency, these men go inside of the boiler or furnace, which but a few minutes before had been filled with boiling water or red hot coal. There is no task too dangerous for these men to do. One of them undoubtedly saved the "Castine" from destruction in the harbor of San Juan. The "Castine" went into action under full speed. The furnaces were heated to the highest degree, forced draught being used. Without warning, a fierce hissing noise was heard inside one of the furnaces. A socket bolt in a back connection at the farthest interior extremity of the furnace had become loose, springing a leak. The steam was pouring in upon the fire, threatening in a few minutes to put it out and stop the progress of the vessel, if it did not cause a terrific explosion. All in the boiler room knew that, unless this hole was stopped, disaster was at hand. One of the boiler makers, named Huntley, ordered the forced draught turned off and the fires banked. Taking a plank, he threw it into the furnace on the top of the wet, black coal with which the fire had been banked and then climbed far back to the place where the steam was rushing from the loosened socket. For three minutes he remained inside the furnace. His friends drew him out of the door; the forced draught was turned on, and in a few minutes the ship was proceeding on her way as though nothing had happened.

Those Two Useless Buttons.

The story is told of a missionary who was laboring to convert a Chinaman, who found himself confronted by a question from the heathen, in this wise: "You think you know everything. Tell me, then, why you wear those two superfluous buttons on the back of your coat?" Many who suppose that the buttons in question were used to support the sword belt are in like manner nonplussed, as the practice of wearing a sword from the waist belt is comparatively recent; formerly, the sword belt crossed the right shoulder, as it is still worn in some uniforms, particularly that of the Scottish Highlanders. The two buttons, in fact, were used to button back the skirts of the long frock coats formerly worn by men, and corresponding button holes or loops occupied the corners of the said skirts. The French soldiers' overcoats are made in this manner to the present day. We have seen men use the same contrivance as a convenience for riding the bicycle.—Brooklyn Eagle.

A woman returning from a stay in England is authority for the statement that it is not uncommon over there for the owner of a handsome suburban residence to receive for pay an autumn or winter house party. She will act as chaperon if desired, or will efface herself in her own quarters, directing the management of the servants to relieve the temporary hostess from all care of that sort.—New York Post.

HANDLING A MODERN WAR RIFLE.

Something No Fellow Can Do Until He Has Had Instructions and Practice.

The magazine rifle, caliber 30, familiarly called the Krag-Jorgensen, is the army equipment of the infantry of the United States army. It has a range of about three miles and an accuracy never before attained in small arms; that is, when in the hands of a man trained to its use, for at the same distance a properly instructed soldier will pick off a man and the untrained one "miss a barn."

When one of these rifles is put in the hands of a new man the theory of its care and use is explained to him by a non-commissioned officer, and before the lecture is through his feelings are somewhat like those of Mark Twain after receiving his first lesson in piloting. He is ready to say "Sergeant, I can never get all that into my head, and if I did it would be so heavy that my legs would not be able to support it. I would have to go on crutches."

The sergeant's reply would be like that of Mark's preceptor: "My son, you have got to learn it, or you will never be able to use your rifle. You will get it by degrees. Private Blank is in the next bunk. Go to him and let him overlook every time you tilt a latch or turn a lever. Little by little you will learn it all, but if you are not careful you will have your piece unserviceable before you are aware of it."

Then comes the training in the gallery at close range, the grip of the piece, the pull on the trigger, the proper time and degree of expansion of the lungs, the proper expiration, &c.

And after that comes estimating distances, the theory of the course of the projectile through the air, the elevation required for certain distances. The recruit is taught that the expulsion of the bullet from the barrel gives it that eccentric movement called "drift," and that the air gives it another movement called windage; that atmospheric conditions often carry with them optical illusions, so that while the target appears to be in a certain place it is in reality several feet distant, and in order to shoot well he has to estimate these influences separately and in combination in every variation of light and wind.

By continued application he masters point after point until what first appears to be a tangled mass now proves to be a pleasing study, and then he thinks he knows it all, but he doesn't.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

NOTES FOR DAILY THOUGHT.

Sunlight and Shadow.

Always Safe.

It is always safe to take it for granted that, as yourself, so others are trying to do their best. Shortcoming is no sign of shortwilling. Sweetness is never whipped in.—J. F. W. Ware.

Be Glad For Something to Do.

Thank God every morning when you get up that you have something to do that day which must be done, whether you like it or not. Being forced to work, and forced to do your best, will breed in you temperance and self-control, diligence and strength of will, cheerfulness and contentment, and a hundred virtues which the idle will never know.—The Reformed Church Messenger.

Cultivate Cheerfulness.

We should train ourselves to see the good things, the bright things of life. There are few habits more common, even among Christians, than this of seeing and remembering unpleasant things and being blind to and forgetting the pleasant things, and there is no habit which is more inimical to cheerfulness.

The truth is, there are in the ordinary life a thousand pleasant things to one that is unpleasant. It is a shame, therefore, to let the one roughness of pain spoil for us all the gladness of a thousand good things, the one discordant note mar for us all the music of the grand symphony.—Forward.

Mourning in Colors.

The custom of wearing mourning is of an antiquity so great that its origin is uncertain.

People are accustomed to think of black as the only mourning color, but almost every color of the rainbow is used somewhere in the world as an emblem of mourning; black and white striped in the South Sea Islands, grayish brown in Ethiopia, pale brown in Persia, sky blue, Syria and Armenia; deep blue, Bokhara; purple and violet in France; Turkey, violet; China white, and Egypt and Burmah, yellow.—St Louis Globe-Democrat.

Hindoo Hospitality.

In his private capacity the Hindoo is frequently very hospitably inclined. The fact that his caste prejudices preclude him from eating with Europeans does not always prevent him from offering an invitation to dinner—his idea of English hospitality. This consists of his driving his guests to a hotel and paying for dinner, while he awaits its consumption in another part of the house. It takes one some little time to get used to this sort of procedure; but after a while one sees the propriety of accepting the kindness in the spirit which prompts it.

"Why," asked the youngest boarder, "do they measure the speed of a ship in knots?"

"I think," said the Cheerful Idiot, "that it has something to do with the tied."—Indianapolis Journal.

QUEER CONVENT IN MONTREAL.

Nuns are Mere Girls and Choose Coffins for Their Beds.

The city of Montreal can boast of the strangest convent that can be found in the civilized world. It is known as the Convent of the Holy Face. It is a very strange place, and very few persons have ever got much further than its reception-room. An old French-Canadian doctor founded the convent in his own house, where at the same time he keeps up the practice of medicine. The first members of the community were the five daughters of a couple whom he had known for years. The eldest of these was at the time of the inception of the institution, not over 18. These girls led a life of religious rigor, in which scourges and chains, and coffins as beds, and skulls as ornaments of their cells play a part. Although they have a mother superior in the eldest sister, the doctor is the final arbiter of all questions that pertain to the management of the community in which he the sole male in the place, lives. Many of the good Catholics of Montreal have declared, when asked, that the institution is a very proper and good one, and hundreds of women go there to have prayers repeated and to obtain rosaries, which the little nuns make.

An English woman who visited the place in company with a French-Canadian describes it as being more like a children's home. The nuns, some of whom are not more than 14 years of age, laugh and play about the house like so many happy little ones who are quite contented with their lot. The black dress is the every-day uniform, but at night and on feast days they put on a dress with a crimson front, upon which is painted the "saint face"—the face of the Savior—and wear a crimson veil. Dressed like this they sleep in their coffins.

When the Superioress was asked if they did not find the coffins uncomfortable and horrid to sleep in, she replied that, although at the beginning the coffins were rather creepy and strange, they had become so accustomed to them they would be really sorry if they should be obliged to do without them.

In summer they have a beautiful garden behind the house, with the stations of the cross, but beyond going there and to mass the nuns never go out. Every Friday they chain one another up and scourge one another but their appearance does not show that these harsh measures have either affected their physical welfare or their good spirits.

LOUIS PHILIPPE IN EXILE.

He Wanted to Marry an American Girl, but Her Father Objected.

A merchant prince was a great man in old Philadelphia—a far greater man than the master of a little school, even though it were the most select in the city—even though the teacher were an exiled French gentleman of royal blood, Duke of Orleans then, King Louis Philippe in after years.

The story of how the princely schoolmaster courted the charming Abigail, daughter of Thomas Willing, is related with new detail in the Ladies' Home Journal. Dressed in his best, and probably, notwithstanding that he was a modest and sensible young man, little in fear of an unfavorable response, the exiled Prince called on the American merchant and asked him for his daughter. There was, perhaps, more pride than humility in the answer he received:

"Sir, should you ever be restored to your hereditary position, you will be too great a match for my daughter; if not, she is too great a match for you."

So the poor schoolmaster went away disappointed and, although only his "position" and the lady's appear to have been considered by the hard-hearted parent, it is probable that if Mistress Abigail had not agreed with his opinion she would have made her influence felt. As it was, Louis Philippe married the Princess Marie Amelie, daughter of the King of Naples, while Abigail Willing of Philadelphia, who might have been Queen of France, became plain Mrs. Richard Peters.

HER MISSION AMONG SAILORS.

Countess Schimmelmann Spends Her Life on a Gospel Yacht.

The Countess Adeline Schimmelmann of Denmark, has adopted a unique manner of accomplishing mission work. She makes her home on a yacht and goes from port to port for the purpose of evangelizing sailors.

The Countess who deserted the gayeties and luxuries of the Danish court to become an evangelist to the sailors of the world, has done untold good in the great seaports of Europe which she has visited. A coffee house or home of some kind remains in almost every port where she has labored, as a lasting memorial to her efforts.

The Countess is an enthusiast in her work. Despite the opposition of her relatives, who once had her placed in an asylum, she has consecrated her life and fortune to the work. All the expenses of her mission yacht are met from her own funds, although unsolicited donations are received. She sold her jewelry and her country home to carry on the work. The Countess has never been married, and is still a comparatively young woman. Although the appointments of her yacht are luxurious, her dress is simple. In no way does she attempt to impress upon people her high rank meeting all on the common plane of humanity.

BARRELS AND BOTTLES OF PAPER.

Inventions That Will Probably Benefit Large Consumers.

John Sandevelde of Cleveland, is the inventor of two articles, which will have a tendency to decrease the price of several commodities. His inventions are paper barrels and paper bottles for beer or other beverages. For a long time the price of many liquid commodities sold in bulk has been gauged by the price of the barrels in which they are transported. The barrels are constructed for the greater part of paper cardboard, which is impervious to water. They are slightly shorter in height than the ordinary barrel, but will hold as much, as they are without the usual bilge of the wooden barrel. The paper in the walls of the barrel is three-fourths of an inch in thickness, of many plies, between which are thick coatings of a specially prepared glue. About the middle of the barrel is a single hoop of steel, three inches wide and three-eights of an inch thick. This, therefore, extends from the barrel to such a distance as to permit of the barrel being readily swung about on its center. Pressed over the ends of the walls of the barrel are rims of pressed steel three-fourths of an inch thick and extending downward three inches. It is on an indented surface in the inner portion of this rim that the head of the barrel rests. The heads are also made of paper, slightly thicker than that in the walls of the barrel. They are held in place by three bolts passing through the barrel from end to end. Nuts on each end hold them in place and permit of the heads being easily removed or placed in short order.—Toledo Commercial.

WHEELED VEHICLES IN MADEIRA.

Only Six on the Whole Island—Runners on Most of the Conveyances.

Our consul at Madeira reports that ten years ago there was not a single wheel on the island of Madeira, while now six vehicles boast of wheels. Then, how do the people travel? On sleds drawn by oxen, the roads and streets being over two hundred years old and worn smooth as ice. Where the country is hilly travel is on horses and in hammocks. "Our sleds," writes the Consul, "or cars, as they are called, are carriages on runners, instead of wheels. Some of the private cars are beautifully upholstered. The bodies are made of hard wood, carved and finely finished. The bullocks are large, well groomed, and can be safely used up or down hill at almost any angle. Every driver carries a rag or coarse towel well saturated with grease. This from time to time he puts down in front for the runners to pass over. In summer during the dry season, the grease and friction makes the pavements almost as smooth as glass, and this compels the buying of Madeira-made boots. The soles of these boots are spongy and cling to the pavement." It is said that roads outside of Funchal are so crooked and the hills are so steep that there never has been and probably never will be any demand for bicycles, or, in fact, for any wheeled vehicle.

Stanley's Regard for His Cat.

As the bonds of friendship are strengthened by a heavy affliction so does a prolonged sojourn in foreign places, amid strange scenes, turn the most common of every-day sights at home into luxuries. A magazine tells a story of Henry M. Stanley, who, after his return from Africa, was busily engaged in writing his story of the "Dark Continent."

He used to spread his reference maps upon the floor of his room, and on this particular day, after searching in his near neighborhood for a chart which he much needed, he spoke to his assistant, who presently descried it near the fireside, with Stanley's favorite cat upon it asleep.

He started to turn the intruder off, when the great man interrupted him, saying,—

"Never mind; don't disturb the cat. I'll get along without the chart until the cat wakes up. If you only knew how good the sight of that domestic cat curled up in front of that bright English fire is to me, you would never chase her away."

The cat slumbered on, and not until she arose with a lazy yawn, scratching her front nails on the rug as she stretched, did the famous explorer reach for his map.

Fishing as a Help to Eloquence.

It seems that Daniel Webster went fishing when he wanted to compose the finest passages in an oration. One of his biographers was with him on a fishing excursion to Mashpee Brook, on Cape Cod. Webster, at times, was so deeply absorbed with his own thoughts that he held his hook out of water. Suddenly wheeling, he extended one hand to the overhanging trees and uttered the memorable sentences in the Bunker Hill oration, addressed to the survivors of the revolution, and beginning: "Venerable men, you have come down to us from a former generation." On the strength of this precedent, fishing for eloquence is to be recommended.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

IF I WERE SANTA CLAUS.

If I were only Santa Claus,
And Santa Claus was me,
I'd show to him just what a good
Old Santa Claus I'd be.
I'd always bring the kind of toys
And story books for him;
I'd find his stocking ev'ry year,
And fill it to the brim.
This year I'd bring a book or so
On how we conquered Spain,
Or how a boy pursued his foe
Across the Klondike plain.
And boxing-gloves—and, say, I guess
A pistol would be great
To Klondike with. And then—oh, yes,
A wheel for ninety-eight.
I'd bring a leather suit and hat—
The kind that cowboys wear.
Of bowie knives and things like that
He'd have a lot to spare.
I'd fill his stocking then with all
The candy it would hold,
And where the packages were small
I'd fill in round with gold.
And when they saw how good I was,
How happy folks would be
If I were only Santa Claus
And Santa Claus was me.

CHRISTMAS LIGHTS.

Christmas was at hand. The stores in the fashionable shopping quarters of New York, with their gorgeous show windows, furnished abundant evidence of the fact. In the poorer districts of the city Christmas did not seem quite so much a prospect, as, for example, in Plug Alley, which was not very distant from the bazaars, yet few of the gay crowds ever troubled themselves to visit its dingy confines. Indeed, the calling list of the alley might be said to be confined to the rent collector, the sanitary inspector, the city missionary, a Salvation Army lassie, the fire engine, police van, and ambulance. Policemen were frequent sights in that congested miniature world, which seemed to lie in an unusual amount of wickedness.

Now, as Cripple Dick, who lived, or at least existed, in the third story front room of the dilapidated building which formed one side of the alley, was unable to feast his eyes on the displays in the shop windows, he took it out in watching the miscellaneous sights just referred to, when missioners passed, or hoodlums were arrested. Dick had never seen any such specimen of gorgeous tophamper as a full-rigged hat of the fashionable style, but he respectfully admired the bonnets of the Salvationists. Dick often wondered why the Salvationists looked so happy when they worked so hard and had so little. Dick was a good judge of hard things, for he had been accustomed to them all his life of eight painful years. Like Mephibosheth, of whom he had never heard, he had been dropped when a child and so crippled for life; but unlike Mephibosheth, his fall was not due to the fright of a nurse, but to the brutality of a drunken father, who in a fit of rage had knocked him from his weak mother's arms on the hard floor. Orphaned Dick's world ever since had been Plug Alley. He knew that there was a bigger world about him, but judging from the representatives of it, he had seen that the world had no concern with the denizens of Plug Alley save to lecture, arrest or fumigate them.

One day, however, Dick had learned the secret of the happy-heartedness of the Salvationists. One of them, a sweet-faced young lassie, who Dick was sure must be a lady, found the maimed boy out and told him some things he had never heard before, speaking to him of the Lord Christ as though he were some one who was very lovely and very near, who once was bruised and maimed in a more cruel way than Dick had been, yet through no fau.t of his own, but for the sin of men. Dick had cried that day, from thought of that Other's woe.

The lassie visited Dick again, just befor Christmas. "Do you know what Christmas means?" she asked. "Sort of!" said Dick. "It means that the grocer down at the corner tries to sell greens that ain't no good for cookin', and that the coves down at the Five Pints has a bang-up dinner for onct in awhile. And I've heerd," he added reflectively, "from Bill Jenkins wot has a news-stand!" (Dick spoke the words with great respect) "that other coves wot lives on the avenue has big game that day in the way of presents!"

Dick looked wistfully out of the window as he spoke at the bit of smoke-blurred sky that lightened dimly above the clothes-lines on the roof of the house opposite. Dick always supposed that if he ever went to heaven his soul would somehow have to pass by those clothes-lines and run the gauntlet of the shirts and socks of the day laborers whose washing Mrs. O'Grady did "for a consideration," but probably, if the truth were known, without much consideration.

"Oh, Dick," replied the lassie, "Christmas is more than that. The first Christmas was when the dear Lord came to earth and lay as a little child in a rough stable yard in Bethlehem, as the great Gift which cannot be told out in all its preciousness. And ever since people have been giving their little gifts one to another as tiny copies of his great sacrifice. He came to bring light to those who sit in darkness—"

"Like me!" interpolated Dick.

"Yes," said the lassie, "like you. But, Dick, we were all in the dark till the Christ came. He is the light of the world. And ever since his coming the Christmas lights have been burning—the lights of faith, love, joy and hope."

This and more the lassie said, while Dick listened as an exile might eagerly give ear to the tidings from a distant shore and sphere. And then Dick's visitor, handing him a toy bank, said: "The money in this is for you, dear boy, to get yourself something nice for Christmas. It's a little present from the Christ. I hope you will enjoy it!"

Dick awkwardly murmured his thanks, half-dazed by such kindness. He had never been called "dear" except by the deaf aunt who took care of him, who had several times intimated that he was a charge rather dear to keep. The money in the bank happened to amount of $1.89, the nucleus of a sum that the lassie had been saving toward a new bonnet, since the one she had was decidedly weather-worn. But she did not tell Dick that.

Dick made a mental note of all the things he would like to get. But then—he thought of that great gift. Strange dreams of Judean hills and of the outreaching in blessing of Christly hands afterwards pierced on the cross came to him. The result was that Dick formed some very definite plans. He commissioned Bill Jenkins to make some purchases for him.

Christmas eve came. A little company assembled on invitation in Dick's humble lodgings. Mrs. O'Grady was there, and Bill, and little Towzie-head from the floor below, and a day laborer who sometimes waved his hand to Dick from the sidewalk, and Dick's deaf aunt. A wee tree which had cost nine cents at the grocer's stood in the window, with a number of candles attached thereto. Near by were mysterious packages. There was a mop for Mrs. O'Grady (Dick meant it for a hint), and a cap for the day laborer, and a rocker for the old aunt, and a pair of gloves Dick had made Bill get for himself, and some toys for "Towzie."

"But where is your Christmas?" they all exclaimed to Dick.

Mine is the Christmas lights!" cried Dick gleefully, feasting his eyes on the tallow dips.

Some one had long ago said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Had Dick heard this? At any rate, he felt the truth of it in his heart that night. In the height of the festivity Bill slipped quietly off. He wanted to buy something for Dick. At the door below he ran across some Salvationists who were passing. One of them was the lassie. She recognized Bill, and looking up to the third-story window, asked:

"What are those candles in the window?"

"Oh, those are Dick's Christmas lights," answered Bill. And then he told her how Dick had spent his money.

"Oh," said the lassie, "I wish I could get him something for his generous little self. Perhaps I can in the morning. Good night!"

"Good-night," answered Bill, as he ran off.

By the next morning the lassie had made up a wonderful package for Dick. As the Christmas chimes rang out on the frosty air, she went to Plug Alley, full of the pleasurable excitement of surprising Dick. But something had happened in the night. Dick was not there. He had gone beyond the patch of sky which lightened over the house-top yonder. Only his still and crippled form was left. He had smiled as he went, so the heavenly beacons must have blazed for him in welcome. "Don't cry," exclaimed the lassie to the old aunt. But as she said this, the tears ran down her own cheeks. Yet it wasn't a time for tears, but for hallelujahs! Dick had gone from the dark world where the Christmas lights are sometimes lit to one where the Christmas lights are always burning.

THE BABY'S FORTUNE

"Bring me the baby," Hammond said, and the nurse, used to sick people's fancies, complied with the request, setting the baby down on the bed.

"Now, if you please, I'd like to have you leave us alone a while. You see," he added apologetically, "I want to have a little private conversation with him."

The nurse smiled faintly and went away. Hammond looked at the baby for a few moments in critical silence.

"You're a bouncer," he said at length. "You most certainly are."

The baby gurgled and laughed and showed four small teeth.

"Oh, it's a great old joke, of course!" Hammond went on rather bitterly though he was smiling back into the boy's big, bright eyes.

Hammond tipped the small head forward and closely examined the top. The tiniest of ringlets were beginning to curl themselves thereon, and when he let the baby straighten up a small damp spot had appeared down among the curls. Hammond fumbled about under the pillows for his handkerchief but failed to find it, so drew his sleeve across his eyes.

"Don't you imagine, my boy, that I'm crying. Not a bit of it! It's just this beastly cold I've got that gets into my eyes sometimes. I wonder if you've noticed the doctor? He was here this morning, and do you know that fellow told me I can't get well, all on account of this cold? He even seemed to think that I might be going before long, for he shook hands with me before he went away and told me not to worry, that it wouldn't be hard at the last, that I'd just go to sleep."

Hammond regarded the baby whimsically for a moment, then his face changed. "How I could have loved you if you had been mine!" he said intensely. "Great God! How I do love you, any way!"

"Perhaps when you get big, you'll like to tell people about that money of yours; that it's gold from the Klondike. It's all right to preach against going to the Klondike, for it's a nasty kind of place; but the gold is there and some men find it and get home with it, too, even though they do catch their death doing it and have to leave the stuff to kids like you."

"One fellow was fool enough to expect when he got back to find a lovely girl whom he could make comfortable and happy forever after, and who would make a heaven on earth for him. He stayed a long time. I'll admit; but then, he was grubbing out more and more every day. And what does he find when he gets back? You, sir; yes, you!

"Not that I'm blaming you for it—not at all. I don't intend to blame anybody, not even her mother; that is, not now. But it's been hard on me, you know, uncommonly hard on me. Besides," he added reflectively, "you musn't take offense at my mentioning it, but you dad's distinctly commonplace, even if he is a friend of mine. But then, I'm rather on the commonplace order myself."

He was growing weary, so it was a relief to have the nurse enter and to hear her say, "The baby will have to be going now, Mr. Hammond, he's stayed long enough." So Hammond kissed the baby's cheek and his forehead, his knees and his hands, and the back of his neck; and closed his eyes while the nurse carried the child away.

That was about six o'clock in the evening, and some twelve hours later the nurse drew the sheet up over Hammond's face and went to tell Mr. and Mrs. Margrave what had happened.

It was a week after this that Mr. Margrave came home trembling with suppressed excitement. "What do you think Marie?" he exclaimed to his wife.

"What is it?" asked Mrs. Margrave, trying to show an interest which she did not feel.

"There's been a good deal of speculation at the club as to what Hammond brought back from the Klondike. Nobody had any idea how much it was. Well, to-day I received an invitation from Judge Morehouse to be present at the reading of his will. And what do you think?"

Mrs. Margrave was non committal, partly because she feared to trust her voice. It was not easy for her to talk about Hammond.

Mr. Margrave's face was flushed and his eyes shining. "It's a hundred and fifty thousand if it's a cent, and he's left every penny of it to the baby, our baby, Margrave, Jr., if you please. What a stroke of luck that I asked him here when he got so desperately sick! It was dreary at the hotel, but his dread of the hospital was mere childishness. I felt at the time that it was rather a weakly sentimental thing to do; but you know I am soft hearted, and he was an old friend, though I never thought he amounted to much. Supposed at one time that he was in love with you, but I never was certain about it. Poor old Hammond! I wish I'd liked him better; he must have been very fond of me. Well, I shall always regard his memory with gratitude and affection."

Mrs. Margrave was silent. She held the baby up close to her face, so that her husband did not see her tears or that she had grown very pale.—Carrie Clark Nottingham, in Munsey's.

Portugal's Queen Becomes Doctor to Save the King.

Marie, Queen of Portugal, is a doctor of medicine. She is the only woman of royal blood in the world who has achieved such distinction.

Five years the queen devoted to the study of medicine. She had the ablest physicians in Portugal for instructors. Every moment of time which she could call her own was given to study.

Behind this history of the scientific labors of the queen is a pretty love story. It was not love of sciences, but love of her husband which has been the incentive to her work.

The Princess Marie Amelie was the daughter of the Comte de Paris. She married blond, good natured Carlos, and then straightaway fell in love with her husband. Their romantic attachment is one of the prettiest stories ever chronicled of royalty.

Soon after the marriage King Carlos, already stout, became corpulent to a painful degree. The formation of fat about the heart became highly dangerous. The doctors could not agree about the treatment. The king travelled about to many spas and used all of the obesity cures, but without avail.

The devoted queen, meanwhile, was his devoted and constant companion. Finally, becoming disgusted with the physicians, she determined to become one herself.

There are many ludicrous stories told of the queen's first experiments. She pressed the entire court into service as patients.

The queen has done more to restore her husband to health than any of the great specialists to whom he resorted.

Queen Amelie is one of the royal European beauties. She is immensely popular with her subjects. When she went as a bride to Lisbon she infused new life and spirit into the sleepy old town. She organized fairs and entertainments for the poor. The court circle became noted for its brilliant gayety.—New York World.

THINGS FORBIDDEN IN WAR.

Certain Regulations Which Are Recognized by Civilized Countries.

It is perhaps not generally realized that the game of war is hedged round by as many restrictions as a boxing contest under Queensberry rules. These regulations, which are under the sanction of all the civilized countries of the world, are designed to insure fair play for the combatants.

When it is intended to bombard a place, due notice should be given so that all women and children may be removed to a place of safety; and every care must be taken to spare churches and hospitals, as well as all charitable or educational buildings.

All chaplains, doctors and nurses are protected in every possible way, and are not to be taken prisoners or in any way injured.

Any soldier robbing or mutilating an enemy is liable to be shot without trial, and death is the penalty for wounding or killing a disabled man.

The bodies of the enemy are to be carefully searched before burial, and any articles found on them which might lead to their identification are to be sent to the proper quarters.

Explosive bullets must not be used and quarter must be given the enemy whether he asks for it or not. In an attack on the enemy there must be no concealment of the distinctive signs of the regiments. Poisoning drinking water is strictly forbidden.

Put to the Proof.

"Yes, darling," he said, in tones of deep tenderness, "I would do anything to show my love for you."

"Ah," sighed the gentle maiden, "that's what all men say when they are striving to win a woman's heart!"

"Put me to the proof!" he exclaimed, in wild passionate tones; "put me to the proof! Test me, and see if I fail! Set me any task within the bounds of possibility, and it shall be performed!"

"Ah," she murmured, "if I could only believe you!"

"Put me to the test. Say to me, 'Do this or that,' and it shall be done."

"Then I will put you to the test."

"Ah," he exclaimed, exultantly, "you shall behold the height, the depth, the length, the breadth, the circumference of my love! What is the test?"

The maiden dropped her eyes, a smile dimpled the corners of her mouth, and, bending over the youth at her feet, she whispered:

"Marry some other girl."—Tit-Bits.

Why Do We Yawn?

There can be little doubt that one of the objects of yawning is the exercise of muscles which have been for a long time quiescent, and the acceleration of the blood and lymph flow which has in consequence of this quiescence become sluggish. Hence its frequency after one has remained for some time in the same position—for example, when waking in the morning.

Co-operating with this cause is sleepiness and the shallow breathing which it entails. This factor, as well as muscle quiescence, is apt to attend the sense of boredom which one experiences in listening to a dull sermon. Hence it is that the bored individual is apt to yawn. As in the case of sighing, the deep breath which accompanies the act of yawning compensates for the shallow breathing which is apt to excite it.

"Did that stuff revive you?" asked the attending physician of his impatient patient.

"Revive me, Doc? Good heavens! Three doses of that medicine would resuscitate the dead languages."—Detroit Free Press.

THEIR HARLEM BENEFACTORS.

A Procession of Old Women Moving Toward Work and Something to Eat.

The number of old women who beg on the streets seems larger this year than ever before, says the New York Sun. All the well known types are out. But one role seems to be the favorite. A wretched, poorly clad, feeble old woman stops a passerby. He is proof against the pitiful tale of the artful beggar; but this respectable old soul doesn't want to beg. Far from it. She wants only information.

"Is it a long walk to 168th street, sir?" she asks in a tremulous, weary tone.

"About a hundred and fifty blocks."

The woman sighs and turns away without another word. Then the victim does the expected thing.

"Why did you ask?" he says.

"Oh, I know a lady up there that would help me, and I'm going up to ask her for work and something to eat, but it's a long walk."

She gets a carfare and goes on her way rejoicing. If she isn't on her way to some charitable friend, she is bound for a hospital and doesn't quite see how she can walk so far. In the course of one afternoon's shopping last week a young woman met five respectable looking old women, all of whom were toiling toward Harlem benefactors. The story is being overworked, but it is a good one.

A Grave Dissappointment.

"The small son of the people," says the Philadelphia Record, "and his little sister were inside the great West Philadelphia church for the first time. 'Um—m—my! but it's a beaut place,' he whispered. 'I bet people wot belong here comes every time dey can.' Her breath came to her in little gasps. Her soiled little finger pressed on his with thrilled intensity. Her eyes feasted on the splendid chancel. 'Heaven mus' be next door,' she said. They hardly moved throughout the service and never once let go each other's hands, for it was as a strange land. At last the sweet-voiced procession of choir boys came down the aisle. At its head was a slim young seraph, with a face as fair and pure as the linen he wore. Faint, dark circles beneath his eyes completed the ethereal effect. 'Is dem angels?' the little girl began, but stopped short, surprised at the look on her brother's face. 'Dat kid in front's 'Bill' Griggs, wot I licked last week fer swipin' tings from ole Mrs. Maguire's apple stand. He ain't got over dem black eyes I gev 'im yet. Come on, let's get out.' His face was stern and set as they went. She furtively wiped a tear."

A DAKOTA MONSTER.

The rain, which had turned to icy pellets since sundown, beat against the ragged, storm-rent covering of a cricket covered wagon slowly wending its way along a lonely road in the western part of North Dakota.

Within the vehicle was a heart bowed down by the touches of a recent bereavement; and, there was another heart therein also—one as yet incapable of understanding emotions. A mother and her child were on their way toward the setting sun, to a home that had been offered them when the death angel came and visited their own. The mother hourly realizes the distance growing between her and her husband's grave; and the babe, awed to silence by the choking sobs and caresses of the heart-broken mother was finally lulled to sleep by the sighs of the quivering lips and the soothing pattings of the tremulous hand.

Afar in the distance ahead, beyond the jagged horses whose limbs rose and fell mechanically, reared an ominous cloud whose import was well known to the African who held the reins in his hands. East, west, north and south, the plain stretched away into the distance—cold, cheerless, merciless, frozen into ghastly melancholy by the silver glitter of the stars, and white-coralled by the frosty grass blades, sere and brittle.

"I reckon dar's gwine fo' to be one oh dem nasty blizar's soon. Whoof Dem's de debil's own bref fo' blowin de life out ob folkses. G'long dar, ole Gray! You'ur alleses hangin' back fo Sandy. Hi, golly! I hope de good missy won't look out now. She'd be down——"

"What is the meaning of that cloud ahead, Joe?" asked the woman, as her eyes ranged the sky beyond the horses heads.

"Nuffin', nuffin,' missy! Jess a cloud or'nary cloud, dat's all," responded Joe, as he touched old Gray with the goad.

"Joe, why not stop here for the night? The jolting of the wagon makes me ache all over; and I am so tired!"

"Honey, yo' see dat brack hill 'way ober dar?" asked Joe, as he pointed toward the dark outlines of an object rising from the plain. "I's gwine fo to reach dat hill if old Gray gotter bust a shoe."

"I see the hill, Joe—it must be some miles away; but why so anxious to reach it?"

"'Case—dat's all!" laconically replied Joe, urging on the tired horses.

"Well, I suppose you know best. Oh shall we never reach home? Home What a strange word that seems to me! I have no home—no home!"

"We'll git dar purty s'un, honey; an when the babby an' yo' aur dar, why—yo'll be dar, chile, bress yo'!"

There was but slight consolation to be derived from the honest fellow's words. So the widowed mother withdrew her face and closed the opening in the canvas.

"I—I doan dar tell poo' missy 'bout de nasty blizzar' dat's comin'. If dem poo' nags kin holl out little longer we'll reach de hill—an' dat'll keep off de wusser part ob de debil's bref."

The cloud beyond grows larger and larger every moment. It swells and spreads as it approaches the wagon sweeping like a giant crescent between earth and sky, obscuring the blinking stars, and murmuring ominously like the sullen roar of the distant tempest.

With gaunt, gloomy, ghostly arms the giant monster of the Northwest approaches. The cold, like the grim premonition of death's draught, penetrates the canvas of the wagon, piercing the flesh of mother and child with daggers as of ice.

"Joe! Joe! What is it?" cries the voice from within.

"Nuffin', nuffin', honey!" chatters the negro, as his frozen fingers mechanically clutch the reins. "Yo' jess pull dem blankets close 'bout yo' an de babby. We'll git dar, bress God Yes, chile, we'll git dar by—by de bright light!"

The words falteringly fall from the half-palsied lips like the murmurs that come when the speaker is slowly but surely drifting into the land of slumber.

Five, ten minutes pass; the tempest increases. The pale face of the woman again appears in the rent in the canvas. She speaks. Joe is silent. Again she speaks, and louder. The faithful black's ears are locked, and he does not answer. She reaches out her hand and shakes him. Merciful heaven! The rigid form topples over the side of the wagon and falls upon the ground, stiff, frozen! His eyes are wide open, and they stare up out of the depths of chaos into the illimitable eternity beyond the swishing gusts of snow and leaden, sullen sky.

The sudden drag upon the reins stops the horses. The poor creatures lean to the pole and rub their noses together; and thus standing they freeze, freeze inch by inch, while their legs turn to ice, rigid, supporting.

And then the monster, the white wraith of the Northwest, engulfs the fated wagon. It rips the canvas from the stays and bears it away with shrieks of laughter. The mother and child are now exposed to the pitiless buffeting of the whirlwind raging furiously about them. The entire plain seems one heaving undulating mass as far as the eyes can reach. Like the swallowing waves of the ocean the clouds of snow beat against the skeleton-like wagon as though to tear it from earth and bear it away in fury's arms.

One last yell of demoniac laughter and the monster has performed its work. The icy lips of the mother are pressed to the icy lips of the dead baby. A life goes out to its God in a sighed prayer, and all is over.

PLYMOUTH BRETHREN.

Dismissed from Beecher's Church, Mrs. Tilton Joined this Society.

The strength of that peculiar sect, the Plymouth Brethren, cannot be satisfactorily estimated, since it has no formal organization. It has no connection with the Plymouth Church of Brooklyn, N. Y., where the mighty intellect of Beecher swayed the most enlightened congregation that ever honored a preacher with hard listening and high thinking, yet, by some strange perversity of fate, it became the harbor of refuge for the tortured soul of the woman who wrecked her home, destroyed herself and weakened the influence of the great Congregationalist.

The Plymouth Brethren are wise in one way—they have no official ministry, recognize no order of ministers, condemning pulpit calls as the cause of sectarian divisions. They utterly reject confirmation. They receive into communion all who confess Christ and acknowledge the Holy Ghost as His vicar. They exclude persons known to have been guilty of gross sins from participation in the Lord's Supper until proof is afforded of repentance. They administer the sacrament to one another at the Sunday meetings. Among their tenets are original sin and predestination, and the baptism of adults without regard to previous infant baptism. As to the earthly future—why, every man Jack of them is a red-hot millennialist. As to that other future in the Great Beyond, they believe solemnly in the efficacy of Christ's sacrifice and the power of His intercession.

The charges against Henry Ward Beecher ended, as we all remember, in the Scotch verdict—"not proven." Social ostracism Mrs. Tilton could survive, but to be banished by her church, to be sent into spiritual, pietistic exile, was too much for her thin, wavering, dependent soul. Her hysterical temperament made it positively necessary that she should either die or have the shadow of an imaginary substance to cling to. She learned of the Plymouth Brethren, she studied their tenets, she inquired of their quality of Christianity, and finally after years she went to them and confessed her sin. Satisfied of her repentance they took her in, and she died in April, 1897, a member of their order. Some men maintain that her confession is to be found in Matthew v., 28, but others are less charitable.—New York Press.

POLITICS WORSE THAN WAR.

Why an Old Woman Worried About One of the Soldiers.

"A month ago," remarked the drummer who sells saddlery and harness goods, "I was out in that part of West Virginia where Grover Cleveland and Joe Miller used to go fishing, and in the course of a side trip I was making in a buckboard, in order to take in some of my customers along the edge of civilization, I stopped one day at a hillside tavern presided over by Aunt Susan Mullins, who is as wise a philosopher as she is superior in the art of preparing a fine mountain dinner. I was talking to Aunt Susan on the war.

"Were any of your folks at the front, Aunt Susan?' I inquired.

"None uv my own kinfo'ks, but Sarey Jackson's boy was, and Sarey is almost a sister to me.'

"'I supose you were worried a good deal about him during the fighting before Santiago, weren't you? I know how I felt about a brother I had with the Rough Riders. It is a terrible strain on people at home to have to sit still and wait, every minute expecting to hear that they are killed, or badly hurt.

"'Yes,' she replied, rather hesitatingly; 'that's mighty bad and oncomfortable, but 'twan't that what worried me so much about Sarey's boy as his comin' home after the war's over.'

"How do you mean?' I asked, puzzled past understanding, for the home coming seemed to be the most joyous part of it.

"'Well, you see, Jeemes is fer all the world like his pappy was—one uv these here good natered men that everybody likes and is so all fired popular that they ain't got no time to 'tend to their own business. Jeemes' pappy went into the last war and fit like a wildcat, and when he come home the people run him fer the Legislater and elected him, and he never wuz wuth shucks frum that day until they buried him. Jeemes has fit just like is pappy done, and a constable told me t'other day that they wuz goin' to run Jimmy fer the Legislater shore ez shootin' and he'd sweep the county like a whirlwind, and that's wat skeers me fer Jeemes. Politics is a heap sight wus on a man than war.'"—Washington Star.

An Erroneous Diagnosis.

After breaking into a doctor's office, relates the Cincinnati Enquirer, he sat down and said: "Will you kindly look into my eye and tell me what is the matter?"

"Certainly," was the quick reply. Then the physician opened up the refractory optic and began in a hurried manner: "I see at a glance that you have been suffering from kidney trouble. Your liver is also out of order, and there is danger of you having an attack of gastritis unless the matter is quickly corrected. From the distended pupil I should say that your nerves are in a debilitated condition, and that—"

"Hull up there," came the voice of the patient.

"What's the matter?"

"Dad burn it. You're looking into my glass eye."

WINTRY WRINKLES.

Oh, the happy boy is flopping
Down the hill with his new sled,
While the humble tramp is chopping
Kindling wood out in the shed:
And the ruffled,
Muffled, stuffled
Chicklet pecks the frozen corn,
And the golden,
Molden, olden
Brandy's looked for ev'ry morn.

The fragile maid is skating
On the pond behind the mill,
The sparrow's masticating
Frozen crumbs upon the sill;
And the bawling,
Sprawling, crawling
Infant's wrapped in flannel's hot,
While the zealing,
Ever-healing
Goose grease stands beside the cot.

The suburbanite is skipping
To his snow-becovered lair,
And old Boreas is flipping
Merry snowflakes through the air;
And the creeping,
Leaping, sleeping
Trolley car hops through the mush,
While the rosy,
Always-dozy
Butcher's boy slops through the slush.

These wintry scenes I fancy
As I'm snuggled in my bed,
Concealed so that you can't see
E'en the baldness of my head—
And the dashing,
Clashing, smashing
Hailstones rhyme upon my pane,
While I coolly,
Honest-truly
Dream that summer's here again.

A CHRISTMAS VISION.

Abraham Columbus was worried. "Daady, Crismus is comin', and I wants a doll baby with a yeller coat on."

It was the first faint whisper of the coming storm. But she was little, and she was a girl, so it was easy to ignore her small, plaintive voice.

"Daddy, Crismus is comin'."

Abraham Columbus looked up from his work and glared. He was engaged upon a corn shuck collar for mule wear, and was sitting flat upon his cabin floor, half buried in a pile of musty smelling shucks. As he thrust his gray head and great round spectacles through the oval collar, he looked tremendously imposing.

"I kin lookin' for it! Patsy fus' and now you, Mr. Sandy. Torectly the whole kit and bilin' of you'll be yelpin 'Daddy, Crismus is comin'."

"Daddy, Crismus is comin'."

It was like a faint echo of his own sonorous growl. This time from the open doorway.

"An' they got er whole raft er fire crackers down at Mr. Bryan's sto'"—from the fire-place.

"An' snakes at riggles like they wuz live"—from the doorway.

"Betsy's got a doll wid a yeller coat"—from Patsy.

"An'—An'—An'" in full chorus.

Abraham dropped his ball of twine to clap his hands to both ears. He was tender hearted and generous, but "What were the use of studyin' 'bout Crismus with cotton down to five cents?" He groaned once or twice and then resumed his most awe-inspiring voice.

"I hev made up my mind not to stan' a bit er foolushniss this year. I puts up with too much all the time. Ef you don't snet up you'll ketch gorss, chillun, you will indeed. I hev made up my mind fumly. The fus one that sez 'Crismus' to me, under this roof, is goin' t' get a lam'bastin', an' that's the word wid the bark on it. Bring me some mo' shucks, Sandy."

Sandy drew his ten bare toes out of the ashes and brought the shucks.

"A jumpin' jack an' er red waggin'," he sighed in audible soliloquy, as he dumped the shucks down on the floor.

"Ef you don't want me to make a jumpin' jack outer you, you jus' get out of my reach, Alexander Columbus, that is all I desires to remark on this occasion, less'n it is to repeat that the fus one that sez Crismus to me will get a lam'bastin'."

The door was darkened by a commanding figure enveloped in a long ulster of ancient date. It was Mrs. Columbus just back from a trip to Bryan's Crossroads store. She was a woman of unfailing energy. Just now she was fairly brimming over with it. The sap of the season was rising. She glanced down at the shuck plaiter as she untied her bonnet strings.

"Well, ol' man, Crismus is comin'."

Abraham dropped his head in spiritless surrender.

"Yes, Morier. 'Cordin' to the almanac it jus' two days off."

"Bryan is laid in a big Crismus stock."

"Yes, Morier. An' I bin lookin' it over."

"These are mighty hard times, Morier. Cotton down to five cents a pound."

Mrs. Columbus was bustling about the cabin, hanging up the ancient ulster, sweeping the shucks into a more compact stack about Abram's shoulders, flinging chips on the fire, dispatching Sandy for the greens and Jake for the sweet potato pump, all with positively cyclonic force and rapidity, that left every one breathless but herself:

"An' while the chillun is out of hearin', Ab'um, I mout as well lay down the law. I want you to go to Bryan's sto' befo' the things is all picked over."

Abram spread appealing hands outward to prove the emptiness of his pockets.

"No use tellin' me what you want, Morier. No use in the worl'. I is po'rer than Job's turkey this C'rismus, an' cotton down to five cents."

Mrs. Columbus was a remarkable woman. She would have been pronounced so in any era of the world. She never wasted words in idle argument, and she never permitted her remarks to be side-tracked.

"You can get me a pa'r er fine shoes. I ain't had but one pa'r out er this year's crap, an' five yards a green serge for a bas'. Bryan ought to throw in the trimmin's. An' Patsy's goin' to have a doll an' a tea set ef the skies fall—a tin one'll do; Sandy wants a jumpin'-jack and some firecrackers. An' Jake wants a red waggin'. I see one this mornin' hangin' in the sto' winder. You kin bring a bundle er crackers for him, too."

Mrs. Columbus knelt to blow the fire into greater vitality with her strong lungs. Abraham looked at her broad back furtively.

"Is that all, Morier?" Then he groaned.

"That's all, Ab'um, an' I think I'm lettin' you off easy. Sister Sallie's goin' to have—what you groanin' 'bout, Ab'um?"

"Toothache, Morier; mighty bad. But I ain't got no money to have it pulled out. Times is awful hard. I is jus' got to grin an' b'ar it. But don't say Crismus to me, I baigs of you."

Maria arose in her might with a generally inflated aspect, perhaps from her recent lung exercise. She towered loftily over the little shuck-environed man on the floor.

"Ab'um Columbus, we won't was'e our breath talkin'. I needs all mine t' keep green-wood fires fum goin' out. I done tol' you what me an' the chillun wants fur Crismus. That toothache er yours comes roun' as reg'lar as Crismus does. Thar's the balsam apple on the chimbly piece an' some raw cotton stickin' in the jamb."

* * * * *

Only two more nights before Christmas. Two nights of mental and physical agony to Abraham Columbus. He never could refer to them in after years without chattering teeth.

Why he should have waked up that night at the hour when "graveyards yawn" he could never tell. His habit was to sleep peacefully from dusk to dawn. But wake up he did to see standing at the foot of his bed a tall, white-winged object emitting a faint phosphorescent glow, to hear a solemn command laid upon him in a sepulchral voice. The words burned themselves into his terrified brain:

"An' Mosis appeared unto Ab'um in a dream, and sayeth, arise and do the biddin' of thy wife, ef thou wouldst live long in the land and prosper."

The faint light came closer. The white wings fanned his clammy forehead. He flung himself backward upon the bed and drew the covering tight over his starting eyeballs. Sandy was snoring by his side. Maria had declined the risk of being kept awake all night by a tooth that only ached at Christmas times.

Once again the white-winged visitants, once again the sepulchral adjuration to arise and do the bidding of his wife, and then Christmas dawned bright and sparkling.

Abraham demanded an early breakfast. His mule, resplendent in a new shuck collar, was saddled and hitched to the rack by the time the coffee pot was on the table. Mrs. Columbus beamed sympathetically on her husband.

"Goin' to the tooth puller, Abum?"

"Not this mornin', Morier."

"Goin' ridin', Abum?"

Abraham cast a haggard glance across the table at her, then swallowed his coffee at a gulp. "Yes, Morier."

"Which way, Abum?"

"Out to Bryan's sto', Morier."

"Well, don't be gone too long. I done stuff a fat pullit, an' made some sweet tato pies for dinner, s'long as we couldn't 'ford nothin' better for Crismus."

But Bryan's store was ten miles away. The roads were heavy. The crowds at the store were jolly. Bryan's whiskey was good, and it flowed freely. Not even the fear of meeting on the lonely ride homeward the white-winged spook that had frightened him into unearthing his treasure gourd could start Abraham home before the setting sun and the departing crowds rebuked him. And then his progress was slow, for the burden of his Christmas shopping was heavy upon him. Maria's five yards of green serge for a basque and pair of fine shoes made a bulky paper parcel. The pasteboard box containing Patsy's doll and tea set refused to be pocketed; Jake's red express wagon was slung over one shoulder, and Sandy's jumping jack and snake wriggled harmoniously together among the firecrackers. Nothing had been forgotten. Not even the spook!

The stuff pullet was filling the cabin with savory odors, and the sweet potato pies were shining in varnished splendor under the lighted lamp when Abraham opened the door and stood staggering under his burdens. His entrance was impetuous. His utterance rather thick.

"M—m—Morier, Crismus done come."

"I see it is, Abum, and—so is you."

* * * * * *

Mrs. Columbus smiled inscrutably as she helped her husband to unload, mentally deciding that:

"The ol' white crane wings had served her one good turn, sure."

Infantile Deduction.

"I guess paw hasn't got much money this year," said little brother.

"What makes you think so?" asked little sister.

"'Cause he was telling me that it wasn't right to impose on Santa Claus just because the old feller was good natured."

WHAT LEGISLATORS MAY DO THIS WINTER.

The Greater City Idea Causing a Good Deal of Talk.

TWO RIVALS FOR BIGNESS.

NEWARK AND JERSEY CITY ANXIOUS TO SPREAD OUT.

Such Legislation Would Give New Jersey Two Populous Cities—Question of Substituting Commissioners for Boards of Freeholders Also Talked of—State Financers Receiving Considerable Attention

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, N. J., Dec. 20.—The Republican House caucus over, and the result of the Senate caucus almost entirely foreshadowed, the interest in the preliminaries of the legislative session has been superseded by thought as to what is likely to engage the attention of the legislators when they get down to business. Of course, the inauguration of Governor-elect Voorhees and the formal choosing of ex Congressman John Kean as the successor of United States Senator James Smith will be the interesting features of the first two or three weeks of the session.

The greater city fad is likely to find development in the introduction of bills consolidating municipalties or annexing suburban territory to now existing municipalties. Assemblyman Benny, of Hudson county, has already prepared for submission a redraft of his last year's bill providing for a Commission to take the preliminary steps toward merging all of the subdivisions of Hudson county into a Greater Jersey City. Then there is another proposition to take the Hudson county municipalties of East Newark, just across the Passaic from Newark, and consolidate them into a city by themselves. This proposition is looked upon as a forerunner of detaching them from Hudson county and placing them in Essex, to become a part of the Greater Newark that is also projected. Whether a bill will be introduced at this session to make a Greater Newark is not certain. It is always difficult to keep legislation affecting municipalties free from the influence of political consideration. East Orange and some of the other municipalties in Essex county are strongly Republican, and would not relish being made a part of Newark at a time when the latter city is in Democratic hands. There is no doubt that legislation will come in the near future, if not this session, which will provide for a Greater Newark and a Greater Jersey City, each with over 300,000 population, and give New Jersey the seventh and eighth most populous cities in the United States.

The question of substituting Commissions of three or five persons to supersede the present Freeholders in the government of counties will be agitated again. It was pressed a couple of years ago by Senator Parry, of Burlington county, and will be pressed this year by Senator-elect Allan McDermott of Hudson. Mr. McDermott is particularly anxious for the measure in Hudson county, and the proposition may at first be limited to first-class counties, and later extended.

One of the most important matters to engage the attention of the Legislature will be that of State finances. The immense sums that the State is receiving from trusts and other big concerns that become incorporated under the laws of New Jersey are fast bringing the receipts of the State to a point which will be far in excess of the present disbursements. The Democrats in their recent State platform declared for equal taxation, and this is understood by many to mean that the railroads must pay more taxes to the municipalities and less to the State. This proposition has a local aspect. The larger cities which embrace a great deal of railroad property within their boarders would like the Legislature to go futher than it did in the equal taxation law of 1897, and divert more of the revenue of the State from railroads to the local treasuries. Those localities containing little or no railroad property can see no benefit for themselves in such a plan while decreasing the State's receipts, and are naturally opposed to it.

Old Fashioned Winter

Weather reports seem to bear out the promise of old-fashioned winter. Throughout New York and the eastern States the mercury has been as much below zero as the holiday prices at Collier's are below those of former years. Gents' solid silver tie-holders, sleeve buttons and hat marks at fifty, thirty-five and thirty cents respectively, and countless other articles at equally low rates.

FOUR OBJECTERS THERE.

BRIEF SESSION OF THE MARTIN ACT COMMISSIONERS.

Met to Remit Back Taxes on Property Held by Innocent Owners—The Commissioners Meet Again Next Week.

There were just four complaints against the former rulings of the Martin Act Commissioners for those same Commissioners to correct yesterday afternoon. And all four men went away happy. According to the ruling of Judge VanSyckle, the Commissioners met in the Council chambers yesterday afternoon to remit such of the back taxes on properties now held by innocent owners.

J. A. Hubbard and Frank Bergen were the Commissioners present. Mr. Carleton was ill and unable to be present. The secretary of the Commissioners, Frank J. Hubbard, was also in attendance. The four objecters told each his little tale, and was assured that it would be all right. Then they departed, and the Commissioners adjourned to meet again Wednesday afternoon of next week.

THE YALE SPIRIT.

It Will Characterize the Yale Club's Music Tomorrow Night.

The Yale Glee, Banjo and Mandolin Clubs will visit Plainfield tomorrow evening and give one of their sparkling concerts at the Casino of the Union Country Country Club.

Their songs have that snap and vigor which characterizes every organization reared "Neath the Elms," and has made the sons of "Old Eli" leaders in whatever they undertake. There is grit, courage and a never-say-die spirit that brings the Yale men out of so many tight corners.

These songs represent, not only to college men, but to all men, the days of youth when the world seems brightest and best, and will often take a man back twenty years to the hopeful, boyish stranger who stood on the threshold of this workaday world full of the light hearted enthusiasm born of health and youth.

The Yale Clubs are made up of about forty-five men who are taking their annual Christmas trip through the south and west. They travel in two private cars, and have the kind of time that only a lot of college men together know how to have. They will be greeted by a brilliant and magnificient audience, and all in all the visit of the Yale men promises to be one of the social events of the season. It will be followed by an informal dance.

THE QUILL CLUB.

Newspapermen and Literary Workers Organize for Mutual Improvement.

There was a gathering of local newspapermen and other literary workers at the residence of J. E. Morse, of Franklin place, last evening, when the organization of the Quill Club, of Plainfield was completed. The following officers were elected: President, F. E. Whiteside; secretary and treasurer, Miss M. G. Morse; executive committee. F. E. Whiteside, Thomas A. Cuming and Charles B. Morse.

At Armstrong's.

T. S. Armstrong is an apothecary, primarily, and lays particular stress upon the fact. He has endeavored during the past eighteen years to conduct a first-class pharmacy, and today there is no better stocked drug store in the State than T. S. Armstrong's, the successor to H. P. Reynolds. As a side line Armstrong keeps the usual supply of toilet requisites, and at this holiday season has laid in a large supply of handsome glass bottles, fancy atomizers and Wright & Palmer's perfumes at best values possible. Armstrong is the sole agent in Plainfield for Allegretti's famous chocolate creams.

Ready for the Rush.

The United States Express Company started yesterday with all the necessary facilities for handling the Christmas goods which they expect will come upon them with a rush. Ordinarily they run four wagons and sometimes five, but this week will have seven delivering goods all the time. Their force of clerks and drivers has also been increased, and every effort will be made to deliver the packages that come in as prompt a manner as is possible.

Secured a Non-suit.

Charles J. McNabb, attorney, sued I. O. Mundy, of Springdale, for $8 commission, before Justice Bampton, of Bound Brook, yesterday. J. P. D. Kirch represented Mundy and secured a non-suit. McNabb sued for the commission he claimed due him on a loan.

RAILROAD DETECTIVES AFTER COAL THIEVES

Regular Organized Gangs Work Near Graceland.

STRICT WATCH BEING KEPT.

THIEVES BOARD CARS AND KICK OFF THE COAL.

Latest Haul Was Seen By the Officers, But in the Darkness the Offenders Escaped—Search Warrant Secured but Coal Could Not Be Found—Horrible Way of Living Seen by the Officers.

The Central Railroad detectives are busy every night looking for coal thieves near Graceland, and it is said they now have a scheme on foot which will soon put a stop to the stealing of coal from the cars at night. There have been several organized gangs who make it a practice to jump on the cars, and while the train is in motion kick the coal off. After the train has passed the coal is gathered into bags and carried away. It is said a gang of Italians have made a business of stealing coal in this manner and then selling it to their countrymen.

There have not been many robberies of this kind of late, for the miscreants heve arrived at the conclusion that their actions are being watched too closely by the railroad detectives, who claim they know who is engaged in this work, and if any person is caught in the act the law will deal very severely with them.

The last haul made by the miscreants occurred Friday evening, and the detectives were not far away. They saw the men, but owing to darkness were unable to get them. A search warrant was procured from Judge Mendell, and the railroad detectives, accompanied by the local police, visited the old house occupied by William Ketch and John Bloodgood on the county road at Garwood. Here some coal was found in the apartments of John Bloodgood, which was full of ballast. There was not, however, enough evidence to cause the arrest of Bloodgood, who claimed he picked the coal in the morning from the roadbed.

The old house was searched from top to bottom, and the sight that met the searchers' eyes was a most horrible one. The house was filthy. The floors were covered with rubbish and disease lurked in every room in the house. There were no beds for the occupants, who evidently sleep on the floor, and the stench which arises from the first floor of the building would cause one to wish he was again in the open air. The good people of Cranford can do some missionary work at home if they will visit this house, and the Board of Health might also save disease from spreading if the house was disinfected.

This building is probably the most horrible sight in Cranford, and the men who went there would have been ashamed to have arrested the poor souls who endeavored to live in such a place.

Historic Society to Incorporate.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

New Brunswick, Dec. 20—The New Brunswick Historical Club has decided to become an incorporated body and to change its name to "The Historical Society of Raritan Valley." This change of name is made because of the fact that for some years past the organization has made researches and gathered data relative to the early history of the entire section of country from Somerville to Perth Amboy, not confining its work to New Brunswick.

No Invitations Needed.

An idea is prevalent about town that it is necessary to have invitations to attend the exhibition of Gibson pictures to be given in the Casino this evening. This is not so. As no tickets were sold the invitations were sent out to advertise the affair. Fifty cents admission will be charged at the door and it is hoped that everyone who is interested in the Young Women's Club will take this opportunity to help it along as the club needs money.

Veteran's Wife is Dead.

Mrs. Stewart, wife of Thomas Stewart, a veteran of the Civil War, died suddenly at her home at South Plainfield Saturday of rheumatism, and was buried yesterday afternoon. The couple lived in a small building formerly occupied by Barber Freeman, containing only one room. Mrs. Stewart has been a sufferer for many years with rheumatism.

New Loan Association.

A new Building and Loan Association will be organized this evening in this city. A feature is that all the money invested is to remain in Plainfield.

Mrs. Henry S. Phillips, of Grove street, is seriously ill at her home.

COLD CASH NEEDED NOW.

STOCKHOLDERS IN SILK MILL PROJECT BEING LOOKED FOR.

Proposed New Enterprise Talked of in an Informal Way by the Board of Trade—Canvass for Capital to be Made.

There was a scarcity of members at the regular meeting of the Board of Trade last evening, and in consequence no business was transacted. Those present included President Lounsbury, Secretary Harry Runyon, and Messrs. Eugene Laing, Charles Runyon, R. B. Rogers, J. C. Pope, Percy Ohl, of the Board of Trade, and Messrs. Bullock and Zimmerman, of Paterson. The last two named are the ones interested in the silk mill organization.

Inasmuch as no business could be transacted those present remained for a time and discussed plans for pushing the silk mill project among the citizens. It was finally decided that Messrs. Bullock and Young, of Paterson, should come to Plainfield next week and assisted by members of the Board, make a tour of the city and personally see probable investors. In the meantime the committee from the Broad will prepare a prospectus to be used in presenting the subject to the people. This committee will also endeavor to secure a number of subscribers this week preparatory to beginning the canvass. It was mentioned last evening that several persons had signified their desire to subscribe from $500 to $1,000 worth of stock. There does not seem to be the slightest doubt but what the necessary $25,000 will be raised at an early date. The canvass would have been started this week but on account of the approaching holidays it was deemed wise to wait until next week. The Paterson representatives feel gratified with the prospects of success and are willing to do all they can to further the interest of the project.

BIG REAL ESTATE DEAL.

Former Representative Clark Sells His Holdings in Elizabeth for $500,000.

One of the largest transfers of real estate in Elizabeth for many years was consummated yesterday. Former Representative Amos Clark has disposed of all his holdings in Broad street, Morris avenue, Westfield avenue and North Broad street to Mrs. Eugene Jones and her brother-in-law, Fred Jones, of New York, for the sum of $500,000.

The Jones family already own $500,000 worth of Elizabeth property, and with this acquisition they will control $1,000,000. The property just purchased is located on the principal business thoroughfares and includes the Citizens' Bank and the Clark Hotel. Mrs. Jones was formerly Miss Julia A. Dix, daughter of the late J. Augutus Dix, superintendent for many years of Elizabeth's public schools.

GRIP EPIDEMIC IN ELIZABETH.

Aggravated in Character and Whole Families Are Stricken.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Elizabeth, Dec. 20—There is an epidemic of the grip in this city. The physicians are kept busy night and day, and whole families are prostrated with the disease. In a number of cases entire sets of clerks in stores are confined to their homes, making it necessary to employ inexperienced help.

Many schoolchildren are ill and a number of schools are short-handed because of the illness of teachers. The disease is said to appear in an unusually aggravated form, and does not yield as readily to treatment as during the epidemics of former years.

An Attractive Store.

One of the most attractive drug stores in the city is that conducted by A.D. Mallison. He has just moved into his quarters corner of Watchung and North avenues and the store is complete in every detail. Everything to be found in a first-class pharmacy can be purchased at Mr. Mallison's place. The arrangement of the store is attractive and it presents a bright and up-to-date appearance.

One Accident Follows Another.

Alexander Wilson, of Grove street, who has been suffering for the past two weeks with a sprained ankle, was out for the first last Saturday, and was unfortunate enough to badly twist the injured foot, causing a resprain, which will keep him at home for six or eight weeks.

WYCKOFF ACCUSED OF NEGLECT BY WIFE.

Asks Courts to Compell Him to Support Her.

TELLS A VERY SAD STORY.

LANNING WYCKOFF AND HIS WIFE LIVED AT FINDERNE.

She Claims He Did Not Provide Actual Necessities of Life—Says Their Child Died From Lack of Proper Care and Treatment—Says He Finally Refused to Live With Her—Bill Filed in Court.

Mrs. Amanda Wyckoff tells a sad tale of desertion and neglect by her husband and is now preparing to force him through the courts to give her the necessary support. Murphy & Blatz, her attorneys, have now filed a bill for alimony in the Court of Chancery.

On July 28, 1897, Mrs. Harry Grader, of North Plainfield, formerly of Somerville, was wedded to Lanning Wyckoff, of Finderne. The marrige was performed by Rev. Mr. Kipp, at his own home at Harlingen, Somerset county. Before that time, Mrs. Grader had been a dressmaker and had earned sufficient to keep her and he child.

After their marriage they went to live at Finderne where Wyckoff found occupation at the neighboring farms. A child was born to them, a weak, sickly child who, Mrs. Wyckoff says, died for lack of proper care and treatment. Her husband, she says, refused to give her sufficient funds to meet even the ordinary household expenses and none for medicines. He left her in the house alone with the sick babe. The house was in an isolated part of Finderne and she was in constant terror for fear of an attack by tramps or thieves.

On January 22, 1898, she says that her husband told her to get another house as he was going to leave their present home. She found one in Somerville but he refused to go there and furthermore refused to pay the rent. She was then compelled to fall back on her skill as a dressmaker to earn her daily bread. He has been employed at the farm of John Groendyke, at Finderne, since the time of his alleged desertion.

Mrs. Wyckoff claims that he is fully able to support her and the child as he has a farm at Flagtown Mountain and owns other property.

The proceeding are instituted under section twenty of the Divorce Act which provides that the wife may file a bill for alimony in case of abandonment or desertion. They are rather unusual and very few cases of the kind have come before the Court of Chancery.

RECEPTION FOR SCOTT'S MEN.

Employes of Press Works Entertained at the Y. M. C. A. Building.

The Y. M. C. A. was thrown open last night to the workmen of Scott's Press Works, who were invited there by the association to spend a pleasant evening and partake of their hospitality. The men who came enjoyed themselves fully, and after the rendition of a programme, were taken over the building and treated to refreshments.

A. B. Meredith, science teacher at the High School, representing the social committee of the association, announced the programme, and the vice-president of the association, E. L. Bonny, spoke to the men and welcomed them, at the same time telling them of the advantages that accrue to those who join the Y. M. C. A., and afterwards guided them through the building. Many of the men had never been inside the Y. M. C. A. and they expressed themselves as very much pleased with it.

Charles W. Mowen gave some phonograph selections.

Pleasantly Surprised.

Willard B. Ross, of Codington avenue, was given a surprise party last evening by a number of his friends in honor of his birthday. Games were the feature of the evening.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, editor of The Sabbath Recorder, has gone to Brookfield, N. Y., to attend at the Sabbath reform convention.

Charles Flynn, of this city, member of the Third Regiment, New Jersey Volunteers, now stationed in Georgia, is expected home next week, having secured his discharge.

Miss Abbie VanCleef, of Second street, will leave Thursday for her home at East Millstone to spend a few days. From there she will go to Jersey City with her sister, Miss Enda VanCleef, to spend Christmas with their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Emmons.

THEY RAISED JINKS.

HUSBAND AND WIFE ARRESTED FOR BEING ORDERLY.

Both Pleaded Guilty in the Borough Court and Were Fined by Recorder Long—Chatham Street Residents Complained.

A pathetic scene was witnessed in the borough court this morning when Robert Hart and his wife, Elizabeth, of Chatham street, were arraigned on a charge of being drunk and disorderly and disturbing the neighborhood in which they live. The complaint was made by Marshal Wise at the instigation of the neighbors and Recorder Long issued the warrant.

The act which caused the arrest occurred last Saturday evening. Last evening Hart was arrested, and his wife was arraigned this morning. The reason of delay in arresting the wife was on account of Mrs. Hart's two children who could scarcely get along without their mother. The arrest was made by Marshal Schenck, and when the husband and wife were arraigned this morning they pleaded guilty to the charge.

Recorder Long examined them so as to learn the extent of their disorderly conduct and then decided to fine the husband $10 and the wife $5.

Later in the morning the fines were paid and the prisoners were discharged. Hart is employed as a moulder at The Pond Tool and Machine Works, and after his release he returned to his work.

BOILER ROOM FLOODED.

A Small-sized Inundation Invaded the Daily Press Office.

The boiler room of The Daily Press office, which is located directly under the sidewalk on North avenue, was subjected to a sudden and unexpected inundation last night as the result of the severe storm that prevailed. The sudden rush of water was caused by the settling of the earth used to fill in the trench in which the electric wire conduits were laid. A small-sized water-shed was formed in the gutter in front of the office, which allowed the water to gather in pools along the curbing and gradually work its way through the side walls of the boiler room. The result was that several feet of water gathered around the boiler and finally put out the fire.

By dint of hard and steady work a good portion of the night, Thomas Lynch, the engineer, with the aid of another workman, prevented the water entering the press room and doing further damage.

As soon as he learned of the accident, Patsy Christmas, the contractor, who laid the wire conduits, was on hand with a force of men leveling off the sunken ground and taking preventive measures against a repetition of the flood.

DEATH OF MRS. HARRY ROBERTS.

After Two Years of Suffering With Consumption She Died This Noon.

Hurriedly summoned to Plainfield, Harry Roberts, son of Former Councilman Dan Roberts, arrived at the bedside of his wife just in time to bid her a last farewell. This noon, at 12:30 o'clock, she quietly passed away. He reached the city barely a day before she died.

Mr. Roberts and his wife occupied apartments in the Roberts building on North avenue, close by those of his father's. Mrs. Roberts, who was but twenty-three years old, has been ill for nearly two years. She fell a victim of to consumption and quietly faded away despited the best of medical attendance. They had a little daughter, Helen.

For the past three months she was unable to leave the house and was failing fast. A week ago her condition became critical.

Mrs. Roberts was well-known in the city, and had a host of friends who will sincerely mourn her loss.

GOOD CITIZENSHIP.

Inspiring Service Held in Trinty Reformed Church Last Night.

Last evening at Trinity Reformed church an excellent and profitable temperance and good citizenship meeting was held under the auspices of the committee from the Christian Endeavor Society that has the work in charge. The meeting was conducted by J. Q. Miles. After the devotional exercises B. W. Hand made an address on the necessity of individual effort along the line of temperance and good citizenship.

Following Mrs. J. H. Manley sang an appropriate solo, entitled "Where Is Our Boy, Tonight." This was followed with a recitation by Miss Bertha Clum. "The Volunteer Organist," was recited in a realistic manner by W. B Mattox.

In conclusion excellent remarks were made by Rev. Cornelius Schenck.

CHRISTMAS BOX FOR OUR SOLDIER BOYS.

Two Large Ones Sent to Boys in Third Regiment.

ARE NOW AT ATHENS, GA.

FAMILIES AND FRIENDS HAD MUCH TO SEND TO THEM.

Movement Started by J. J. Kenney and Henry Haurand—Lengthy List of Private Contributers—Nearly a Thousand Cigars Also Given—Boxes Sent Today—A List of Those Who Donated.

There will be nearly a score of Plainfield's sons who will spend their Christmas in the city of tents near Athens, Ga. While Uncle Sam is in the habit of taking pretty good care of his boys that don the army blue, it hasn't been his custom to provide Christmas delicacies for them. That is left to their friends at home. Today two large wooden boxes, filled to the last available inch with good things, started on their way to the camp of the Third New Jersey Volunteers near Athens.

There were eighteen Plainfield young men enrolled in the Third Regiment, principally in Company H, which hails from Somerville. Two weeks ago, John J. Kenney and Henry Haurand started a movement toward a Christmas box for the boys in the Third. Their appeal to the friends of the soldiers met with generous response, and there will be a glad time when the result of it all arrives.

The contributions came in so fast that one box wouldn't hold them all and two had to be secured. The private contributions included the following: A box to Lieut. Irving from Ed. Weaver; box to I. V. VanArsdale from a friend; box to Charles A. Flynn from John Flynn, Sr.; box to Emmett Wortman and Crook V. Wortmann from a friend; package to Charles Sprigg from a friend; package to Benj. F. Scribner from his mother; two package to John Lemair from friends; package to I. L. Giles from a friend; box to H. and J. McCormack from Mr. and Mrs. John Adelmann; two boxes to same from friends; box to same from Michael Nevins; package to Robert Simmons from a friend; two packages to Mark Dowd from mother and sister; plum pudding to H. L. Overbaugh; package to F. C. Carver from mother; package to Edward Prentiss from mother; package to Frank Haurand from brother; box to Richard Hoffman from relatives; box to F. J. McCarthy from sister; box to Fred Frey from Charles Frey; box to same from mother and brother; H. and J. McCormack from Fred. Logan, of Dunellen; box to Charles Sprigg from mother; box to Frank Haurand from a friend; a box of cigars each from Sheriff Kirk and Elston M. French.

The general contributions included 200 cigars from Mayor Charles J. Fisk; 100 cigars from Assemblyman Roger F. Murray; 100 cigars from City Treasurer W. F. Arnold; 100 cigars from C. H. Rugg; 50 cigars from Postmaster E. H. Bird; 50 cigars from M. C. Dobbins; 50 cigars from Henry Haurand; 50 cigars from D. J. Kenney; cigars from Mayor John F. Wilson, City Collector James A. Martin and Councilman E. T. Barrows; four boxes of hominy from W. A. Westphal; light wines from A. D. Findlay; light wines from H. Haurand; clothes brushes from Schwed Brothers; and copies of the Christmas editions of The Daily Press and The News.

An Approaching Marriage.

Invitations have been issued for the marriage of Miss Ella Rebecca Cable to Dr. George Hermann Wright, both of Northampton, Mass., to take place December 27th, at 6 o'clock. The groom was a former resident of this and is a nephew of Mrs. Mason W. Tyler, of West Seventh street. The bride is a grand niece of George W. Cable, the well-known author.

—Free stages will leave Front and Somerset streets at 8:30 this evening for the calico hop at Laine's Hotel, South Plainfield.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

"Rush" Days

Here are just a few little suggestions for holiday shoppers. Properly priced goods—be assured on that point. And thousands of other articles just as moderately priced:

Clocks We know not the cause. Perhaps an awakening to the value of time. Perhaps a discovery of the completeness of our clock stock. Perhaps better display. But our sales of clocks grow apace. Santa Claus and Father Time shake hands, and the reaper's scythe is sheathed in holly. A little money has long arms among our clocks.

PRESIDENT AT MACON

Enthusiastically Greeted By the Southern People.

ESCORT OF WAR VETERANS

The Day Was Dark and Rainy but that Did Not Interfere with the Arrangements. Review of Troops Under Gen. Wilson's Command.

Macon, Ga., Dec. 20.—President McKinley awoke a few miles outside of Macon yesterday morning for the last day of sightseeing and entertainment on his southern tour.

The special train was run off on a siding at 6.30 o'clock, where it stayed to allow the presidential party time to get breakfast.

Macon was reached at 8.30 o'clock, under a cloudy sky, threatening rain. The party lost General Lawton here. He left for Huntsville to take temporary command of General Wheeler's corps, pending the latter's attendance at Congress.

Rain began to fall shortly after the president's train had drawn into the depot.

The rain was not allowed to affect the programme arranged for the president's stay. He was met by Judge Speer, Senator Bacon and Major Hanson of the committee, and by Major General Wilson and some of his staff. All of them boarded the train for the purpose of receiving the president.

The party was then escorted to carriages through two lines of Confederate veterans, who stood with bared heads while the guests of the city passed by.

Immediately outside the depot and reaching far up the street were drawn up six troops of the Seventh Cavalry, a troop of which fell in before the president's carriage as a guard of honor.

The visitors drove about through the town, while the citizens yelled and cheered enthusiastically, and then to the reviewing stand, past which the troops of General Wilson's command immediately began to march.

Gen. Wilson entered the stand with the president. Brigadier General Gordon commanded the troops for the purpose of review.

Under him were the Third Volunteer Engineers, Second Ohio Volunteers, the negro regiments—the Seventh Volunteers, the Tenth Immunes and the Third North Carolina—the Sixth Virginia and the six troops of the Seventh Cavalry.

The negro troops were the first that had been seen on review by the president on the tour, and they elicited much praise from the reviewing stand. Following the review, Judge Speer introduced the president, who spoke to the vast crowd in the street.

His speech was often interrupted by applause.

A short drive through some of the principal streets of the city followed. The party passed the Confederate monument, on whose pedestal had been placed a wreath of flowers enclosing the words of that sentence of the president's now famous speech at Atlanta referring to the care of the Confederate graves.

The same words, engrossed on parchment, were presented to the president by the Confederate Veterans' Association as a memorial of his visit.

The special train was boarded before noon and pulled out immediately afterward for Augusta, where the president made a three hour visit and reviewed the troops under General Young at Camp McKenzie.

Brigadier General George R. Ernst will be chief of engineers and besides will perform the duties of inspector general of the military division of Cuba.

He will be General Brooke's principal advisory officer.

The judge advocate general of the division of Cuba will be Lieutenant Colonel Edgar S. Dudley, United States Volunteers.

He is an assistant judge advocate general in the volunteer service of the United States.

In one of General Brooke's Indian campaigns Colonel Dudley was his chief quartermaster.

The War Inquiry.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 20.—Ex-Governor Beaver of Pennsylvania and Dr. P. S. Connor of Cincinnati, members of the war investigating commission, left Old Point yesterday for Washington.

While at Old Point they made a close inspection of the Josiah Simpson Hospital, where there are 700 sick soldiers.

Many questions were asked and the sick men's testimony may go before the commission.

It is said that Messrs. Connor and Beaver will return later and investigate the landing recently of sick men, scantily clad, from the transport Berlin.

They came from the hospitals at San Juan and Santiago.

Grip Epidemic in New York.

New York, Dec. 20.—The Board of Health, in a brief statement issued by Commissioner J. B. Cosby, yesterday recognized the grip as epidemic, for the first time since the epidemic of April, 1891, when, in a single month, 507 deaths from influenza were reported.

There has been nothing significant in the from day to day vital statistics to lead to this step. It was taken upon reports from various sources, after a consultation of the chiefs of departments.

A Boston Bank to Close.

Boston, Dec. 20.—By a vote of 8,316 out of ten thousand shares, the stockholders of the National Revere Bank voted to go into voluntary liquidation at the close of yesterday's business.

R. M. Saltonstall and Neal Rantoul were appointed agents in liquidation. The first dividend of fifty per cent. in liquidation was declared payable on December 20.

A FAMOUS FLAG RAISING.

How New Orleans Celebrates the Anniversary of the Louisiana Purchase.

New Orleans, La., Dec. 20.—The ninety-fifth anniversary of the raising of the American flag in this city is one of special interest this year, for the entire West is already preparing for a monster celebration of the coming centennial of the Louisiana purchase.

In fact early in January Governor Stephens of Missouri will address the governors of all the states formed out of the Louisiana Purchase and ask them to name delegates to a convention in St. Louis at which the time and place of a world's fair in honor of the centennial will be arranged.

The flag which was raised in New Orleans ninety-five years ago had seventeen stars and seventeen stripes, one for each of the states then in the Union. It was not until 1812 that the flag of thirteen stripes was declared the national emblem.

The Louisiana Purchase was the work of two famous men, Robert Livingston, who represented us at Paris, and Charles Pinckney, who worked for the purchase of the territory at Madrid.

The price paid for this vast territory, extending from the Mississippi to the Rocky Mountains, and from the Gulf of Mexico to British America, was $15,000,000. The story of the exploration and conquest of the vast territory of Louisiana is one of the most picturesque and fascinating chapters in the world's history. Three nations—Spain, France and England—had a share in it, Spain being the earliest participant, but France having the largest part.

The region to which the name Louisiana was given changed its dimensions several times since that historic day in 1692, when, at the mouth of the Mississippi, La Salle took formal possession of the country drained by that river, and called it by the name of his sovereign, Louis XIV of France. The name has for several years been restricted to a single state of the Union. In 1803, when Louisiana was bought from France, the name covered virtually all the territory between the Mississippi and Rocky Mountains, with a minute fragment on the east side of the river near its mouth. It had this extent for the preceding forty years, or since the end of the war in which France was driven off the mainland of the American continent, when France's possessions east of the Mississippi went to England, and those west of the river were transferred to Spain. Under La Salle's delimitation Louisiana comprised the entire Mississippi valley, and extended from the Alleghenies to the Rocky Mountains.

Both the eastern and western sections of Louisiana often changed masters in the centuries which elapsed since its discovery. The eastern half belonged in turn to France, England and the United States. The western half was successively French, Spanish, French again, and American. Louisiana has been under more flags and has had greater mutations of political fortune than any other part of the United States.

CAST STEEL GUNS.

Coming Test of Accuracy. Prejudice to Overcome.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—The war department has ordered that the trial of the new eight-inch cast steel gun at Sandy Hook be pushed to completion. A second series of firings will be conducted during the early part of the coming week.

In Thursday's test Dr. Gatling's gun demonstrated its ability to withstand the regular service pressure demanded of sea coast guns.

It is now proposed to determine the degree of accuracy of the new weapon.

In all three hundred rounds will be fired.

In ordnance circles it is said that if the cast steel gun is accepted it will affect many large and costly plants now engaged in the manufacture of built up guns.

In consequence the new weapon will have considerable prejudice to overcome.

The main significance attached to Thursday's test is the ability shown to produce a grade of cast steel of such splendid resisting powers as that in Dr. Gatling's gun.

It was only a few years ago that forged steel was necessary in commercial fittings wherever extraordinary strains were to be expected.

In New York city the builders of the engines of the late armored cruiser Maine, the N. F. Palmer, Jr., Company, were compelled, as late as 1891, to reject an entire set of cast steel columns because of weakness. Recourse was had to forged steel ingots.

The development of high grade cast steel has nowhere been so remarkable in the last five years as in the United States. In this respect Americans have distanced English competitors.

The fact that thirty-seven pounds pressure to the square inch were developed in Dr. Gatling's cast steel gun is not in itself remarkable. But it is remarkable that a weapon made of cast steel will withstand such a pressure.

GRAVE CRISIS IN SPAIN

The Sagasta Cabinet, It Is Said, Will Resign To-day.

CORTES READY TO DISSOLVE

Probable Composition of the New Ministry. Senor Montero Rios Suggested for Premier. The Minister of War Thinks the Army Should be Increased to 140,000.

Madrid, Dec. 20.—It is semi-officially announced that the Spanish ministers will place their resignations in the hands of the queen regent to-day.

The friends of both Premier Sagasta and Senor Montero Rios declare that the two men are in full accord on all questions of policy.

The most discussed solution of the crisis is a Sagasta ministry, to include among its members General Weyler, Senor Romero y Robledo anod Senor Canalejas y Mendez; a Montero Rios ministry, comprising representatives of the different groups of the majority, or a Martinez de Campos ministry, including Senor Silvela and other Conservatives.

In the event of the first or the last the Cortes will be dissolved.

The conference Sunday between Senor Montero Rios president of the Spanish peace commission, and the queen regent, lasted more than an hour.

The returned president of the Spanish peace commission had some voluminous documents with him, supposed to relate to the peace negotiations. On leaving the palace he refused to make any communication to the press.

A newspaper, representing Senor Gamazo, leader of the dissenting Liberals, declares itself in favor of a cabinet headed by Senor Montero Rios.

General Correo, the minister of war, is quoted as saying that it will be necessary to raise the effective force of the army to 140,000 men, owing to the Carlist agitation.

This will entail a credit of twenty million pesetas, about four million dollars.

The general commanding the northern army has proclaimed the closure from to-day of all the Carlist clubs and societies in his district.

The Chippewas' Timber.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—Special Indian Agent Jenkins, in a report just submitted to Commissioner of Indian Affairs Jones on the investigation of the timber operations on the Chippewa reservation in Minnesota, makes some statements radically differing with those in other reports.

He says that during the last fiscal year 48,919,946 feet of reservation pine timber cut and banked there were sold at an average of $4.53 per thousand. There were thirty-two camps in operation, and there was 33 1-3 per cent. of the wages due the laborers in the camps after settlement.

On the diminished reservation, the special agent says, there were 22,262,950 feet cut and banked, sold at $4.96 per thousand, and the laborers were paid 95 1-4 per cent. of the amount due to them on the settlement.

He says that the trouble was in the management of the camps and in the system itself.

Hero Hobson Osculated.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—After his address for the benefit of the Army and Navy League at the Auditorium, Assistant Naval Constructor Richmond Pearson Hobson kissed 163 women and girls, most of them pretty ones, in thirty-six minutes.

General McNulta, president of the Naval Reserve Association, announced after Hobson's address that those who wished to do so could meet him on the stage, and a rush followed.

Mrs. Thomas Duerson Knight, a daughter of ex-Governor Towne of North Carolina, and a distant relative of Hobson, was the first woman to feel the pressure of his oft kissed lips at Sunday night's osculatory demonstration.

Her sister, Mary Towne, came next, and after they had broken the ice, it was easy for the women in the crowd to follow.

Was Engaged to Van Buren.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—Mrs. Mary Tutt Throckmorton, who, in her early life, was a leader in society here, died last night from accidentally inhaling illuminating gas. She was 85 years old.

In the beginning of Andrew Jackson's second term, as president, Mrs. Throckmorton, then Miss Tutt, made her debut in the executive mansion. Martin Van Buren was one of her admirers, and her reported engagement to him was a society rumor of the capital.

Major Charles B. Throckmorton, retired, her only son, arrived from New York.

Hull Army Bill.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—The House committee on military affairs took up the Hull bill on the reorganization of the army Monday morning and approved the first ten sections.

Hiccoughing to Death.

ROOSEVELT SLATE MAKING.

Of the Twenty Candidates for Canal Superintendent, Greene Leads.

Oyster Bay, L. I., Dec. 20.—Governor-elect Roosevelt announces that out of twenty men who are candidates for appointment as superintendent of public works, Major General Francis V. Greene stands the best show at this time.

But Colonel Roosevelt desires to have it understood that the place is still open and that it may be kept open for several days to come.

He said yesterday that he might not appoint a superintendent of public works until next week.

Major General Roe, to whom Colonel Roosevelt has entrusted the reorganization of the National Guard, was here yesterday.

He came to recommend a number of National Guardsmen for positions on the governor's military staff.

Another visitor at the governor-elect's house was Judge Hiram R. Steele, recently appointed district attorney of Kings county.

Colonel Roosevelt expects Judge Steele to prosecute the indicted public officials in Kings to the fullest extent of the law, and it was to consult about these matters that the new district attorney came.

Other visitors yesterday were Geo. Erben, the well known German Republican leader of Buffalo, and Alfred R. Conkling of the Fifth Assembly district, New York.

A GREATER JERSEY CITY.

Consolidation Plan Takes Shape and will be Presented to the Legislature.

New York, Dec. 20.—The first decisive steps in the direction of the consolidation of the various municipalities of Hudson county, N. J., into a greater Jersey City will be taken when the New Jersey legislature meets next month.

It has been decided by the Hudson county assemblymen to introduce a bill which will call for the appointment of a special commission to consider the consolidation project during the coming spring and summer and report to the legislature of 1900.

The bill will provide for a commission to be composed of twenty-three members, eleven to be appointed by the governor and one each by the mayors of the twelve municipalities in Hudson county.

Jersey City is at present the sixteenth city in the Union. If all the cities and towns of the county consolidate they will form the seventh city in the Union as regards population, which will be nearly half a million.

Fighting at Iloilo.

Manila, Dec. 20.—The Spanish steamer Brutus has arrived here from Iloilo with 345 native soldiers and seven priests on board.

She reports that fighting occurs at Iloilo nightly, and that the merchants there are anxiously awaiting the arrival of the Americans to relieve the situation. The streets of Iloilo are almost deserted.

The Spanish officers admit that it is impossible for them to maintain their position at Iloilo unless they are speedily reinforced. They are surrounded by superior forces of insurgents, who are estimated to number twenty-five thousand men. Against them the Spaniards have only 2,500 rifles.

The Massachusetts Docked.

Brooklyn, Dec. 20.—The battleship Massachusetts, which was injured by striking on a rock off Governor's island a week ago Saturday, while on her way from the Brooklyn navy yard to Tompkinsville, was put in dry dock No. 3 at the dry dock yesterday morning.

The docking of the big ship was under the personal supervision of Naval Constructor Bowles, and after the vessel had been towed into the dock it was fully two hours before he gave the order for the pumps to start.

In the meantime he had a diver at work underneath the vessel to make certain that everything was in perfect condition.

Subsidies for Shipping.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—Senator Hanna has introduced in the Senate, and Representative Payne in the House a bill to grant subsidies for American shipping.

The bill is entitled "a bill to promote commerce and increase the foreign trade of the United States and to provide auxiliary cruisers transports and seamen for government use when necessary."

It provides the same general system adopted in building up German, British and other foreign shipping.

The Joint High Commission.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—The joint high commission adjourned yesterday until January 5, after which it is expected that it will reassemble in Washington for a session of not more than two weeks.

During this two weeks it is supposed that the commissioners will sign the draft of any treaty between the United States and Great Britain concerning Canada, which they may be able to agree upon.

YERKES WAS DEFEATED

Chicago Council Burried Street Railway Franchise.

A SURPRISE GIVEN TO ALL

The Obnoxious Ordinance Sent to Harrison's Committee in the City Hall. The Opponents of the Measure Adjourn to Jan. 4 When Fight Will Go to the Legislature.

Chicago, Dec. 20.—To the great surprise of the street railway companies and their friends, the city council last night, by a vote of 32 to 31, relegated all fifty-year franchises to the scrap heap, and there they will remain.

Mr. Yerkes is completely knocked out, and for the first time in his life he sustains a defeat.

The feelings of the members of the council who have been working for these measures, were shown in their faces, but after the meeting was over they had nothing to say.

The fifty-year franchise ordinance was introduced in the council two weks ago and referred to the joint committee on streets and alleys, which was distinctly favorable to its passage.

A week ago it was taken from that committee and given to the committee on railroads, which also was favorable.

Last night it was taken from the committee on railroads and given to the committee on city hall—a committee which was never known to have a meeting.

As it happens, eleven of the thirteen men of the city hall committee are warm friends and supporters of Mayor Harrison, and they will see that the ordinance dies a peaceful death and gets a decent burial.

This great victory of the party headed by the mayor, against the street railway companies, was a distinct surprise to everyone.

When the mayor began the fight he counted on twenty-three aldermen to stand by him, which was enough to prevent the passage of the ordinance over his veto.

He gave it out that he would not approve any franchise ordinance until the Allen law was repealed, because it had no provision in it for compensation, and stipulated that a five-cent fare should be collected for twenty years.

In addition to that, he was against fifty-year franchises anyhow, and thought twenty year franchises sufficient, at the end of which time the city should buy the railroads and run them.

It was the intention of the aldermen who represented the street railroad interests in the council to introduce a twenty-seven year ordinance, but the swiftness of the proceedings took their breath away and carried them off their feet.

They did not have a chance to do anything, for, to their surprise, they were in the actual minority, something the mayor never dreamed could come to pass.

To clinch the victory and make it unequivocal, the honest men in the council voted to adjourn until January 4, the day after the legislature meets. The first duty of that body will be to repeal the Allen law, as a majority of its members are pledged to this, and then interest will center in the law that is to take its place.

THE DREYFUS CASE.

A Statement in the French Chamber.

Paris, Dec. 20.—There was a repetition Monday afternoon of the now familiar scenes in the Chamber of Deputies.

M. Lasies, anti-Semite, interpellated the government on the subject of the alleged indiscretions of the Brisson ministry in the Dreyfus affair.

He accused the ex-premier, M. Brisson, of violating the constitution, and violently attacked the court of cassation, whose president, M. Loews, he said, was a brother of a German official.

The speech was accompanied by uproar and protests.

The minister of war, M. de Freycinet, replied that he did not desire to appear as wishing to influence the decision of the court of cassation. But while willing to submit to the court all the official documents in his possession, he was absolutely determined not to submit the secret documents in the case, which he pointed out, contained papers affecting the security of the nation.

He said that if the House did not approve of his attitude he was willing to resign.

M. Lasies said he thought that under the circumstances the revision of the Dreyfus trial was only a comedy, and he thanked M. de Freycinet for furnishing official confirmation of the report that the secret documents so frequently referred to really existed.

He then withdrew his interpellation.

Pay for Insurgents and Cubans.

New York, Dec. 20.—In the urgent deficiency bill is this clause as it passed the House:

"For emergency fund and to meet unforeseen emergencies constantly arising, $3,000,000."

The Senate reaffirmed the appropriation with the addition of the words, "to be expended at the discretion of the president."

The specific object of the appropriation is not stated.

The war department already is at work on the president's plans. Filipinos and Cubans are to be paid for the time they served as allies of the United States in the war with Spain. They must consent to be disarmed and disbanded when they are paid, just as American troops are mustered out.

Official information gathered by the war department indicates that the fund will be amply sufficient. There are about twelve thousand Filipinos under arms, and one million dollars will be more than enough to pay them, even at the rate allowed United States volunteers.

The Cubans to be paid are supposed to number about 20,000.

Both Cubans and Filipinos now under arms will according to the advices received, accept the offer of the United States.

DOINGS IN CONGRESS.

Senator Mason Introduces a Resolution Regarding the Reichstag.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—Senator Mason of Illinois yesterday introduced in the Senate a resolution directing the committee on agriculture to inquire into certain legislation pending before the German reichstag calculated to prohibit the importation into Germany of American sausages and other meat products, and directing the committee, should the legislation become law, to report immediately a bill to require the inspection of sugars, meats, wines and other products which are imported into this county from Germany.

The resolution went over until today. It is as follows:

"Whereas, It has come to the attention of the people of the United States that there is pending in the German reichstag legislation which is calculated and intended to prohibit the exportation of American sausages and other meat products, into Germany, be it, therefore,

"Resolved, That the committee of agriculture be herewith instructed to inquire into such legislation, and if the same becomes a law, that said committee are instructed to report forthwith a bill to require the inspection of sugars, meats, wines and all other food products which are imported into this country from the empire of Germany."

The agricultural appropriation bill reported contains a retaliatory clause, authorizing the secretary of agriculture to inspect imported articles dangerous to health, and authorizing the secretary of the treasury to exclude such articles.

The restriction is designed to apply to a large number of articles imported from foreign countries.

House of Representatives.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 20.—Mr. Bailey, Democrat of Texas, the leader of the minority in the House of Representatives, at the opening of yesterday's session, offered the following resolution for reference to the committee on rules:

Resolved, That the committee on judiciary be and it is hereby instructed to ascertain and report to this House:

(1) Whether any members of this House have accepted any office under the United States; and

(2) Whether the acceptance of such office under the United States had vacated the seat of the member accepting it.

A special order was adopted setting aside January 5 for the consideration of bills reported by the judiciary committee.

Yesterday being suspension day, Mr. Wanger, Republican of Pennsylvania, moved the passage under a suspension of the rules of the bill for the Philadelphia exposition of American products and manufactures in 1899.

The bill was passed by a vote of 142 to 76.

Praise for Rear-Admiral Dewey.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 20.—Commander I. Mori, who is on his way to San Francisco to take charge of the new Japanese cruiser Chitose, says that the policy of expansion which has apparently been adopted by the United States receives the most cordial support of the Japanese, from sentimental and commercial reasons.

Commander Mori places Rear Admiral Dewey in the same class with Admirals Ito, and Nelson. "He is not only a great naval officer," said he, "but a general and a statesman." He did not know Rear Admiral Dewey personally, but he saw the result of his work, having arrived at Manila in command of the cruiser Naniwa to look out for Japanese interests there.

Commander Mori thinks a considerable portion of the future Japanese contracts for warships will be let to American firms.

One of the principal reasons for this, aside from the superior workmanship, will be because the United States is near to the home country, so that the vessels can be taken across the Pacific without a long voyage through the Suez canal or around the Cape of Good Hope.

Iron Cemetery for Caracas.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 20.—American manufacturers will soon be asked to submit bids for the construction of an iron grave yard at Caracas, Venezuela.

The plans are now being prepared in the office of a Philadelphia architect.

The cemetery will have a capacity for 25,000 bodies.

The existing system of interment in Caracas has been unsatisfactory for many years.

An exhibit of structural ironwork in the warehouse of the American Manufacturers' Association in Caracas suggested a cemetery built entirely of iron.

A syndicate in which American capital is interested was formed to build the grave yard, and the success of the project is said to be assured.

Caught Smoking Cigarettes.

Meriden, N. H., Dec. 20.—Four girl students at the Kimball Female Seminary have been expelled for smoking cigarettes.

This town is a Shaker settlement of four hundred inhabitants and Shaker discipline is strict.

The offence was committed last Thursday evening in the dormitory of the seminary.

The smoke permeated the stuffed doors and window cracks, and before the revelers were aware of it, Professor W. H. Cummings, principal of the school, had opened the door and was among them.

Miss Etta B. Moore, the preceptress of the school, arrived on the scene and ordered the girls to take their clothes and go.

Spain Seeking a Great Loan.

A Thirty-third Degree Poet.

Our own Bayonne from bay to bay
Doth spread her winsome wings,
And fragrance permeates the air
When spring the flowers brings;
Here lawns and gardens bloom with joy
All through the summer's reign,
And pleasures true, without alloy,
Gladden the wide domain.

In order to avoid misapprehension and to ensure identification, permit us to credit the above poetic flow to our esteemed friend, Col. Page, of the Bayonne Herald. This sonnet to Bayonne's beauties is printed on a green-hued cover of our contemporary, but that does not necessarily infer that Col. Page is but a budding genius with rhymes. As a matter of fact, considering the vistas of nanny goats browsing gently on tin cans scattered promiscuously about, the sombre-hued view of oil tanks and the sight of every street corner quartering a saloon, the panorama that Bayonne presents, anyone who is capable of penning such felicitous sentiments as quoted above must be a thirty-third degree poet. We congratulate Col. Page on his attainments.

Pay For Peace Commissioners.

Twenty million dollars for a balm to Spain in the loss of the Phillipines is not the only big expenditure of Uncle Sam in connection with the negotiation of the peace treaty. It is reported that William B. Day and Whitelaw Reid will each receive $100,000 for acting as Peace Commissioners at Paris, and James B. Moore $50,000 as secretary. Senators Davis, Frye and Gray, however, will have to be satisfied with what glory they can get out of being members of the Peace Commission, as they are already salaried officers of the government and are barred from receiving compensation for their services. And Admiral Dewey, the greatest of them all, whose work thrilled the nation and gave the Peace Commissioners the opportunity of the gathering in the Phillipines, rests content with a salary of a few thousand a year. But he is first in the hearts of his countrymen.

Elizabeth's district court is regarded as a high-priced ornament by some people, inasmuch as it costs $4,000 a year to operate it. The New York Press has this to say of it:

Elizabeth has discovered this fact and now wants the Legislature to force the county of Union to pay a part of the court's expenses, which aggregate $4,000 a year. It is held that the court can be moved about, like a show on wheels, meting out justice in Plainfield and Rahway quite as well as in Elizabeth, thus absorbing some of the business that often clogs the machinery of justice in the county seat, Elizabeth. How the farmers will take to this idea will scarcely be known until the bill with this object in view is placed before the Legislature. Of one thing there is a certainty—the justices of the peace in Union will do their best to kill the bill.

The definition of "mustered out soon," as applied to the various volunteer regiments who are anxious to see home-life again, the Third New Jersey among them, is rather an aggravating one for the soldiers. When Attorney-General Griggs was asked how quick "mustered out soon" meant, Mr. Griggs replied that "after the army reorganization bill was passed." When the soldiers have to take their chances with Congress, which is always bent on doing more talking than anything else, it's pretty tough luck.

The New York city health authorities have come to a decision that concerns a great many people, though it has taken a whole decade to arrive at it. It is none other than that the grippe is a contagious and infectious disease. Such a decision would ordinarily strike terror to the hearts of people who regard their health with great care, but inasmuch as ten years of existence of the malady has not caused widespread mortuary losses there is no reason to get excited over the situation.

The war has turned things upside-down in more ways than one. Think of the New York Evening Post actually admitting that Col. Bryan has voiced a sentiment that wasn't demagogic, but that is what Editor Godkin has cheerfully emblazoned in cold type on the editorial page of his ultra-conservative paper. Larry and Billy are bedfellows when it comes to considering colonial expansion.

Every newspaper that has commented on the proposed terms for trolley extensions in this city has said or inferred that they were all right with the exception of the length of time that the franchise is to run. All agree that ninety-nine years is too long a period to grant such estimable rights to a corporation.

Many farmers in South Jersey, now in the midst of hog killings, have departed from the usual custom of inviting several neighbors, who come merely for the purpose of getting a good dinner and do as little work as possible. This season help is hired and the work is accomplished in half the usual time.—Current News Item.

Yes, indeed, all signs in Jersey indicate that the millenium is not far off.

Senator VanCleef, of Middlesex county, will probably secure the honor of being made the minority candidate for president of the upper house of the Legislature. Middle New Jersey is sharing well in the political honors this trip.

Mayor VanWyck is thinking of advertising for applicants for appointment as school commissioners in Greater New York. Is the Mayor joking, or has Tammany gone back on its traditions?

Have you noticed that the stores that advertise the biggest are the ones doing the biggest business this week?

A peanut trust is threatened. That will be a cracking affair.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Already the covetous Justices of the Peace are moving on the Legislature for that degree of protection in law which, in former days, permitted them to hold up county treasurers for fees far in excess of any right in justice, even though the statute allowed the public swindle. Wherever there are District Court Judges to absorb the business of these dronelike dogberries there you will find the Justice of the Peace clamoring for protective legislation. Gradually New Jersey is emerging from seventeenth century nonsense and the Justice of the Peace relic will pass with other pernicious influences against.—New York Press.

An Unparalleled Time Record

Was made every day during the period of the Omaha Exposition by the trains of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway on its Chicago & Omaha Short Line.

Altho its trains hauled from ten to thirteen well filled sleeping cars and coaches each night, yet schedule time of arrival at Omaha and at Chicago was an accomplished fact,—a record to be proud of, and which has resulted in establishing the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul Railway in the minds of the traveling community as the shortest, best and most reliable route from Chicago to Omaha, as well as to California.

NEWS OF THE SUBURBS.

THINGS THAT INTEREST SCOTCH PLAINS AND DUNELLEN.

Brief and Terse Observations Gathered by Alert Press Reporters to be Perused at the Supper Table at Your Leisure

DUNELLEN.

(Special Correspondence of The Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 20—People who happened to be on North avenue yesterday afternoon about 3:15 o'clock, witnessed a novel race between the Plainfield and Bound Brook trolley cars. The Plainfield car which meets the Bound Brook car in front of the station, was late, and instead of waiting for the other car to come up, started on his homeward trip. Now there were thirteen passengers on the Bound Brook car who were very anxious to go to Plainfield, and as they saw the Plainfield car, from where they were, way down the road, leaving, they urged the motorman to try and catch it. That official entered into the spirit of the race, and put on all the power he had, and sent the car speeding down North avenue at a tremendous rate, the passengers on front and rear platforms, shouting and waving their hats and handkerchiefs. The Plainfield car had a good start, and got almost to the borough line before the conductor noticed the commotion behind, then he stopped his car and waited until the Bound Brook car came up, when the transfer was made. Both motorman claim that their car was having the best of the race, so it is hard to tell whether the Bound Brook car would have overhauled the Plainfield car or not, had both motormen really tried to race.

An epidemic of the grip is raging here, and almost every house in the borough and vicinity has a member who is either down with the grip or is just recovering from it. Rev. Frank Fletcher's family are down with it, and so are several members of J. Y. Wilson's household. Besides these there are cases all over. Sunday Dr. Nelson treated twenty-four patients, and Drs. Brakeley and Whitford also have their hands full.

Rev. G. W. Gardner, of the Grace M. E. church, North Plainfield, addressed the Sunday-school of the Methodist church Sunday afternoon on a missionary topic.

Mr. Bilyeu, of Plainfield, has taken out the spire from the Presbyterian church steeple, and expects to put it back today and leave it in a vertical position.

Mrs. A. D. Frazee, of Brooklyn, has brought her child and has taken up her residence with her mother, Mrs. Luckhurst, of Greenbrook.

The Christmas entertainment of the Methodist church Sunday-school will be held Friday evening of this week.

The Sunday-school of the Presbyterian church will hold their Christmas entertainment Christmas Eve.

Charles Apgar, of Westfield, spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Emily Apgar, of Front street.

Walter James, of New Brunswick, spent Saturday and Sunday with William Coriell.

Miss Mabel Jamison attended a musicale last evening at Elizabeth.

Miss Mabel Jamison is visiting in Newark.

NEW MARKET.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

New Market, Dec. 20—C. E. Kelly & Company, the coal and wood dealers, have issued a pretty calendar which they are sending around to their patrons.

The Sunday-school of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will have a Christmas tree in the church Sunday evening.

The Christmas exercises will be held in the public school Friday.

Kelly & Company's new offices are almost ready for occupancy.

Nasal Catarrh quickly yields to treatment by Ely's Cream Balm, which is agreeably aromatic. It is received through the nostrils, cleanses and heals the whole surface over which it diffuses itself. To test it, a trial size for 10 cents or the large, for 50 cents, is mailed by Ely Brothers, 56 Warren street, New York. Druggists keep it. A remedy for Nasal Catarrh which is drying or exciting to the diseased membrane should not be used. Cream Balm is recognized as a specific.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 20—The members of the Italian mission, through the kindness of Mrs. George E. Hall, enjoyed stereopticon views at the mission Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Christianson, of Fanwood, are spending the winter in New Orleans. Mr. Christianson is the junior member of a large sugar firm of New York city, and has taken charge of their branch house at New Orleans. Since their arrival Mr. Christianson has been quite ill, but his many friends will be glad to hear that he is convalescent and will soon be well again.

Mrs. Arlington Drake, Miss May Johnson, Miss May Cotton and Horace Young attended the alumni banquet of the Cortland Normal School held at the St. Denis Hotel Friday evening of last week.

Miss May Cotton, of Glen Cove, L. I., who has been spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. Arlington Drake, returned to her home Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Jimerson, of Westfield, were the guests Sunday of their daughter, Mrs. George W. Marsh.

WESTFIELD.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four Doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in eight bottles. It has cured me and thank God, I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's Drug store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00. Guaranteed or price refunded.

Suggestions for Housekeepers.

Next to having a clean range and a good fire it is most important that all pots, pans, saucepans, and other cooking utensils should be scrupulously clean. It is important that the mistress of the house should know something of scullery work, for untrained servants never seem to have any idea of the proper methods of cleaning even when they can cook a little.

I cannot but think that a few practical directions may prove useful to my readers, so I shall here give some notes on the subject.

Whether in scullery work or cookery the first thing to do is to collect all the utensils and ingredients that may be required. It is most annoying to have to stop in the midst of making a cake, for instance, when one's hands are floury, in order to go and search for baking powder, perhaps finding the supply run short, and then waiting while a messenger is despatched for it to that little store around the corner, thus losing time and patience.

To clean an iron saucepan a pail of hot water, soda, flannel, and sand are required. If there be any soot adhering to the exterior scrape it off with an old knife, then put the saucepan into the water, soap the flannel, sprinkle a little fine sand on it, and wash the utensil both inside and out, removing all grease and remnants of food; rinse in clean, cold water, and dry thoroughly with a dry dishcloth, as if put away damp the saucepan will rust. The outside, but not the handle, may be blackleaded, putting on the blacklead with a small brush, rubbing it in with a second, and polishing with a third. The saucepan may now be dusted inside, and placed upside down on the potboard, so that the air but no dust may enter.

Some people when they desire to clean a saucepan put it on the fire to boil with soda and water, but this is unwise, as the bottom is liable to burn if any vegetable, &c., has adhered to it.

To clean the lid, first wash it in a similar manner to the saucepan with soap, soda, and a little sand, then apply whitening mixed with water to the consistency of cream; let this dry on the tin, then polish off, taking out the whitening from the crevices with a wooden skewer if necessary.

Tin saucepans are cleaned in the same manner as the lids, namely, first washed and dried, and then brightened with whitening.

The Cyclist's Saddle.

The beginner almost always complains of her saddle—sometimes because it is not adjusted properly, but more frequently because she does not sit right. She uses it as she would a chair, upon which she places her whole weight, and then complains because the vibration of the machine jolts. The principal difficulty lies in the fact that she does not depend enough on her pedals; she should carry her weight very largely on them, and not hang upon the saddle. If she does this, and gets the right adjustment, all discomfort will be removed, and she can suit her fancy as to style and size, the latter point being the most important, as the majority of riders suffer from using a saddle much too narrow at the back. A wide back is essential for all but very small riders.

Brandied Quinces.

Peel two pounds of small ripe quinces.

Put them into a clean pan, with just enough water to cover them.

Boil gently half an hour, and then drain off the water—but do not throw it away, and leave them till cold.

Put half a pound of loaf sugar into a saucepan with half a pint of the water the quinces were cooked in. Boil quickly for five minutes, then put in the fruit again and boil fifteen minutes.

Take out the fruit, drain it well, and put them in clean, dry jars.

Boil the syrup till it is as thick as cream. Strain it into a basin and leave till cold. Mix it with an equal quantity of brandy. Pour this syrup over the quinces. Cover and tie down the jars tightly.

Fur Trimming for House Gown.

Chinchilla in narrow bands finishes the bottom and outlines panels of handsome reception and evening gowns, and with excellent effect, though some people object always to fur on house gowns. Nothing, however, is more charming than chinchilla. Ermine is beautiful with some shades of dark green. A little of it adds a richness that nothing else can give, and there is a shade of yellow with green tints in the ermine which makes it blend admirably with the green. Sable plays an important part in millinery and gowns, and particularly wraps.

The baby Persian lamb is to be found as an effective trimming on the bodices of many gowns. It is effective in giving character to a gown of one of the pretty shades of brown.

Elaborate Underwear.

Whole columns could be written on the subject of lingerie, so elaborate and extensive is the display. The nightrobes are especially pretty, made from the finest of white cambric, while some of the handiwork employed on these dainty articles of femininity is certainly wonderful.

One pretty robe of fine white cambric, is made with a small square yoke over which are laid three overlapping ruffles of the cambric, edged with the daintiest of white lace. The sleeves, gathered on the inside seam, have full ruffles of lace at the wrist.

Lokal-Nachrichten aus der alten Heimath.

Aus der Rheinpfalz.

Speyer. Die von Staatswegen in der Pfalz angestellten Versuche zur Bekämpfung des Heu- und Sauerwurms werden in den nächsten Jahren fortgeführt. Bis jetzt ist festgestellt, daß durch Entfernung und Verbrennung des alten Rebholzes, durch Abreiben der Weinstöcke und Abfangen der Motten mittelst Lämpchen und Fächer sehr beachtenswerthe Erfolge erzielt worden sind.

Großbockenheim. An dem protestantischen Pfarrhause zündeten drei junge Burschen von 17 bis 18 Jahren Nachts einen Haufen Stroh und Heu, den sie gerade unter einem durch Läden nicht verschlossenen Fenster aufgehäuft hatten, an, so daß die Flammen an dem Hause emporschlugen und ernstlichen Schaden angerichtet haben würden, wenn nicht die steinerne Mauer jede Beschädigung durch das Feuer ausgeschlossen hätte. Die Thäter entkamen.

Neustadt. Vom Transmissionsriemen erfaßt und tödtlich verletzt wurde die 15 Jahre alte Marie Glaser hier in der Stärkefabrik von Neubauer u. Co. Das Mädchen ist die Tochter einer armen hiesigen Wittwe.

Württemberg.

Stuttgart. Das Ehrengericht der württembergischen Anwaltkammer verurtheilte den Rechtsanwalt Gustav Pfizer von Ulm wegen Verletzung seiner Berufspflicht, begangen durch die Broschüre „Die Rechtskraft des Verbrechens," wodurch zahlreiche Richter sich beleidigt fühlten, zu einem Verweis und zu einer Geldstrafe von 2500 Mark.—Nach dem „Merkur" ist für hier eine Ausstellung der Sezession geplant, die Ende Januar, spätestens am 1. Februar eröffnet werden soll.

Einthürnen. Das „Waldseer Wochenblatt" berichtete kürzlich: Böllersalven verkündeten den Feiertag, bürgerliche Kollegien, Feuerwehr und Kriegerverein rückten aus, nach dem Gottesdienst, Frühschoppen, Nachmittags 2 Uhr Festessen mit 63 Gedecken, Festrede, Fackelzug mit Feuerwerk, Abendunterhaltung mit Musik einer auswärtigen Kapelle, die Schulkinder erhalten Wurst und Brod. Was war wohl los in Einthürnen, daß so gefestet wurde? Der Leichenschauer steht 50 Jahre im Dienst.

Ellwangen. Die Brauerei von Arnold, vormals Heinle, hier, hat ihren Konkurs angezeigt, was hier großes Aufsehen erregt, da die früheren Besitzer alle auf dieser Wirthschaft gut weiter kamen und sogar reich geworden sind. Arnold hat das Anwesen vor zwei Jahren um 135,000 Mark erworben.

Heilbronn. Der Gemeinderath Haakh, der frühere Vorsitzende der hiesigen Volkspartei, ist gestorben.

Tettnang. Um das lenkbare Luftschiff, das von dem Grafen v. Zeppelin konstruirt ist, zu erproben, läßt die Gesellschaft für Förderung der Luftschifffahrt in Stuttgart, der ein Kapital von einigen 100,000 Mark zur Verfügung stehen soll, demnächst in der Nähe der Domäne Manzell einen schwimmenden Schuppen von riesigen Größenverhältnissen herstellen. In diesem Schuppen soll unter Leitung eines Stuttgarter Maschinentechnikers das lenkbare Luftschiff hergestellt und mit diesem alsdann Flugversuche über den Bodensee gemacht werden. Die Flugversuche, welche im Monat Mai 1899 stattfinden sollen, dürften eine große Menge Schaulustiger herbeilocken.

Untertürkheim. Unser Ort wird immer mehr zur Anlage von Fabriken benützt. An der Straße nach Cannstatt wird eine größere Bonbonfabrik errichtet und dieser Tage haben unsere bürgerlichen Kollegien ein unterhalb der Cementröhrenfabrik von Krutina gelegenes Gemeindeareal im Meßgehalt von 50 Ar zum Preise von 4.50 Mark für den Quadratmeter verkauft. It't a Manly Act.

A Plainfield Citizen Speaks for the Benefit of His Fellow Citizens.

A plain straightforward statement.
A grateful acknowledgment of help.
Telling a personal experience.
Making it public for the public good.
It's a manly act.
It's manly because it helps others.
So many people have been misled.
So many claims made that were not true.
No wonder there are skeptics.
A Plainfield man speaks here.
Speaks in the interest of humanity.
Shows the way to our citizens.
Removes the stumbling block of doubt.
Gives local indorsement.
No better proof can be had.
No better should be asked.
Plainfield people should know what is the true kidney remedy.
Distinguish it from many imitations.
Know that Doan's Kidney Pills are the only genuine.
There are many kidney remedies, but only one cure.
Other kidney pills but only one Doan's.
And they cure kidney ills.
We say so—your neighbors prove it.

Mr. Charles Giese, Cigar Manufacturer of 25 Elm Place, says: "I was subject to attacks of kidney complaint for 2 or 3 years. Most of the pain was in my back and hips and I could not stoop or straighten without feeling sharp, shooting twinges. When I sat for any length of time I grew stiff and sore and was compelled to get up and move about. I grew so bad I had to do something for it. I had read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills being such a good medicine for kidney troubles, so I got a box of them at L. W. Randolph's drug store. I used them according to directions and after 2 or 3 days I felt better. I continued their use until the pain disappeared. I am only too glad to be able to testify to the fact that Doan's Kidney Pills are a splendid remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills for sale by all dealers; price 50 cents a box. Mailed on receipt of price by Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name Doan's and take no other.

HOW INDIANS FARE.

DR. PARKHURST WOULD RATHER BE A MALAY.

Hon. T. J. Morgan, Ex-Commissioner of Indian Affairs, Tells How Much Worse Off the Doctor Would Be If He Were a Yellow Subject of Spain.

Dr. Parkhurst of New York recently preached a sermon in which he said: "I would rather be a Malay subject to Spain than be an American Indian subject to the Indian Bureau. So long as it is an understood thing that office is spoils we may well pray to be delivered from the responsibility of governing dependencies."

Hon. T. J. Morgan wrote the Tribune in defense of the Government's care of the Indians as follows:

By "Malay" I suppose is meant any inhabitant of the Philippine Islands; and I assume that Dr. Parkhurst means by his statement to institute a comparison between Spain's treatment of the Philippines and our treatment of the Indians. I do not raise the question, Would Dr. Parkhurst rather be a "Malay" or an "Indian"? as I do not suppose that is involved. Let us glance then for a moment at what seems to me a fair statement as to the difference in the Spanish method of dealing with the Philippines and our method of dealing with the Indians.

First—Spain has derived from the Philippine Islands a large revenue by a system of taxation which has borne very heavily upon the inhabitants. She has sought to force from them the largest possible amount of money, and has spent upon them for their own benefit a mere pittance.

We have never regarded the Indians as subjects of taxation or sources of revenue. On the other hand, we have treated them as wards and have bestowed upon them as gratuities large sums of money. When we have taken their land it has been by agreement, and we have paid them for it large sums of money in the aggregate. A large part of the present expense of the Indian Bureau is incurred in the payment to them of stated annual sums in fulfilment of treaty stipulations.

Let me give one single illustration. The Osage Indians, now living in Indian Territory, a remnant now of about fifteen hundred people, hold in common a large reservation on which they live, where they have for the most part comfortable homes, extensive farms, stocked with cattle and horses and supplied with a fair amount of agricultural implements. From this land alone it would be possible for them to obtain an abundant subsistence; with proper industry no Indian would suffer want. But in addition to this landed estate—in the use of which they are protected by the Government—there is to their credit in the Treasury of the United States $8,000,000, on which the Government pays them in cash every three months the sum of $100,000. Besides this, the Government maintains for them large well-equipped boarding schools. A good many white men have thought it well to go among these Osages, marry their daughters and identify themselves with the tribe in order to share in their wealth. If an instance similar to this can be pointed out by Dr. Parkhurst in Spain's treatment of the Malays, I should be exceedingly interested in reading it.

Second—The five so-called civilized tribes—Cherokees, Creeks, Choctaws, Chickasaws and Seminoles—in the Indian Territory have for many years maintained their position as nations, each tribe having its own autonomy, its landed estate, its system of legislation, administration, courts and schools under the protectorate of the United States. The Government is seeking through the Dawes Commission to prevail upon these people to surrender their autonomy and identify themselves with the people of the United States as citizens. I do not know of any similar instance of absolute self-government among the Malays under Spanish protection. If there is such will Dr. Parkhurst kindly indicate it?

Third—Any and every Indian has the privilege of separating from the tribe, assuming civilized habits, accepting allotments of land and becoming a citizen of the United States, with the full enjoyment of all ordinary privileges of citizenship and with some special safeguards and exemptions which his white fellow-citizens do not enjoy.

Fourth—The United States, through the Indian Bureau, is maintaining among the Indians of this country a system of public boarding-schools at a cost of about $3,000,000 annually, in which there are now enrolled no less than twenty-four thousand Indian pupils, who are fed, clothed, instructed and nursed when sick at the expense of the United States. From the best information that I have been able to obtain, Spain has adopted no such scheme of education for the Malays under her control, and I had supposed that the outlook for the Indian boy and girl who can receive free of cost the advantages offered in these great Government schools, where they receive not only a common English education but an industrial training, and where there is open to them on leaving school the choice of occupation and of residence anywhere in the United States, was possibly superior to that of the Malay under Spanish rule. Will Dr. Parkhurst kindly correct me if I am mistaken?

Fifth—It is commonly understood and I had supposed it was correct that the inhabitants of the Philippine Islands have been plundered and oppressed by the so-called religious orders to a very extreme degree, and that there is practically no such thing among them as religious liberty. On the other hand, the Indian Bureau does not seek to impose upon the Indians any form of religion, but gives them the utmost freedom of action in religious matters, and offers every facility to any and all religious denominations for the prosecution among them of missionary work.

For these and for other reasons which I might mention I confess that for myself I should rather be an Indian under the Indian Bureau than a Malay subject to Spain.

THE SOUTH'S COTTON PROBLEM.

A New Theory to Account for the Falling Price and Increasing Acreage.

Along with the question of the identity of the man who assaulted William Patterson, with the controversy over the relative merits of city and country life and the discussion whether married men live on the average longer than single men or only imagine that it is longer, is another familiar subject of dispute not yet settled—why the cotton acreage of the South keeps constantly increasing and why the agriculturists of that region do not vary their products. The cotton acreage in the South has steadily been increasing for a good many years; the selling value of cotton has been steadily going down. As the acreage has been enlarged the selling price of cotton has decreased, with the result that though the gross value of the American cotton crop does not vary radically from year to year, the ratio of the expenses involved in its production, the cost of labor, machinery, land and interest, is steadily on the increase. Now there comes forward a man with a new theory to explain the matter. He hails from the heart of the cotton district of Georgia, the chief cotton-producing State till Texas bore away the palm of eminence. His theory is that the reason why the price of cotton is going down and the cotton acreage is increasing is that each year that a larger number of colored men and a smaller number of white men are engaged as principals in cotton culture. He avers that in all the southern states negroes are buying farm lands and they are producing cotton at a cost below that at which the white man can produce it. Their rapid strides forward in cotton culture have done more than anything else to double the cotton output and reduce the price in the last few years. They have driven the price down.

Under the direction of the Department of Agriculture there were made last year some inquiries into the dietary of colored inhabitants of the cotton belt. The investigation was conducted in co-operation with the Agricultural College of Alabama. It was shown by them that the average daily diet of a negro laborer in the cotton fields amounted to three-quarters of a pound of bacon, less than half a pound of flour, half a pound of molasses, and one pound of cornmeal, and that as a result of their modes of sustenance and their ways of life, the labor of colored men in the cotton belt was of such small material value as seriously to embarass and threaten the work of the white farmers—whenever the colored men have control of the land. The matter was brought up for discussion at a recent convention at Macon, Ga., and considerable support was given to this view of the case.

BILL NYE'S BIG HIT.

The Audience Was Full of Emotion and Appreciation.

The following is one of James Whitcomb Riley's stories of his former lecturing partner, Bill Nye:

It was the opening of their joint season; they had both been rusticating during the vacation and were both brown as berries. Nye looked much like an Othello in his sunburned make-up, and Riley suggested to him the application of some "liquid white," a cosmetic much effected by the gentler sex of the profession.

Nye sent for the preparation, and never having used anything of the kind before, he filled the palm of his hand with it and carelessly smeared it over his countenance. There was no mirror in his very primitive dressing room, and Riley was beautifying himself on the other side of the stage.

The "liquid white" dries out somewhat like whitewash, and when Nye appeared before the audience he was a sight to behold. His head looked like a frosted top piece on a wedding cake; his face, white as the driven snow, was expressionless and blank. The audience shrieked, and when he came off from his first selection, they demanded his reappearance. He obliged them to howls of laughter, again he made his exit, and again was redemanded by the uproarious audience.

Believing he had made a hit, he was about returning to the stage, when he was caught by the arm by Mrs. Nye, who exclaimed: "William Edgar Nye, what have you got on your face?"

"Nothing but its usual expression, my dear."

"Expression—fiddlesticks! You're a fright!" cried his wife, and leading him to where there was a piece of broken looking-glass, showed him how he looked.

Nye was mortified, and catching sight of Riley, just about going on the stage, he would have undoubtedly followed him on and been revenged, but for the intervention of Mrs. Nye.

His head was scraped, combed and washed, and his next selection was read without a "hand" from the audience. Moreover, the story is a fact, and not a press agent's concoction.

"Do you call this angel cake, Katharine?"

"Yes; isn't it good?"

"Of course, dear; but I didn't know there were any iron-jawed angels."—Detroit Free Press.

Whereas, The Inhabitants of the City of Plainfield, by their Common Council, do enact as follows:

Section 1. That the tracks of the extension of the Plainfield Street Railway Company's railway be and are hereby located in the following streets, roads and alleys of the city of Plainfield: from a point in the present line of tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway Company in East Fifth street opposite to Richmond street; thence westerly through Richmond street to East Second street; thence northerly through East Second street to the present terminus of said East Second street between Netherwood avenue and Leland avenue; thence along a right of way through private property northeasterly on a curve having a radius of four hundred and seventy-one feet and eight-tenths of a foot, two hundred and one feet and seventy-four hundredths of a foot; thence north twenty-one degrees and five minutes east two hundred and eighty-three feet and twenty-three hundredths of a foot; thence easterly on a curve with a radius of one thousand and eleven feet and five-tenths of a foot, four hundred and five feet and fifteen hundredths of a foot; thence north forty-four degrees two minutes east two thousand and three hundred and four feet and twenty hundredths of a foot to the line of the city of Plainfield in Terrill road, and in those portions of said streets, roads and alleys marked out and shown on maps filed in the office of the city clerk of said city, entitled "Map showing location of tracks, turnouts and poles for proposed extension of Plainfield Street Railway," signed "Thomas A. Nevins, President," dated August 1st, 1898, to which reference is made, and the same hereby made a part of this ordinance, and the said company is hereby given the right to construct, maintain and operate its extension to its street railway in said portions of said streets, roads and alleys, under and subject to certain restrictions and regulations hereinafter specified or referred to, the same being such restrictions and regulations as the Common Council hereby deem requisite for the public interests as well as subject to such further reasonable regulations as may be hereinafter enacted by said Council. All rights and privileges under this ordinance conferred upon said Company shall cease and expire on the first day of January, A. D., 1899, and thereupon, on demand, said Company will forthwith remove all of its said tracks from the streets, lanes and alleys of said city. A detailed plan of construction shall be filed with the city clerk by said company and be approved by said Common Council before any work is done under the permission herein granted.

This ordinance is furthermore passed upon the express condition that if at any time hereafter the said city of its Common Council shall locate the tracks of any other street railway company or grant consent to the location of the tracks of any other street railway company over that portion of Richmond street lying between the southerly line of North avenue and the southerly line of East Third street, such other street railway company shall have the right to use the tracks and poles of said Plainfield Street Railway company that may be laid or erected on said portion of Richmond street in common with said Plainfield Street Railway Company upon terms to be agreed upon between such other company and said Plainfield Street Railway Company, or in case said two companies shall fail for the space of thirty days next after demand made upon them by such other company to agree upon the terms, then upon terms to be established and determined by the Common Council of said city of Plainfield.

Section 2. That said company shall construct, maintain and operate a single track railway for said extension, to be laid upon the middle line of Richmond street and East Second street to the present terminus of East Second street; thence along a right of way, through private property to the line of the city of Plainfield in Terrill road; it shall construct, operate and maintain a double track street railway and shall construct the tracks, switches, turnouts and poles in the manner and at the point and places indicated for the same on said map; the poles shall be constructed and set and the wires strung thereon in the same manner as the poles are constructed and set in the ground and wires strung on poles on the line of street railway now operated in the city of Plainfield by the said Plainfield Street Railway Company.

Section 3. That said company shall keep in repair to the satisfaction of the committee on streets the paving or other surface material of the portion of streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks and in addition shall keep in repair eighteen inches on each side of the portion of said streets, roads and bridges occupied by its tracks. In case of double track or switches or turnouts, the expression "occupied by its tracks," shall be construed to mean all space in the street between the outermost rails. In case the city shall at any time determine to pave or repave any street or section of street the said company shall forthwith repave any portion of said street or section of street which may be occupied by the company's track and for eighteen inches beyond, with same material and in same manner, and shall do so at the company's expense under the supervision of the street commissioner. If said company shall at any time fail to comply with any of the requirements of this section, the work or repairs hereinabove specified may be done or made by or under the direction of the said committee on streets, and to their satisfaction, and the expense thereof shall on demand be paid by said company to said city; provided that the said committee on streets or a majority of them shall give at least ten days notice in writing of the intention to do such work or make such repairs, said notice to be served upon any officer or employe of said company who may be found at their office or depot.

Section 4. The said company and its officers, servants, agents or employes shall not nor shall any or either of them be allowed to shovel, throw or place any snow, ice or slush along the side of said track or tracks in any street or streets in such manner as to obstruct other public travel therein; but, when moving said snow, ice or slush from said track or tracks the said company or its officers, servants, agents or employes shall cause the same to be immediately leveled between the said track or tracks and the gutter line on each side thereof unless the fall of snow shall have been too heavy to make it practicable to level the same aforesaid; in which latter case the said company shall promptly remove all such excess of snow. Upon violation of any of the provisions of this section, there shall be incurred a penalty of Ten Dollars for every city block in which any such violation shall take place, but said penalty shall not aggregate more than One Hundred Dollars in any one day or on any one conviction; said penalty to be paid to the city by the said company or by any of its said officers, agents or employes so offending for each and every offence.

Section 5. That the rights and privileges intended to be given by this ordinance to said company are subject to all limitations, provisions, terms and conditions set forth and contained in sections 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 13, 14, 16, 17 and 18 of the ordinance of the city entitled "An ordinance locating the tracks of the Plainfield Street Railway Company and regulating the construction and operation of the same and granting permission to said company to use electric motors as the propelling power of its cars" approved April twenty-seventh, 1891, to the same extent and with the same effect as if said sections were re-enacted in full as part of this ordinance.

Section 6. That the gauge of the tracks to be laid hereunder shall be four feet eight and one-half inches, and that all the cars of the said company shall be similar to those now in use by it or such as shall be approved by the Common Council of said city. They shall be lighted by electricity and properly heated in winter. Said company shall use upon its cars the Climax or other noiseless gearing and equip said cars with proper bells or gongs and said cars shall be run at a speed of not more than ten miles an hour. No salt shall be used by said company on any part of its tracks. For violation of any of the conditions of this section there shall be incurred a penalty of ten dollars for each offence and ten dollars additional for every day that such violation shall continue, not exceeding one hundred dollars on any one conviction.

Section 7. The cars to be operated or run upon the extension of the railway of the Plainfield Street Railway Company hereby authorized to be constructed shall be equipped with fenders of the pattern approved by the mayor of the city, and so attached to the cars as best to protect persons and vehicles using the streets, and persons riding on the cars from injury.

Section 8. The said company shall build or construct the extension hereby authorized with turnouts and switches in the manner aforesaid and put the same into complete operation for the transportation of passengers on or before July 1st, A.D. 1899, and upon failure so to do or upon failure or neglect to operate the same as aforesaid all the rights, powers and privileges and every one of them of the said company, their successors and assigns, under and by virtue of this supplemental ordinance shall thereupon cease and determine and this ordinance shall be null and void so far as the grant of any such rights, power and privilege to said company is concerned and in either of such cases the Common Council may remove the rights to cause the said railroad or any part or parts thereof, so constructed, to be removed from said street or streets or any of them and to sell and dispose of the material thereof by public auction, and, after paying all the expenses of such removal and sale and of repairing the said street or streets and of restoring the same, as nearly as possible to their original condition, to pay the balance of the proceeds of such sale to the said company or its successors or assigns, provided, that no notice of such sale shall be required to be given, other than an advertisement signed by the city clerk, and published in any one or more newspapers printed and published in said city.

The time during which the said company shall be delayed in the prosecution of its work or in the operation of its road or in any section thereof by injunction or other legal proceedings in the courts of New Jersey, or the Federal Courts shall not be included within the period within which the said extension is to be constructed and put into complete operation.

Section 9. All tracks of the Street Railway Company now laid or hereafter to be laid, are to be copiously watered throughout their entire length and for the space of two feet on each side thereof, twice in each day, from the 15th day of May to the 1st day of October in each year; once before 11 A. M., and once after 2 P. M., and in case of the failure of the Street Railway Company so to do, to the satisfaction of the Street Commissioner of the Common Council, said Company shall pay to the Treasurer of the City of Plainfield the sum of $20.00 per day for each and every day such failure shall continue or exist; such payment to be considered as liquidated damages for such default.

Section 10. The said Company shall for the fifty years beginning January 1st, 1899, as compensation for the rights granted under this ordinance, pay the Collector or other receiving officer of the City of Plainfield, for the use of the said City, a sum not to exceed seven and one-half per cent. and not less than five per cent. of the gross earnings of the Company upon the tracks; and during the next twenty-fours years a sum not greater than ten or less than five per cent. of the gross earnings upon said tracks.

The percentages to be paid as aforesaid for either or both of said last periods of twenty-five and twenty-four years respectively, if not mutually agreed upon between the said City and the said Company within sixty days respectively after the beginning of said respective periods shall be fixed within the limits of the percentages as above specified by three arbitrators, one to be appointed by the City, one by the said Company and the third by the Circuit Court of the County of Union on five days notice, and if for either or both of said periods last referred to said Company shall fail to agree with the City upon the percentage or percentages, and also fail to appoint its arbitrator, and notify the City in writing of said appointment within five days after notice to appoint such arbitrator, then the percentage or percentages to be paid by said Company annually for such period or periods respectively, shall be the maximum percentage for such period or periods above specified.

The gross earnings shall be construed to be all the earnings of the Company upon said tracks hereby authorized to be laid, including the full proportion of the earnings on traffic within the City of Plainfield and other traffic to be computed according to the proportion between the length of the journey and the number of miles traveled upon the tracks hereby authorized to be laid, provided that the annual gross earnings of the said company upon said tracks hereby authorized to be laid, shall, for the purpose of entitling the city to said percentage, and fixing the minimum sum on which said percentage shall be paid, be deemed and taken to be not less than such sum as would be produced by adding to all fares of five cents each or less than five cents each, paid during the year upon said portion of said tracks, two and one-half cents each for all other passengers carried upon said tracks or any portion thereof, above the age of ten years, and one and one-half cents each for all other passengers between the age of four and ten years carried over any portion of the tracks hereby authorized to be laid during the year. And to enable such calculation to be readily made the said company, its successors or assigns, will at all times cause separate returns to be made and properly tabulated in its books showing the number of passengers carried and the fares paid upon the line of tracks hereby authorized to be laid or any portion thereof, and the number of passenger carried on any part of said tracks who paid more than five cent fares per passenger, or who paid fares beyond the line of tracks hereby authorized, and also showing the number of passengers carried upon any portion of any of the tracks of said company located within the territory of the city of Plainfield or the Borough of North Plainfield, and the fares paid by them, whether such fares were paid within or without such territory, and a further table showing the proportion of earnings referred to in the first part of this paragraph; and annually between the first day of January and the fifteenth day of January in each year the said Company, its successors and assigns, will file with the City Clerk of said City a complete and detailed statement, signed by its President or Vice-President and its Treasurer, showing in fact what were the gross earnings for the year ending the first day of said month upon said tracks, and a table similarly signed showing in detail the total minimum account of gross earnings as they would be calculated according to the terms of this section, and similar statement showing gross earnings on all the tracks of said Company within the City of Plainfield or the Borough of North Plainfield, either and both.

That to enable the City to ascertain from time to time the amount of gross earnings of such Company, or to ascertain any facts required to be entered as aforesaid, the books of the Company shall from time to time when required, be opened in Plainfield to inspection by the Finance Committee of the Common Council or such other person or persons as the Common Council for that purpose shall designate.

The payment provided for in this section shall, as to the line of tracks hereby authorized, be in lieu of all license fees for cars whether provided for in prior ordinances or not, but the moneys to be paid by said Company to the City, as to all tracks heretofore authorized, shall be determined according to prior ordinances, except that in determining the amounts payable to the City under such prior ordinances, there shall be added to gross receipts on the other tracks the gross receipts on the line of tracks hereby authorized, and when the total in any one year shall equal or exceed Eighty Thousand Dollars for the entire system within the City of Plainfield and the Borough of North Plainfield, including gross earnings on tracks hereby authorized, then for that year and annually thereafter, there shall be paid as aforesaid to the Collector of said City, for the use of the City, five per cent of the gross earnings on tracks heretofore authorized, and on gross earnings on tracks hereby authorized, the percentages hereinabove specified for the same—the intent hereof being that as to the tracks authorized by this ordinance, compensation on the percentage basis above particularly set forth shall be chargeable from the beginning; and

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Music Hall patrons witnessed the return of an old favorite last night in the appearance of Minnie Lester in the presentation of "Ragged Jack." It has been several seasons now since Miss Lester has played in this city, but a large number of admirers whom she had made in previous visits were on hand to give her a rousing welcome when the curtain went up on the first act of the performance last night. Miss Lester is as clever as ever in her portrayals. Her forte was always in boy characters, and in the title role last night, representing the ups and downs of a bootblack, she was at her best. She gave to the impersonation a vim of action that, coupled with the dramatic opportunities which the piece accorded her part, kept the audience interested and applauding from start to finish. The supporting company was capable and aided Miss Lester in giving a satisfactory performance in all respects. In her specialities Miss Lester was original and entertaining. The company is well supplied with specialities of a first-class nature. Tonight a double bill will be presented, including the "Naval Volunteers" and the "Rough Diamond."

* * * * *

At Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre, New York, the fare is generous in quantity and capital in quality as benefits the holiday season. It is a good old-fashioned show that is offered this week with just one dramatic act as a concession to modern vaudeville ideas. The bill is headed by those perennial favorites, McIntyre and Heath, famed as "The Georgia Minstrels" all over America. Their specialty is old yet it seems to improve with age, and is more enjoyable at each successive hearing. Another favorite of the amusement loving public is Helene Mora, phenomenal contralto and true artist, who will be heard in old favorites as well as some new songs. Monday, December 26th, the performance begins at 9:30 a. m.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

TWO KILLED IN WRECK

Passenger Train Crashed Into Sleeper This Morning.

WAS WEST OF COLONIA.

ON MAIN LINE OF THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD.

Seven Were Injured—One Section of Express Stopped for Local—Other Section Ran into It—Sleeper Overturned.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Rahway, December 21.—One section of a through express train from the West on the Pennsylvania Railroad, crashed into a preceding section of the same train 130 yards east of the Colonia station this morning at 6:50 o'clock. Colonia is two miles west of Rahway. Two were killed and seven injured in the accident.

The killed were:

DEWOLFE, WILLIAM O., clerk in accountant's office of the Ohio River Railroad at Parkersberg, Va.

KNIGHT, E., of Jersey City, porter in Pullman sleeping car "Bartholdi."

The injured were:

LEVY, MRS. JULIA, of 594 11th street, Brooklyn. Suffered from shock, in a serious condition. Removed to Mt. Sania Hospital,

MEADE, B. F., of 346 Carlton avenue, Brooklyn. Left leg broken. Taken home.

KUPPER, F. of 19 Oakland avenue Brooklyn. Slight injuries. Went home.

IRISH, FRANK of Chicago, traveling passenger agent of the Chicago and Northwestern Railroad. Collarbone broken. Removed to St. Francis Hospital, Jersey City.

WELCH, J. E., of 345 Central avenue, Jersey City, conductor of Pullman sleeping car, "Bartholdi." Both legs broken. Removed to the City Hospital, Jersey City.

VANDEGRIFT, J., of Philadelphia, engineer of P. R. R. engine No. 515. Badly cut and bruised. Removed to St. Francis Hospital, Jersey City.

ZANEN, C., of Princeton, fireman on P. R. R. engine No. 515. Shaken and bruised. Removed to St. Francis Hospital, Jersey City.

The through express from the west is to run in a number of sections. The collision occurred between sections 10 and 14. Section 14 was ahead. That section was composed of eleven cars, express and mail, and one Pullman sleeper in the rear. Section 10 was composed of passenger coaches and was drawn by engine No. 515, Engineer Vandergrift and Fireman Zanen.

Near Colonia the Perth Amboy branch of the Pennsylvania joins the main line. The engineer of section 14 brough his train to a standstill to allow a Perth Amboy local to pass in on the main line. Neither section is supposed to stop in Jersey. Section 10 was moving along at 50 miles an hour. Vandergrift supposed that he had a clear track ahead. The fog hid section 14 until too late.

The locomotive crashed into the sleeper, throwing it from the track and into the ditch. Besides the crew of the colliding locomotive, all the injured were in the sleeper, as were also the killed. There were seventeen people in the sleeper. All were badly shaken up. So were the passengers in section 10. The locomotive to section 10, No. 515, was wrecked.

GRANTS A NEW TRIAL.

ALLEGED MILLSTONE BURGLARS WILL HAVE A CHANCE TO GET FREE.

An Affidavit Presented to Judge Bartine in Which State's Leading Witness on First Trial Says He Did Not Tell the Truth.

(Special to The Daily Press)

Somerville, December 21.—Judge Bartine granted a new trial yesterday to Thomas Shine and Thomas Wright, who were convicted at the last term of court of being implicated in the robbery of the East Millstone Pennsylvania Railroad station in September.

The State's witness, Jerry Washington, a colored man, swore before the Grand Jury and on the witness stand at the trial that he was one of the gang that committed the robbery and tied and gagged Henry Jones, the night watchman. Since the trial he has informed the Court that the story told was untrue, and yesterday an affidavit was presented to the Court by Counsel William G. Steele in which Washington confesses himself a perjurer. He denies that he was in East Millstone on the night of the robbery, but was at his home on the west side of the river. He says the detective gave him liquor until he was half drunk and did not know what he was saying.

Judge Bartine thought the story of Washington very improbable. No conviction should take place on the evidence of an accomplice, he said, unless well supported. In this case he held that there was nothing to sustain the verdict except the testimony of an accomplice.

HIS AGE WAS A RIPE ONE

JESSE MILTON EMERSON DIES AFTER FOUR SCORE YEARS OF LIFE.

Last September He and His Wife Celebrated Their Golden Wedding—He Was an Author of Several Interesting Books.

The death of Jesse Milton Emerson, aged eighty years, occurred yesterday afternoon at his home, "Inter-Haven," North Plainfield, after a long illness from pararlysis. Mr. Emerson and wife lived a retired life. September 19th last he and his wife celebrated the golden anniversary of their marriage and the event was an auspicious one. Since that time Mr. Emerson has frequently visited Plainfield in a carriage and enjoyed various drives. Owing to his condition his death was not wholly unexpected.

Mr. Emerson was born at Methuen, Mass., and Mrs. Emerson at Amherst, N. H. They were married September 18th, 1848, by Mrs. Emerson's father, Rev. Ira Pearson, who for seventy years was active in the Baptist ministry. After marriage Mr. and Mrs. Emerson located at New Orleans, where Mr. Emerson had business interests. Soon afterward they returned to New York city, where they resided until four years ago. During his early years Mr. Emerson conducted a publishing business at 38 Park Row, New York. He was the author of "New York to the Orient" and "European Glimpses and Glances," both of which relate the personal experiences which the author and his wife had while traveling abroad. Another work is entitled "Stimulants," and treats of the uses and abuses of such. After Mr. Emerson left the publishing business he founded the Brotherhood Wine Company, of New York, and he has been president of the company ever since. Two sons, J. M. Emerson, Jr., and Edward R. Emerson, both of New York, are associated in the business.

Mrs. Emerson and the two sons mentioned survive the deceased. The funeral services will be private.

Mr. McNabb Explains.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—With reference to the article printed in your yesterday's issue, as to the success of J. P. D. Kirch in the case of McNabb against Mundy, I desire to say that while the claim is a just one, it was instituted not for the recovery of the amount due, but for the sake of principle, or in other words, to ascertain the true position of Mr. Kirch in the matter, because he had had some previous dealings in the transaction. Now that actions have spoken truer than words the small claim can be charged up to profit and loss and still I will be the winner. I may also add that no appearance having been entered on the return day a non-suit must necessarily be entered for the asking.

Chas. J. McNabb.

Queen City Lodge Elect.

Queen City Lodge, No. 226, I. O. O. F., met Monday night and elected officers as follows: Noble grand, James D. Brown; vice grand, Harry W. Fraleigh; recording secretary, R. J. Neal; financial secretary, H. H. Hoffman; treasurer, J. P. Allis.

SENATORS PLEDGED TO SUPPORT REED.

Somerset Man Has Seven Votes Sure for President.

EXPECTS TO SECURE TEN.

NO PLANS MADE FOR THE GUBERNATORIAL INAUGURATION.

Arrangements for Mr. Voorhees' Induction Into Office Likely to Be Delayed Until After the Legislature Meets—Assessment Discussion Made One Enemy for Reed From Ocean County.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Trenton, Dec. 21—There were less than a dozen members of the coming Legislature at the State Capitol yesterday. Essex county's delegation was not represented. Senator-elect Pitney, of Morris county, was on hand, having come to Trenton on some court business.

He had a short talk with Senator Reed, of Somerset, and Senator-elect Hutchinson, of Mercer, the only other members of the Upper House present. The talk was purely informal. Nothing was said regarding the presidency. So far Senator Pitney has not committed himself as to his preference for a presiding officer.

There seems to be no question now as to Senator Reed's landing the presidency. He has seven of the Republican votes pledged to him, and it is very probable that he will get ten votes in the caucus. Eight is the number requisite to a choice.

The Senators who have assured Senator Reed of their support are Francis, of Monmouth; Johnson, of Camden; Stanger, of Gloucester; Miller, of Salem; Hand, of Cape May, and Hutchinson, of Mercer.

These, with his own vote, make seven. While Senator-elect Evans, of Atlantic, has not pledged himself it is understood that he is favorable to Reed. The latter's friends claim that Senator Ketcham will support Reed in preference to Johnson, of Bergen, and that Pitney will be for Reed. This practically assures Reed of ten votes, as against four for Senator Johnson.

All the Senators are friendly to Reed with the possible exception of Smith, of Ocean. The latter is opposed to the Somerset man because of Reed's championing the bill providing that where one county is satisfied that another county is not paying a fair share of school tax, an appeal may be taken to the State Board of Taxation.

This bill was aimed at Ocean county, the Somerset authorities claiming that the assessments, at Lakewood especially, were unfair. It was under this law that Somerset last summer made the complaint against Ocean, but the State Board of Taxation, with the exception of Major Lentz, upheld Ocean county. For this reason, Senator Smith is against Senator Reed.

So far no preparation have been made for the inauguation of Governor-elect Voorhees, although the event is but a few weeks off. The local Republican leaders have done absolutely nothing toward arranging for the inauguration.

Heretofore the Mercer county leaders, in either part, have always taken the initiative and made elaborate preparations for the induction of Governors, but this year nothing whatever has been done.

The outlook now is that no move whatever will be made in the matter until the opening of the Legislature, when a special committee will be named to make arrangements for the inauguration.

This will give the committee only five days to arrange for the inaugural programme, and it will necessarily be very meagre.

A SOLDIERS' MONUMENT.

STEPS TO BE TAKEN TO SECURE ONE BY THE SONS OF VETERANS.

Plan Proposed by Rev. W. C. O'Donnell—Appointment of Committee to Undertake the Work—Officers Chosen.

An enthusiastic meeting of John Hand Camp, No. 28, Sons of Veterans, was held last evening. One of the most important subjects considered was that regarding the proposed action in securing for Plainfield a soldiers' monument. Rev. W. C. O'Donnell, who is a member of the camp, gave a short talk on the subject. He thought that there should be a sufficient amount of patriotism in every one to help this worthy cause along. He also thought that if the right plans were adopted nearly every person in the city could be induced to interest themselves to some extent, however small. Mr. O'Donnell incorporated in his remarks a motion that a committee of three be appointed from the camp and that that committee be given power to ask the City Council for the appointment of a committee of three to work jointly in the matter. This motion prevailed and acting-Captain Raymond McVoy appointed Mr. O'Donnell, H. C. McVoy and W. C. Dobbins as the committee to represent the camp.

Mr. O'Donnell assured those present that the committee intend to get to work at once and if possible to accomplish before 1900 the object for which they were appointed.

The next business transacted was the election of officers which resulted as follows: Captain, Raymond McVoy; first lieutenant, Frank H. Clarkson; second lieutenant, E. P. T. Smith; camp council, George Bedford, Frank Perry, Charles Graves; delegates to division encampment, E. P. T. Smith, H. C. McVoy; alternates, F. A. Sutton and Clarence Rittenhouse.

Following the election it was unanimously agreed that the members of the Camp should furnish the supper on the evening of installation. H. C. McVoy proposed the idea and he thought that inasmuch as heretofore the G. A. R. or Woman's Relief Corps had performed this work it would only be fair for the Sons to give a supper in return for past favors. The committee appointed to look after this supper consists of E. P. T. Smith, F. A. Sutton and W. S. Sutton.

A partial report of the fair committee showed that the Camp will net $200 as a result of their efforts. This money will be put in the Dime Saving's Bank where it will draw interest.

TROUBLE DOWN ON THE FARM.

Son Went to the Klondike and New Worker Wasn't Satisfactory.

A dispute between neighbors over the division of last season's crops, the trespassing of pigs and sheep and the amount of money due one neighbor from the other, was aired in Justice Smalley's court at Washingtonville yesterday. Court was held in Finger's Hotel, and lasted from 11 o'clock in the morning until 9 o'clock last night when the jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff for $80.

The parties at odds were Stephen Bicknell and Mrs. Anna H. Underhill, and the suit was brought for $200 damages which Bicknell claimed in lieu of several tons of hay stored in Mrs. Underhill's barn, and which Mrs. Underhill refused to deliver to him.

Girard H. Underhill formerly managed his mother's farm, but last winter he went to the Klondike, leaving no one to run the farm. In her dilemma, Mrs. Underwood called on her neighbor, Bicknell, and offered him one-half of the crops if he would run the farm on shares. This Bicknell agreed to do.

When the crops were all harvested, there was a dispute between the two as to the division of the crops. Ten tons of hay in Mrs. Underhill's barn was the point on which they differed most, and finally Mrs. Underhill ordered Bicknell off the farm.

Bicknell, through Codington & Swackhamer, brought suit in tort against Mrs. Underhill. Reed & Coddington defended her.

The jurymen were: Frank Giddis, Newton Smalley, J. W. Coddington, August Mobus, John Emmons, Amity Wolffe, Edward Mundy, V. Dunky, Francis Bartells, William White, Mr. Stewart and Mr. Burnett.

The jury went out at 6 o'clock, and came in with their verdict at 9 o'clock.

Freeholders Looking Around.

The bridge committee of the Union County Board of Freeholders was in Plainfield yesterday afternoon making a tour of the town for the purpose of selecting a suitable railing to be erected on the new bridge at Rahway. One similar to the railing on the Watchung avenue bridge was selected, and Sheriff Kirk secured the contract for erecting the same.

GAY GIBSON GIRLS GATHER AT CASINO.

Plainfield Edition of Gibson's Famous Drawings.

FOR A WORTHY OBJECT.

SERIES OF TABLEAUX WELL RECEIVED BY THE AUDIENCE.

Affair Given for Benefit of Young Women's Club—Twenty-two Tableaux Given—Girls Were Pretty and Tableaux Cleverly Arranged—Who the Participants Were and the Committees.

A Plainfield edition of Charles Dana Gibson's drawings was presented at the Casino of the Union County Country Club last evening. While the pictures were not exactly Gibsonlike, they were very pretty nothwithstanding. The trouble is that the typical "Gibson Girl" is a rare creature, while the uplifted head and superior glance of the maiden in many of the drawings are not characteristic of the Plainfield young women. The tableaux were very pretty, however, and cleverly arranged so that the very fashionable audience present departed well satisfied with it all.

The affair was given for the benefit of the Young Women's Club and was arranged by those interested in that work. The committee in charge was composed of Mrs. L. H. Bigelow, Jr., Miss Marion Dumont, Miss Minne Wood, Miss Harriet Halloway, Miss Grace Cooley and Mrs. J. E. Kimball. The decorations were prepared under the direction of Mrs. C. C. Cokefair and Mrs. Samuel Kimball. The young women in charge were assisted in arranging the stage by Dr. Knott, J. E. Kimball, Frank Cokefair and L. H. Bigelow.

The stage was arranged with a large black frame on the left, over which hung the American and English flags, side by side. The rest of the stage was devoted to the large groups while the single figures were shown in the frame.

The programme opened with "The American Girl," Miss Florence Warfing, in a very Gibson-like pose. Next was a tableaux, entitled "This Can Happen. The American father may be amazed at finding his English son-in-law not an undesirable article."

Miss Edmee Corlies and Howard Corlies appeared as the Englishman and his bride while the American father, Laurens H. VanBuren had completely collapsed with amaze in the arms of his butler, City Judge-elect William N. Runyon.

Miss Elizabeth VanBoskerck was the central figure in "The Maiden and the Mistletoe," a soliloquy. "Now if I hang you over this dark corner he won't see you, and if I hang you in the light he won't dare." The next was "Not a Ghost." "It is only poor Jim who happened to marry the wrong girl, and sometimes when she is particularly unendurable, he remembers the other one." Dr. B. Van D. Hedges did look particularly doleful as "Jim," while Mrs. Edward VanBuren was properly regaled as the "wrong girl." Miss Negley appeared as "the other one." Miss Carrie Vail and Howard Huntington played the minor parts. Miss Minnie Wood and Harry Siausson, as a A. D. T. boy represented the picture "Her Protector." "Reading the Will" was pictured by Mrs. Edgar Corlies, Miss Carrie Vail, Miss Maysie Day, Tom VanBoskerck with E. C. Perkins in the role of solicitor. A study was given by Miss Mabel Negley attired in a riding habit.

Miss Katherine Reinhart looked every inch a Gibson girl in "Her Night-mare; How She Saw Herself." She was standing all alone at one side of the stage, attired in evening gown, while Dr. B. VanD. Hedges, Dr. F. C. Ard, E. S. Wilson, Howard Huntington, Mr. Doubleday and Gifford Cooley were apparently ignoring her presence entirely. It was amusing to see one of the young men forget and steal a glance at her during the tableau.

Mrs. W. L. Saunders appeared in "A Study." In a rustic scene, with very green grass and rocks, Miss Marion Bowen sat with her head on the shoulder of George VanBoskerck, who was looking unutterable things at the "caddy," Rob. Abbott. "Is a Caddy Always Necessary?" was the title. A vision in blue by Miss Edmee Corlies was entitled "A Study."

Part first closed with "The Old Tune," played by Miss Marguerite Burnett, while Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hallock and Laurens H. VanBuren were grouped about the stage. The tune was "The Last Rose of Summer."

Councilman Willam N. Runyon sang two bass solos in the intermission and then a truly delightful "Bachelor's Supper" was shown by C. F. Abbott,

NO ONE AT THROTTLE.

ENGINEER SUDDENLY KNOCKED UNCONSCIOUS BY ACCIDENT.

P. & R. Locomotive Ran for Some Distance Without Anyone to Control It—Injured Man is at Muhlenberg Hospital.

Camelback engine No. 470, drawing a P. & R. R. R. freight train, westbound, ran from a point west of Roselle to a short distance east of Westfield without an engineer at the throttle today, which was due to the sudden rendering unconscious of the engineer, R. J. Whitty, of Philadelphia.

As the locomotive passed under an overhead bridge near Roselle Engineer Whitty stuck his head out of the cab window and was struck by one of the braces supporting the bridge. He was knocked unconscious and fell to the bottom of the cab floor. The fireman was busy stoking the furnace and did not see the accident. After the train had run several miles, however, he noticed that the engineer was apparently not at the throttle and he hurried forward to investigate. He was startled to see Whitty lying on the floor of the cab. He tried to arouse him, but was unable. As the train approached Westfield he whistled for down breaks and stopped there.

The locomotive was detached from the train and ran hurriedly to this city, where it arrived at 12:30 o'clock and Whitty was taken to Muhlenberg Hospital. He was still unconscious when admitted to the hospital. It is impossible to tell how serious the injuries are.

THOUSANDS FOR TAXES.

PROPERTY OWNERS FLOCKED TO COLLECTORS ON LAST DAY.

City and Borough Officials Had a Big Rush Yesterday—$33,000 Received in the City—$7,000 Paid in the Borough.

Yesterday was one of the busiest in the history of the city and borough collectors. All day the offices were crowded with taxpayers who wanted to wait until the last minute before paying their taxes. During the morning hours the people came in rather slow, but soon after noon they began to flock to the offices and from that time up to late in the evening a steady stream of taxpayers poured in and kept both Collectors Martin and Brown, together with ther assistants, exceedingly busy. There was one annoying feature of the day and that was concerning the payment of dog tax. So many people claimed that they had no dogs, and in some cases they were very persistent.

Collector Martin was assisted by Miss Nevius and David Pope, while Roundsman Flynn stood guard to see that no crooked work was attempted by taxpayers and to keep people in line. In all Mr. Martin received $33,000 yesterday. Collector Brown received the sum of $7,000. Up to date Mr. Brown has received about $41,000 of the $54,000 which he is supposed to collect. Last evening at 11:30 o'clock he made his returns to Justice Crosley, and those who did not pay yesteaday will now have to see that dignitary.

Up to date Collector Martin has received about $120,000. It was after 10 o'clock last evening when the office was closed and the money was deposited. In both the city and borough a large number of checks for taxes were received in letters and they were still coming in that way this morning.

RABBI HELD FOR GRAND JURY.

The Segal-Reiner Troubles Brought up in Justice Collins' Court.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Dec. 21.—The case of Rabbi Joseph Segal, and his two sons, Bernard and Frank, charged with breaking and entering the house of Dr. John M. Reiner, of Broad street, Elizabeth, Tuesday night of last week, was called in Justice Collins' court in Westfield this morning. Lawyer Faulks, of Newark, representing the defendants, stated that his clients desired to waive examination and be held for the grand jury. The justice then placed them under $800 bail each, which was furnished by Isaac Newman and A. Silverstein, of Elizabeth.

Miss Segal, the daughter of Rabbi, who was the cause of the trouble between Reiner and the Segals, appeared in court ready to testify against her relatives. It will be remembered that Rabbi Segal claimed that Reiner was detaining his daughter in his house by hypnotic influence, and the offense charged by Reiner was committed when the Rabbi and his sons rescued the girl and carried her off to Newark at midnight.

MUST NOT CROWD GYMNASIUM GALLERY.

Y. M. C. A. Directors Notified of Violation of State Law.

BLOCKED AISLES THERE.

BASKET BALL DREW LARGE CROWDS TO GYMNASIUM.

Used to Put in Two Rows of Chairs and Fill Rest of Space With Standing Spectators—Directors Puzzled How to Overcome Violation of Law—Basket Ball is Blocked at Present.

The directors of the Plainfield Young Men's Christian Association find themselves face to face with an unpleasant situation. Without being aware of the fact, they have been violating a State law and city ordinance for the past three years. The trouble is over the gymnasium. It was not originally built for any public exhibition. The running track gallery that overlooks the main floor of the gymnasium seemed to answer the purpose of a visitor's gallery and has been used as such. Large crowds have assembled there and have been packed in a way that is in direct violation of State laws and local ordinances.

Ever since the growth of basket ball in popularity among the people of Plainfield, it has been customary to play in the gymnasium and allow the spectators to sit in the running track. As the crowds grew in numbers, two rows of chairs were placed around the gallery and the little space remaining filled by standing spectators. The people were literally packed in the gallery like sardines in a box. Egress was impossible except by emptying the entire gallery in the order in which they sat and stood.

The state of affairs reached the ears of Chief T. O. Doane, of the Fire Department. When he learned of the methods pursued, he immediately interviewed Physical Director Heywood and several of the directors of the association. He told them that they were violating the law in thus blocking the exit and not leaving an aisle in the gallery. That happened several days ago. He further told them that they must make some arrangements to comply with the law. In case of fire or panic the present state of affairs would undoubtedly result in serious and perhaps fatal injury of some of the spectators.

Exactly how the directors will make their way out of the difficulty it is impossible to say, but at present they have been compelled to give up the basket ball games to which the public are admitted. It was planned to have basket ball as part of the entertainment at the "open house" on New Year's Day, but that will have to be given up unless some way is found in which to accommodate the visitors, and yet not endanger their lives by closing the means of exit.

YALE CLUB'S CONCERT.

Will be Held This Evening at the Casino on West Seventh Street.

At 7:30 o'clock this evening, Plainfield will be invaded by a small army of college students, the members of the Glee, Banjo and Mandolin Clubs of Yale University. They will hie themselves immediately to the Casino of the Union County Country Club and there entertain a large and fashionable audience with their programme of characteristic songs and selections for two hours.

It has been the custom of the Yale Clubs to visit Plainfield every year and give a concert during their Christmas or Easter tour. The Yale boys stand high among the college organizations and have always been given a hearty reception by Plainfield audiences. The programme, this year, is of unusual excellence and will include a solo by Raymond A. McGee, of this city, if he has recovered sufficiently from his injury to take part.

The concert will begin at 8:15 o'clock. Tickets will be one dollar. At the conclusion of the concert, an informal dance will be given to the college boys. The Plainfield end of concert is under the charge of Councilman William N. Runyon, who was formerly a member of the Yale Glee Club.

The clubs will be entertained tonight at the homes of the Yale alumni of the city. In the morning they leave for Albany.

LET US ARM YOU!

It's quite necessary, because while Uncle Sam is settling scores with the Spaniards you're bound to have a little brush at home at the same time, and there's nothing like being ready for emergencies. Until you can sign a perpetual truce with sun, wind and storm, your house and other buildings will need to be fortified with paint, and ours are like a 20-inch chilled steel armor.

NO FAITH CU

ABOUT STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

They Cure Stomach Troubles and Indigestion Anyway, Whether You Have Faith in Them or Not.

Mere faith will not digest your food for you, will not give you an appetite, will not increase your flesh and strengthen your nerves and heart, but Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do these things, because they are composed of the elements of digestion; they contain the juices, acids and peptones necessary to the digestion and assimilation of all wholesome food.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest food if placed in a jar or bottle in water heated to 98 degrees, and they will do it much more effectively when taken into the stomach after meals, whether you have faith that they will or not.

They invigorate the stomach, make pure blood and strong nerves, in the only way that nature can do it, and that is, from plenty of wholesome food well digested. It is not what we eat, but what we digest that does us good.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by nearly all druggists at 50 cents for full sized package, or by mail from the F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

OUR DUTY PLAINLY SHOWN

The Question Now is, What Disposition Shall be Made of Our Acquirement. We Have Placed Our Flag in the Island and There It Must Stay for Their Protection and Our Glory.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—The chaplain's opening prayer in the Senate yesterday morning was an expression of thanks and praise "for the mercies of this memorable year; for divine guidance and guardianship of our sailors and soldiers in the late war with Spain; for divine conduct of our affairs, leading us to success and triumph; for the negotiation of the treaty of peace; for the growing kindly relations between this country and our neighbor, the Dominion of Canada, and with the kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland; and for our friendly relations with all the great powers of the earth."

The concurrent resolution for the holiday recess from to-day until Wednesday, January 4, was reported and agreed to.

Mr. Proctor's resolution for a select committee of senators to visit Cuba and Porto Rico was reported from the committee on contingent expenses.

"In order to give the senator from Maine (Mr. Hale) an opportunity to object," said Mr. Proctor, "I ask for the immediate consideration of the resolution."

"I object," came from Mr. Hale, and the resolution went to the calendar of the Senate.

On motion of Mr. Hoar, Republican of Massachusetts, it was ordered that on Wednesday, February 22, Washington's farewell address be read to the Senate by Mr. Wolcott, Silver Republican of Colorado.

A bill to authorize General Bates, United States army, to accept the decoration of the Legion of Honor from France, was passed.

Mr. Teller, Silver Republican of Colorado, addressed the Senate in opposition to Mr. Vest's resolution which declares that, under the constitution, no power is given to acquire territory to be held and governed permanently as colonies.

He said that, after the very able exposition by Senator Platt of Connecticut on Monday, much that he might have said might be properly omitted.

He thought that on the question of the power of the general government to acquire territory there was no ground for discussion.

"If," said he, "we are a nation, we are entitled to exercise all the powers of a nation; and in all the history of the world there has been no case that I know of where the power of acquisition has been denied to a sovereign. That the founders of the republic intended to create a nation nobody can dispute, for in the very earliest date of our history that doctrine was asserted in both houses of Congress and through the judiciary department of the government.

"In 1861 the power of the government to defend itself was asserted by those who were in power in the nation. Not on the ground that there was a constitutional provision for such action, but because it is the prerogative of a nation to defend itself. That question was settled for all time when Lee handed his sword to Grant at Appomattox.

"Whether we shall exercise the power which we possess is one question; the power to possess is another question. Having acquired territory we have the right to govern it. We must govern it, for nobody else can. Who else than the United States can govern Cuba or Porto Rico or the Philippine islands?

"The question for us to-day is not that of our power to acquire, but what disposition we shall make of the acquirement. I will admit that it is the moral duty of the people of the United States in relation to these countries to keep in mind that fundamental Democratic doctrine which underlies free government—that the just powers of government are derived from the consent of the governed, but it is our duty to extend to these peoples just such rights as we shall think them entitled to. That will be determined by their condition. You can lay down no hard and fast rule. The fourth clause of the joint resolution on which the war was begun, declaring to the world that the war was not to be a war of conquest, but was to be in the interest of freedom, only applied to Cuba, but if any amendment had been proposed to add to the word 'Cuba' the words 'and every possession we shall acquire,' it would have had the unanimous support of both houses and the president.

"I am not one of those who would turn back to Spain these islands. I am not one who would give them up to any other nation in the world. Nor would I give them up to the people of those countries under present conditions.

"We went into the war in the interest of human freedom and good government. You cannot now stop; you are bound to accomplish the objects for which the war was begun. You cannot do that by turning over the government of those various countries to their people in the present condition of affairs. But you ought to keep in view, all the time, that some day these people are to be self reliant and self governing.

"We should say to all the world: 'We intend to give these people self government, but we do not intend that they shall become the prey of any foreign power either by conquest or by treaty.'

"In doing this I deny that we violate any principle of the Declaration of Independence or of the Constitution of the United States, or that we disregard the great fundamental principle that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed. Our flag shall float in those countries, not only as an emblem of power, but as an emblem of good government and of protection to them, as it is to us.

"I would call the people around me and say to them: 'What kind of a government do you want? Are you capable of maintaining a government without our aid?' That government, of course, must be founded on republican principles, for we cannot afford to recognise the monarchical idea, even if some of the leaders and rich men of that country want it. It must be a government of the people, for the people, and (ultimately) by the people. And the sooner it is "by the people" the more acceptable to us. Go to war, Mr. President? No, I want to avoid war, and the way to avoid war is to consult these people. The way to get war is to attempt to force a government against them by our people, and not a government of their own, by themselves.

"I do not wish to give up these islands, or to give them to another power. If we give them up we leave that people in a worse condition than they were in when we took away the power of Spain. We leave them a prey to their own vices and a prey to all Europe. We must stand by them. We have put up our flag there and there it is going to stay. It is going to stay there for their protection and for our glory."

At the close of Mr. Teller's speech the resolution was laid aside without action, and the bill to amend the navigation laws was taken up and advocated by its author, Mr. Elkins, Republican of West Virginia, who said that nine-tenths of the coastwise trade was in favor of it.

At two o'clock the Nicaragua canal bill came up as the unfinished business.

Mr. Caffery, Democrat of Louisiana, argued against the bill, contending that it violated the Clayton-Bulwer treaty in its essential and vital parts; that it violated the concession made to the Maritime Canal Company by Nicaragua and Costa Rica; that it was of doubtful constitutionality, and that it proposed a new and extraordinary method of construction, unknown heretofore in the construction of any great public works.

Proceedings in the House.

At the opening of the session of the House of Representatives yesterday, Mr. Cannon, Republican of Illinois, called up the conference report on the army and navy deficiency bill, and moved its adoption.

Mr. De Armond, Democrat of Missouri, asked whether the reappropriation of the balance of the fifty million dollars to be expended under the direction of the president would in any way sanction or authorize the payment out of that fund of one hundred thousand dollars each to Whitelaw Reid and Judge Day for services as peace commissioners.

Some of the newspapers had reported that such payment was to be made, Mr. De Armond said.

Mr. Cannon said that he knew nothing about it. He had seen the statement, and also its denial, and he called attention to the fact that the original fifty million dollars was appropriated for the national defence.

In reply to inquiries he said that the reappropriation made no change, and that there was nothing in it to authorize such an expenditure.

The report was then adopted.

The House, in committee of the whole, took up the agricultural bill. An arrangement was made by which there should be four hours of general debate, two hours on a side.

Mr. Wadsworth, Republican of New York, who was in charge of the bill, explained its provisions briefly. It carried $3,686,322, or an increase of $187,120 over the amount carried by the current law.

Moving Montauk's Dead.

New York, Dec. 21.—Colonel Kimball, the head of the quartermaster's department in this city, is completing the arrangements for transferring the bodies of the dead heroes who lie buried in the camp cemetery at Montauk Point to the Cypress Hill National Military Cemetery, on Jamaica avenue, near Norwood avenue, in East New York.

Colonel Kimball said yesterday that it had been finally decided to reinter all of the bodies in the Cypress Hill Cemetery and that the work would be pushed from now on rapidly but carefully, and would probably be completed somewhere about January 15 next.

There are about two hundred bodies interred at Montauk in the camp cemetery. Many of them were taken from the detention camp, but most of them came from the general hospital.

The graves are all marked and the war department is in possession of all the necessary information concerning the dead soldiers.

In the detention camp, where fifty-four men died during the existence of the camp, Colonel Egbert and the nurses in charge took particular pains to see that a bottle was buried at the head of each grave containing a piece of paper upon which was written the soldier's name and all of the particulars that could be obtained about his friends or relatives. The cause of his death was also given.

Six and One-half Years for Steele.

Philadelphia, Dec. 21.—William Steele who was cashier of the wrecked Chestnut Street National Bank, has been sentenced by Judge Butler in the United States district court to six years and six months' imprisonment and to pay $200 fine.

Steele was convicted of conspiracy with the late William M. Singerly, president of the bank, in making entries in the books of the bank and false reports of the bank's condition to the comptroller of the currency, and in misapplying the funds of the bank.

The President Endorsed.

Dubuque, Ia., Dec. 21.—Hyde Park Post, G. A. R., has indorsed President McKinley's Atlanta declaration that the time has arrived when the Federal government should assist the Southern states in caring for the graves of the Confederate dead.

A copy of the resolutions were telegraphed to the president at Augusta, Ga.

Hyde Park Post is the first in the country to act on the proposition.

Knaak Acquitted.

Berlin, Dec. 21.—The provincial court has acquitted Mr. Frank Knaak, of New York of the charge of lese majeste, in referring to Emperor William as a sheepshead, because, it appears, Mr. Knaak was intoxicated when he committed the offence.

HAPPENINGS IN HAVANA

An American Shopkeeper Siezed and Imprisoned.

EVACUATION HAS BEGUN

A Spanish Lieutenant's Proceeding. Released by Captain-General on Gen. Greene's Request. Details of Evacuation. A Ship Loaded With Marines En Route.

Havana, Dec. 21.—Samuel L. Israel of 243 West Forty-ninth street, New York, opened, a few days ago, a little store on Obispo street for selling American flags and jewelry.

His wife Monday appealed in tears to General Greene, saying that Israel had been arrested and that she could not find him.

General Greene sent Captain Mott to Captain General Castellanos, asking that Israel be produced and sent to General Greene.

In an hour an aide de camp of the captain general brought the man to the Hotel Inglaterra. He had been in the Fuerza prison.

Israel says that at five o'clock in the afternoon a Spanish lieutenant entered his store, tore down the flags and broke the show case with his sword. Later the lieutenant sent three men, who arrested him. He was well treated while a prisoner.

General Greene asked Captain General Castellanos to investigate the matter, and the latter said he would send a report to General Greene today.

The Spanish transports Notre Dame, with General Estruches and 953 officers and men, and Los Andes, with 1,340 officers and men, sailed for Cadiz yesterday.

The Spanish troops yesterday began the evacuation of the northeast part of Havana city. On December 22 they will evacuate the Santa Clara and Reina batteries and all the other forts outside of the town. They will be occupied by American troops, but no flags will be hoisted until January 1.

The Spanish sick will remain in the Principe fort for the present, and after January 1, if necessary.

To Keep Order at Havana.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 21.—The United States auxiliary cruiser Resolute, recently ordered to Havana, arrived in Hampton Roads at ten o'clock yesterday from the League Island navy yard.

She immediately began coaling, and will sail as quickly as possible.

The Resolute has a number of marine guards aboard who will be landed in Havana, should the local authorities be unable to maintain order. It was intended to send the Eagle and Vixen, now here, along to drag the harbor for mines and torpedoes, as requested by the evacuation committee, but the officers have been advised that all the torpedoes which obstructed the entrance to the Havana harbor have been removed, so that these vessels have been ordered to the West Indies on coast survey work.

That this government is determined to quell disturbances in its newly acquired territory is shown by the order received yesterday by Major W. S. Muse of the Marine Corps, now here, which commands him to go at once to Havana to take charge of the marines ordered there to preserve order. There are two hundred here who saw service at Guantanamo, and these will probably go along.

Each man has a new Lee rifle and many rounds of ammunition.

To Pension Confederates.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—The president had scarcely returned to Washington from his southern trip before the Populist senator from North Carolina, Marion Butler, introduced in the Senate an amendment to the general pension bill to pension the Confederate soldiers, together with their widows and minor children.

The amendment stipulates that they are not to have back pensions.

The amendment does not meet with favor and will not receive serious consideration from the committee on pensions, but it shows that the southern members of Congress are trying to force the president's position taken at Atlanta in regard to caring for the Confederate dead to cover caring for the Confederate living as well.

Senator Butler evidently desired to emphasize his amendment by introducing it simultaneous with the president's return.

Famished at Sea.

Queenstown, Dec. 21.—The Red Star line steamer Waesland, Captain Ehoff, from Philadelphia, December 10, for Liverpool, arrived here yesterday and reported that she spoke the bark J. H. Bowers of Rockland, Me., on December 12, short of food, her crew having subsisted on one biscuit a day each for ten days, and were almost famished.

The Waesland supplied her with provisions.

The Bowers sailed from Rosario September 20, in command of Captain Magune, for Boston and had been out eighty-three days.

A Lead Deal.

St. Louis, Dec. 21. The Republic says: Negotiations are reported to be in progress for the consolidation of all the lead companies in Missouri, with the intention of organizing one corporation.

As far as can be learned the promoters of the deal are capitalists interested in the National Lead Company, controlling nearly every white lead plant in the United States, about fifty in number.

No Way to Stop It.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—Officials of the navy department say that Lieutenant Hobson has a right to kiss all the women who permit him to do so.

There is no provision of the naval regulations which covers the case except "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman," but the officers claim that so long as the girls do not object, Lieutenant Hobson can continue.

M'KINLEY BACK TO WASHINGTON.

Gen. Wheeler Says the President's Tour Has Been of Great Benefit.

Washington, Dec. 21.—President McKinley's southern tour with the members of his cabinet and invited guests ended at 11.30 o'clock yesterday morning when the special train provided by the Southern Railway Company arrived in this city.

Several of the president's companions summed up the results of the tour yesterday morning. General Wheeler said:

"It is gratifying that the president expresses himself as well pleased with his visit to the southern people. He said and it seemed to come from his heart that never in his life had any reception been more pleasing. Speaking for myself, as a southern man, I feel that the journey has been of benefit in many respects. The president returns with a better knowledge of the South and an appreciation of our vast resources.

"The people of the South have everywhere been impressed with the charming, gentle and generous manner of the president, and nothing was more significant in the tour than the engraving of the words of the president about the Confederate graves on the Confederate monument at Macon."

General Shafter said: "I am highly gratified by the disposition shown to sustain the president and approve his course in regard to the war and its consequences.

"It also meant more than can be expressed in words, to see the popular satisfaction with the country and the good feeling which marks the nation's unity."

The War Inquiry.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—Captain A. Hardy of the Fifth Illinois was the first witness before the war inquiry commission yesterday.

His regiment was the first to arrive at Camp Thomas. The road about the camp, he testified, was congested for several days by rapidly arriving troops, but after that there was no difficulty in obtaining rations, and the quality was good.

The travel ration used on the train was unpalatable, and the men refused to eat the canned corned beef. Sickness began in the regiment from ten days to two weeks after arrival in camp. The sanitary arrangement of his regimental camp was good and the regulations promptly enforced.

He visited men in the division hospitals and found the arrangements decidedly bad. The hospital was uncleanly, the nurses ignorant and the food bad, with a total lack of milk at first.

The men complained to him frequently of their treatment. The hospital arrangements were the only thing of which he had cause to complain.

"The very name of the First Division Hospital used to send a shudder through the men," he said. "No man ever went to the hospital who could possibly escape it. The men were not given to complaining, and spoke in the highest terms of the care given them at Fort Monroe, when stationed there. My experience all tends to show that the complaints at Camp Thomas were well founded."

The Situation at Pana.

Pana, Ill., Dec. 21.—Twenty negroes arrived in Pana yesterday. They were held up by soldiers and relieved of their arms before being permitted to proceed to the coal mine stockades.

There are now about four hundred negroes in Pana.

The mines are operated about half time. The white union miners remain solidly out for the state scale. They received $1,400 yesterday from the national union.

Two companies of state militia remain here, and Colonel Wells has a provost guard in every section of the city, fearing trouble may break out at any moment. The strike leaders claim the chances of winning grow brighter every day.

Wages of Coal-Miners.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 21.—M. D. Ratchford, member of the industrial commission and ex-president of the United Mine Workers' Association, and John Mitchell of Illinois, acting national president of the Miners' Association, together with representatives of various states, are to meet here in a few days to outline a plan of action at the inter-state convention of operators and miners to be held here some time next month.

The Pittsburg coal operators will hold a conference to-day to outline a plan of action.

A stubborn contest over the adjustment of the rate of wages for next year is predicted.

Afraid to Go to Church.

St. Louis, Dec. 21.—The Congregational ministers of St. Louis, in conference, have decided that the cause of empty pews at evening church services is the fear of foot pads and have appointed a committee of three ministers to render any assistance to the police that may be necessary to suppress the evil.

Rev. Dr. M. Durnan of the Pilgrim church was selected chairman, and Rev. Dr. C. S. Sargent of the Central church and Rev. Dr. C. H. Patton of the First church, associate members. This committee will confer with the proper authorities in regard to suppressing highway robbery.

3,000 Soldiers Killed.

London, Dec. 21.—A dispatch from Shanghai says that a powder magazine situated in the center of the Chinese camp at Hang Chow has exploded, and that a square mile of houses has been levelled.

It is estimated, according to the same authority, that three thousand soldiers were killed, including the general commanding the forces.

The American and French missions are both reported to have been damaged; but it is said there are no fatalities among the Europeans.

Director of Fine Arts.

New York, Dec. 21.—Mr. Ferdinand W. Peck, United States commissioner general to the Paris exposition in 1900, has appointed Mr. John B. Cauldwell, director of fine arts.

Mr. Cauldwell, though a New Yorker, has national fame. A graduate of Columbia College in 1877, he has devoted himself to the study of art both in this country and abroad.

SOLDIER VOTE COUNTED

It Cost $20'000 to Count 1,961 Ballots.

A CHANGE IN SOME PLACES

There Were 1961 Ballots Counted Yesterday in the 728 Election Districts of New York County. Each Vote Cost the County About Ten Dollars.

New York, Dec. 21.—In the 728 election districts in the county of New York there were 1,961 soldier ballots counted yesterday.

The number of votes in each election district runs from one to eight. The work of receiving the vote was begun at ten o'clock in the forenoon, when the board of inspectors filled the vacancies that existed by the election of new members.

The ballots cast by the soldiers then were placed in the boxes, which were opened and the vote counted as at a regular election. The ballots were returned to the box, which was given to the police.

To-day the board of inspectors in each election district will make a certified return to the county clerk, who will transmit this return, with the other election returns to the board of county canvassers, which in this county is the board of aldermen.

It is estimated that for the number of votes cast the election yesterday was the most expensive in the history of the county, as the average cost to the county for each vote cast was more than ten dollars.

Each election district polling place cost $5, and added to this was the cost of four inspectors, at $5 each, making the total cost for each election district $25. An additional two thousand dollars was expended for stationery, bringing the total cost, in round figures, to about $20,000.

In the borough of Richmond there were only nineteen votes cast at sixteen polling places. In Kings county a total vote of six hundred was cast in 335 election districts. In the counties of Queens, Nassau and Suffolk there were only ninety-four votes cast.

In the city of New York the vote cast will in no way affect any of the candidates who, on the face of the returns, were elected in November. In other sections of the state, however, the canvassing of the soldier vote will be watched with interest.

Middletown, N. Y., Dec. 21.—The soldier vote yesterday settled the tie in the election for mayor, Charles LC. Ellwood, Democrat, has a majority of 3 of the 51 votes cast.

Yesterday's canvass elected one Republican alderman and gives control of the council to the Republicans. One Democratic member was elected to the board of education.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 21.—The count of the soldier vote in the forty-seventh Senate district gives N. W. Norton, Republican, sixty-six votes, William F. Mackay, Democrat, sixty-nine votes, with forty-two ballots blank. Mackey's majority at the general election was fifty-nine votes.

The final count adds three to his majority. He is therefore elected over Norton by 1 majority.

Polygamist Roberts Not Wanted.

New York, Dec. 21.—The woman's board of home missions of the Presbyterian church held an open meeting yesterday in the assembly hall of the Presbyterian building, 156 Fifth avenue, Manhattan.

The object of the meeting was to inaugurate an aggressive campaign to arouse public sentiment throughout the country to prevent the seating of Brigham H. Roberts, an avowed polygamist, as the representative from Utah to the Fifty-sixth Congress.

The idea of the woman's board in starting this movement is to array all women's organizations of the country against the seating of Mr. Roberts, and all such organizations, so far as heard from, have manifested a willingness to unite in such a campaign.

They purpose not to send general petitions to Congress, but to bring this matter home to each representative-elect in his own district.

Fatal New York Fire.

New York, Dec. 21.—The house at 260 West Seventy-third street, home of Charles H. Raymond, general agent of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, was burned yesterday morning, and in the fire perished two women—a servant and Mr. Raymond's sister-in-law, while his wife and a stranger, an accidental passerby, who took a hand in the work of rescue, were badly injured.

Mr. Raymond himself is prostrated with shock and suffocation.

Only two of the six persons who were in the house at daybreak, when the fire started, escaped unhurt.

Another Big Gold Strike.

Colorado Springs, Dec. 21.—A strike of gold in the Trickler tunnel, which is being driven through Pike's peak, to increase the water supply of this city, has caused the most intense excitement in Colorado Springs.

A splendid vein, bearing large quantities of silvanite, has been encountered by the contractor, George W. Jackson, and samples of the "find" assay in the thousands.

Pieces of the ore were roasted and globelets of gold were apparently in the rock.

The Hull Bill Reported.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—The House committee on military affairs yesterday afternoon ordered a favorable report on the Hull bill increasing the regular army up to one hundred thousand men.

The vote was eight to five on party lines.

Spreckels Gives $25,000 to Farmers.

San Francisco, Dec. 21.—Claus Spreckles, the sugar millionaire, has given twenty-five thousand dollars toward a fund for the relief of farmers in Monterey county, who have been rendered destitute by the failure of the crops.

PAY OF PEACE COMMISSION.

All the Members and Assistants Have to Bear Their Personal Expenses.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—It is learned that the American peace commissioners and their assistants have been obliged to pay all their personal expenses out of the compensation allowed them by the president.

The expenses which the government defrayed included office rent, stationery and general expenses.

The hotel bills of the commissioners were not defrayed by the government. As the personal expenses of the commission were very heavy a comparatively small amount was left to each commissioner and each officer of the commission out of the president's allotment of salaries.

Each commissioner will receive in the neighborhood of seventeen thousand dollars for his services, and out of this he must pay all personal expenses contracted on his trip to the continent.

Secretary Moore will receive half the amount paid to each commissioner, and as his personal expenses were as heavy as those of the members of the commission, he will fare worse than his superiors.

DEMANDS THE SECRET DOSSIER.

Court of Cassation Asks for Entire Dreyfus Evidence.

London, Dec. 21.—A dispatch from Paris to the Exchange Telegraph Company says that the court of cassation has demanded of the minister of war the communication to the court of the secret dossier, promising that every precaution will be taken to prevent the contents of the documents from becoming generally known and that the interests of the national defence shall not be endangered by the communication of this evidence to the court.

Paris, Dec. 21.—A proclamation issued by the Anti-Semitic League has been posted throughout the city, recalling the government's declaration in the Chamber Monday relative to the existence of the secret dossier.

The proclamation asserts that Dreyfus betrayed the country and was justly condemned, therefore the government should put an end to the revision proceedings and deal vigorously with the insulters of the army.

Concluding, the proclamation declares that if the government fails to do so the people will assume the exercise of their rights upon the ground that the country is threatened.

Trade With Russia.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—The United States charge d'affaires at St. Petersburg reports that the Georgian, the first steamer of the new United Steamship Company of Copenhagen, to run between Russian Baltic ports and the United States, sailed from Riga on November 8 for Boston and New York, and was to be followed by a second sailing about the end of November.

The company is satisfied that ample freight can be found in the United States, the difficulty being to secure the cargoes from Russia.

The managers intend to build three new ships themselves for this line, and hope to find capital for three others in the United States.

Doges' Palace in Bad Shape.

Venice, Dec. 21.—Signor Boito, the celebrated architect of Milan, has made a partial examination of the doge's palace.

The examination was made by the direction of the government, several senators and deputies having notified the government by interpellation of the condition of the palace.

These interpellations will probably be discussed in the chambers to-day. The opinion prevails that the palace is in such bad condition that the government will be obliged to order the removal of the books fro mthe library and direct the execution of certain repairs without delay.

Night Telegraph Operator Held Up.

Bordentown, N. J., Dec. 21.—Two masked men entered the telegraph office at Cooper's Creek on the line of the Amboy division of the Pennsylvania Railroad, near Camden, Monday night, and held up R. H. Thomas, the night operator.

After securing him they searched the office for plunder. All they secured was Thomas's watch and chain and some small change, which they took from him.

Grip in the State Department.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 21.—Secretary Hay was obliged to go to his home from the state department yesterday on account of an attack of the grip. Second Assistant Secretary Adee has returned to the department after being confined to his house from the same cause.

Third Assistant Secretary Cridler has a slight attack of the grip.

A Victim of Tuberculosis.

New York, Dec. 21.—Louis J. Bellent, a brother-in-law of Henry O. Havemeyer, president of the American Sugar Refining Company, died yesterday morning at his home, 14 East Sixty-sixth street, of tuberculosis.

He was sixty years old and had been in the shipping business at 130 Pearl street.

Between November 6 and 19 six new planetoids were discovered in the Heidelberg observatory.

The Home of Trusts.

That New Jersey is the home of trusts, fostered and protected under the loose laws that are in effect here, is evidenced in the fact that during the past year thirteen monster combinations of capital and enterprise have been formed under New Jersey laws. The total amount of capital represented in these combinations is $633,100,000. The combinations represent organizations capitalized at from $200,000,000 to $5,600,000.

This list of thirteen does not include by any means all the trusts that are in existence under the laws of New Jersey, but are simply the product of twelve months. Everyone generally regards the Standard Oil Company as about the biggest of the commercial octopuses, but it will be news to many to know that the Standard Oil Company has one of the smallest capitalizations of any of the combinations that work under the protecting wing of New Jersey. The capital of the Standard Oil Company is only $1,000,000, but it gets there just the same. The Federal Steel Company, organized during the past year, is the largest capitalized concern—$200,000,000.

The trust business has only been thriving in New Jersey during the past few years. Back in the early nineties there were but few of them, but they contionued to increase very rapidly from 1895 onward. Under the law all New Jersey incorporations are required to have an office in this State, and many of the lawyers in Newark, East Orange, Jersey City and Camden are able to more than make their office rent, by allowing corporations to hang out a shingle setting forth that such and such a corporation has has an office in that particular place. It used to be that the stockholders of corporations could be traced through the New Jersey office, but last winter James B. Dill, who incorporates more concerns than any lawyer in the State, had a law put upon the statute books which did away with this, and now it is impossible to ascertain anything further than the location of the Jersey offices.

It is a blot upon New Jersey that the laws of the State are so lax and favorable to the incorporation of these great combinations of capital that stifle legitimate enterprise and competition, and narrow the scope of honest industry in order that capital can be diverted into the hands of a favored few.

If the next Legislature would make a name for itself and lift New Jersey above the selfish instincts that prevail in the fact that the State treasury profits somewhat by reason of these trusts, let them pass a law that will be a stumbling block to the easy path that they find here now.

The man who wrote such thrilling tales of detective fiction, known to the exciting periods of youthful life as "Old Sleuth," is dead. His name was Harland P. Halsey. This knowledge may not be interesting to the ordinary mortal, but when it is known that he made $50,000 a year out of his "literary" labors and died leaving a fortune of $500,000 the incident is of more than passing interest. "Old Sleuth" leaves a vacant place in a peculiar field of literature. Here is a splendid chance for aspiring authors who want riches rather than glory. We would suggest to those who desire to fill "Old Sleuth's" place in the world of letters that they drink a gallon of gore, seasoned with a pound of gunpowder, before or after mealtimes.

The City Court, where the crime and wickedness of the city comes for correction, is certainly not a place of good influence for the youth of Plainfield. Some of the boys have fallen in the habit of late of visiting the jail daily at the hour when the City Court is held and listening to the testimony. City Judge Stillman has rightly stated that the City Court is no place for boys and he has instructed the police not to allow them to attend the sessions of the City Court during the remainder of his term of office. It is to be hoped that the coming City Judge will follow such an excellent example.

An American artist, who drew a cartoon of the Kaiser Wilhelm, representing the German Emperor as a sheep, has just been released from a German bastile after spending six months therein on the charge of lese majeste, the high sounding name applied to the offense. If the artist had caricatured the War Lord as an elephant we suppose he would have been lucky to get off with imprisonment for life.

The New Jersey editor of the New York Press seems to be laboring under the impression that Chancery Clerk Thompson carries Somerset county Republicans around in his vest pocket. Well, if that's so, Senator Reed must have had a hand in that pocket.

Senator Reed will retire from the State Senate with a view of gaining a Congressional nomination and future glory as a statesman. Congressman Pitney will reverse the rule and go to the State Senate from the National House of Representatives for the same purpose. And thus we see the whirgig of politics working both ways.

After lecturing in Chicago the other evening Lieut. Hobson obligingly kissed 165 silly girls, who stood in a row to go through the osculation process. We suppose that the fad in Chicago society now will be to kiss the girl that kissed Hobson.

It is practically assured that Senator-elect Allan L. McDermott will be made Democratic leader in the upper house of the Legislature at the next session. The G. O. P. statesmen will find him always alert.

For the first time in over half a century Newark is without a daily paper possessing straight political tendencies. The trend of the press generally is towards independence.

New Brunswick people are discussing how they can become more progressive and enterprising. The easiest way to do that is to pack up and move to Plainfield.

A man was found wandering in Jersey City a few days ago who was unable to tell who he was. He must have been a Hudson county politician.

The Platt collar doesn't seem to fit Col. Roosevelt with any degree of success.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Trolley travel between here and Plainfield is slow compared with steam travel, when the trains of the latter make good connections. The writer recently traveled on the steam cars from Plainfield to Elizabeth and from Elizabeth to this city in less than 45 minutes. It takes nearly double that time to come from Plainfield by way of the trolley. The round trip by the trolley has, however, the advantage of cheapness, being about one-third the rate of the steam railroads.—New Brunswick Home News.

Rev. Dr. H. K. Carroll, of Plainfield, who was sent to Porto Rico by President McKinley to ascertain the condition of internal affairs there, seems to be favorably impressed with the inhabitants and their possibilities in the way of becoming desirable American citizens. While there is much illiteracy, Dr. Carroll thinks that the adoption of United States customs will soon overcome that difficulty, and that the Porto Ricans are quite as capable of self-goverment as the Cubans or Hawaiians. Dr. Carroll was especially impressed by the manifest desire of the people to adopt American ways and customs and their eagerness to substitute the English language for the Spanish. Unless Dr. Carroll has been deceived or has drawn unwarranted conclusions, Porto Rico is likely to give little trouble and to prove a very valuable possession of the United States.—Newark News.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

William A. Woodruff, the insurance agent, is fully gratified today over the action that the Fidelity and Deposit Company, Maryland, has taken in the case of A. C. Wilder, the defaulting treasurer, of San Francisco, as he is the company's agent in this city. This company went security for Wilder, and when he defaulted the city called on the comany for the amount of $100,816.76, which Wilder had turned to his own use, and in a few weeks the entire sum was sent. Mr. Woodruff has a copy of the draft in his office, and claims that it is the draft for payment of the largest surity bond in the shortest time that is known in the business world.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four Doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in eight bottles. It has cured me and thank God, I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's Drug store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00. Guaranteed or price refunded.

YOU'RE READING THIS?

CERTAINLY!

Well, Mr. Merchant-who-thinks-of-advertising, this is only one of the many corners in THE DAILY PRESS—it isn't the best located one, either; we can give you better—and if this attracts your attention in our endeavor to tell you how good advertising will get you a hearing before the purchasing public, doesn't common sense teach you that if you were having people reading your trade story instead of you're reading our argument about it, that it would be better for your business.

THE DAILY PRESS reaches the purchasing public that makes the profits for the merchant.

We can give you big or little space—but in advertising it isn't always economy to be sparing in your appropriation.

GOOD ADVICE TO TEACHERS.

A Martinet May Fail Very Materially in the Essentials.

It is quite possible that a strict disciplinarian should be a very valuable teacher, but the mother who wishes her children to learn well and to learn truly will be wise if she carefully notes the kind of discipline to which her little ones are subject.

The martinet who attends so strictly to the minor rules of discipline that she is apt to be lax in those larger and more important principles which, after all, constitute the real and most valuable part of teaching, is not the best tutor for children, though she may have been recommended as a strict disciplinarian, and have undertaken her work with a most conscientious idea of keeping order amongst high-spirited and unruly children.

As a matter of fact, it is often far more expedient in the interests of a broader view of discipline, to overlook slight offenses against class rules, which, though expedient, yet have no real effect on the broad principles of right and wrong.

A well-intentioned teacher can, by her constant harping on small matters, goad her class in quite a short time to open revolt, whereas had she been wise she would have overlooked the infringement of the little rules which do not interfere with the general order.

There is no more important point to remember than that children can be trained better by being guided than by being forced. Many well-intentioned teachers make a great mistake by treating their charges as if they were machines rather than individuals.

Remember that the little ones suffer from the weather, nerves, and malaise just as much as grown-ups; and if the child who is, as a rule, attentive and sweet-tempered suddenly turns idle and crusty, one of these three reasons for such behavior is probably to blame. In such a case sympathetic, rather than harsh, words are needed.

As in the case of the unusually good child, so with the black sheep. A sympathetic word will sometimes do more to clear away an entanglement of naughtiness into which the little one has got herself more than all the punishments and bad marks in the world. I have known a teacher avert a stormy day by seeing signs of coming danger, singling out the ringleader within a few minutes of the opening of the class—and punishing her, of course?

Not at all. By calling her, and asking her confidentially to perform some trifling service for her, thus winning her over in a few seconds, where reprimands and extra tasks would only have rendered her more unruly.

This is an instance which shows that not in tightening the reins but in slackening them an enormous advantage may be gained. The interruption of the routine for a moment is a distinct help, and every half-hour of influence gained over such a child is a victory well worth having.

Model for Velvet Blouse.

The velvet blouse promises to be very popular this winter.

A pretty model in royal blue velvet is portrayed and though simple in design, is dressy looking. It is made on the regulation shirt waist pattern, over a tight fitting lining, and has a yoke extending a short distance over the shoulders.

A collar of white lace, with a narrow frill in the back and a jaunty bow in the front gives a dainty finish while a frill of lace also edges the cuffs of the sleeves.

The Winter Capes.

All the new shoulder-capes are made with deep backs, curving down much like the old-fashioned mode of wearing a shawl. These have short fronts, much rounded, a wide-gathered frill of silk or other fabric encircling the entire cape. Some of the latest models are very long, the fronts on garments for winter not differing greatly in length, but rounded like the other, shorter, autumn styles. The wide frill narrows as it nears the collar, which is very high and rather picturesque in effect, being made of fur or rich silk velvet, with a lace of chiffon fraise inside. For tall, stately women of graceful carriage the sweeping, lengthy cape is a distinct improvement upon the medium-size, short, or very short styles we have been accustomed to so long. For women of this type there is a grace and dignity about the latest productions which neither of the former shapes ever attained.

"What are they ducking that poor fellow for?"

"He deserves it. Since he's been in camp he's talked of nothing else but the way his mother used to bake pancakes and fry liver."—Washington Star.

What Scientists Think.

What to do with the dead is one of the greatest problems that the living have to face.

All the great scientists of the world, including the late M. Pasteur, have declared that the earth, instead of destroying the germs of disease in a body, harbors and actually nourishes them.

A commission recently appointed to investigate sanitary conditions of all graveyards in Denmark was obliged to condemn 605 out of a total number of 650. German authorities have forbidden the use of water from any well situated within 300 yards of a grave. Experience has shown that cemeteries should by law be banished far outside the limits of any city; that no grave should be opened before complete decomposition of the body, and that therefore only one body should be permitted in one grave. Graves not less than ten feet deep should be located in dry, porous soil only.

Precautions like these would lessen the danger, but no method other than cremation will absolutely destroy all germs of sickness in a dead body—none by which it can swiftly be converted into ashes.

However prejudiced the present generation may be against it, there can be little doubt that some day cremation will have to be the method generally adopted in disposing of the dead. It is already increasing rapidly in England. Within the last year several crematoriums have been established in different parts of the country.

Ice for Preserving Flowers.

Ice is now used quite freely for the preservation of flowers, either for shipping or for keeping into or through the winter, and flowers so preserved cannot be distinguished, even by an expert, from fresh gathered blooms.

In special instances a freezing mixture is formed by combining salt and ice, and this answers even better than the pure ice. A general adoption of this plan accounts for the increase in recent years of beautiful cut flowers in winter, and it has also brought the price down to within the reach of people who never thought of buying flowers out of season before.

There are many other ways of preserving flowers for a few weeks, or even months, but the ice plan holds good for an indefinite period, and never seems to fail.

The Military Cloak.

New traveling wraps for lengthy journeys are military cloaks, quite as long as an ulster, to be worn with or without a cape. The fronts are semi-loose, and the backs fitted and sometimes belted. Many of these wraps are made of army-blue cloth, and the fronts are fastened with medium-sized gilt buttons. The deep cape is fastened by and trimmed with stitched straps of the cloth and is alone a sufficient wrap for many occasions. Checked and striped cloths, lightly and roughly woven, and others of dark color and finer grain, said to be absolutely waterproof, are made in redingote style, much after the fashion of coachmen's coats, with and without shoulder-capes, and will be used for traveling and morning walks.

A PARIS SUGGESTION.

A Home Jacket.

A pretty tea or home jacket, made of brocaded silk, has the loose, full front of plain cream colored silk, which is cut square in the neck and turned in to form a frill, above four rows of puffings.

The shoulders are outlined with a shaped collar, which forms a point on either side of back, and is of plain silk, covered with guimpure lace, the outer edge being finished with a chiffon frill, carried down either side of the front in cascade effect. The sleeves are quite full, gathered in at the wrist and finished with a frill.

The Richest Woman in America.

Mrs. Richard King of Texas is probably the richest woman in the United States, not excepting Mrs. Hetty Green. Her wealth is partly inherited from her father, a pioneer Presbyterian clergyman, the first who ever went, staff and Bible in hand, to preach the gospel to the Indians and mixed races that peopled the vast domain over which his own little daughter was destined to hold sway as a landed proprietor. Mrs. King is a widow, and her landed estates in southern Texas amount to 1,250,000 acres, or about two thousand square miles.—Exchange.

LANGLEY, AERONAUT.

GOVERNMENT RECOGNITION OF HIS FLYING MACHINE PLANS.

His Investigation of the Problem of Mechanical Flight—The Flight of Three-Quarters of a Mile Made by His Machine the Longest on Record.

The recent determination of the United States Board of Ordnance to appropriate $25,000 to develop the idea of Secretary S. P. Langley, of the Smithsonian Institution in the construction of a man-carrying, power-driven aeroplane is an evidence of confidence in the future efficiency of the apparatus to which Profssor Langley has devoted many years that must be extremely gratifying to him.

The decision of the Board of Ordnance to institute further investigation was influenced by the value in time of war to reconnoitre the enemy's position and to drop high explosives from above, the value of which is appreciated by all strategists, and one that has led some nations to experiment with balloons, as this country did during the recent war. Balloons have not, however, realized all the hopes that have been entertained rgarding them.

When the subject was recently under discussion by the Board, Professor Langley appeared before it and gave his opinion in regard to making further experiments, explaining the workings of his own machine, and telling in the most concise manner of the progress made in aerial navigation in Germany and France, where he went last summer and became familiar with the state of the art. The official statement is made that he has consented to give the Board the benefit of his knowledge and experience on the understanding that he is to receive no remuneration for his work, it being his ambition to donate his services to the cause of science and his country, as an evidence of which his machine has not been patented and with his consent never will be.

Prof. Langley's invention was perfected in 1895, and a short successful flight was made with an aerodrome in the spring of the year, but he was reluctant at that time, for reasons obvious to those who have followed the story of mechanical flight from its beginning, to make his success public, and it was not until a year later that the world was taken into the confidence of the great inventor. On May 6, 1896, his aerodrome made two successful flights, which were witnessed by only a few people, but fortunately by those who understood and had sympathy with the project, and whose testimony was universally accepted. Among those few were Alexander Graham Bell, who subsequently wrote an interesting paper concerning his observations when the Langley machine made a flight of three-quarters of a mile, the longest known.

After only a few years devoted to the problem of mechanical flight, Professor Langley succeeded in surmounting several obstacles that had heretofore been considered insurmountable and in producing a machine the incontestable point in regard to which is that it will fly and is susceptible of being steered. But his experience records many failures, and four machines were built before he made one that met the requirements of free flight. After many unsuccessful attempts to launch the fourth aerodrome, he was finally gratified by seeing his machine soar like a great bird through the air, and from this time on the problem of launching was solved.

In an article published in "The Aeronautical Annual," Professor Langley makes graceful allusion to those who were associated with and assisted him in his work, Dr. Carl Barus and J. Elfreth Watkins, the latter of whom is still associated with him in the work. Professor Langley's aerodrome looks in flight like a huge bird; its proportions, however, are greater than any known inhabitant of the air, measuring from tip to tip of its wings fourteen feet. It is built almost entirely of steel and driven by a steam engine. Its weight, including everything it carries, is about forty pounds. The method of propulsion is by twin screw propellors, and there is no gas or any other aid for raising or keeping it up in the air except its internal energy. The machine here referred to, however, did not carry any passengers and was only a working model. It remained about two or three minutes.

Flies Took the Ship; Birds Took Them.

A most remarkable tale of the sea is that related by Capt. Languffi of the British steamer Kensington, which arrived in port from Sourabaya, Java, with a heavy cargo of sugar.

The Kensington sailed from this port over two months ago. The weather was extremely hot even for a tropical region. When five days out the steamer passed through a vast area of seaweed, the home of millions of dragoon flies. Hardly had the vessel's prow touched the seaweed when the flies, attracted by the savory fumes of the cargo, began to swarm about the deck. They gathered in great numbers. They penetrated the wicker sugar bags. They attacked the crew, stinging the men about the face and hands in a frightful manner. For five days the dragoon flies continued their onslaught, driving the men to desperation.

Then there came an unexpected rescue. A flock of boatswain birds, the foe of the dragoon fly, circled and wheeled above the unfortunate steamer, then swooped down upon it. In a short time the birds had cleared the Kensington of the pests.—Philadelphia Times.

WHIMS OF "POLLY" THAXTER.

A Lively Bird That Belonged to the Late New England Poetess.

A few years ago, when Miss Celia Thaxter lived on an island off the coast of New England, among her flowers and birds was a gray parrot that she had inherited from her mother. Polly, however much she was endeared to the poet through long association with her family, was roundly hated by the islanders.

One of the ways by which Polly made herself disagreeable was through her powers of mimicry. To her mistress she was invariably sweetness and courtesy, and she would cry "Celia, Celia," as if she were calling the name of her most idolized friend, in the most musical and endearing tones possible, and from that turn to imitating the bashful, whispering utterances of a shy little Norwegian maid until the girl would be teased beyond endurance.

In approaching Polly's cage it was no unusual thing for a visitor to be captivated with her coy and artless manner and the very caressing way she had of putting out a claw in friendly welcome, and then, when the unwary mortal was within her reach, she would drive that enticing claw into his flesh like a thing of iron. There was never any trusting her, for she was sure in the end to be treachery itself.

Among the whims that seized Polly—and she seemed forever to be intent upon mischief—was to annoy the new driver of an express wagon by shouting "Whoa!" to the horses in the exact voice of the former driver, which would bring the animal from a smart trot to a sudden halt.

One day Polly escaped from her perch and was lost sight of for several days. The ground was white with an early snow and the poet's brother, who was fond of hunting, went out with his gun. While wandering about in search of game he saw in a tree what he concluded was an owl or gull, and, lifting his gun, took aim to shoot. Suddenly he was arrested by the sharp cry of "Cedric! Cedric!" The bird had called him by name and was none other than Polly herself, who for once, at least, by a word in due season, had saved her own life. Of course Cedric got Polly down and took her home, where she proclaimed her return by sending over the island one of her famous shrieks.

After the death of the poet Polly again disappeared, and was never more seen. Just what her fate was has not yet been discovered, but it is supposed that she was poisoned or in some way secretly killed.—Lewiston, Me., Journal.

Too Big a Name for a Recruit.

An army officer here in town, says the Boston Transcript, has a bit of a story to tell which throws a sidelight on the ways of recruiting officers. In his command during the Cuban campaign was a private who came every day to ask for letters. Joseph Murphy was his name on the roll, but the tang of his tongue did not suggest even remotely the Emerald Isle. Day after day, and no letter came. Murphy's face grew longer and longer, his query more pathetic every time he appeared.

"No letter," said the officer one morning. "No letter for you. There's only one addressed to—let me see—to Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia— or something like that. None for you."

Murphy's face beamed with delight. "That-a-one for me," he said. "My name lika that. I go to the recruiting office. I am wanting to fight. Officer say, 'What your name?' I say, 'Giovanni Paladini Castellazzia,' and he say, 'Oh, helladam, that no name for you. You not fight with name. You fight with gun. All that name trip you up. You be Joseph Murphy.' I be Joseph Murphy, now, and that is my letter."

His Back to the Foe.

An army officer tells that in one engagement there were numbers of young fellows who smelt powder for the first time, and it is not surprising that at times the recruits were a trifle unsteady, says the Philadelphia "Saturday Post."

"However," said the old officer, "I only remember one case of actual fright, and when I think of it I can scarcely refrain from laughter.

"In the very thick of a hotly contested engagement one of my men threw down his rifle and bolted.

" 'Here, you coward,' I roared after him, 'what are you running for?'

"Without so much as a glance over his shoulder, the fellow replied: 'Because I'm in a desprit hurry, an' I can't fly!' "

Working for the Outer World.

Few of us realize what the Shakers have done for the benefit of the outside world. They were the first to dry sweet corn for food, and to prepare garden seed, medicinal herbs, and vegetable extracts for market. They were also the first to raise broom brush and make it into brooms, and they produced those far-reaching inventions, the machine for planing matched boards, the buzz saw, and the hydraulic press. And finally it was they who did away with wrought nails and quill pens, two stumbling blocks to our ancestors, being the first to manufacture cut nails and to use metal for pens, brass and silver being used for the purpose.

IS DANCING A SIN?

A JERSEY CITY MINISTER HAS INAUGURATED A CLASS.

His Acts Have Stirred His Brother Clergymen to Severe Criticism, From Which He Logically Defends Himself and His Motives.

There is a great flutter of excitement in church circles in Jersey City. There is an elaborate controversy going on, which has spread all over the United States. The question in dispute is:—Is it or is it not immoral for a church, not only to countenance a dancing school, but to practically father such an institution? And the answers have come from all parts of the country, from Maine to California. Both parties to the arguments have warm adherents in every city, town, village and hamlet whose inhabitants are interested in church work.

The inception of the whole uprising was the establishment of a dancing class last January by Rev. E. E. Stoddard, D. D., rector of St. John's Protestant Episcopal Church, in Jersey City Heights. This experiment proved so successful that the school had been continued this fall, and one on the same lines was opened by Rev. John L. Scudder, pastor of the First Congregational Church.

Dr. Swaffield, in his sermon, said:—"I look upon the modern church dancing school as one of the devil's missions of amusement, and the gilded saloon as another."

"In the worst days of Rome it was a disgrace for any man to dance. A Roman philosopher said that a man who danced was either drunk or a fool. The Mohammedans denounced dancing, and the Koran expressly prohibits this. This custom of dancing borrowed from a bad age, and is not improved by being smiled upon by the Christian Church. The modern dance tends to drag young people down to perdition. Its tendency is not to purify, but to disgrace, and it interferes with the usefulness of the true child of God.

To this rather sarcastic criticism, Dr. Scudder replied by an open letter in the Outlook, in which he said:—

"Regular instructions in dancing and occasional receptions where dancing is allowed are and have been features of our People's Palace work in lower Jersey City for years. This movement is nothing new. It is no conducted by either of our churches. Our church on Jersey City Heights is a family church and needs nothing of this kind, but the Tabernacle is located far down town in the tenement house district, and is surrounded by saloons, gambling hells and brothels. It is pre-eminently an institutional church and is adjusting itself to its enviroment with conscientious common sense.

"In conjunction with the Tabernacle, and yet in no sense a part of it, we have erected our People's Palace, which is a secular institution, operated, however, under religious auspices. It does not stand on consecrated ground. It has a separate treasury and board of managers. The object of our People's Palace is to lift the people living about into a higher life by methods that are eminently practical.

"It operates a day nursery. This summer it gave over 14,000 free baths in its swimming tank, it gives industrial training, and it provides a real refuge from temptation by supplying innocent amusement. It has gymnasiums, bowling alleys, billiard tables, a schuffleboard, a theatrical stage and other diversional facilities.

"Among other things, we give lessons in dancing, showing young people 'how,' 'when,' and 'with whom' to dance. Dancing is allowed on public occasions, and the best people in the church are present to see that everything is done decently and with order. We are extremely particular and painstaking in guarding this pastime. There have never been any improprieties or scandals. Everything is kept sweet and clean.

"Our position is this:—As God has placed us in this district to save the people from the hurricanes of temptation about them, as the people will go to saloons to play billiards, to the variety theatre to enjoy dramatic entertainments and to public halls in order to dance, the only way we can wean them from these resorts is to compete directly with these questionable institutions and give innocent amusement to the people under conditions that are healthful and uplifting. If the people of God do not supply these amusements the children of the devil will.

"Young people will dance, and there is no stopping them. The poor cannot dance in their own homes. They have no pianos, and the flats are many of them only eight feet in width. They flock to cheap dances in halls where there are all sorts and conditions of men and women. There many of them dance to perdition. Now, if they must dance we think they should dance the other way. We are wrestling amusements from Satan and using them in the service of God. And if we fail to do this the Almighty will hold us responsible.

"Since the erection of our People's Palace six magnificent ecclesiastical club houses have been built in Jersey City by the Catholics, and they are keeping so many young men from the saloons that the grog shops are having a hard time in this city and are complaining bitterly of decrease in profits.

"Now, should not Protestants be as wise as Catholics? What the Protestant churches should do is to sit in sackcloath and ashes and beseech the Almighty to forgive them for their narrow policy and failure to use good generalship in their warfare with sin."

SECRET SOUNDER.

A Convenient Little Instrument for Telegraphers.

Nowadays, nearly all high speed telegraphers transcribe their messages direct upon a typewriter. It has been found that the noise made by the instrument greatly interfered with the reading of the "Morse." This difficulty has been overcome by the invention of a novel form of secret sounder, which is simply a key and sounder mounted in an ordinary pocket watch case. Although small in size and convenient for transportation, this instrument possesses all the practical operative qualities required by the telegrapher in such an apparatus. The sound it transmits can be adjusted instantly, from the loud click of the ordinary telegraph sounder down to a tick so nearly inaudible that the instrument has to be held in contact with the ear when the signals are to be read. The outfit includes a soft flexible head band of mohair, which enables the watch to be attached to the ear for secret work, or for employment in locations so noisy that the click of the ordinary sounder would be drowned. By its silk conducting cord, equipped with suitable terminals, it can be readily attached to or removed from a telegraph line. In brokers' offices, where secrecy of telegraphic transmission is of the highest importance, this appliance does the work in silence and defies eavesdropping. For military operations the instrument can be used with the field telegraph, in the tent or upon outpost duty, without fear of giving information to lurking spies, or betraying the position of the enemy. The outfit complete weighs only 4 1-2 ounces, and can be carried in the vest pocket.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

NOT A COWARD, AFTER ALL.

The Happy Relief of the Soldier When He Learned He Was Hit.

A young surgeon, after his return from the wars, told a story of an officer which was both pathetic and amusing. It was before Santiago. The surgeon, going to the front, came upon the young officer, sitting beside the road, trembling like a leaf, and whiter than the dead men around him. At sight of the surgeon he began to talk.

"I'm a coward. I'm a coward. I'm a coward," he said. "I knew I'd run, and I did. O Lord! I wish you'd kill me! I'm disgraced forever. I just got scared. I knew I would. I was going along all right, not thinking of anything but getting at the dashed Spaniards, yelling to my men to come on, and running ahead as fast as I could, when all of a sudden I stubbed my toe or something, and then I can't remember being scared, but I must have been, for I came galloping back here, sick as a dog. O, I feel so awfully gone. I'm a blanked coward, and I wish I was dead! O Lord! why don't somebody shoot me? I've got such an awful goneness right here," and he put his hand on his stomach. The surgeon gave him a quick look and caught him as he plunged forward in a faint. Where the awful goneness was, a Mauser bullet had found its billet. They carried the wounded man to the field hospital, and he chuckled all the way.

"O, my; O, my!" he said over and over. "I wasn't scared! I wasn't scared!" And then he would laugh delightedly. "I wasn't scared. I was hit—. I ain't a coward after all."—Washington Post.

That Tell-tale Boot-heel.

Nebuchadenezzar Jones was a small boy whose name might better have been Ananias, for he had a habit of telling "whoppers" for the mere pleasure of lying. One afternoon he ran into the sitting room breathlessly, and began to rattle off a yarn about a snake that he had seen swallowing a frog, legs first, while the frog was swallowing the snake tail first, till they had swallowed each other up. Just as Neb finished his story and his father and mother were partially recovered from their astonishment, the boy's boot-heel dropped off. "There!" exclaimed Neb's father, very gravely, 'you see what you get for telling lies."

Neb shuffled away shamefacedly, but a day or two after he told another story that sounded quite plausable. Its untruth probably would never have been known had not Neb lifted up his foot, looked at his heel carefully for a moment, and then said: "It didn't come off this time."

Hiding the Dirt.

It cannot be said that the oyster impresses one as being a cleanly creature; yet he dislikes dirt, and gets rid of it in his own way. In the hollow of most oyster-shells will be found dark blotches, the size of a fingernail, which look not unlike blisters. These spots seem to be a discoloration in the shell. The silvery surface is unbroken over them, though the black or dark blue places bulge slightly above the surrounding white shell. Touch these spots with a fork, and they are easily broken, showing a layer of shell of tissue-paper thinness covering small masses of mud, which may be scraped away until, beneath, the ordinary white oyster shell is reached.

Work of the Cable.

Much of the work in the cable and telegraphic offices throughout the West Indies, is done by negro girls who are intelligent and obliging in their manner, but, like all the natives, they cannot understand why it is necessary to hurry. The activity and rush of the Americans is a source of never-ending wonderment to them.

The following from yesterday's New York World refers to one of the star attractions to be in Thatcher's Fashionable Vaudevilles at Music Hall Christmas Monday: "Little Gertie Cochran is showing off her wonderful powers of memory at Tony Pastor's this week. Historical questions and all kinds of statistics she rattles off with a glib accuracy that is astonishing."

surrounded at the festive board by Mrs. Howard Tracy, Mrs. Julius Erickson, Mrs. James Hallock, Miss Barlow, Miss Milne and Miss Gladys Bigelow.

The first of a series entitled "A New York Day" was "Morning," given by Miss Katherine Reinhart. One of the best groups was "Their Presence of Mind. They had been in their room but a moment when they were startled by a knock." Miss Helen Bushnell and Reeve Stockton were evidently the young married couple so disturbed. Both sat up very straight while he tried to read a newspaper upside down. The disturbing element was Will Bunyon who wrestled bravely with a hugh trunk.

Miss May Evans appeared as "Noon" in the series. Then came "What Delicious Moment, When you find that you are to take in to dinner the girl who yesterday refused you." Mr. Doubleday was the fated man and Miss Wickersham his partner for dinner. The picture also included Mrs. J. Parker Mason, Mrs. W. L. Saunders, Tom VanBoskerck and Harry Patton. Miss Wickersham was "Evening" in the next. The audience was presented with a "Puzzle, Find the girl who has been kissed within ten minutes." The characters in it were Miss Emma Butler, Miss Gertrude Andrews, Mrs. E. M. VanBuren, C. F. Abbott and Harry Patton. The "New York Day" series was completed with "Night," Miss May Waring.

"All's Well That Ends Well, It's a love song, and sang with deep feeling, as her thoughts are with Tom in a far away land." Miss Meredirth sang it in the frame, accompanied by Mrs. W. L. Saunders, while "Tom," O. G. Waring, seemed to be enjoying himself surrounded by a bevy of Japanese maidens, the Misses Margaret Tracy, Marjorie Coe, Charlotte Lowe, Elsie VanZandt and Elsie Brokaw.

The entertainment closed with a worthy finale in which Miss Florence Waring was shown in the embrace of her brother, Lewis Waring. "A Farewell" it seemed.

On the Catholic Club alleys Monday night the Juniors played the Seniors in three practice games, and defeated them two games out of the three. The Seniors were practicing for their game with the Elizabethport team here Thursday night and gave the Juniors 100 pins as a starter. The Juniors are good bowlers and showed their mettle Monday night.

One of the most enjoyable features of the bowling season at the Park Club is the annual series of games between the Bachelors and Benedicts of the club. All the members of the club and their families turn out en masse for these events and lots of enthusiasm is shown. This year the regular custom will be followed and the Bachelors and Benedicts will meet as usual. The date of their first meeting will be on Christmas Eve. The second game will be played a week later. If it should be necessary to play a third game, that will follow on the succeeding Saturday evening. It usually only takes two games to decide the superiority of the married or single men. This year the Benedicts will be strengthened by several acquisitions to their ranks who formerly held up the honors on the other side.

A REMARKABLE IRON MINE.

The Deposit of Ore Is Considered Most Extraordinary.

A St. John's, N. F., correspondent, who has just paid a visit to the new iron mine at Belle Isle, Conception Bay, describes the deposit as the most extraordinary of the kind in the world. There is no gaping shaft, no tall chimney, no puffing of steam engines or clanking of machinery. About two hundred men were at work on the surface of the ground, scattered over a considerable ore, some with pickaxes, shovels and barrows, putting the ore into wagons; others drilling, by steam or hand, holes into the bed of the ore which were to be charged with dynamite.

Instead of a mine it is an open quarry of red hematite iron ore, which is detached from its bed far more easily than stone in a quarry. The ore lies in a horizontal stratum, three miles in length, and is covered on the surface by about two feet of rock. This is just stripped off, and sections of the oar laid bare. Then, by blasting, masses of the ore are detached, and long terraces are formed, rising in shelves above each other, and in these the men go to work with crowbars, pickaxes, wedges and shovels. At certain intervals along these terraces the steam drill is at work, or the sledge hammer or jumper, making holes, which, when charged with dynamite, are exploded by electricity.

On penetrating this first stratum of ore a bed of rock is reached, some three or four feet thick, similar to the surface rock. When this rock stratum is pierced, another bed of iron ore is reached, of about the same thickness as the first. For anything yet known there may be a third iron ore stratum underneath this bed. —American Manufacturer.

A Rare Relic for the Professor.

A certain professor in the Chicago University is an enthusiastic antiquarian. He loves to communicate his tastes in this direction to others, and always encourages the members of his history class to collect curios of historic interest.

During the spring quarter one of the seniors in the class stood in imminent danger of "flunking." Heroic measures were necessary in order to pass, but he was equal to the occasion.

One day, after class, he approached the professor with a curious fabric made of woven rings in his hand.

"Professor," he said, "I have here a valuable relic of the Indian wars. It is a piece of chain armor worn by General Dearborn in the memorable siege of Fort Dearborn. It was used by the general to protect himself against the arrows of his Indian foes. My grandfather dug it up years ago on the site of the old fort. I wish you would accept it as a present and place it in the museum."

The professor was overcome with delight, and placed the curio in the college museum, and saw that the donor got a good mark in his final examination.

Later the professor learned that the "chain armor" was in reality nothing more than that useful domestic utensil, an iron dishrag.—Chicago Chronicle.

MARRIED WITH NEW METHODIST SERVICE.

Nuptials of Creveling-Lunger Celebrated Last Night.

IT WAS A HOME AFFAIR.

BRIDE'S HOUSE WAS TASTEFULLY ARRANGED FOR THE EVENT.

Rev. W. C. Snodgrass the Officiating Clergyman—Bride Attired in White Organdie and Silk and Attended by Her Sister as Bridesmaid—Couple Will Take up Their Residence in Easton, Pa.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. William Lunger, of Watchung avenue, was the scene of a pretty wedding last evening, when their daughter, Miss May Lunger, was united in marriage to Charles Creveling, of Easton, Pa. The ceremony was performed at 5 o'clock by Rev. Dr. W. C. Snodgrass, pastor of the First M. E. church, in the presence of many admiring relatives and friends. The new service of the M. E. church was used, which is quite similar to the Episcopal service. It was admired by all.

The bride was gowned in white satin, en train, trimmed with white chiffon. She wore a veil caught up with orange blossoms, and a diamond brooche, the gift of the groom. She carried a bouquet of bridal roses. She was attended by Miss Jennie Lunger, her sister, who was bridemaid, and who wore a gown of white organdie over pink, trimmed with lace and ribbon. She carried carnation pinks. The best man was Elmer Cutting, of this city.

The wedding march was played by Miss Daisy Gano, of Clinton, cousin of the bride. As this was being executed the bridal party entered the room where the ceremony was performed. The room was prettily decorated and in front of the bow-window where the bridal party stood there was a large bank of greens and palms. Above their heads was suspended two hearts of evergreen and holly, entwined. Following the ceremony the guests extended their heartiest congratulations to the happy couple and a long and prosperous life was wished them.

After congratulations a wedding supper was served and Mr. and Mrs. Creveling left to take the 8:08 train for a two weeks' wedding trip. On their return trip they will reside at Easton, where the groom is a prosperous grocery merchant. The bride has been for six years associated with Mrs. Lemuel Cole, of the borough, at her dressmaking parlors. She has a host of friends, who extend their best wishes to her and her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Creveling received a large number of useful gifts, that will always be pleasant reminders of the happy event. The gifts include china, furniture, cut glass, handsome chairs, and many things too numerous to mention.

Those present who witnessed the marriage were Wm. Creveling and family, Mrs. Damon, Mrs. Myers, of Easton, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Streeter, of Weatherly, Pa.; the Misses Dean, of Newark; the Misses Gano, of Annandale; Daniel Crotsley and family, of Stirling; Miss Emma Lunger and Miss Nellie Lunger, Walter Gano, of Clinton; Mr. and Mrs. Brenning, Walter Hoffman, of Jersey City; the Misses Jamison, of Dunellen; Mr. and Mrs. George Callard, of New Brunswick; Mr. and Mrs. William Lunger, Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Snodgrass, Mr. and Mrs. Willard Ross, Mr. and Mrs. F. Merton Lunger, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Alpaugh, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Winckler, the Misses Winckler, Mr. and Mrs. John Mitchell, Mrs. J. M. McNaughton, Mrs. Bertha Richards, Miss Carrie Coombs, Miss Nellie Fenner, Wm. Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. George M. Macintyre, Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Cole, Robert LaBoyteaux, the Misses Scheelein, of Plainfield, and Miss Helen Cadmus, of Brooklyn.

J. W. Davis in a New Position.

J. W. Davis, formerly bookkeeper for Boice, Runyon & Co., has associated himself in the coal business with George O. Stevens. The firm name will be George O. Stevens & Co. Mr. Davis is popular in the Fourth ward and hopes to see all his friends at his new stand. The office and yard are located at the corner of Grant avenue and West Front street.

Christmas Festival.

The Christmas festival will be held in the parish house of the Church of the Heavenly Rest Wednesday evening, December 28th, at 7:30 o'clock. The programme will consist of recitations and solos, with carol singing by the school, to conclude with an exhibition of "The Wonderful Egyptian Sphinx, or the Talking Head."

AID FOR THE SUFFERING.

DAILY PRESS BROUGHT RELIEF TO VARETTE FAMILY.

Prudential Insurance Company Has Decided to Pay Insurance to Mother Although Not Legally Compelled to.

Until the sad story of the sufferings of Mrs. Leopoldine Varette, of Berkeley Heights, appeared in the columns of The Dailey Press, there were few who realized the extremity of her want. The result of bringing forward this story of suffering and want to the public eye has appeared in relief from an unexpected channel.

Only a week or two before the Varette children were taken ill with the dread diptheria, an agent of the Prudential Insurance Company visited the Varette homestead. They had little money at the time but Mrs. Varette agreed to take out a small policy for herself and children. The application was filled out and the agent departed. When he came again with the policy made out, he found the children ill and, according to the rules of the company, did not leave it.

One of the little girls, Maud, died but the mother thought nothing of the insurance policy she had tried to take out for she had paid nothing toward it and had not received the policy. The story of her destitution, as told in The Daily Press, was noticed by Elston Woodland, manager of the Plainfield branch of the Company, and forwarded to the headquarters.

As a result, the officials of the company decided to pay the insurance to Mrs. Varette although not legally compelled to. The amount is $28 and a check for that sum has been sent out to Plainfield and will be taken at once to the Varette family.

WHERE TO GET A TURKEY.

Local Meat Markets Well Stocked for the Holiday Season.

What is Christmas without a good dinner, and what is a good dinner without a turkey? Housekeepers are beginning to wonder now where they can get their Christmas dinners, and the Press has undertaken to give them a few hints that may be useful.

First of all comes Fred Endress, the butcher. His store is on West Front street and is stocked from end to end with Christmas stock, turkeys, geese, ducks, chickens, beef, mutton, pork, game, etc. For one thing, he had last night 16,000 pounds of turkeys in his store, hung about on the racks, or stored in the back of the store, to say nothing about the rest of his stock. Swift & Company, of Chicago, have sent him some special beef and mutton marked "Merry Christmas, from Swift & Co.," and this is the pick of their Chicago houses. Endress' Front street store has quite a holiday appearance with its greens and meats.

L. A. Hummer, on Park avenue, is another good place to buy. He has been located in the same place so long now that if the store was taken away Plainfield would lose an old landmark. His stock of poultry and meats is always up to the standard, and needs no special mention.

E. E. Brown, a little further down on the corner of Second street, has lined the sidewalls of his store with poultry, it would seem to glance inside, and he expects to sell every one of them.

J. W. VanSickle and Smalley Brothers are on North avenue where they can catch the morning trade. VanSickle's meats are always of the best, and the quality is never questioned. Smalley Brothers always lay in an immense supply of poultry at the Thanksgiving and holiday seasons, and this year is no exception to the rule. All this week the wholesale dealers have been sending in their stock to them, and even now Smalley Brothers are taking orders for Saturday.

Drake & Mundy and Scheuer & Company are on West Front street, so close together that they are rivals in business, and both firms cut the prices on meats and poultry so low that the public gains greatly by it.

Those who live at the upper end of Somerset street are urged not to forget George Egle, who keeps a butcher store right in their vicinity. They will find that he keeps as good a stock and at as low prices as the down town dealers.

Testimonial Accepted.

E. Marshall, a member of Columbia Lodge, when he was taken ill at Niagara Falls last summer. International Lodge received the testimonial with a vote of thanks.

HEARD OF THE PURITANS

FOREFATHERS' DAY SERVICE AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH.

Several Sketches of the Sturdy Tribe Read and the Most Interesting Points Brought Out—Appropriate Decorations.

Forefathers' Day was observed again in the Congregational church last night, the subject of the meeting being "The Congregationalists in 1620." The service was held in place of the regular mid-week prayer meeting, and after the evening programme was through with refreshments were served by young ladies in Puritan costume.

There were several readers who took up the story of the Puritans in Leydon, where they were in 1620. The reasons why they decided to leave Leydon, their experiences on the sea, their arrival at Cape Cod, anchorage at Provincetown, their explorations on Cape Cod, the story of the first encounter with the Indians, were all nicely told in selections from interesting authors, as well as the voyage in the little shallop to Clark's Island, and Plymouth parlor, and the final arrival of the Pilgrims in Plymouth harbor.

The landing of the Pilgrim women for their Monday wash day, a humorous story by Jane G. Auston, in "Standish of Standish," was read by one of the young ladies. The description of the Pilgrims' first encounter with the Indians was read by Miss Julia Belknap, and the main accounts of the Pilgrims were read from William Bradford's "Plymouth Plantations." Miss Clark read the compact signed by the Pilgrims in the cabin of the Mayflower.

The room was decorated with pictures of Puritans, copies of paintings, photographs of old Plymouth, a silver fac simile of Miles Standish's sword and other things to remind those present of the days of 1620.

CHRISTMAS MUSIC.

Exercises to Be Held in the High School Tomorrow Morning.

The musical element in the Christmas exercises of the High School will be more pronounced this year than usual. Under the leadership of Mr. Lewis the school will render Schnecker's beautiful choral cantata "The Hope of the World." The theme is introduced by a chorus, "Ring Forth, Ye Bells," and is divided into two parts: Part I, "The Shepherds," and part II, "The Wise Men," followed by a closing chorus, "Hail Royal Babe."

Solo parts will be sung by Miss Kuhl, and a trio by the Misses Kuhl, Collier and Anthony. The school will also repeat the anthem "Sing, O Heavens," with solo by Miss Constance Patton.

Recitations appropriate to the occasion will be given by Bessie Fitz Randolph, Euphemia Demarest and Ella H. Serrell. Rev. Mr. Herring will make a short address.

These exercises are public and may be attended by anyone. They occur at 10:30 o'clock Friday morning.

Wagon Damaged.

H. M. DuFlon, of 274 Woodland avenue, had to drive home from town this morning in a buggy a little the worse for coming in contact with a heavy express wagon. Mr. DuFlon's horse was standing in front of Fred Dunn's grocery when the animal became frightened and backed the buggy directly into an express wagon. As a result the back wheels and axle were badly bent, but Mr. DuFlon was able to drive the buggy home.

Daniel C. Main, of Central avenue, late of the hospital corps of the U. S. Regular Army, put on citizens clothes yesterday for the first time in about eight months having been discharged from service in the army "by way of favor" and with an official testimonial of "honest and faithful service." He has gone to visit his grandparents and other relatives in Troy, N. Y.

Trolley Capitalits Apply in Roselle.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

TROUBLE OVER A CHAIR.

A Upholsterer Goes to Court to Enforce Collection of Bill.

A handsomely upholstered parlor chair figured in a trial in Justice Smalley's court yesterday morning, in the case of Wyckoff & Stiglitz against Charles C. Manning, of Bound Brook. The plaintiffs upholstered the chair, and sent in a bill to the defendant for $22. This Manning refused to pay, as he claimed it was too much, and that the firm had not made the good job of it that they agreed to do.

The back needed strenghtening, Manning said, and there were other little repairs that Manning claimed were needed. To prove all these assertions Manning produced the chair in court, and it stood in the centre of the room, an object of envy to all.

Counsellor McClure pressed the suit, and admired the work done by the upholsterers greatly. Lawyer Fisker, of Bound Brook, could not see it that way, and insisted that the work had been poorly done. Justice Smalley agreed with Mr. McClure, however, and gave a verdict for the full amount claimed. Manning settled before leaving for home.

WILD RUN OF A HORSE.

Wrecked the Buggy and Narrowly Escaped Being Hit by a Train.

Ellis A. Campbell, the veteran hotel keeper at Avon Park, had a valuable buggy broken up Monday morning in a runaway between Fanwood and Netherwood.

Mr. Campbell had stopped at Thatcher's roadhouse near Fanwood, and left his horse under the shed. While he was inside the horse took fright, backed out from under the shed and started down the road towards home. At the corner of Belvidere and South avenues the vehicle collided with a post, and the buggy was over-turned and after being dragged for a short distance, left behind.

The horse ran up to Bob Guttridge's store, circled it and ran out on the railroad track in front of the station. A fast train came along and just missed striking the horse. This scared him back towards South avenue, and he ran along the trolley tracks down Woodland to Hillside avenues, and on to the hotel with bits of harness dangling from him.

STANDS BY ITSELF.

Union Building and Loan Association Not a Branch of Anything.

Through the misapprehension of the city editor of The Daily Press yesterday, the item concerning the organization of the new building and loan association was introduced with a head stating "Branch of the Union Building and Loan Association Formed." The application of the word "branch" was wrong. The association is not a branch of anything, but stands on its own legs, so to speak. It has been organized entirely by Plainfield people and is and will be independent of any other association. The distinctive feature of the new association is that its funds will be invested entirely in Plainfield, a condition long desired by local investors.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Lincoln, Dec. 22.—Lincoln is putting on new airs now owing to the fact that it has reached the magnitude where the officials of the Central Railroad of New Jersey have recognized the necessity of a regular established station to accommodate the business transacted here. Fred Dunn has been appointed station agent and telegraph operator. The Western Union Telegraph Company will soon establish a branch office, too. The Central is also erecting a freight house near the depot.

A Chance for Discoverers.

Some people have imbibed the impression that because Columbus and Magellen and DeLeon are dead, that the age of discovery has passed; they will be disabused of that impression if they will step into Collier's and discover the new designs in shoe-horns, boot-buttoners, bracelets, hat-pins and a thousand and one novelties of the latest and most artistic designs.

RAN INTO MAIL GATE.

ACCOMMODATION TRAIN MET WITH ACCIDENT AT GARWOOD.

The Headlight and Front of Locomotive Damaged—Wm. Aten, of Dunellen, the Engineer—No One Injured.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Garwood, Dec. 22—A local passenger train on the Jersey Central Railroad crashed into the mail gate at this station yesterday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock, wrecking the gate and demolishing the headlight and front plate of the locomotive. No one was injured. The mail gate was stretched across track No. 4 to allow the mail train on track No. 2 to take the mail on the fly.

Owing to the fog in the vicinity of New York yesterday most all of the trains were behind time. The accommodation that leaves New York at 3:35 o'clock was so far behind time that on reaching Roselle the train despatcher instructed the train to take the fourth track to allow the Philadelphia express, leaving New York at 4 o'clock, to pass on the main track.

The local mail train leave New York at 4 o'clock and follows the express, taking mail at Garwood and other small stations on the fly. The mail gate, made of wood and iron, is swung across the track to hold the mailbag close to the track. When the gate is swung across the track, it looks the block signals warning approaching trains on the fourth track.

Yesterday, however, the mail agent in Garwood could not see the approaching local on the fourth track for reason of the fog, so the gate was swung over after the train had entered that block and the engineer was given no warning. The engineer was William Aten, of Dunellen, one of the oldest on the road.

The train was moving along rapidly when it crashed into the gate hidden by the fog. There was a cloud of flying splinters and the headlight, number plate and front plates of the boiler were shattered by the blow.

DEATH OF AN AGED WOMAN.

Mrs. Sarah E. Boice Passes Away at Her Home in Dunellen.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, Dec. 22—Mrs. Sarah E. Boice, aged seventy-six years, died Tuesday noon. She was the widow of the late Cyrus B. Boice, an old soldier, who served nine months with the Twenty-eighth New Jersey Volunteers.

Mrs. Boice leaves one son, C. F. Boice, of North avenue, Plainfield, who is employed by C. K. Compton.

The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock from the First Baptist church. Interment will be in the Samptown burying ground. Mrs. Boice has lived in this vicinity for the past fifty years, and was well-known. She was a staunch member of the Baptist church, and attended regularly as long as her health permitted. About ten years years ago she swallowed a pin, and a heavy cold setting in the result was consumption, of which she died.

WANTS FORMER HOTEL MAN TO PAY.

David C. Bowne Declares That Joseph C Runyon Never Paid a Bill.

David C. Bowne, of the borough, has brought suit through Pope & Runyon against Joseph C. Runyon, of South Plainfield, for a liquor bill.

Runyon formerly ran a hotel in South Plainfield, and Bowne claims that it was then that Runyon secured credit from him and ran up a big bill for beer, wine, whiskey and soft drinks, claiming that he owned property.

The plaintiff claims that when he tried to collect his money, and began to inquire about the property, he found that it existed only in Runyon's imagination. The case will be tried before Justice Moffett December 28th.

STILL IN A DAZED CONDITION.

Engineer Whitty in a Comatose State at the Hospital.

Engineer R. J. Whitty, of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, who was severely injured yesterday noon while passing through Roselle, is considered slightly improved today, although he has not yet regained complete consciousness. This morning Mr. Whitty's brother from Philadelphia came to Plainfield to see him. The injured man has a wife and three children residing in Philadelphia. Mrs. Whitty will probably arrive today to see her husband. There seem to be fair chances for recovery unless something else is developed in the injuries.

THESE BOYS ARE BAD.

THEY FAILED TO EMULATE THE ILLUSTRIOUS WASHINGTON.

Cut Down Trees on Church Property and Then Did Not, Like the Father of His Country, Admit Their Guilt.

Augustus Nier, aged twelve years, and Willie Howe, aged fourteen years, were arrested in the borough last evening on a complaint made by George Winans, of Washingtonville, before Justice Mattison. The complaint charges that these two youths cut down evergreen trees on the property surrounding the Mary E. Wilson chapel at Washingtonville. One of the trees was sold to Philip Currin, of Somerset street, for sixty cents. The boys told Mr. Currin that they had paid forty cents for it. The boys were locked up and they will be arraigned before Justice Mattison this afternoon.

Both of these boys have been arrested before on a charge of stealing shoes from Abram's shoe store. They were arraigned in the city court and tried for the offense. As the boys have bad reputations it is likely that they will now be more severely dealt with.

TROLLEY CAR HIT THE WAGON.

Accident Caused by the Dense Fog Obscuring Driver's Vision.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Dunellen, N. J., December 22.—An accident occurred last night on the street railway tracks in which a couple of hay wagons and a trolley car were mixed up. With the exception of a broken whiffletree and a few scratches on one of the horses, no damage was done.

Gus Kohler, motorman on car No. 14, was coming this way, at 7 o'clock last evening, when near Jefferson avenue he saw, through the fog ahead of him, a hay wagon, coming towards him. The track at that point bears over towards the north side of the street, and the hay wagon was on that side—the driver's left. The wagon was one of Henry Uhrhahn's of North Plainfield, and when the driver saw the car he endeavored to turn out to the left and get on the broad part of the street. He was not quick enough, and the rear of his wagon was struck by the car and upset.

Right behind Uhrhahn's wagon was another loaded hay wagon owned by James Burke, of Plainfield, and the driver being so close to the wagon ahead, did not notice the trolley, and drove his horses right into it, with the result that one of them was cut up a little by the car. No blame can be attached to the motorman, the company say, because the wagons were on the wrong side of the street. The drivers claim that they could not see the car on account of the fog, and that they didn't hear the bell in time.

YALE BOYS ENTERTAIN WITH SONG AND MUSIC.

Glee and Banjo Clubs Gave Concert at Casino.

MADE FINE IMPRESSION.

WORK OF CLUBS SHOWED LONG AND EXCELLENT TRAINING.

Tutti-Frutti of Popular Airs Found Great Favor—So Did Selections by Quartette—An Intelligent-Looking Lot of Young Men—Played and Sang With Spirit and Dash—Concert Followed by Dance.

The Christmas tour of the Yale Glee and Banjo Clubs began yesterday, and the first concert was given in this city at the Casino of the Union County Country Club last evening. A fashionable audience nearly filled the hall. Without doubt the college boys are popular entertainers, and their concert of last evening was fully up to the standard.

The banjo club was the first to make its appearance with one of Rosey's popular marches. In response to the rousing applause, they gave the "Georgia Camp Meeting." The boys played well, excellently in fact. They kept good time and played with a spirit and dash that is a necessary quality of successful banjo music.

The glee club was the best of its kind that has visited Plainfield. The college glees are always good, but sung as they were last evening they found decided favor. The work of the club showed long and excellent training. The beginning of each selection was sharp and united. The voices kept together and blended into a grand harmony. The college boys were an intelligent looking crowd and they entered into the spirit of their songs with a vigor and earnestness that greatly added to the effect.

The "Tutti Fruitti" of popular airs as rendered by banjo and glee clubs found particular favor. Messrs. Schneeloch, Sheehan and Simmons were all good soloists. Probably the most enthusiastic ly received selections were the Negro and funny melodies by the quartette, Messrs. Douglass, Noble, Sheehan and Lyon. The songs by Mr. Sheehan, president of the glee club, assisted by the glee club, were encored again and again. Mr. Sheehan had a manner all his own that scored a decided hit. His recitation of a parody on "Barbara Fretchie" was very funny.

The mandolin club, largely composed of the members of the banjo club, was well received in several selections. The "Hungarian Dance" recalled to the audience the days of the Spielkartenfest.

There were three parts to the programme, each of five numbers. Every one was encored and so it was long after 10 o'clock before the concert was over. Then the seats were quickly removed and an informal dance followed in which the college boys took part.

The ushers for the concert were Harry Lovell, A. Willis West and Walter Murray. William N. Runyon was at the door and Walter Stewart collected the tickets.

Raymond A. McGee, of Washington Park, was present and sang in several of the selections. He will not go with the club on their tour however.

LECTURE ON SHAKESPEARE.

By Henry A. Clapp, of Boston, Before Monday Afternoon Club.

A very entertaining lecture was given yesterday afternoon before the Monday Afternoon Club, in connection with the subject of the winter's study. Henry A. Clapp, of Boston held the close attention of the audience with his theme, "Shakespeare, the Man and the Poet." He thought the dramatist's miraculous genius was the culmination of many generations of strong, rarely endowed men and pure, true-hearted women. He described Shakespeare's early life, his education, which was not meagre, his early marriage, his life in London and his success as a writer of plays. The latter part of the lecture was devoted to the Baconian theory and the absurdity of the claim that Francis Bacon was the writer of Shakespeare's plays. Shakespeare's sonnets, the testimony of contemporaneous writers and the history of the times were brought in proof of the dramatist's ability. The miracle of his genius was a miracle like that of Abraham Lincoln's life, writings and sayings.

It't a Manly Act.

A Plainfield Citizen Speaks for the Benefit of His Fellow Citizens.

A plain straightforward statement.
A grateful acknowledgment of help.
Telling a personal experience.
Making it public for the public good.
It's a manly act.
It's manly because it helps others.
So many people have been misled.
So many claims made that were not true.
No wonder there are skeptics.
A Plainfield man speaks here.
Speaks in the interest of humanity.
Shows the way to our citizens.
Removes the stumbling block of doubt.
Gives local indorsement.
No better proof can be had.
No better should be asked.
Plainfield people should know what is the true kidney remedy.
Distinguish it from many imitations.
Know that Doan's Kidney Pills are the only genuine.
There are many kidney remedies, but only one cure.
Other kidney pills but only one Doan's.
And they cure kidney ills.
We say so—your neighbors prove it.

Mr. Charles Giese, Cigar Manufacturer of 25 Elm Place, says: "I was subject to attacks of kidney complaint for 2 or 3 years. Most of the pain was in my back and hips and I could not stoop or straighten without feeling sharp, shooting twinges. When I sat for any length of time I grew stiff and sore and was compelled to get up and move about. I grew so bad I had to do something for it. I had read a great deal about Doan's Kidney Pills being such a good medicine for kidney troubles, so I got a box of them at L. W. Randolph's drug store. I used them according to directions and after 2 or 3 days I felt better. I continued their use until the pain disappeared. I am only too glad to be able to testify to the fact that Doan's Kidney Pills are a splendid remedy.

GEN. MILES CRITICISES

Talks of the War Before the Investigating Committee.

MEDICAL SUPPLIES SHORT

Quotes Gen. Shafter as Saying There Was "a Chronic Scarcity." Refrigerator and Canned Beef Sent to Porto Rico Condemned.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—Major General Nelson A. Miles was the principal witness before the war investigating commission concerning the Santiago and Porto Rico campaigns. Tuesday he addressed the following note to that body:

Headquarters of the Army,
Washington, Dec. 20.

Major Steven C. Mills, Recorder:

In reply to your verbal invitation I have the honor to inform you that, under the circumstances, and for reasons which I believe to be to the best interests of the army, I have no volunteer testimony to offer.

Very respectfully,
NELSON A. MILES,
Major Gen. commanding U. S. A.

It may be noted that the general did not decline to testify in answer to a request, but that apparently he did not wish to be put in the position of volunteering testimony which might be regarded as bearing against some branch of the military establishment of which he is the head.

Probably the commission noted this peculiarity in the phraseology, for it addressed to the general yesterday another communication in writing, formally requesting him to appear.

General Miles later took the stand as a witness.

"Are you willing to be sworn?" he was asked.

"I think," was the reply, "that I can say what I have to without being sworn."

General Miles was fortified with a large package of papers and his stenographer. He described the railroad confusion in getting the war munitions to Tampa pointed to the lack of government storehouse facilities there and said the cars at one time were held back as far as Columbia, S. C.

He said that when the transports were loaded it was found impossible to put more than fifteen thousand men aboard, and they were equipped as well as possible under the circumstances.

"It was most fortunate," he said "that the transports had good weather. If they had encountered a severe storm the loss of life, or the suffering, at least, must have been fearful.

As it was, with fair weather, the men below crowded in with the mules and supplies could get on deck, which would have been impossible otherwise.

The commissary stores taken, he said, were sufficient, but the medical supplies were inadequate. He had left the loading, except for general directions, to the corps commander, General Shafter.

He found just before sailing that there were a number of pontoon boats being taken which would be utterly useless for the purpose, and he secured two barges from the owners there and toook other steps, but the supply of such boats was very inadequate.

"The expedition," he continued "should have been furnished with launches, naphtha or steam, or tugs for towing barges from the ships to the shore. We relied largely on the engineer officers and the engineer department for these. In the second expedition to Porto Rico these were furnished, but they arrived too late to render much assistance."

He said before the first fleet sailed from Tampa estimates had been definitely made of the number of boats to be furnished the transports and the number to be furnished by the navy to assist.

The most cordial assistance, he added, had been promised on the part of the navy. At Santiago the supply of tentage and food was very limited.

"Were the medical supplies at that time sufficient for the needs of the command?" he was asked.

In reply he read a dispatch from General Shafter, on August 4, which referred to "chronic scarcity of medicines, and that four men had just died from lack of medicines. There was at no time said General Miles, sufficient for the troops.

He remembered seeing one train for the sick, in a drenching rain, with no covering over the wagons.

He had taken measures personally to correct matters, and on August 12 telegraphed for a well equipped corps of pier and bridge builders, and ordered places burned.

General Miles said the transportation facilities were used to carry supplies to some fifteen thousand to twenty thousand refugees from Santiago and about five thousand Cuban troops.

"This," he stated, in answer to a question, "was not expected because I had cautioned General Shafter to keep his men out of the Spanish buildings of every nature and to keep them away from the natives. Had he not done as he did the army would have been much better supplied."

His army in Porto Rico, he said, had been supplied in a way with quartermasters and commissary stores, but not in the best way. At Porto Rico he had asked that fixed rations be sent, but instead they were sent down in bulk, without invoices or bills of lading, and in many instances stores were spoiled in the hold and thrown away. This caused great embarrassment and loss of stores and deprived troops of food and, he asserted, the scarcity of food largely caused the distress of the troops.

He had advised against the shipping of beef to Porto Rico, because there was abundance of it on the island, as well as because of his belief that it was defective.

He characterized the refrigerator beef, of which there were 327 tons sent, as "embalmed beef," and said the canned fresh beef, of which 198,000 pounds had been shipped there, was condemned by the officers whose commands had it.

"Who fixed that beef as an army ration?"

"You'll have to ask some one here in Washington. You had better ask the secretary of war or the commissary general. It was sent as food. If they hadn't taken that they would have had to go hungry. If they had sent paymasters down there as I asked, we could have bought food, but they did not do that."

General Miles suggested that the food was sent to his large army under pretence of an experiment.

General Miles stated that the first plans for sending troops to Cuba were not his, as he was opposed to sending troops there until Cervera's fleet was located.

The question at the outset was a naval problem; and the dispatch of the troops, in his judgment, then, hinged on which fleet should destroy the other. If the Spanish had destroyed the United States fleet the United States, he thought, would have been blocked for a number of years.

"If we had had a force in Cuba then we would have lost it, as it would have been impossible to get it back here."

He was opposed to sending a large force to places like Havana or Matanzas because of the great percentage of yellow fever deaths there.

He said the destruction of Cervera's fleet settled that problem. He wanted to operate with a small force against the Spanish forces by harrassing them during the sickly season aiding the Cubans and not endangering the lives of his own men.

He also at first favored taking Porto Rico to prevent the Spanish from using that as a base of operations.

General Miles gave details of the Porto Rico expedition organization and obstacles.

Concluding with his opinion of camp sites, he said the first he knew of the selection of Camp Alger, Va., the most objectionable camp in his mind, was when the regiments began reaching there.

As to Chyickamauga, he had recommended mobilizing the regulars there and a portion of the volunteers after some of the regulars left, but he never anticipated that seventy-five thousand men would be sent there, and when finding it overcrowded, had recommended a distribution of the forces among other localities.

Young children, to avoid marasmus, scrofula, or rickets, and develop healthy tissues, bones and teeth, need fats and hypophosphites. Dr. W. Gilman Thompson, Prof. Materia Medica and Therapeutics, in the University of New York, asserts that Cod-liver Oil is the best fat for the purpose.

Scott's Emulsion is cod-liver oil partly digested and combined with hypophosphites, it gives children material for rich blood, solid flesh, bones and teeth.

CONSULS IN CUBA AND SPAIN.

United States Offices on the Island to be Closed Temporarily.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—The state department has instructed Vice Consul General Springer to proceed to Havana and close up the affairs of the United States consulate general in that city.

The consular offices throughout Cuba will not be abandoned just now, but will be closed temporarily until such time as, through the recognition of the independence of the Cubans, it may become necessary to resume business through them.

The department has as yet taken no steps towards reopening the American consulates in Spain, and this will probably be allowed to await the exchange of ratifications of the peace treaty.

In the absence of the usual treaties of amity and commerce, the status of the United States consuls who will be sent to Spain will be somewhat indefinite, but it is not doubted that they will be afforded proper facilities for the discharge of their duties.

Curiously enough, one at least, and perhaps more, of the United States consular officers remained at his post throughout the entire war, undisturbed

TERRITORY OF HAWAII

The Senate Committee Report the Bill Providing a Government.

NO COLOR LINE IS DRAWN

Bill for Its Government Strikes Out the Property Qualification. Requires Voters to Read and Write the English or Hawaiian Language.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—The Senate committee on foreign relations has concluded its revision of the bill providing a territorial government for Hawaii, and Senator Cullom reported the changes to the Senate.

The section defining citizenship was amended by striking out the word "white" and also explicit reference to Portuguese, and left to read as follows:

"That all persons who were citizens of the Republic of Hawaii on August 12, 1898, are declared to be citizens of the United States.

The request of one-fifth of the members of the territorial House of Representatives is made sufficient to demand the yeas and nays, the original requirement being one-third.

The provision in regard to the qualifications of territorial senators is changed so as to require that the senator shall be a male citizen, thirty years of age, shall have resided in the Hawaiian islands not less than three years, and "shall be qualified to vote for senators."

The explicit property qualification is stricken out.

A like change is made in the provision regarding members of the House who are required to be qualified by the changes to vote for representatives.

Section 43, allowing one house to legislate after the other has adjourned, was stricken out, as was the provision requiring that each bill should receive the written approval of three members before being introduced.

The provision authorizing the territorial supreme court to pass upon the qualifications of members of the legislature was not changed.

The governor is required to send his estimates for appropriations to the legislature as a whole and not to the Senate as ordinarily required.

The following restriction on the issuance of bonds is inserted:

"Nor shall any bond or other instrument of indebtedness be issued unless made redeemable in not more than five years and payable in not more than fifteen years from the date of issue."

The provision that no retroactive law shall be enacted is stricken out.

In the qualifications for voters for territorial representatives the word "understandingly" in the educational qualification is stricken out, requiring simply that they shall "read, write and speak the English or Hawaiian language."

No change is made in the qualifications for voters for senators.

The provision in regard to the registration of Hawaiian vessels was changed to read as follows:

"That all vessels carrying Hawaiian registers on August 12, 1898, shall be entitled to be registered as American vessels, with all benefits and privileges appertaining thereto."

FATAL RAILWAY WRECK.

Two Killed and Ten Injured on the Pennsylvania Road.

Rahway, N. J., Dec. 22.—In the dense fog at 6.50 o'clock yesterday morning the express train from Washington over the Pennsylvania Railroad, which should have reached Jersey City at 7.30 o'clock, ran into the Pittsburg Flyer one mile east of Colona station, two miles west of Rahway.

Two persons on the Pittsburg train were instantly killed—one a young man, a passenger, and the other a porter.

They were horribly mangled and were found with their limbs tangled up together.

Ten persons on the Pittsburg train were seriously injured, but the only persons on the second train who received anything more than a severe shaking up were the engineer and the fireman.

The Pittsburg train had been running slowly just west of the Colonia station. The passengers looking out could barely see the road bed, so dense was the fog.

The train had been proceeding with great caution, for in the darkness the engineer could not make out the signal lights at the different block stations. The red light hanging on the back rail of the sleeper could be seen shining dimly through the fog but a short distance away.

Suddenly there came the roar of the advancing Washington train. There was a hoarse whistle from its locomotive, the shrieks of steam from the air brake pipes, and the grinding of the wheels as they slid along the damp track. Then came the crash of the collision.

The locomotive of the Washington express plunged into the sleeper, tearing out everything in its way and not stopping until its battered headlight was half way through the Bartholdi sleeper.

The impact threw the car in front of the sleeper up on the car in front of it, and the tender of the locomotive was turned up on the body of the locomotive.

The first car of the Washington train was thrown from the track, and the next car following in its wake pushed it along until it was overturned side by side with the locomotive.

Wreckage was strewn about everywhere, and twisted iron and broken wood were flung in all directions.

Regarding the cause of the wreck the roadmaster said:

"I cannot understand how such an accident could have occurred. It is the rule that one train shall not enter one block of the road until the one ahead has passed out of it. The engineers on those trains were two of the best in the road's employ; how they could have run on the same block at the same time I do not know."

The general opinion is that the engineer of the first train was feeling his way slowly through the fog, looking for the semaphores which stand at the approach to Rahway.

He had just left the section of the road where the automatic signal system was in operation and had reached the section where he was to be guided by the semaphores.

The automatic signal, therefore, could give no warning to the train approaching from the rear.

Wreck on the D. and H.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Dec. 22.—A destructive wreck occurred at 4.30 o'clock yesterday morning on the Delaware & Hudson Railroad, four miles north of this city. A Central Railroad of New Jersey freight train crashed into the rear end of a Delaware & Hudson train.

The conductor of the Delaware & Hudson train, Peter Storch, and the flagman, Lyman Severna, both of Carbondale, who were in the caboose, were injured, the former sustaining a compound fracture of the leg.

Killed by Train at Elizabeth.

Elizabeth, N. J., Dec. 22.—Two men were killed on the tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad, at Pearl street bridge, this city, late Tuesday evening. They were crossing the bridge when struck by train 62.

On the clothes of one was found a paper from an employment bureau at 120 Greenwich street, New York, and on it was written the name John Niesbair.

The bodies were taken to Mitchell's morgue.

Yale's Funds Not Involved.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 22.—The report to the effect that Yale University was involved in the bankruptcy of the firm of Mason & Company, of which the late Edward G. Mason was the head, was called to the attention of President Dwight yesterday.

The president admitted that certain loans had been negotiated by the college through Mason & Company, but he felt sure that they were satisfactory.

German Meat Inspection.

Berlin, Dec. 22.—The North German Gazette, in announcing that the imperial meat inspection bill is now ready to be submitted to the Bundsrath, says:

TO SUCCEED MR. BLISS

Ethan Allen Hitchcock to Be Secretary of the Interior.

AN AMBASSADOR TO RUSSIA

The Present Representative of the United States at St. Petersburg Selected to Become a Member of the Cabinet. Grandson of Col. Ethan Allen.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—The president has nominated Ethan A. Hitchcock of Missouri to be secretary of the interior.

Mr. Hitchcock is at present ambassador to Russia. He was appointed minister more than a year ago, and when the rank was raised to an embassy he was reappointed.

Ethan Allen Hitchcock was born sixty-five years ago in Mobile. He took an academic course at New Haven, Conn., and settled in St. Louis. He went to China in 1860, where he remained for twelve years with the house of Olyphant & Co.

Since 1874, and until he was appointed minister to Russia, he was actively engaged in business in St. Louis, being the head of several large manufacturing and railway corporations.

He is a great grandson of Colonel Ethan Allen, who demanded the surrender of the British defenders of Fort Ticonderoga, "in the name of the great Jehovah and the Continental Congress."

MEETING OF THE CABINET.

The Tenor of the President's Proclamation to the Filipinos.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—The cabinet yesterday discussed the instructions to be sent to General Otis at Manila which will be promulgated there as a proclamation by the president.

These instructions are similar in import to those sent to our officers at Santiago upon the occupation of that city by the American troops. They assure the Filipinos that the United States assumes military control of the Philippine islands in a spirit of peace and friendship, and that all civil rights and privileges that they have hitherto enjoyed will be continued, and that it is the purpose of this government to relieve in all possible ways the unjust burdens they have borne.

They also ask for the co-operation of all good citizens in maintaining order to the end that peace and prosperity may be restored.

So far as is practicable, all efficient civil officers will be retained in the official positions they now occupy, and fair and impartial justice will be administered to all.

The Standard Oil Inquiry.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 22.—In the Standard Oil investigation yesterday, Attorney General Monnett tried to prove that the Standard Oil Company, just previous to the issuance of a recent order by the supreme court that the books of the company be produced in evidence, had destroyed a large number of its books.

Upon the strength of information received by the attorney general from reliable business men and attorneys that it could be proved that the Standard Oil Company had burned a lot of its books, journals, ledgers and other valuable books, the state served notice upon the Standard Oil Company that depositions on the subject would be taken before a notary in the office of Attorney Harry C. Masson in this city yesterday.

The Congressional Volunteers.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—In the House yesterday Mr. Henderson, Republican of Iowa, from the committee on rules, reported favorably the Bailey resolution directing the judiciary committee to investigate and report whether the members who had accepted commissions in the army during the late war had by so doing vacated their seats in the House.

He asked for immediate consideration and the resolution was adopted without division.

Mr. Wheeler, Democrat of Alabama; Mr. Colson, Republican of Kentucky; Mr. Robbins, Republican of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Campbell, Democrat of Illinois, are the members who volunteered for the war.

Mr. Hale Defeats Cuban Investigation.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—In the Senate yesterday Mr. Daniel of Virginia called from the calendar the resolution of Mr. Proctor of Vermont providing for a committee of senators to visit Cuba and Porto Rico and ascertain conditions in those islands and report to the Senate.

Mr. Hale of Maine called for the reading of the resolution, and then, on Mr. Daniel's motion to proceed to the consideration of the resolution, demanded the ayes and noes.

The motion was defeated. The Senate then went into executive session, and at 1.40 p. m. adjourned until January 4, 1899.

New Works at Fort Monroe.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 22.—It is proposed to extend the fortifications at Fort Monroe at least half a mile on the Chesapeake bay side, so that the large guns like the five which now command the entrance to the Virginia capes may command the approaches to Washington.

Crushed stone is mainly to be used for the defences, and one thousand tons arrived yesterday.

Work on the improvements is to begin very soon.

THE PILGRIM FATHERS.

The Anniversary of Forefathers Day Will Have a Special Significance This Year.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 22.—Throughout New England and wherever descendants of the Pilgrims dwell, this day is held sacred to the memory of the dauntless heroes, men, women and children, who braved the storms of the sea in the Mayflower, and on December 22, 1620, landed at Plymouth. Here and in New York the usual memorial banquets will be held, and these will be marked by speeches of special interest in view of the crisis through which the country has but recently passed.

In several New England cities the annual tableaux will be again presented, showing the march of the sixteen men under Miles Standish, the first that landed on American soil from the Mayflower the old fort, the treaty with Massasoit, etc.

OLD PLYMOUTH FORT.

This is also the annual meeting day of the so-called societies of Mayflower descendants, the most noted of which are in New York and Boston, but branch societies exist in Pennsylvania and in many other states of the Union. The officers of the New York society are as follows:

Governor, Henry E. Howland, New York; deputy governor, Edward Clinton Lee of Philadelphia; captain, Colonel J. J. Slocum of New York; elder, the Rev. Roderick Terry, D. D. of New York; secretary, E. L. Norton of New York; treasurer, W. M. Grinnell of New York; historian, R. H. Greene of New York.

Trouble Feared in Samoa.

Auckland, N. Z., Dec. 22.—Advices received here from Samoa, under date of December 16, say that there is serious trouble in connection with the election of a king to succeed the late King Malietoa.

The supporters of Mataafa have become warlike, and it is reported that the German consul is supporting Mataafa, in spite of the agreement arrived at between the consuls to remain neutral and allow the chief justice to decide the question of the succession.

The foreign residents fear that there will be an outbreak of tribal war when the chief justice pronounces his decision, about the end of the year, and they are extremely anxious for naval protection.

Mr. Long Not to Resign.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—After the cabinet meeting yesterday Secretary Long denied the story that he contemplated resigning.

He added that while personally he would like to return to private life, he would not retire just yet.

The president is very anxious that there be no more changes in his cabinet and it is said that he has prevailed upon Mr. Long to remain secretary of the navy.

It is known that the president tried in many ways to persuade Mr. Bliss to remain in the cabinet, and even sent a number of senators to see the secretary and ask him to reconsider his determination to resign.

Nicaragua Canal Committee.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—The Senate has adopted a resolution authorising the committee on the Nicaragua canal to sit during the recess of the Senate, to send for papers and persons, administer oaths and examine witnesses "touching any agreements or combinations of any persons or corporations in reference to the proposed canal through the Republic of Nicaragua, entered into for the purpose of defeating or controlling the construction of such canal for the personal emolument or advantage of such person or for the benefit of such corporation."

Col. E. S. Barrett Killed.

Concord, Mass., Dec. 22.—Colonel Edwin S. Barrett, national president of the Sons of the American Revolution, was killed by falling from a window of his home here yesterday.

He was about sixty years of age and leaves a wife, three daughters and a son.

Mr. Barrett of late had been subject to attacks of fainting. He went to the third story of his house yesterday forenoon to open a window, and, it is thought, became faint, and fell to the ground.

The Wages of Miners.

Massilon, Ohio, Dec. 22.—M. D. Ratchford, before leaving here for the miners' headquarters at Indianapolis, said regarding the Jones anti-screen mine law:

"At our next convention we are going to make a stand for the run of mine system for all the states represented. We are ready to make concessions to secure this change, and we feel certain that the operators are anxious for it, particularly if it is made a national affair."

The Oyster Export Trade.

New Haven, Dec. 22.—The information comes from very high official authority that an English firm with large capital has been formed to control the export oyster trade, and has already secured options on oyster plants at Stamford, Norwalk and Bridgeport.

The firm, it is said, intends to limit its operations to the export business entirely.

Three Moonshiners Killed.

Middlesboro, Ky., Dec. 22.—Advices from Knox county say that three moonshiners, Jacob Lambert, Green and an unknown man were killed and several of their companions wounded in a fight with revenue officers. The officers were not hurt.

Secretary Alger's Denial.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—Secretary Alger is authority for the statement that there is no truth in the report of a change in he head of the navy department.

Enough of This.

Acting-Governor Watkins seems to be having lots of trouble finding out where he is at when it comes to performing certain official functions of which it is not desirable to have any doubt about as what the exact standing of the present chief executive is.

Just now the Acting Governor is in a quandary as to whether he should be present at the opening of the House and take his place as Speaker, or whether he should remain in the executive department and allow a Speaker pro tem. to be named for the opening week. It is not likely that Attorney-General Grey will give a decision in the matter until after the Supreme Court has announced its conclusion as to whether or not Mr. Watkins is Acting-Governor.

The people who admire and desire straight-forward government are hopeful that this year will see the end for all time of the highest office in the State being made a piece of jugglery for politicians to toss about as suits their fancy.

It is timely to note at this time, too, that after all Assemblyman Murray had a clear foresight of some of the troublesome things that might develop in the decision of the Republican majority of the Assembly to choose Mr. Watkins for Speaker for a second term. The popularity of the Glouster man, however, overcame the points Mr. Murray raised, but notwithstanding the Plainfielder's ideas seem to bob up serenely in a ticklish way.

The politicians of the First and Second New Jersey regiments are busily engaged now in trying to figure out how they can secure the $200 which represents the difference in pay between duty for the State as National Guard and working for Uncle Sam as volunteer soldiers. The Legislature had better prepare for a concentrated attack by word of mouth from the soldiers, for it is planned to have all the regiments bring what influence they can to have the State make up that difference, and if necessary to establish State headquarters from where real Mauser arguments will be fired at the legislators.

Some people are blaming the commuters for the wide-spread epidemic of grip in this vicinity, claiming that they have brought the contagion from New York. Whenever the average Jersey native wants to blame someone for something which they don't know very much about they invariably lay it up against the commuter. The poor commuter! But with all their faults we love them still.

Former President Cleveland's attempt to turn the American youth into channels that will make him a fine American citizen seems to have met with a doleful failure. His "school-farm" has been closed up because the plan of making the boys work on a farm has not been the success that was anticipated. Grover has plenty to do at home with Young America, though.

Next Tuesday evening Mayor-elect George W. Rockfellow and the City Council for 1899 will meet at the home of Councilman E. T. Barrows, on West Eighth street, at which time committees will be arranged and the new president of the Council will be selected. The caucus was to have been held last evening, but was deferred owing to reasons known to those interested.

"Chris" Magee and "Dave" Martin, it is said, will stay out of the Pennsylvania Republican caucus. This would defeat Quay. But "Chris" and "Dave" will both be on hand as of yore. We would as soon think of Elizabeth politicians not asking for office as we would think of these worthies not taking a hand in the politics of the Keystone Stete.

Councilman-elect B. Frank Coriell seems to be regarded as the incoming solon most likely to be made president of the Common Council for 1899. Mr. Coriell filled the position once before in a perfectly satisfactery manner, and he is able to do so again.

Joseph Chamberlain said in a speech that this Republic is the greatest of civilized states in potential resources. Joseph may be without honor as a prophet in his own country, but we regard him as a wise and truthful man in these parts.

Onions are said to be a preventative of the grip. Such being the case a large demand may be expected for the onions, and in the natural course of events an onion trust will follow.

A dark cloud seems to be obscuring the clear vision of the local G. O. P. organization.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

Somerset Republicans ought to, and doubtless will, settle their affairs without outside assistance, particularly of Democratic newspapers, which seem to have been pressed into service by one or two opponents of Clerk in Chancery Thompson, who very properly treats such slanderous communications with dignified silence. The citizens of Somerset understand that it was VanDoren's unpopularity that defeated him for Sheriff, and prove it by showing that, while in 1897 he received a majority of 173 in Hillsboro township as a candidate for the Assembly, the majority of 48 only was given to him in last November, when he ran for Sheriff, and Hillsboro is Van Doren's home township. Van Doren is egged on in the belief that he was beaten by Thompson simply to make of him an enemy of the party leader, and thus help those who are trying to down Thompson and are making a fizzle of it.—New York Press.

PASSING COMMENT.

Things that Are Not Exactly News but Just as Interesting.

Farmer & Carman, of Burlington, have just turned out the smallest pair of shoes ever made for a human being. The shoes are for the midget daughter of George F. King, of 309 Clarkson street, who is employed in the factory, and personally supervised their making. The tiny lasts on which the shoes were fitted were especially made from measurements by Oscar Redifor, a last manufacturer of Philadelphia, who also made the patterns for the diminutive footwear. The shoes were turned out Saturday afternoon, and when Miss King tried them they went on very easily. In fact, there was about a quarter of an inch to spare in the length. The shoes looked like doll shoes, and were considerably less than two inches long.

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

In the merry character of an Irish colleen Miss Lester gave the audience in Music Hall last night a pleasing performance of "Molly Bawn." The piece is a good old Irish drama, with plenty of the schemes allotted to the villian's part by which the hero is under a dark cloud for some time and in imminent danger of being hanged for the murder of a man for which someone else is responsible. By the true devotion of "Molly," however, things right themselves and justice is dealt out with a lavish hand before the curtain goes down on the end. This evening Miss Lester will appear in the beautiful play of "Fanchion." The only matinee performance will be Saturday.

* * * * *

The little ones have been particularly considered in the construction of the performance to be given at Music Hall next Monday afternoon and evening. Many features will be given at the matinee that will be greatly enjoyed by the children who will be admitted to all parts of the house for 25 cents. George Thatcher's roster contains the names of the most famous stars in vaudeville.

Among the contributers to the Christmas box for the Plainfield boys in the Third New Jersey Volunteers, encamped at Athens, Ga., was City Clerk J. T. MacMurray. He gave two boxes of cigars.

Clifford Wharton, Jr., of Hillside avenue, has returned from California where he and his family has been for several months, and J. W. Jackson, and family, who have been occupying Mr. Wharton's house during their absence, has returned to their own residence on Crescent avenue.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Groton, S. D. "Was taken with a bad cold which settled on my lungs; cough set in and finally terminated in Consumption. Four Doctors gave me up, saying I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Savior, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was advised to get Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. I gave it a trial, took in eight bottles. It has cured me and thank God, I am saved and now a well and healthy woman." Trial bottles free at L. W. Randolph's Drug store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00. Guaranteed or price refunded.

Well, Mr. Merchant-who-thinks-of-advertising, this is only one of the many corners in THE DAILY PRESS—it isn't the best located one, either; we can give you better—and if this attracts your attention in our endeavor to tell you how good advertising will get you a hearing before the purchasing public, doesn't common sense teach you that if you were having people reading your trade story instead of you're reading our argument about it, that it would be better for your business.

NEW YORK LETTER.

Special Correspondence.

It is a long step from the log felled across a stream, as a footway, to such a structure as the Brooklyn bridge. The suspension bridge is a creature of the last few years. Half a century ago there was no railroad bridge anywhere; trains were ferried, or passengers transferred across the great rivers within the memories of men who are by no means patriarchs yet. When the Broklyn bridge was projected it was regarded as visionary. But the problem was solved; now there are longer spans in existence, and it is planned to throw one of 3,000 feet across the Hudson. But before that is done New York will have another Brooklyn bridge, larger in every way than the present one.

The new East river bridge was authorized by the legislature in 1895. Work on it has already so far progressed that the tower foundations on the Manhattan side are completed, and those on the Long Island side will be done in about three months. The anchorages on each side are being built and will be finished next year. The cost of the whole is estimated at $12,000,000. The work exceeds in magnitude anything of the kind ever done.

The following figures will give an idea of its magnitude: Its principal dimensions will be: Length of entire bridge between terminals, 7,200 feet; length of main span, center to center of towers, 1,600 feet; extreme width of bridge, 118 feet; height of masonry in tower foundations above high water, 23 feet; minimum height of bridge above mean high water of spring tides for 200 feet on each side of center span, 135 feet; height of axis of cables at top of towers above high water, 332 feet 8 1-2 inches; two stiffening trusses between towers, distance apart from center to center, 67 feet; width of carriage ways, each 20 feet; width of two foot walks, each 12 feet; width of four trolley car tracks, center to center, 9 3-4 feet; width of two elevated railroad tracks, center to center, 11 feet; grade of approaches, 3 per cent. The towers above the masonry, and the entire suspended structure, except flooring, will be of steel.

The total length of the present Brooklyn bridge is 5,980 feet; its stone towers are 276 feet high, and each weighs about 60,000 tons. Its four cables are each 15 3-4 inches in diameter.

The new bridge towers will be of steel; first, because stone towers would cost about $2,000,000 more than steel and would take five times as long to build. Second, because steel towers can be made as strong and durable as the cables, which limit the life of the bridge. And third, because the bridge will carry six railroad tracks and two highways straight from end to end, and it would be impossible to carry these through stone towers, without converging them, and thus diminishing the use of the tracks.

Dr. Abbott and Plymouth Church.

When Dr. Abbott first stood in Beecher's shoes, eleven years ago, there were many who felt that he must suffer by comparison. Confirmed as pastor, he brought to the famous pulpit a breadth of thought and a wealth of oratory and fervor which maintained Plymouth in its old and proud position as one of the noted Christian temples of the world.

Dr. Abbott, who has been more than ever in the public eye of late, because some of his assertions about the Bible stirred up men of less liberal views is now sixty-three year old. His view of Jonah's adventures with the whale resulted in widespread criticism in January of 1897. He said at that time in a lecture:

"It makes no difference whether a great fish swallowed Jonah or not. No man is better for believing the story and no man is worse for not believing it. Christ used fiction in parables in his discourses. Some people may be disturbed because they cannot bring themselves to believe the whale story. They should not go on their knees and ask to be coerced into believing it. The foolishness is in believing unbelievable things."

Dr. Abbott belongs to one of the best known of New England families. He is the third son of Jacob Abbott, and was born in Rexford, Mass., in 1835. He was a close friend and admirer of Henry Ward Beecher, after meeting him in Plymouth Church.

In Dr. Abbott's opinion the central question for the nineteenth century to solve is that presented by the difference between naturalism and supernaturalism—the question whether Christianity is an evolution from below and Jesus Christ the highest type of human development, or whether it is a gift from above and Jesus Christ a divine manifestation from God. On this question Mr. Beecher was a supernaturalist, and so is Dr. Abbott.

Berlin. Die Reichsregierung beabsichtigt, für eine Kollektivausstellung des deutschen Weinhandels auf der Weltausstellung zu Paris einen Zuschuß von 50,000 Mark zu leisten.—Bedeutende Unterschlagungen wurden in der hiesigen allgemeinen Ortskrankenkasse der gewerblichen Arbeiter und Arbeiterinnen entdeckt. Der schuldige Kassenbeamte ist verhaftet. — Eine deutsche Gesellschaft für Volksbäder soll hier gegründet werden. Der Aufruf, mit dem sie sich an die Oeffentlichkeit wendet, ist von 300 in der Volksbäderfrage thätigen und erfahrenen Männern unterzeichnet. — Dem Parlaments-Berichterstatter Linden, der seit 50 Jahren auf der Journalisten-Tribüne des Stadtverordneten-Sitzungssaales thätig ist, wurden auf Beschluß der Stadtverordnetenversammlung 2000 Mark als Ehrensold aus der Stadthauptkasse überwiesen.—Für den Transport der Gefangenen vom Molkenmarkt nach dem neuen Tegeler Strafgefängniß sind jetzt „grüne" Pferdebahnwagen eingerichtet, die im Innern ähnlich den bekannten Zellenwägen konstruirt sind.

Küstrin. Mit dem dieser Tage zur Disposition gestellten Kommandanten von Küstrin, Generalmajor Lademann, scheidet der letzte derjenigen aktiven Offiziere, welche von der Pike auf gedient haben, aus der preußischen Armee. Lademann gehörte als Unteroffizier des brandenburgischen Pionier-Bataillons Nr. 3 zu den drei Leuten des Bataillons, welche, der Sturmabtheilung des brandenburgischen Füsilier-Regiments Nr. 35 angehörend, durch einen Pulversack die Pallisadenwand im Graben der Schanze 2 der Düppelstellung am 18. April 1864 öffneten.

Provinz Hannover.

Hannover. Hier wurden sechs anarchistischer Umtriebe verdächtige Personen, die aus Berlin, Hamburg und Italien kamen, in Folge hierher gesandter Photographien verhaftet. Man vermuthet, daß ein Plan gegen den Kaiser vorliege, der nächstens nach Hannover und zur Jagd nach Springe kommen will.

Badenstedt. Ein gewaltiges Feuer äscherte vier Siederäume der Saline Egestorff ein. Zwei Kinder des Steueraufsehers Walter konnten nur im letzten Moment vom Erstickungstode gerettet werden. Der Mobiliarschaden ist bedeutend.

Kassel. Der Verkehr auf der kanalisirten Fulda hat in letzter Zeit einen ganz erheblichen Aufschwung genommen, wodurch sich auch schon jetzt die Unzulänglichkeit des am hiesigen Hafen erbauten städtischen Lagerhauses ergab. Die städtischen Behörden haben nunmehr beschlossen, das Lagerhaus durch einen Neubau um ein Drittheil zu vergrößern.

Sigmaringen. Dem tapferen Erzherzog Karl von Oesterreich soll anläßlich der Wiederkehr der für den Erzherzog siegreichen Schlacht bei Ostrach-Hohentengen (am 21. März 1799) auf dem bei Ostrach gelegenen Buchbühl ein Denkmal errichtet werden. Der Plan ist von dem Architekten und Landeskonservator Laur hier angefertigt. Vom Buchbühl aus, der die ganze Umgegend beherrscht, leitete der Erzherzog die Schlacht.

Barth. In der Nähe von Christchurch (Grafschaft Hants, England) trieben Flöße an das Ufer, auf welchem sich vier Seeleute des in der Nähe der Needles gestrandeten, hier beheimatheten Dreimastschooners „Ernst," befanden. Trotz der Strapatzen und Entbehrungen befinden sich die Geretteten wohl. Die Leiche des fünften Seemannes, des Zimmermanns Joseph Kuhl, wurde gleichfalls dort an das Ufer geschwemmt.

Silbersdorf. Hier starb die Altsitzerin Projahn in dem Alter von 104 Jahren, 3 Monaten und 22 Tagen, vielleicht die älteste Frau Pommerns. Geboren war sie in Rehwinkel bei Jakobshagen am 30. Juli 1794. Zwar erblindet und fast taub, war sie doch fast nie krank gewesen. Bis vor einigen Jahren wußte sie noch vieles aus der Napoleonszeit zu erzählen. In den letzten Jahren wurde sie zum Geburtstage mit einem hohen kaiserlichen Gnadengeschenk bedacht.

EXILED TO MOLOKAI.

YOUNG FATHER VICTOR GOES A VOLUNTEER TO LEPER LAND.

As Father Damien's Successor He Will Carry a Few Rays of Brightness to the Isle of Sorrow—Sandwich Island Missionaries.

Six priests and lay brothers of the Congregation of the Sacred Hearts of Jesus and Mary recently arrived at San Francisco on their way to various missionary posts among the islands of the Pacific. The Rev. Father Matthias, provincial and provictor, who is in charge of the party, has labored 28 years among the natives of the Hawaiian Islands.

They are fired by holy enthusiasm to devote their lives to the amelioration of their fellow men. One of them, Brother Bernardin, will go to the wilds of the Marquesas, there to teach and catechise the islanders. Brother Victor will live among the lepers of Molokai. It has been his earnest desire for years to do this, and he goes with a full knowledge of what his end may be. The others are Brother Ulric, deacon and youngest of the party; Brother Aloysius, subdeacon, and Brother Theophilus, subdeacon.

He is worth looking on, this Brother Victor, who is immolating his fresh, comely youth to follow in the devoted steps of Father Damien. A rosy cheeked, merry lad, suggesting a "mother's boy" of 17 despite his 23 summers, looking as if life's cares and sorrows were beyond his ken, he is the very last person you would think of as companion and nurse to the "loathsome leper" of Molokai.

Yet Brother—or, to give him his real title, Deacon Victor—without self consciousness or self pity, without a pang of regret for the glad world he leaves behind him, is taking his joyous innocence to the Isle of Sorrow, content if he can bear the sunshine of human sympathy to those who sit in the shadow of death. Verily, as you look upon him you realize the power of a religion which secures such cheerful, unhesitating self sacrifice.

There are five of these young priests under the sheltering wing of Father Matthias, all bound on a career of island usefulness. Young Father Bernardin, a German who has resided in Spain and picked up a little French during a six months' residence at the "mother house" in Paris, goes to the Marquesas, where, thanks to civilizing influences, he will find few natives left for him to devote himself to.

Three others, Deacon Ulric and Subdeacons Theophilus and Aloysius, accompany Father Limburg to Honolulu, where he has already spent 27 years of usefulness among the affectionate, gentle Kanakas. There are 21 of these missionaries of the Sacred Heart in the Sandwich Islands, and, curiously enough, though their "mother house" is in Paris, their nationality is by no means mainly French. Germany, Belgium and Holland are equally well represented, though the headship of France is upheld by the archbishop, who hails from Brittany.

Sixty-one years ago the fathers first attempted the conversion of the Sandwich Islanders, only to be persecuted and driven forth with ignominy, but in 1840, thanks to the efforts of Captain Laplace, they were enabled to return, establishing themselves on a firm footing, and ever since they have gone on their gentle way, doing what they could for the natives and keeping clear of conflict with the whites of another persuasion.

After all, though, in these days of missionary ease and consideration, our main interest does not lie with the priests laboring in the sunnier Sandwich isles. It centers around that plague stricken spot for which you happy faced lad is bound, and we eagerly evoke Father Limburg's reminiscences of Molokai and Father Damien, be of the athletic frame and unflinching nerve, who won his martyrdom by his determined, sympathetic humanity.

Two priests devote themselves permanently to the work with the assistance of four brothers. A fifth helper claims the special interest of Americans; of their own kith and kin the so called "Brother" Joseph Dutton went to Molokai 12 years ago to nurse Father Damien. There he has remained ever since, held by no vows, for he took that of brotherhood for one year only and never renewed it, but devotion to the ostracized binds his heart to the Isle of Sorrow, and he is noted among all that little band of unselfish workers for his loving self abnegation.

Even in Molokai, however, sunshine slants across some lives. Lepers who marry to share their misery frequently become parents of happy, healthy children, and these, in the case of girls, are forwarded to the receiving hospital at Honolulu, where the good Franciscan sisters train them and send them out into that world from which their parents are exiled. Neither are the young folks left in Molokai, with the hereditary taint upon them, wholly to be pitied. Kindness and thoughtful intelligence do much to brighten their lives, and there are gladsome traditions of the day when Robert Louis Stevenson, Father Damien's brilliant apologist, landed on the Isle of Sorrow, romped with the boys, taught the girls cricket and left memories behind him of a laughing, sympathetic holiday.

He seems to be the only Protestant who has had the nerve or the will to bring sunshine to the Molokai leper. So far, the Catholic alone, priest or nun, has landed on that dreaded isle for unselfish ministrations, and with loving thought of the boyish hearted writer, who played with the Molokai leper, we give one last glance at the boyish faced deacon, Victor, who is also taking youth and joy to gambol on the stricken isle. —San Francisco Call.

It is now settled that Mgr. Chapelle will be delegate apostolic to Porto Rico as well as to Cuba.

POPE'S JUBILEE CHURCH.

Edifice For Which Catholics All Over the World Contribute.

On the occasion of the jubilee of Pope Leo XIII Catholics throughout the world were invited to contribute to the erection of an episcopal jubilee church to be dedicated to San Joachim and built in one of the new quarters of Rome.

The church will stand as a souvenir of the fetes held during the year of the episcopal jubilee of the sovereign pontiff (1893-4). It is also intended to serve as parish church in that quarter of Rome called Prati di Castello, situated a short distance from the Vatican. The church is a basilica with subterranean crypt, covering an area of 2,392 square yards. The nave is separated from the aisles by arcades, copied from those of St. Agnes and St. Laurent, which support, as in those old basilicas, a large gallery running the length of the edifice. The cupola is 197 feet high and is covered with aluminium studded with colored glass stars. The "ostensoir" and lions are of bronze, electric light being fixed in the former for use on feast days. The foundations had to be carried to a depth of 50 feet instead of 26 as originally intended. The crypt is capable of holding 3,000 people. The cupola was added in order to give to the edifice the monumental character considered necessary to an international offering to Leo XIII. Consequently the ultimate cost, according to the latest estimate, is expected to exceed a million francs, or nearly double the first estimate.

Marble tablets placed in the open portico will bear the names of the reigning families, cardinals and bishops who contributed to the building. The czar recently sent some beautiful plaques of lapis lazuli and malachite, copied from those placed by Emperor Nicholas in the basilica of St. Paul, Moscow. The late President Carnot presented on behalf of the French nation two enormous blue Sevres vases, furnished with bronze girandoles, each to hold 16 lights.—St. James Budget.

POOR MEN'S PALACES.

Taverns For Catholic Workmen In the Principal Belgian Cities.

The workingmen's hostelries now in process of organization in the principal Belgian centers of population, under the auspices of the Chaplains of Labor, are described as literally poor men's palaces. That of St. Anthony, just opened at Marchienne-au-Pont, has on the ground floor a spacious hall with a stage opening on one side of a restaurant and on the other off a pretty chapel. The dining rooms look out on a spacious courtyard and garden with various games and a kiosk for a band. A laundry with all the latest appliances, the building containing the electrical machinery and the house inhabited by the chaplains who manage the institution are attached to the same building. The main structure consists of three floors containing the men's sleeping rooms, each furnished with a bed, a press, a table and some chairs, all opening on airy corridors. The center of each floor is occupied by a sort of general dressing room, with looking glasses and water taps all around the walls, while baths can be had in the basement, and all is lit by electric light.

Those who wish to board as well as lodge can have food, washing and the mending of their linen for 22 francs a fortnight, 9s. 2d. a week. For breakfast they get coffee and bread and butter ad libitum, and for the midday meal one plate of meat, half a litre of beer and bread and vegetables at discretion. Coal miners who cannot go home to dinner get cold provisions to take with them; at 4 o'clock coffee and bread and butter again, and at supper vegetables, sometimes meat and beer in abundance. For evening entertainments there are billiards, reading or music lessons for those who join the band. In order to board it is not necessary to lodge in the institution, and the restaurant is open to any workman who wants a single glass of beer.—Tablet.

Charity Is the Breath of God.

Charity is the very breath of God. Charity gave birth to Jesus and nerved his soul to endure the anguish that is winning human redemption and shaping human civilization. Charity touches each dawn and sunset with roseate and radiant glory. Charity makes all human duty more beautiful than morning, though said duty be lonelier than death, and has at first only a scaffold for its reward. Charity so molds the hearts of men and nations that the victories of its own greatest heroes are secured. Charity is slowly turning all bells of hate and crime and darkness into eternal homes of joy. Charity is the only force in all the infinite universe that does not exhaust itself by service and action, but increases its power in the precise measure of the purity and energy with which it is exercised. Let us seek it. Let us live it and so make our lives divine. —Boston Bouquet.

In Ways That We Know Not.

I sometimes think God lets our sorrows gather
Till joy is hidden by pain's heavy cloud,
That in the darkness we may find "Our Father"—
We need him so when heart and head are bowed.

I sometimes think he lets friends fail and falter,
To show us earthly props are insecure.
The broken hearts we lay upon his altar
Of healing and of solace may be sure.

I sometimes think he strews our path with roses,
And when we find that each one hides a thorn
He takes us by the hand and gently shows us
That not to live to self has man been born.

I sometimes think when he seems all unheeding,
Turning deaf ears unto our wild request,
In silent pity his great heart is bleeding
Because to grant us it were not the best.

I always think in his divine compassion
No one will perish from his loving hands.
Knowing our weakness and the strength of passion,
He pities us because he understands.
—M. Hedderwick Browne in Good Words.

SEVEN TRAMPS RUN DOWN.

Two Killed—Five Fled, Leaving Their Hats Behind.

An express train on the Pennsylvania Railroad early yesterday morning ran into seven tramps walking on the elevated structure at Elizabeth. One of the hoboes was hurled thirty feet into Pearl street and killed. Another was run over. His body was picked up by a trackwalker.

The other tramps had their hats blown off by the flyer and fled without them. It is not known whether any one of them was injured. There was nothing on either of the bodies to establish identity.

DOG HELPS WRITE A BOOK.

Archos Valuable in Finding Nests Built on or Near the Ground.

Dr. N. E. Jones, in "The Squirrel Hunters of Ohio," tells a story of Archos, a good little cocker-spaniel, who followed him and worked with him for eight summers in field and forest. To the industry and sagacity of this little creature is due no small part of the success of a work entitled "Illustrations of the Nests and Eggs of Birds of Ohio."

Many of the small, rare birds build on or near the ground, in thick cover, and these nests Archos was especially valuable in finding. He knew the object of pursuit quite as well as his master, and would stand firmly beside him, pointing, until his master could attend to the case.

He evidently knew the meaning of almost all the words used in ordinary conversation, and could transact business for which an order had been given with admirable accuracy.

Out one day quail shooting with a friend, Mr. Jones sat down in a shady corner to rest. The little dog was there, panting with heat and evidently enjoying the interval quite as much as his master. Suddenly the friend's voice came from the other side of a large field:

"Send Archos over here. I have a dead bird and my dog can't find it."

Archos paid no attention, but laid still, taking his well-earned rest.

"Archos!" said his master in a conversational tone. Archos ceased panting and fixed his great dark eyes on the speaker.

"Ed has lost a dead bird. He can't find it. You go out there and get it."

Off the little fellow started through the tall ragweed which covered the field, and quite unknown to the other man over there, went to work. He scented the dead bird, brought it back and laid it at his master's feet, wagging his tail and smiling, as much as to say:

"I'd like to tell you how nicely that was done, but I can't talk—or I dare not."

The Points of the Compass.

"Do you know your orders, sentinel?" was asked of a not over-bright Irish soldier on guard duty.

"Yis, sor," was the reply.

"Know the points of the compass?" continued the officer.

"Yis, sor."

"If you face the rising sun your left hand would be on the north of you and your right hand to the south of you. What would be behind you?"

"Me knapsack, sor," sententiously answered the soldier.—Golden Days.

Mistress: "Why don't you ring the dinner-bell, Bridget?" Bridget: "I couldn't foind any, ma'am." Mistress: "Why, it is on the hall table!" Bridget: "Och, an' is it that one it is! An' yer's'lf tould me last night as that was the breakfast bell!"

COMMUTERS WANT AN EARLY MAIL.

They are up in Arms Over the Present Delivery Service.

To The Editor of The Daily Press:—I want to complain about the wretched mail service which the present administration is giving us.

Formerly the first delivery in the residence section of the city was made at 8 o'clock. In this way it was possible for many commuters to get their letters before going to New York.

About two months ago, however, the service was reduced from three deliveries daily, to two, and the first one was delayed until 9:30. A worse arrangement could hardly be made. Most of the letter-receiving men in the Second and Third wards do business in New York. Many of the women go there, too. All these must now wait for their mail until evening, when it may be too late to act on it, or remain at home until 9:30.

There is a very unfair arrangement. I know that I reflect the opinions of many people when I say that if we can have only two deliveries a day we ought to have the first one completed in the commuting portion of the city before 8:15. To a resident business man a delay of half an hour is of little consequence; to a commuter it means a whole day. A.

Jackson, Miss., Dec. 22.—Governor McLaurin has pardoned Will Purvis, the famous Marion county white capper, who was once unsuccessfully hanged in this state for the murder of a fellow white capper.

Purvis's neck was not broken in his fall from the scaffold and owing to the threatened attitude of the crowd about the jail, the sheriff did not make a second attempt to execute his prisoner.

Purvis was later rescued by the mob and hidden away for some time, but finally gave himself up to the authorities and his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

AWFUL DISCLOSURE AT THE PARK CLUB.

Faithful Servant Left Friendless and Forgotten.

SUFFERING FROM THE GRIP.

LACK OF PROTECTION EXPOSES HIM TO MANY DANGERS.

President B. Arrowsmith Hegeman, Jr., Learned the Facts While Inspecting Grounds—Senator Reed Was Appealed to for Legislative Aid—Board of Governors Are Considering the Case.

As every president should, it is the custom of Former Mayor B. Arrowsmith Hegeman, Jr., now president of the Park Club, to frequently inspect the property of the club to see that it is all there. Last Tuesday, the worthy President Hegeman waded out in the fog to examine the place. As he passed the bronze figure that stands guard on the lawn in the rear of the clubhouse, he noticed that the statue trembled as with the ague.

"What's the matter?" inquired Mr. Hegeman, solicitously.

"Only the grip. That's all," returned the figure as he lifted his shield a little higher to keep off the moisture. "Merely in the fashion. But there's no telling what may happen if the club doesn't furnish sufficient protection for me. I've twinges of rheumatism already and typhoid is a certainty if there isn't something done to protect me from these wintry blasts."

Just then President Hegeman spied the "Tall Sycamore of Somerset" looming up through the fog and signalled to him to approach.

"There's Steward Israel Jones," continued the statue after saluting Senator Reed with the tattered remains of his sword. "He has a brand new uniform while I am left out here to catch my death in these draughts."

"Can't you cancell them?" suggested Mr. Hegeman.

The statue gave him a metallic look and then turned to the Senator.

"Look here, Senator. Can't you get a measure through the Legislature for me. You provided blue envelopes for the ballots, why can't you provide something in which to envelop me? The color don't make much difference."

"You must remember that the Park Club isn't the Legislature or Somerset county either," interrupted President Hegeman.

"I'll bring the case before the board of governors," continued that dignitary, and so they departed.

The little talk bore fruit, however, and now President Hegeman is agitating the question of properly robing the statute for the winter. The question is one of the most important that the board of governors has had to consider for some time. A number of visits have been made to various clothing establishments in New York, but nothing satisfactory has yet been found. It is now proposed to have the garment for Christmas and make it a gift to the poor little bronze statue on the lawn who only has his shield and the belt of his sword to keep him warm these days.

PASSED EXAMINATIONS.

Daniel Main Has Also Been Discharged From Hospital Corps.

Daniel Main, of Central avenue, who is studying medicine in Philadelphia at the Hahnemann College, has been honorably discharged from the Hospital Corps of the United States, where he served through the war. His name was kept on the college roll and he used his spare time to keep up in his studies as best he could. Last week he took several of his examinations and successfully passed them.

Where Quality and Low Prices Prevail.

If you are thinking of surprising your little boys, your friends or relatives with a nice suit of clothes, good overcoat or trouses or in fact anything in the line of gents furnishings, go to the New York Clothing Company, next door to the Music Hall, and you can buy there at prices to suit the slimest person. This store has certainly a reputation, second to none, for quality and low prices. Their great Christmas sale begins Saturday, Dec. 24th, 1898, and will last until 12 o'clock at night.

SHED TEARS IN COURT.

JUSTICE AND CULPRITS WERE BOTH DEEPLY TOUCHED.

Augustus Nier and Willie Howe Admitted in Court That They Cut Down Trees on Memorial Chapel Property.

Augustus Nier and Willie Howe, the two youngsters who were arrested Wednesday evening on a charge made by George Winans, of Washingtonville, for cutting down Christmas trees on the property surrounding the Mary E. Wilson Memorial chapel, were arraigned yesterday afternoon before Justice Mattison. The scene was one of the most pathetic in the history of the court. There were more teas shed than usual. Justice Mattison read the charge to the young lads and as he did so tears came to his eyes and his voice filled up.

The plea of guilty was told in a pathetic manner, and amid sobs and tears by the culprits. This attitude on the part of the boys found a tender spot in the heart of the justice. While personally he would have preferred to discharge the boys, but was compelled to follow the law. He therefore held them in $50 bonds each to appear before the next Grand Jury. This decision brought forth more tears. But when the boys saw that they were to be furnished with bail their faces brightened.

A number of other vocal selections were given by the scholars of the upper grades. This programme was in charge of Miss Sydenham.

In the primary department the following programme was given in an enjoyable manner: Recitations, Eva Higgins, Dorothy James, Mary Cain, Fred Emmons, Edwin Springer, Reba Kline, Marguerite Edwards, Andrew Carney, Ethel Reynolds, Christian Mobus, Izetta Hartfelder, Edith Ga-Nun, Grace Smalley, Nellie Ballentine, Elvira Hoerster, Sarah Pearson, Alice Johnson, Henry Haurand, Charles Feller, Alice Mason, Bessie Reynolds, Agnes Moffett, Leah Wightman, Willie Morton, Elsie Brose, Bertha Mantz, Ruth Wheeler, Dorrance Smith, Viola Higgins, David Bush. Interspersing the above the following Christmas music was rendered by the department: "Merry Christmas," "Jingle Bells," "Skating Song," "Jolly Old Saint Nick," "Santa Claus," "Christmas Echoes," Christmas Night," and "Hush, My Babe." The above programme was in charge of Miss Petrie, and Charles Lewis trained the scholars in the rendition of the music.

Moses D. Brown's Son Dying.

Word was received this morning from Alliance, Nebraska, that Jeremiah D. Brown, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Moses D. Brown, is dying of a severe form of catarrh, and Mr. Brown's brother Stephen Brown, of Dunellen, has been sent for. Mr. Brown was about 40 years of age, and was born in this city. He has a wife and six children. During the past two years he has been traveling to various places in hopes that he would be cured of his disease. His condition is such that he cannot live. Mrs. Arthur Pearson, of Clinton avenue, is a sister to Mr. Brown.

Charged With Malicious Mischief.

Mrs. Julia Siracker and Mrs. Annie Doyle live in a double house at 532 West Fifth street. They have not been real friendly for some time, but open hostility was not declared until two weeks ago, when Annie Doyle, in a rage, took a hammer and demolished a lock, so Mrs. Siracker says. Now Mrs. Siracker charges Mrs. Doyle with breaking this nice new lock as a piece of malicious mischief, and this morning Mrs. Doyle was arrested on a warrant issued from Justice Mosher's court, and will be given a hearing this afternoon.

WANT A SCHOOL PAPER.

ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN IN BOROUGH SCHOOL TO RAISE FUNDS.

Three Hundred People Present to Enjoy the Affair—Musical and Literary Programme Under Teachers' Direction.

Last evening in the Borough Public High School an entertainment was given by the scholars under the direction of Miss Petrie and Miss Crowther, teachers in the school. The entertainment was given for the purpose of raising funds to resume the publication of the school paper, which is now known as the High School Sun, and which was formerly The Autocrat. The success of the affair can be imagined when it is known that nearly 300 people were present and about $30 was realized as profit.

The programme was introduced with the appearance of "The Ruggles Family," from the Bird's Christmas Carol. Miss Clara VanFleet assumed the part of the old woman. Her children consisted of Frank Curtis, Anna Bodine, Grace Powell, Mabel Stevens, Leslie Hallock, DeWitt Brokaw, Charles Windham, Belle Mantz and Lottie Benner.

This family appeared behind a white screen and gave representations while the recitative part was given by Miss Rita Pond.

Following the above there was a violin solo by George Smith, accompanied on the piano by Bert Simpson. The next number was a recitation by Miss Dwight entitled "The Minstrel." The vocal selection "The Ballard and the Oysterman," was given by Arthur Smith, who was the oysterman. Miss Anna Bodine was the fisher maiden, while DeWitt Brokaw was the fisherman.

A vocal selection for a trio entitled "A Wondrous Story," was given by Miss Bessie Martin, Emma LaBoyteaux and Bessie Milne. Miss VanFleet was the accompanist. The next number was a vocal solo by Miss Agnes LaBoyteaux, accompanied by Geo. Smith on the violin, and Miss VanFleet on the piano.

The closing number was entitled "The Charge of the Light Brigade." The story was read by Miss Rita Pond, while those who acted the part of the brigade included Arthur Smith, Charles Bryan, George Smith, Howard George, Benjamin Schuck and William McCullough. They were all attired in gowns of white and depicted the actions of the light brigade in a realistic manner.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORK.

Meeting of Afro-American Union at Mt. Olive Baptist Church.

The quarterly meeting of the Afro-American Sunday-school Union of New Jersey was held all day yesterday in the Mt. Olive Baptist church. Morning, afternoon and evening sessions were held, and lunch was provided for the delegates by the ladies of the church. The sessions were slimly attended, but those who did attend were greatly benefited. Delegates were supposed to be present from all over the State, and several did arrive from Long Branch, Bedbank, Princeton, Roselle and Cranford.

During the morning session Rev. Mr. Vaughn, of Roselle, preached a sermon on Sunday-school work which was profitable to all who heard him. Mrs. P. H. Brown, of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, welcomed the delegates present in a few words, and the secretary of the union, H. C. Hewbett, of Cranford, made the response. The evening session was devoted to a service of songs and recitations and ended with a social hour.

Actors Want Their Pay.

Justice Moffett yesterday issued attachments against the Minnier Lester Company, which has been running at Music Hall all this week, for Emil A. Pifer, Alvan T. Beverage and William N. Huelle. Pifer's claim is the largest, and is for $70; Beverge's $34, and Huelle's $17.15. All three are members of the company, and claim that the money is salary due them. The first two attachments were served yesterdy by Constable Rockafellow, and an effort was made by Pope & Runyon, who represent the creditors, to prevent the play going on last night, but they were not successful, as the company adjusted matter so that no action could be taken until today.

Not Enough There.

The Sunday-school convention that was to have been held at the Mt. Olive Baptist church yesterday was not held on account of the few in attendance. No doubt the weather kept many away. A future date for the convention will be set later.

BACK TO THREE MAIL DELIVERY SERVICE.

Old Carrier Schedule to be Resumed by the Postmaster.

MAJORITY SEEM TO WANT IT.

INSPECTOR FROM HEADQUARTERS HAS LOOKED OVER THE GROUND.

The Present Arrangement Was Inaugurated Only After Many Prominent People Had Petitioned for It—Now They Fail to Come to the Support of the Postmaster in the Matter.

After a fair trial of two deliveries a day in the local postoffice Postmaster Bird stated to a Press reporter this morning that after the first of January the old schedule of three deliveries a day would be returned to, as he was convinced that the majority of the people were in favor of the old system of delivery.

Mr. Bird has been freely importuned of late by those desiring a return to the three deliveries and as a result he has given considerable attention to the matter. An inspector from headquarters has also been here within the last few days and looked over the ground and has agreed that a return to the three deliveries will be best. Mr. Bird said that he expected to get orders from Washington to make the change soon after the Christmas rush was over.

A good deal of misapprehension exists as to the Postmaster's attitude in reference to the mail delivery.

"It was only after being urged by some of the most prominent citizens in town," said Mr. Bird today in talking to a Press reporter, "that the two-delivery system was inaugurated after I assumed office. The strange part of it, however, is that not one of the men who advocated the abolition of early morning delivery have come forward to offer a word in its favor now that it is being criticised by others. I am in the office to do as the majority of the people want me to do, and so far as I can tell it seems to be the sentiment of the majority for a three-delivery service, and so that is what we will get after the first of January."

A good many people seem to think that Postmaster Bird is responsible for the change in the carrier service. This is not so. His orders come direct from Washington.

THE COUNTY BOULEVARD.

REPORT OF COMMISSION THAT CONDEMNED NECESSARY LAND.

Nineteen Cases Where the County Must Pay Awards to Property Owners—Amount County Must Pay is $17,367.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Elizabeth, Dec. 23—The Commission appointed to condemn the lands along Westfield avenue in this city, and in Union township, which are to be used to widen the avenue, on which John Kean intends to build a trolley line between Elizabeth and Plainfield, filed their report yesterday.

The Commission, besides condemning the several tracts of land, fixed awards which the county is to pay the owners of the tracts. There were nineteen of these tracts or pieces of land, and the awards on the whole are satisfactory to the county, and are said to be somewhat below the cost estimated in the report presented to the Board of Freeholders by experts.

In its report the Commission states that it gave public hearings to the owners of property condemned, and besides considering the damages that they would sustain, also took into account the benefits that will accrue to them by the widening of Westfield avenue from 60 to 100 feet.

The report states that in cases where buildings were situated on the property taken the cost of moving such buildings was included in the estimate of damages. The total amount of the awards is $17,367. The estimate was $18,500.

WAS NINE YEARS OLD.

CENTRAL LODGE A. O. U. W. CELEBRATED ANNIVERSARY.

A Record Breaking Increase—Eighty-five New Members Joined the Order—Grand Officers Present—The Committee.

Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W. celebrated its ninth anniversarg last evening and incidentally made a substantial increase to its membership. It was made a gala occasion of the year and the grand officers of the organization came to attend it.

The principal part of the meeting last evening was the initiation of the new members. There have been 94 propositions received and favorably acted upon. Of these 85 put in an appearance and were initiated. Patrolman Nicholas Myers and George C. Crane all were selected to go through the ceremony while the rest merely witnessed it. Among the candidates was M. F. Elderton, of The News staff. It is the largest increase at one meeting on record in New Jersey.

The grand officers of the State present were Grand Master Workman Julius Stahl, of Trenton; Grand Foreman McCollough, of Swedesboro; Grand Overseer Lambert, of Newark; Grand Recorder Lippincott, of Camden; Grand Receiver Test, of Camden; Grand Medical Examiner Barwis, of Trenton; Grand Inside Watchman Nash, of Plainfield; Past Grand Master Workman Deifendorf, of Newark.

After remarks by the grand officers a collation was served. The committee in charge consisted of N. C. Mague, C. H. Rogers and L. J. Spicer. The good time continued until 1 o'clock this morning. A pledge was given to repeat the dose of new members at the first meeting in February.

Central Lodge was instituted the evening of December 26th, 1889, with 48 charter members by then Grand Master Workman Deifendorf. In 1892 13 members left the lodge and formed Columbia Lodge. There are now 355 Workmen in Plainfield, of which 225 belong to Central. During the nine years there have been only thirteen deaths in both lodges and $26,000 has been received from the Grand Lodge by the beneficiaries. During the time the two lodges have only paid $18,000 into the Grand Lodge.

DEATH OF AN AGED FRIEND.

Sarah Line Passed Away Quietly at Her Home Last Night.

Sarah Line, aged 87 years, widow of the late Isaac Line, died last evening at her home, 441 Orchard place, after a short illness with neuralgia of the heart. She was a daughter of the late Ephriam Vail, of Greenbrook. She was born at Greenbrook on the old farm and lived there for over eighty years. She was a member of the Friends meeting-house and was a faithful attendant at the meeting-house on Watchung avenue for many years. During the past few years her advanced age would not permit her to go out very much. Up to the last her mind was bright and she was blessed by receiving her second eyesight. Of the immediate family there is one living and that is Abram Vail, of East Third street, who is a brother of the deceased.

The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon next at 2:30 o'clock from the Friends' meeting-house on Watchung avenue.

ANOTHER INDUSTRY IN PROSPECT.

Freedman Brothers, Cloak Manufacturers, May Locate a Branch Here.

Freedman Brothers, the well-known cloak makers, of New York, have visited this city in the prospect of establishing a branch of their business. The senior member and his son were in town a few days ago at the solicitation of Albert Lederer, son of the dry goods merchant. They were quite favorably impressed with the place. They do not think that there would be any trouble in locating a branch here. Their object in establishing a branch out of New York city is that they have much trouble with strikes.

They now employ 1,500 expert cloak makers and they would divide their help if a branch is established. The matter is now under advisement and there are strong possibilities that the firm will decide to start a branch in Plainfield.

PATTERN MAKERS STRIKE

ONE TOO MANY APPRENTICES IN LOVE'S WALLPASER FACTORY.

Members of the Union Declined to Submit This and Went on a Strike at 9 o'Clock—The Strikers Expect to Win.

As the clock struck 9 this morning four pattern makers employed in Edward Love's factory, corner of Vorth and Watchung avenues, threw down their tools and quit work. They were obeying one of the orders of the Pattern Makers' Union and had struck. It was no difference between employer and employes regarding wages that brought about this action, for the trouble arose over the fifteen-old-son of Charles Valentine, of West Second street.

There are ten men employed in the factory at present. According to a rule of the union, no shop can number among its employees more than one apprentice for every five men. Mr. Love's shop, therefore, by the laws of the union, can have two apprentices and no more.

Of the two apprentices, one of them will complete his five years' apprenticeship in July. Until then, when he becomes a journeyman, the union men say Valentine must not enter the shop as an apprentice.

One of the strikers was seen this noon at his home by a Press reporter. He evinced considerable satisfaction at the way things had gone, and said that as Mr. Love has a lot of work on hand, with orders coming in every day, he didn't anticipate a long strike. But as the union pays their wages while they are out, the men do not care how long the strike lasts.

It is said by the strikers that Mr. Love will find it impossible to fill their places with non-union men, as there are none hereabouts.

Mr. Love, when seen by a reporter stated that the alleged apprentice was taken in the shop as an errand boy, and was acting in that capacity. He characterized the four strikers as a "lot of anarchists," and said that he doesn't want them around, so it does not look like such easy sailing for the strikers after all.

WILL REQUIRE A BIG JAIL.

Seven Hundred Delinquent Taxpayers in the Borough.

Justice Crosley, of the borough, has returned to Collector George F. Brown the warrant for the collection of delinquent taxes, remaining unpaid Dec. 20th, and Mr. Brown will now follow the law in the collection of this money. All persons who do not pay their poll or personal tax will be arrested and placed in jail until they do. There are about 700 names on the delinquent list, and Mr. Brown will begin his unpleasant task in about ten days. This action is according to a State law and is enforced at the instigation of the Mayor and Council and borough counsel.

Mr. Brown has collected up to Dec. 21st $40,190 of 1898 taxes out of a possible $82,000, which was the levy made. When he took the office there was about $13,000 of 1897 taxes left unpaid, and Mr. Brown has been working hard to reduce that amount.

CHRISTMAS WAS OBSERVED IN SCHOOLS

Exercises Held Throughout the City Today.

MANY ATTENDED THEM.

CANTATAS GIVEN AT THE IRVING AND BRYANT SCHOOLS.

Only Class Exercises at the Lincoln and Whittier Schools—Exercises at the Bryant School Morning and Afternoon—At Franklin School Programme This Afternoon—Other Exercises

Today is being observed throughout all the city public schools as the occasion for the special Christmas exercises. For nearly a month past the children have been preparing their parts and today will sing, recite and give little cantatas for the benefit of their admiring parents and friends. In some cases the exercises were held in the morning, others will take place this afternoon.

Owing to the absence on account of illness of the principal, Miss Bullock, for the week preceding today, the exercises at the Franklin school this afternoon were not as elaborate as they otherwise would have been. The exercises were held at 2 o'clock and were attended by a number of the friends of the school. The programme was as follows:

Processional; "In Remembrance," School; "Twinkling Little Stars," Miss Sutphen and Miss Barber; "A Song for Christmas," School; "The Earth Lay Like a Little Child," "Carol, Oh Carol," children from Miss Strong's class; "The Message of Peace," School; "Hail! the Lord of Glory," "Snow flakes," "Santa Claus is Coming," girls from Miss Gilbert's class; "Behold! in Matchless Splendor," Master Staats; "Beautiful Story," School; "Tell Us, Ye Shepherds," chorus of girls; "A Lullaby," Miss Carmon; "Message of the Bells," School; "O, Wond'rous Star," chorus of girls; "Why Do We Sing?" School.

At the Whittier and Lincoln Schools there were no united exercises, each class holding special exercises of its own. Some of them were quite elaborate, however.

At the Washington School, an elaborate progamme was given at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon which was listened to by a large audience. The programme was as follows:

Carol, "A Song for Christmas," school; carol, "In Remembrance," school; "Christmas Stockings," by Misses Nancy VanTeller, Allene Carver, Rose Haggerty and Walter Pound, Howard Firstbrook and Lewis Rothberg; carol, "Beautiful Story," school; "The Three Pets," Misses Laura Baker, Jennie Root and Cornelia Lonnsbury; piano solo, Morris Brokaw; "Shoe or Stocking?" NO FAITH CURE

ABOUT STUART'S DYSPEPSIA TABLETS.

They Cure Stomach Troubles and Indigestion Anyway, Whether You Have Faith in Them or Not.

Mere faith will not digest your food for you, will not give you an appetite, will not increase your flesh and strengthen your nerves and heart, but Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do these things, because they are composed of the elements of digestion; they contain the juices, acids and peptones necessary to the digestion and assimilation of all wholesome food.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest food if placed in a jar or bottle in water heated to 98 degrees, and they will do it much more effectively when taken into the stomach after meals, whether you have faith that they will or not.

They invigorate the stomach, make pure blood and strong nerves, in the only way that nature can do it, and that is, from plenty of wholesome food well digested. It is not what we eat, but what we digest that does us good.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are sold by nearly all druggists at 50 cents for full sized package, or by mail from the F. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich.

CORBIN TELLS HIS TALE

He Gives the Commission Information About Camp Sites.

THE WAR WAS A SURPRISE

Not Seriously Contemplated Until Congress Declared War. Refrigerated Beef Not an Experiment. Army Was Well Equipped and Fed.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—Adjutant General Corbin before the war investigating commission yesterday was questioned rigidly as to the selection of Camp Alger, Va.

He testified that the removal of the camp was dictated by the secretary of war; its original establishment was recommended by Captain Seaburn of the staff of General Miles.

General Corbin had said it could not be a good camp ground, as there was not sufficient range for rifle practice. He understood from the secretary of war that General Miles had something to do with the selection.

He was not certain of Captain Seaburn's exact status, but understood he was sent by General Miles to inspect the camp site.

"Did General Miles protest against or do anything against the selection of the camp?" he was asked.

"Not to my knowledge," was the answer.

Questioned as to Camp Wikoff, General Corbin denied that the contract with the Long Island Railroad gave it exclusive control.

He said that the camp at Tampa was never designed for anything but a point of embarkation; the first complaint he heard from Camp Thomas, Chickamauga, was in the press.

Asked when he first seriously apprehended there would be hostilities, General Corbin said he might say he did not seriously contemplate war until it was a fact, for he had hoped to the last moment it would be averted. There never was an army, he said, better equipped, better clothed, better fed or with a better morale than our regular army at that time.

He said prior to the war there had been no complaints of refrigerated or canned beef, and that they were used by the armies of the world and in commerce. It was no new experiment.

"Seriously speaking," said General Corbin, "I do not think the war department contemplated war until it was declared by Congress and appropriations were available. Of course the possibilities were thought of, but there were no general preparations except so far as the department was able to meet the possibilities that confronted it."

Colonel Denby, who conducted the examination, suggested to General Corbin that he observed the latter was cautious and reticent and explained:

"It is not our object to criticise strategy. That is not our business. The strategy of the war may have been right and may have been wrong. But our object is to determine whether the war department acted efficiently."

General Corbin said that when General Shafter's expedition started it took all the transports it was possible to obtain, but the supply was not equal to the demand. It had been planned to carry about twenty-five thousand troops at that time, instead of the seventeen thousand taken.

He referred to the letter of General Miles, dated June 24, laying out the plan of campaign of the war and said it was not approved.

Perils of Gold Hunters.

Victoria, B. C., Dec. 23.—The Rosalie, which has arrived here from Skaguay, reports the wreck of a sloop which left Wrangel two weeks ago for Skaguay with a party of twelve bound for Atlin.

The sloop was found bottom up by Indians, and it is feared that all on board have been lost.

Frederick Smith of Victoria, just out from Atlin, brings news of two more rich gold bearing creeks discovered. The new finds have been named Moose and Goose creeks.

Smith had both hands frozen and nearly lost his life on the way out.

News is brought of the wreck of the schooner Ohio of Victoria. No lives were lost.

Escaped Serious Wreck.

Austin, Tex., Dec. 23.—The northbound passenger train on the International and Great Northern Railroad by chance escaped a serious wreck forty miles below here Wednesday night. Some one had tied a rail securely across the track. A few miles before reaching the spot, a bird, blinded by the headlight, flew against the glass, breaking it and extinguished the light. This necessitated running slowly to the next station.

The train, proceeding at reduced speed, struck the obstruction, tearing up the track and damaging the front of the engine, but no one was injured.

Trip of the Oregon and Iowa.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 23.—The United States collier Aberanda, which accompanied the battleships Oregon and Iowa as far as Bahia, Brazil, has arrived in Hampton Roads.

The Aberanda reports an enthusiastic reception to the American vessels at the Brazilian port.

All hands were well when the Oregon and Iowa started for Rio de Janeiro.

Great Dock for Havana.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 23.—The Drake and Stratton Company of this city has received a contract from the United States government for the construction of a great dock at Havana, and a short railroad to Morro Castle, costing about $500,000.

The company has already dispatched five hundred laborers and two ship loads of machinery to the island.

The Steamer Andes Ashore.

Kingston, Jamaica, Dec. 23.—The Atlas line steamer Andes, bound from this port for New York, went ashore on Plumb Point reef at two o'clock yesterday morning.

Tugs and lighters are endeavoring to float her.

STAMPS FRAUDULENTLY USED.

Scheme to Rob the Government Discovered.

New York, Dec. 23.—Colonel Williams, chief of the internal revenue inspectors' office, set on foot yesterday an investigation to get at the bottom of a fraudulent practice by which the government has been robbed of revenue receipts.

Colonel Williams is satisfied that by the washing of cancellation marks and by other fraudulent methods documentary stamps, such as are used by brokers, brewers and distillers, have been sold for several weeks on Wall street and in other parts of the down town business district at a large discount.

He believes, from certain facts that his deputies have learned this week, that there is collusion in the fraud.

The existence of the fraud was first suspected by Deputy Thompson two months ago. He noticed that the messenger boys who came to the bucket shops and brokers' offices in and about Wall street seemed well supplied with money.

The same circumstance was also commented on by many of the brokers.

A falling off in revenue receipts which was noticeable about this time made Thompson suspicious, and he connected the two facts.

The case worked itself out by degrees, and Wednesday one of the messenger boys was taken into custody by Colonel Williams's order.

The boy at first strongly denied all wrongdoing but finally broke down and confessed.

He told the officers of the revenue department that he and other boys had kept the stamps given them by brokers for sales tickets, and had substituted for them cancelled stamps which had been used on other sales tickets.

The day of the month is not necessarily included in the cancellation marks, and by regumming the old stamps they could be easily used.

They were sold at discounts of from twenty-five to fifty per cent.

Massachusetts Struck Sunken Barge.

Brooklyn, Dec. 23.—At ten o'clock yesterday morning the big timber dry dock No. 3, in the navy yard, had been pumped dry, and the battleship Massachusetts lay high and dry in the cradle which had been built under her by the divers, thus exposing wounds received along her keel in the accident off Governor's island on December 10.

As soon as the water was out of the dock a gang of men from the construction department went down and put in a double row of shorings under her bilges, and a second gang at once commenced work on the repairs.

The examination of the damages revealed that the vessel did not strike on Diamond Reef and that she probably went over at an unusually low tide a barge loaded with pig iron that was sunk at the spot several years ago and which never had been raised, because of the depth of water at that point, overwhich heavy draught vessels rarely passed except at high tide.

It had been admitted in testimony before the court of inquiry that the Massachusetts did not strike on Diamond Reef, and from the wounds in her bottom a number of long pieces of splintered wood were taken.

This would indicate the presence of the barge in a very dangerous position in the channel.

New York Wants New Ship Channel.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—A large delegation representing New York business interests appeared before the House committee on Rivers and Harbors yesterday to urge the immediate deepening and widening of the east channel as the best approach for ocean liners across the lower bay to the Narrows of New York harbor.

Mr. Ambrose asked that three millions be expended in New York harbor under the continuous contract system, and that two hundred and fifty thousand dollars of this be expended at once.

The committee seemed disposed to compromise on a channel 1,500 feet wide and 35 feet in depth.

Nineteen Days on Arctic Island.

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 23.—Jack Schmidt, the Skagway hermit, hunter and philosopher, has had a Robinson Cruso experience which seldom occurs in real life.

For nineteen days he managed to exist on rocky Chilkat island, where he had been washed up by the storm that so nearly destroyed the steamer Utopia and sent the Detroit to the bottom.

A few birds and a land otter were his only provisions.

He was rescued when half dead by the little steamer City of Olympia, and on his recovery became the mate of the boat that saved him.

Grip Lets Up in New York.

New York, Dec. 23.—The grip epidemic, which has held New York, as well as all the Atlantic seaboard, in its grasp for the past ten days, has been checked.

The prompt measures taken by the Health Department, President Murphy says, have given the people warning of the danger, and now that the character of the malady is better understood, people are taking better care of themselves.

The result is that there are fewer new cases and those who have been its victims are recovering.

Hallen Found Guilty.

New York, Dec. 23.—James D. Hallen, the lawyer whose trial for forgery has attracted so much attention, mainly because the prisoner acted as his own counsel, was found guilty by the jury last night. They were out two hours.

Citizens by Marriage.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 23.—In the contested election case of O. H. Brigham against P. C. Stanford, the court lays down the rule that alien born women become naturalized when they marry citizens of the state.

Premier Sagasta Worse.

Madrid, Dec. 23.—Premier Sagasta was worse yesterday. He is very feverish and his condition caused Spanish interior securities to fall from 56.22 to 55.30.

CHOATE WILL GET IT

He Is to Be Next Ambassador to Great Britain.

HITT MAY GO TO RUSSIA

Belief That Vacancy in Russia Has Been Offered to the Illinois Congressman. He Was Recomended Once for the British Post. Senator Platt Confirms the Report of Choate's Appointment.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—The next ambassador to England will be Joseph H. Choate of New York.

The indications are that Robert E. Hitt of Illinois, chairman of the House committee on foreign affairs, was asked to accept the ambassadorship to Russia yesterday by the president.

Senator Cullom recently recommended Mr. Hitt for the British post. This is of importance as an indication that Mr. Hitt is willing to leave Congress to enter the diplomatic service.

New York, Dec. 23.—Senator Platt told his friends yesterday that Joseph H. Choate would be nominated by the president for ambassador to the court of St. James, probably soon after Congress meets after the holidays.

This decision, he said, the president had been aided in making by the fact that Cornelius N. Bliss's resignation as secretary of the interior left this state unrepresented in the cabinet.

JOSEPH H. CHOATE.

There was talk among local Republicans yesterday to the effect that Whitelaw Reid, despairing of beating out Mr. Choate for the British embassy, had turned his attention now to obtaining the embassy to Russia, to be vacated soon by Ethan Allen Hitchcock, who has been selected for the cabinet.

United States and China.

Pekin, Dec. 23.—The United States minister here, Edwin H. Conger, has entered a protest against the proposed extension of French jurisdiction at Shanghai.

This, added to the vigorous British protest on the same subject, will undoubtedly stiffen Chinese resistance to the French demand.

But, unless the Chinese are sustained, they will eventually be compelled to yield.

Many Mules for Manila.

San Francisco, Dec. 23.—The ship Tacoma sailed yesterday for Honolulu with one hundred and eleven army mules on board.

At Honolulu the animals will be turned out for a few weeks' exercise, and will be reshipped with two hundred mules and horses in Honolulu for Manila, for the use of the United States troops.

Spanish Commissioners Home.

Madrid, Dec. 23.—The Spanish peace commissioners have all returned from Paris.

Senor Ojeda, secretary of the commission, had an interview yesterday with Premier Sagasta and the minister of foreign affairs on the subject of the Philippines.

Postal Treaty.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 22.—Ambassador Draper informs the department of state that the Italian Chamber of Deputies has ratified the postal treaty. The Senate may ratify it to-day.

It may go into effect on January 1 next, so far as Italy is concerned.

DENSE FOG BLOCKS TRAFFIC.

Many Steamships Are Fog Bound at Quarentine.

New York, Dec. 23.—The dense mist which set in Wednesday, thickened during the night, and yesterday morning the heaviest fog of the winter settled down over the city and the harbor.

There was a general delay to traffic as a result. The elevated trains crept along cautiously, but the surface lines were not materially affected.

Many of the East river ferry lines suspended traffic, and those which did not suspend ran on from one-half to three-quarters of an hour headway.

From Catherine street down to Fulton street the East river was as quiet and deserted as a country mill pond. Even tugboats feared to put out into the stream.

The James slip, the Roosevelt slip, the Long Island and the Thirty-ninth street ferries suspended service entirely. Other ferries along the East river ran their boats without regard to the schedule.

Along the North river traffic was somewhat more lively. The Pennsylvania, Jersey Central, Erie and Lackawanna ferries were running on half an hour headway, and a few tugs with barges in tow were leaving the various piers between Chambers street and the Battery.

Dense fog and mist, with only a few short spells of clearing weather, have been reported by the marine observers at Sandy Hook and the Highlands since Wednesday morning.

A few steamships have been feeling their way into port, but no sailing vessels have been observed.

At times the sound of whistles informed the watchers of some moving steamship, but nothing could be seen of the vessel itself.

When the fog clears, a huge fleet of vessels, it is expected, will be sighted.

It is thought that a number of vessels are anchored outside the lightship or are slowly approaching the coast.

Old boatmen along the North and East rivers said that the fog yesterday morning was one of the heaviest in years.

At ten o'clock yesterday morning one could not see the water at a distance of fifty feet from the end of the pier. Thick banks of mist shut off the view of the water completely from the Battery sea wall.

The Brooklyn bridge could not be seen from Dover and South streets.

Money for Don Carlos?

Paris, Dec. 23.—The Matin says: We learn from a sure source that notwithstanding all denials, Don Carlos has entirely succeeded in his financial schemes in London; that large capitalists have placed considerable sums at his disposal, and that a Carlist movement will take place immediately after the ratification of the treaty of peace.

London, Dec. 23.—Concerning the Paris Matin's assertion that London capitalists had placed large sums of money at the disposal of Don Carlos, Sir Samuel Montagu, who is Spain's banker in England, declares that the statement is an absolute canard.

Sir Samuel says that he has recently made special inquiries and has been unable to find the slightest trace of anybody having advanced money to the Carlists.

The publication of such statements as those of the Matin, he says, is merely with the object of encouraging the Carlist partisans.

Mr. Brice's Life Insurance.

New York, Dec. 23.—Life insurance people are remarking on the extraordinary fact that the late Mr. Calvin S. Brice carried five hundred thousand dollars' worth of insurance at the time of his death and that on all of it he had paid only one premium.

He began taking out policies last spring, when $350,000 worth of insurance was written against his death. Among the companies which have claims to pay are the following:

Mutual Life, $100,000; Equitable, $100,000; Union Central, $100,000; Northwestern Life, $30,000, and New York Life, $20,000.

It is announced that Mr. George L. Bradley, vice president and general manager of the Lake Erie and Western Railroad, will succeed Mr. Brice as president.

Survey of Porto Rican Harbors.

Baltimore, Md., Dec. 23.—The Coast and Geodetic Survey steamer Blake has left here for Porto Rican waters. Her departure marks the beginning of the work by this government in the new possessions of making surveys.

Most of the Spanish possessions have been poorly charted, and the coast lines of Porto Rico, Cuba and the Philippines contain many good harbors of which little is known.

Accurate surveys of these harbors will be made by the government at once.

Big Combination Proposed.

New York, Dec. 23.—Negotiations are now progressing in this city for the formation of a trade combination of mechanical rubber manufacturing companies.

The combination is to be in harmony with the United States Rubber Company, and Charles R. Flint of that company, who is one of the principal owners of the Mechanical Rubber Company of this city, is its chief promoter.

The New Boston Dry-dock.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—The navy department is preparing advertisements which will be issued soon, calling for bids on the construction of the new Boston dry dock.

This dock will be seven hundred by three hundred feet, of stone and cement, and calculated to accommodate the largest ships in the navy.

The appropriation is $1,025,000.

Hetty Greene Loses Her Tax Suit.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—Hetty Green's petition for a writ of mandamus to compel the county commissioners to sit as a board of review on the assessments made on her property in the town of Lake, has been denied by the supreme court.

The petition for the writ was based mainly on the ground that the new revenue is unconstitutional.

THE BIG RUSSIAN LOAN

What Is Thought of the Enterprise in London.

NEW YORK NOT YET FIRST

Expected Difficulty in Selling to the American Public. The Experience of Germany. Opinion of Foreign Bankers in this City.

London, Dec. 23.—Negotiations undoubtedly are proceeding in New York for a large Russian loan, variously estimated here at from ten to twenty millions sterling.

Nothing is known here as to the price or the interest offered. It is believed from certain indications, however, that the negotiations are somewhat far advanced.

Opinion here favors the possibility of an American financial syndicate taking such a loan, but it is considered that it would be difficult to resell to the American public.

Germany is now in the position of having taken a large Russian loan which she cannot market.

New York, Dec. 23.—Diligent inquiry among the prominent foreign bankers in this city failed to discover any proof of an attempt to float a Russian loan in this country further than the fact that a very few tentative inquiries had been made here as to the possibility of floating a small railroad loan guaranteed by the Russian government. But whether these inquiries were made by agents of Russian or German bankers or by agents of the Russian embassy was not known.

Practically all the prominent foreign bankers agreed yesterday in saying that they did not think a Russian loan could be successfully floated in this country for many reasons.

They recognized, they said, that it would be an interesting fact of the financial conditions of the world, and of this country particularly, had changed or should change so that European governments should be compelled to and could borrow here, but they did not think the present conditions warranted the conclusion that such was already the case.

It was true that this country, by its large exports of produce and manufactures at present might be said to control the exchange market, but it was a question how long this country could do so.

This country had two or three years of good harvests, but it might have a bad harvest or a series of bad harvests which might change the whole aspect of affairs. Again, too, the country had our unsettled currency problem with the possibility of another fight against the free silver heresy and for honest money, and that would bring about panic and a selling by Europe of our securities with all that implied, so that it could not be safely concluded yet that New York was the financial center of the world, with London retired to second place.

In conclusion the bankers said that it should be remembered that Russia's credit in Europe was not exhausted; that the capitalists of Europe had only to be satisfied of the bona-fides of the Czar's peace proclamation for Russia to be able to borrow all the money she required in London and Berlin.

Secret Dossier to be Given Up.

Paris, Dec. 23.—The president of the court of cassation has asked Premier Dupuy to testify in the Dreyfus case. According to custom in such cases, the judges will visit the premier and take his evidence.

After the adjournment of the cabinet council yesterday it was said that the communication of the secret dossier to the court of cassation was almost certain, the court having given to the minister of justice satisfactory guarantees that the contents of the documents should not be made known outside of the court.

Hobson Was Warned.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—It is stated that after the Kansas City reception, Secretary Long wired to Naval Constructor Hobson to act with more discretion, as by his conduct he was imperiling his reputation.

The secretary has been urged to recall Hobson, but decided that a telegram of warning would be sufficient. The naval officials say that it was due to Secretary Long's telegram that there was no kissing at Denver.

Logan Claim Defeated.

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 23.—The court of claims has denied the claim of Isaac R. Hitt, Mary S. Logan, widow of General John A. Logan, and Catherine Wiltshire, of $36,000 for services alleged to have been rendered by Hitt, John A. Logan and Wiltshire in securing the refunding of the direct tax to Illinois.

The claim was rejected because not filed with the state auditor within two years after it matured.

Hurry Orders at West Point.

Matteawan, N. Y., Dec. 23.—The West Point graduating class of 1899 received orders yesterday from the war department to take up the last course of study for the year and be prepared for graduation by February 1, 1899.

This will cut the year short by five months.

These hurried orders are given on account of a lack of officers in the army.

McKinley's Southern Speeches.

Seattle, Wash., Dec. 23.—At a meeting of John F. Miller Post, Grand Army of the Republic, last night, it was unanimously ordered that a telegram be sent to President McKinley congratulating him upon his loyal reception in the South, and endorsing his acts and speeches, especially in reference to the care of the Confederate dead.

Savings Bank Rate Reduced.

New Haven, Conn., Dec. 23.—The Bridgeport Savings Bank have reduced their rate of loans from 5 to 4 1-2 per cent., and will probably reduce the rate to depositors from 4 to 3 1-2 per cent. during the coming year.

REAR-ADMIRAL BUNCE RETIRES.

This Will Make Admiral Dewey Ranking Officer in the Navy.

Washingtin, D. C., Dec. 23.—The retirement of Admiral Bunce, who reaches the age limit to-morrow, takes from active service one of the most capable of the older live officers of the American navy. While not active in the recent war, he won his spurs in the civil war, where his work at Charleston brought him into prominence and earned him a well deserved promotion.

But his retirement marks another epoch in the American navy in that it makes Admiral Dewey the ranking officer, a position which, under ordinary circumstances, he can hold but one year, for he will reach the age limit December 26, 1899.

REAR-ADMIRAL BUNCE.

The action of Congress in making him a full admiral will probably entitle him to a longer service than that provided for in the existing regulations.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—It has practically been determined by the navy department to retain Rear Admiral Francis M. Bunce in command of the Brooklyn navy yard as a retired officer.

He will doubtless be kept there until the treaty of peace is signed, when a rearrangement of naval stations will be ordered and which may afford an opportunity to give Admiral Schley sea duty.

SENATOR HALE IN THE SOUTH.

Spoke at a New England Society Dinner in Charleston.

Charleston, S. C., Dec. 23.—Senator George F. Hoar of Massachusetts spoke here to the toast "Forefathers' Day" at the New England banquet last evening.

Senator John L. McLaurin of South Carolina, who accompanies Senator Hoar, spoke to the toast "Our Country." He said in part:

"Standing to-night upon the birthplace and very cradle of secession, with sincere hearts we can all thank God that out of the supreme agony of the Spanish war has come union one and indivisible. I thank God for the president whose great soul and Christian spirit has done so much to reunite this nation. In the name of the South I thank him for the laurel wreath laid upon the graves of our dead."

Senators Hoar and McLaurin have been asked to take a trip to Fort Sumter as guests of the Bar Association to-day.

Grip Closes Three Colleges.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 23.—Swarthmore, Haverford and Bryn Mawr Colleges have all three closed two days earlier than expected because of the prevalence of grip among the students.

When Bryn Mawr closed two hundred cases were reported among the three hundred and fifty male students and sixty out of the one hundred and sixty young women had been obliged to give up their studies, according to Miss Lowater, secretary of the college.

Haverford closed at noon yesterday because of a lack of teachers owing to the grip.

President Sharpless, with seven other members of the faculty are sick in bed.

Health Officer Lee estimates that there are at present twenty-five thousand cases in this city and ten thousand more in the suburbs.

President Iglesias's Brothers.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 23.—Mr. Calvo, the minister of Costa Rica, presented yesterday to the secretaries of state war and the navy, a request from President Iglesias of Costa Rica, who recently visited this country, that the president's brothers, Ricardo and Luis Iglesias, be admitted respectively to the military and naval academies.

An act of Congress is necessary to secure the prvilege asked, and Mr. Calvo was assured by the three cabinet officers that they would recommend that the request of President Iglesias be granted.

Big Apartment House Burned.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—The Melrose apartment building at Twenty-eighth street and Ellis avenue, the largest apartment building on the South Side, was destroyed by fire last night, causing a loss of about two hundred thousand dollars—$120,000 on the building and $80,000 on the contents.

The structure contained sixty-six flats and the tenants lost practically everything.

About two hundred persons were rendered homeless.

Men Hurt by Dynamite.

La Grande, Ore., Dec. 23.—An explosion of dynamite occurred four miles west of Huron, in which five men were seriously injured, two of whom will die.

The names of the injured cannot be learned.

Three heavy blasts of dynamite were placed in the rocky side of the canon to be excavated, and fired. Two exploded, but the third was slow, and the men thought that the fuse had failed.

Two Killed in Wreck.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 23.—A special from Avon, this state, says:

No Work for Arbitrators.

In theory the existence of a State Board of Arbitration is an excellent thing as aiming to prevent labor troubles, but in practice all the good it does is to provide a number of nice jobs for politicians that costs the taxpayers a little over $6 000 a year. That fact was brought out in the annual report of the Board, which was made public yesterday. It was not the fault of the members of the Board, however, that their services were not of more value to the commonwealth.

The summary of the Board's work for the year shows that not a single strike was arbitrated. In most instances the offers of the Board to act as an arbitration body were either ignored or declined. In the few cases where there was an expressed willingness to accept the Board's services, the response came from only one side, and it therefore became useless to interfere.

This condition of affairs has led the members of the Board, in their report, to refer passively to the idea of compulsory arbitration in the effort to arrive at some plan whereby the usefulness of the Board will be more marked than last year's record shows. As gently as possible they suggest to the incoming Legislature the necessity of bringing about compulsory arbitration.

It hardly seems possible that compulsory arbitration is the proper thing, because to make it efficient and bring about the ends that fair arbitration aspires to, it would be needed to have a law compelling both sides to accept the decision of the Board after it has been arrived at in a thorough probing of the trouble from all sides. The millineun is too far off to think of either employe or employers bowing unreservedly to the decision of State officials in such a matter. And to pass a law attempting to compel either side to abide by the decision of the Board, even though such a decision was arrived at in an eminently fair and impartial manner, would be a rank invasion of personal liberty.

The report of the State arbitrators contains some very sensible comment on the bad feeling that strikes engender and the suggestion is made that the board's services would be much more valuable to all concerned if invoked before strikes actually occur. The experience of the board is stated to be that where one controversy or dispute can be settled after a severance of relations, twenty could be settled if taken in hand before the rupture comes.

How to Advance a City.

In discussing the advantages of obtaining largely diversified industries as possible, no matter how small each particular line may be, as aiding to contribute to the general commercial improvement and advantages of its city, the Paterson Press expresses some opinions that apply as well to Plainfield or any other town that is in the line of progress. The remarks of our Paterson contemporary are especially apt at the present time, in view of the project of a new silk mill for this city. The Press says:

A few hundred hands more or less will not make nor break a city of this size. But when it is recalled how many ways a few new men and additional dollars stimulate business and broaden the scope of the city the foolishness of that indifference which turns away from opportunities is apparent. We can get along with the manufacture of silk and iron, perhaps, but every new factory out of these lines would help to diversify our industries and lessen the periodical slumps that are inevitable in those towns whose manufactures are limited and which are prosperous only when the market for their particular lines is good. Every new factory, however small, stiffens the value of real estate and thus benefits every holder of such property. Every new factory circulates other moneys. Every new factory tends to create new demands and thus to plant by its side sooner or later another concern that will supply those demands—a fact illustrated by those concerns here which have been brought into existence by the weaving and throwing of silk and would not be here but for them. But the benefits of diversified industries are too apparent to need argument. What we need here is a revival of civic interest. The people in general complain of bad features of the municipal government, the educators complain of indifference in the schools, the Board of Trade complains of indifference in our industrial affairs, and every one of these evils is the result of a civic lethargy that must be shaken off if we hope to remain abreast of other communities in industries, education and municipal government. These are days of sharp competition, not only between individuals, but communities, and the law of the survival of the fittest applies to them. The town that turns a cold shoulder on industrial chances in these times helps some other town and stunts its own growth for the live town's benefit.

CHRISTMAS.

We are looking toward our Master
Where His love illustrious eye
Kindles faith in the perspective
Of His mansions in the sky.

By His Father's inspiration,
In that wond'rous Christmas time,
He was born into creation
Of those mansions so sublime.

Through His splendid sacrifices
To the Godhead's noblest scheme,
May we seek a sure redemption
In those mansions of our dream.

As of yore His dawning glory
Shall forever glow on high,
For the proud goodwill of Christmas
Thrills our mansions in the sky.

John Kean has reason to felicitate himself upon the turn of fortune that kept him out of the gubernatorial contest three years ago. He wanted to be Governor when Griggs was elected, and made a hot campaign for the nomination. He missed it. If he had won it he would probably never had been a United States Senator. His party supporters would have closed the account with him immediately upon his entrance into the Executive Chamber.

By the latest extensions of the long-distance telephone it is announced that "the merchant whom a tardy vacation keeps in his house at Bar Harbor will be able to converse with his agent in Austin, the capital of Texas, by the banks of the Colorado, 2,600 miles away." That's talking.

The hopes of the horsey spots that the old Guttenburg race track would soon re-echo again with their cries to favorite jockeys and horses has been rudely dashed to the ground by the forming of a land company, which will transform the old track into building lots.

The price of gas has been reduced from $1 80 to $1.50 per thousand cubic feet in New Brunswick. The people of the old Dutch city are in a mood to say in this respect that even "small favors are thankfully received."

There is enough fat in every person's body to make from four to eight candles. That probably accounts for the light heads some people have.

WHAT THE SHEARS FIND.

Editorial Comment From Other Papers of Interest in Plainfield.

The agitation about the consolidation of the city of Plainfield and the borough of North Plainfield is being revived, but it is useless prattle. So long as Senator Reed is in the Senate and so long as the Republican party is in power the Legislature would not consent to taking a populous borough from Somerset and transferring it to Union county which has already so many large municipalities. It would be unfair to Somerset from an economic point of view and it would be suicidal from a political standpoint. If the two contiguous municipalities could become one without a change of county lines it might be well, though we understand that the great majority of citizens in North Plainfield prefer to remain as a borough rather than to go into the city which means larger taxes and increased burdens in many ways. We believe that Senator Reed understands the situation very thoroughly and will take care of the matter in the best way. We don't believe he wants to get out of Somerset county by his own vote.—Somerville Unionist-Gazette.

'PLAINS AND FANWOOD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Scotch Plains, Dec. 23—The Methodist Sunday-school hold their Christmas entertainment in the church this evening and it promises to be one of the best entertainments in the history of the Sunday-school.

The stormy weather last night, no doubt, kept a great many away from the Christmas entertainment in the Methodist church, but those who braved the storm felt well repaid by the entertainment furnished. The school, assisted by some out-of-town talent, rendered a short cantata entitled "The Sailorboys Return," after which much to the delight of the little ones Santa Claus appeared upon the scene with presents for all. Rev. Mr. Woodruff seemed to be Santa's favorite as he received a number of handsome presents, one of which was a purse, contributed by the members of the church and congregation.

Rev. J. S Braker preaches a sermon to Twilight Council, Jr. O. U. A. M, in the Baptist church Sunday evening. Mr. Braker has but two more Sundays as pastor of the church and the council of which he is a member asked him to give them one evening.

Rev. Mr. Woodruff, of the Methodist church, has arranged the following programme for Christmas Sunday, sunrise prayer meeting, 7:30 a. m; morning service, 11 a. m; and in the evening a praise service from 7 until 7:45.

Union avenue is to have several more electric lights from Mountain avenue on toward the mountain.

Miss Jimmerson, of Lyons Farms, is visiting her sister Mrs. Edward Wade.

Christmas exercises will be held in the Italian mission Saturday evening.

Rev. J. S. Braker has returned from a visit with friends in Philadelphia.

WESTFIELD.

(Special Correspondence of The Daily Press.)

Westfield, Dec. 23.—At the close of the regular service in the Presbyterian church Sunday morning an election will take place at which three trustees will be chosen to fill the places of James T. Pierson, J. E. Brener and George N. Cross.

Dudley Clark was arrested yesterday afternoon by Constable Chamberlain and taken before Judge Touecy where J. J. Wahl, the butcher, made a complaint of embezzlement against him. From the complaint it appears that Clark, who worked for Wahl, has been in the habit of collecting bills and not turning in the money. Several customers have complained of getting bills twice and Mr. Wahl went around to his customers yesterday and found that a number had paid to Clark. He was put under $300 bail to appear before the next grand jury. Lawrence Powers and Robert Woodruff went his bond.

CURRENT COMMENT.

A learned judge has rendered an important decision. It is that harmonicas are toys. The customs officers tried to make out that they were grand pianos.

The Interstate Commerce Commission is hearing some painful tales of the losses occasioned to American railroads by the unfair competition of the Canadian Pacific; but inasmuch as the Canadian road is fostered by the refusal of the American Congress to impose upon it disabilities with regard to its American traffic equal to those imposed on the railroads of this country, it would seem that the appeal of the latter lies properly to Congress rather than to the Interstate Commission.

The fact that the health of the men on the fleets during the war with Spain was so much better than was that of the men in the camps is proof that climate alone is not a sufficient explanation of general conditions of sickness. It is true that sailors are better sheltered than soldiers, but they are also more crowded. The sanitation of a ship is infinitely superior to that of a camp, and hygienic rules are strictly enforced. In the navy sickness is prevented or promptly met in the most intelligent and thorough manner. When the same care is exercised with the army the results will be similar.

Figures compiled by the Treasury Bureau of Statistics show that this country's manufactures of iron and steel have advanced by measured strides, and not by spurts, from a total valuation of $14,716,524, in 1880, to $70,367,527, in 1898. The increase in exports has kept pace with that in manufactures, and the total amount of imports of this character has correspondingly decreased. The figures tell their own story, and it is an interesting one. The United States is steadily and rapidly taking the place once held by England as the world's great workshop.

Practically no other people caricature themselves in just the way the English and the American people do. Frenchmen, indeed, picture a great many kinds of ridiculous Frenchmen, and Germans make absurd Germans in large variety, and so on. Frenchmen not infrequently depict the Gallic cock, and give us representations of the idealized France in female guise, as we also have Columbia and Britannia. But Frenchmen do not really adopt our Johnny Crapaud as the type of their race, nor do the Germans take kindly to our modernized Gambrinus as their proper representative. The Anglo-Saxon race appears to have a sort of mocking self-consciousness all its own. John Bull and Brother Jonathan are admirable developments of this consciousness, and are not likely to die soon.

THE WOMAN'S WORLD

Give the Stupid Boy a Chance.

Here is a lesson and perhaps encouragement for parents who have a stupid boy, for no doubt there are a few stupid boys in the world, even amid the lights of this closing century. It is said that when Isaac Barrow, one of the greatest of English preachers, was a boy, his father thought him very stupid, and used to say if it pleased God to take from him any of his children he hoped it would be Isaac. But Isaac was not taken; he grew to be one of the greatest preachers of England, a professor in the University of Cambridge, and a teacher of Sir Isaac Newton. It is well to remember that a boy is not necessarily stupid because he is pronounced stupid. He may be stupidly judged. The fire of intellect may kindle slowly; it may seem to be smoldering under a heap of ashes hopelessly suppressed. Genius does not always shoot up like a skyrocket. It may come like the rising of the sun to meridian splendor, slowly, steadily. Do not be discouraged by the apparent stupidity of the boy or girl. Give him or her a fair chance. The first movements of the great seagoing vessel are apparently awkward and hesitating, as she tries to turn to get out of the harbor But watch her graceful, splendid movements as she plows the ocean or weathers the storm

Moreover, a stupid judgment of a boy is damaging to him To call him a dunce, a blockhead, an idiot is very unwise as well as unkind. It may discourage him, may for a long time paralyze his efforts, may even permanently affect his character. Give the stupid boy a chance, and it will be known ere long whether he is really or only apparently stupid.—Baptist Courier.

Bottle-Raised Babies Have Poor Teeth.

"Bottle-raised babies may be just as good as babies raised in the natural way," said a prominent dentist, "but there is no doubt that they are deficient in the stability of their teeth. I don't know that the bottle foods injure their teeth or prevent the teeth from becoming as hard as the teeth of more fortunate babies. The trouble appears to be in the nursing from the rubber nipple. The sulphur or other material used in hardening the rubber injures the teeth in other ways than by discoloring them. It softens them so that they decay and fall out least a year or year and a half earlier than they should. I know it is useless to decry raising babies by bottle, for there are those who pay no attention to such complaints. The dentist, however, has no difficulty in distinguishing bottle-raised babies by the appearance and condition of their teeth. There should be some substitute for the rubber nipple, and it seems strange with all the improvements of modern times that the rubber nipples of our great-grandmothers' days are still in use."—Washington Star.

Danger of Children Sucking Thumbs.

Although many babies throve and grew up in spite of sucking their thumbs, perhaps many who died might have been saved if their mothers had prevented their doing so. At least that is the theory of Dr. Monae Lesser, who says that fever germs and all sorts of other germs may be carried to the system by putting the fingers in the mouth.

The careful mother of to-day, in her wholesome fear of deadly germs, must have no sympathy for her little one's determination to suck its thumb. She should exert all her self-control, when the temptation comes to her to yield to the little tyrant, to keep him quiet. Should the habit be a fixed one, she should treat the rebellious thumb to a coating of aloes, or its possessor to the more heroic remedy of a good spanking!—Demorest's Magazine.

The Useful Bran Bag.

No bath room is complete without its complement of bath bags. These are made of the coarsest possible butter cloth, doubled, to keep it from breaking. They have a draw string and can be easily emptied. If filled with a quart of bran, a most excellent thing to tone up the skin and to promote a good circulation of the blood, a teaspoonful of orris root—this for perfume—and half a cake of white castile soap, chopped very fine, a splendid skin tonic is secured.

The object of confining the bran in the bag is to prevent the pipe that carries the water away from being plugged up. After a month of such a daily bath the skin will be white, clean and as smooth as polished marble.

Learn to Take Proper Rest.

To understand how to rest is of more importance than to know how to work. The latter can be learned easily, the former takes years to learn. and some people never learn the art of resting. It is simply a change of scenes and activities. Lounging may not be resting. Sleeping is not always restful. A change is needed to bring into play a different set of faculties and to turn the life into a new channel. The woman who works hard finds her rest in playing hard. The woman who is burdened with care finds relief in something that is active yet free from responsibility. Above all we should keep good-natured and not abuse our best friend—the digestion.

OUR YOUTHS' COLUMN.

IN PILLOW LAND.

They sent me to bed the other night—
What I did I don't know, but it wasn't right.

And I went to bed and I cried and cried,
For going to bed I cannot abide.

But when I'd been there a minute or two,
Came the funniest things you ever knew.

For right in my pillow I looked, and law!
Was the finest parade that ever you saw.

There were lobsters, clad in the finest things,
The kind you will see on the backs of kings,

And they marched along like the grenadiers,
Who fight like lions and know no fears.

And then came a line of oysters bold,
With legs and clothes all trimmed with gold;

And then, with a fearful, terrible noise,
There followed a crowd of my choicest toys.

'Twas the best parade that was ever seen;
No show like that has ever been;

And I tell you what—with my might and main
I'm trying to be sent to bed again!

John Kendrick Bangs.

Trying To Be a Boy.

A pathetic little story comes from the "Recollections" of Elizabeth Cady Stanton. She says that when her brother died, she climbed upon her father's knee, wondering what could be said or done to fill the empty place in his heart.

"Oh, my daughter," he sighed. "I wish you were a boy."

I threw my arms about his neck, and said: "I will try to be all my brother was."

All that day and far into the night I pondered the problem of boyhood. I thought the chief thing to be done to equal boys was to be learned and courageous, so I decided to study Greek and learn to manage a horse.

As soon as I was dressed I hurried to our good pastor, Rev. Simon Hosack, who was always early at work in his garden.

"Doctor," said I, "which do you like best, boys or girls?"

"Why, girls, to be sure! I wouldn't give you for all the boys in Christendom!"

"My father," said I, "prefers boys. He wishes I were one, and I intend to be as like one as possible. I am going to ride on horseback and study Greek. Will you give me a Greek lesson now, Doctor? I want to begin at once."

"Yes, child," he said, throwing down his hoe. "Come into my library and we will begin without delay."

I kept up my lessons at the parsonage, and made rapid progress. I surprised even my teacher, who thought me capable of doing anything. I learned to drive and to leap a fence and ditch on horseback. I taxed every power, hoping some day to hear my father say:

"Well, a girl is as good as a boy, after all."

But he never said it.

I began to study Latin, Greek and mathematics with a class of boys in the academy, many of whom were much older than I. Two prizes were offered in Greek. I strove for one, and took the second.

"Now," said I, "my father will be satisfied with me."

I rushed breathless into his office, laid my prize, a new Greek Testament, on the table, and exclaimed:

"There! I got it!"

He took up the book and asked me some questions. Then he kissed me on the forehead and exclaimed, with a sigh:

"Ah, you should have been a boy!"—Youth's Companion.

How Bees Ventilate Their Home.

The buzzing sound that bees make in their hives, and which can be often heard by those standing outside, is not produced for the sake of the music. It is to expel the bad air; and a row or file of them may often be found near the entrance engaged in that health giving operation.

Meanwhile, there is another little company standing just outside, "fluttering" the fresh air in. All this time the little messengers between hive and flower go, come and go, and brush past the ventilating corps, with their little loads of honey.

As high as twenty bees may be engaged at once in this praiseworthy process of giving fresh air to their homes. When they get tired, their place is taken by others, and the good work of aeration still goes on.

Old Sol's Hard Job.

Grandmamma had been explaining to the little girl how our earth was kept from flying through infinite space by the attraction of the sun, which is constantly trying to draw the earth toward itself, while the latter always keeps its distance.

"Grama," said the little girl, "I should think the sun would get discouraged after awhile and let go."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Thought It Needed Grease.

A little three-year-old girl, while her mother was trying to get her to sleep became interested in some outside noise. She was told that it was caused by a cricket, when she sagely observed:

"Mamma, I think he ought to be oiled."—Ex.

Hirschberg. Die hiesige Strafkammer verurtheilte den Direktor Jäger und den Rektor Ollinski vom Warmbrunner Kredit- und Sparverein wegen Unterschlagung von 17,000 Mark zu vier und drei Jahren Gefängniß. Der dritte an den Unterschlagungen Betheiligte, der Vorsitzende des Aufsichtsrathes, Hauke, hatte sich das Leben genommen.

Provinz Schleswig-Holstein.

Schleswig. Der Landrath des Kreises Stormarn hatte dem Fabrikanten Heil in Wandsbeck verboten, Russen und Oesterreicher in seiner Fabrik als Arbeiter anzustellen, ein Erlaß, welcher vom Minister des Innern prompt aufgehoben wurde.

Altona. Die berüchtigte Tabakdiebstahl-Angelegenheit, die seinerzeit viel Staub aufgewirbelt hatte und von Berliner Blättern in's Ungeheuerliche aufgebauscht worden war—es sollte sich schließlich um viele Millionen handeln—kam kürzlich vor dem hiesigen Landgericht zur Verhandlung. Es ist ein ganz einfacher Diebstahl: ein Cigarrenarbeiter hat Alles in Allem 100 bis 200 Pfund Tabak unterschlagen und an Cigarrenhändler verkauft. Er wurde deswegen zu 150 Mark Geldstrafe verurtheilt, die der Hehlerei angeklagten Betheiligten dagegen sämmtlich freigesprochen.

Münster. Die Invaliden-Versicherungsanstalt Westfalen bewilligte in ihrer Ausschußsitzung 1,000,000 Mark zur Förderung des Baues von Arbeiterwohnungen.

Lesson For the Week Beginning Dec. 25—Comment by Rev. W. J. Yates, A. M.—Topic, The Christian Anthem.

Scripture Reading.—Luke ii. 13, 14.—"Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men in whom He is well pleased."

Music of some kind finds place in nearly all forms of worship, heathen as well as Christian. In the Jewish temple service it had a conspicuous place. Among the most profound literature of human sentiment and devotional piety must be reckoned much of the book of Psalms, most of which was adapted to special tunes and particular instruments in the musical service of the temple. This book of Psalms in all ages since has been an inexhaustible storehouse of inspiration and expression to all who have attempted to put in language the penitence of a sinful soul and the aspirations after a God of purity and mercy.

But the loftiest theme of human thought and of sacred poetry and song was not presented until God became incarnate in human form. Around the manger cradle of Immanuel beams a glory undreamed of among men before. All powers of ecstatic jubilation seem to animate the choir of angels who announce His birth to wondering shepherds on the hillsides, where aforetime David kept his flocks and praised Jehovah with harp and voice.

Men have drawn ceaseless inspiration from the Nativity, and while other gods fall from their thrones and their worshipers become mute, the praises of the Christ Child swell ever more exultant and harmonious.

At the pinnacle of all music stands Christian song, and the climax of Christian harmony and melody is found in the oratorio of "The Messiah."

The Worth of Christmas.

This is not to be estimated by the gifts one receives, nor by the volume of trade the merchants have had. Holly and evergreen decorations of sanctuary and home do not express it. No musical service can sing it; no eloquence can voice it. All together do not comprehend it. Its worth lies in deepening the soul's recognition of the nearness of God and the value of manhood. Jesus, the Lord of all worlds, has become one with us in our nature that we may become one with Him in the divine nature. What are you worth now? What value does the birth of Jesus Christ add to us, each one? All that is worth living for here and hereafter gets its value from the association of our lives with His life who has all the fullness of God.

Make the Most of It.

Too often the Christmas festivities are allowed to degenerate into meaningless or comical exercises bordering on buffoonery. Why should a Sunday school or any church organization have a Santa Claus with wig and greatcoat distribute presents to the children? How much better to be rid of all such nonsensical foolishness and recognize God our Father as the giver of all good gifts and honor Him on this birthday of His Son and make Christmas a Christian and not a heathen festival! Let the Christ story be rehearsed and the gift of God celebrated. Make all center around Christ, and fill all hearts with love for Him. Honor Him whose birthday we commemorate.

At this time, when all minds are busy preparing gifts, it is well to consider that the best part of a gift is unseen. It is in the feeling with which it is bestowed. The simplest and least expensive thing acquires inestimable value under some circumstances. The best we can give is not so much our goods as ourselves. If we are genuine in heart and noble in life, some token, however simple, will convey to others the aroma of our intention and disposition. The hearts of men need friendship more than any other favors. Give of ourselves so as to make others better, and we give the most precious values.

All through the Old Testament history idolatry is denounced as the most culpable sin. In the New Testament avarice, stinginess, is declared to be idolatry. In its essential character it is the preferring things before God, the placing higher estimate upon possessions than on Him who is the giver of all. Few sins are so hard to root out as niggardliness. Christmas giving is a good corrective of it. "Give and it shall be given unto you."

I do not think that any of us can dare count ourselves fully Christians unless Jesus Christ has so taken hold of our lives that we can do great hard duties by His strength, unless we can give ourselves up to our brethren in something of the spirit of self sacrifice in which He gave Himself, unless our faith has been transmuted into character.—Phillips Brooks.

In all our giving we should first remember our church and God's poor. Don't make the mistake of remembering all your friends and scrimp the offering to missions and the other church benevolences, and especially don't get so poor that you cut the church dues. Give first to God and then to others.

Unexpected Answers.

I asked the Lord that I might grow
In faith and love and every grace,
Might more of His salvation know
And seek more earnestly His face.

I hoped that in some forward hour
At once He'd answer my request
And by His love's constraining power
Subdue my sins and give me rest.

Instead of this He made me feel
The hidden evils of my heart
And let the angry powers of hell
Assault my soul in every part.

"Lord, why is this?" I trembling cried.
"Wilt thou pursue a worm to death?"
"'Tis in this way," the Lord replied,
"I answer prayer for grace and faith.

"These inward trials I employ
From self and pride to set thee free
And break thy schemes of earthly joy,
That thou mayest seek thine all in Me."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 25.—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—"Truths taught by Christmas."—Luke ii, 8-20.

The topical reference is Luke's story of the birth of Christ—the story of how when born He was laid in the manger, of the coming of the shepherds, their fear and their joy, of the angels' song of heaven, "Glory to God In the Highest," and of the wonderment of the people; matchless, marvelous, joyous story, that has brought hope into the heart of millions of human beings and that will continue to do so while the world stands.

Christmas teaches many important truths, and the search for truth at Bethlehem is singularly appropriate on a Christmas day that comes on the Sabbath. The truths of Christmas are hopeful, inspiring and joyful. They fill us with joy. They inspire us with hope. They make the world look brighter and rob the future of its terror. The birth of the Son of God as the Saviour of the world was enough to dispel even the despondency and gloom of the world in the time of Christ. It should be enough to make the present age ring with joy and gladness.

1. Christmas teaches a lesson on God's love. "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son" for it. This "giving" had its first actual demonstration on the first Christmas day. The birth of Christ at Bethlehem was the first earthly step toward Calvary and its great gift. It was the beginning of the fulfillment of prophecy, which declared the greatness of the love of God for the world. It was as much the love of God that gave Christ at Bethlehem as it was at Calvary.

2. Christmas teaches a lesson on faith. It teaches us to trust and believe in God, although we cannot understand all about God. As we look at the Babe of Bethlehem and see in Him both God and man we are astounded at the miracle before us. Who can fathom the mystery of the incarnation of the "word made flesh?" Who can understand it? Who can explain it? No human mind, but we can believe it. The future life of the Babe of Bethlehem proved Him to be both God and man. We can believe it, but not fathom it. God, both in His attributes and in His dealings with men, is unfathomable. The great doctrines of Christianity are beyond finite human understandings. "Now we see through a glass darkly." But we can believe in God, though we cannot fully understand Him.

3. Christmas teaches a lesson on salvation. It teaches us that the world is to be saved from sin. "Unto you is born * * * a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord." The world is to be saved. What a glorious, hope inspiring truth! The Son of God is the Saviour; therefore the salvation will not fail.

4. Christmas teaches a lesson on the faithfulness of God to His promises. Christ was promised. Christ came. God has been and always will be faithful to His promises.

Bible Readings.—Gen. iii, 15; Isa. ix, 6, 7; xi, 1-9; Math. ii, 1-12; Luke, ii, 1-14; xv, 1-24; John iii, 16; I Cor. vi, 19, 20; xiii, 12; Heb. x, 23.

Christ's Example.

He was always teaching them good and sending them in the strength of His teaching to do good, thus nourishing their souls unto eternal life, and when they had done their service of love He loved to break bread and give to them for the nourishment and refreshment of their bodies, and now all along the road He had been sharing with them His own joy in the fulfillment of the Scriptures and in the new fullness of the divine love in His heart. They listened and got from His glowing words a new inspiration of Christian love and thought—an inspiration which is still in the words, and will never leave them, and when they were come into the house and were set down to meat it was but the outward form of the same thing to take bread and bless and break and give to them. He did it as He had ever done it, only now with a new fullness of love springing from His own new joy.—Helper.

Begin Now.

We shall spend the eternal ages in glorifying the Lamb that was slain. Would it not be seemly to begin now upon that which is to be our real life work? How vain it is to spend our few years on earth in magnifying our foolish selves and trying to make for ourselves a name that will be forgotten long before our tombstone crumbles into dust when instead we might share in the noblest work of the highest archangel in heaven—the exaltation of Jesus the Christ.—William T. Ellis.

Be Not Discouraged.

Often a minister is discouraged, and, as he thinks, with reason. Yet let him take heart; God sees results that are not apparent to him. If he is faithful to his commission, he cannot wholly fail, for the preaching of the gospel is a most sensible business. It is the employment of a divinely appointed means, a means thoroughly calculated to reach the desired end, the use of means exactly adapted to meet a want that is the deepest want of the human soul.—Moravian.

My Name.

There is a hand—a bleeding hand—
That graves my name and makes it stand,
An unerased and glorious thing,
Among the records of the King.

God, bending from his throne above,
Takes up his pen that's dipped in love
And signs on page of fairest scroll
The names of those whom Christ makes whole.

And there—e'en there—my poor, weak name,
That merits an eternal shame,
He writes in characters so bright
That angels cannot bear the sight.

O blessed hand, O sacred heart,
That wills that I should have a part
In rapt'rous scenes of heavenly bliss,
What wonder could be more than this?

THE AMUSEMENT WORLD.

CURRENT ATTRACTIONS THAT PLAINFIELDERS MAY WITNESS.

Local and Metropolitan Performances That Will Please Those Who Delight in the Art of Thespis and Mimic World.

Music Hall was not crowded last night on account of the very stormy weather, but a more pleased audience never left the theatre after witnessing "Fanchon the Cricket." Tonight the great metropolitan success, "New York by Night and Day," will be given, introducing a thrilling fire scene. On Saturday night Miss Lester's greatest play, "Jack Sheppard," will be presented for her final appearance this season. "Jack" is too well-known to need any remarks. Go and see it, it's a great show. "Fanchon" will be played at the matinee.

* * * * *

Almost every theatre-goer has seen Denman Thompson's "Old Homestead," and will recall the quaint old "Si Pryme" of the cast. "Si" has branched out for himself and is one of the leading features at Keith's, New York, this week in a droll sketch of New England life that has made an instantaneous hit. He will be seen at Music Hall next Monday afternoon and evening with George Thatcher's Fashionable Vaudivilles. A pleasing feature of the act is the complete stage setting and rural scenic effects which he carries.
